BIG BEAR.

An interesting story of the noble hunter!

Big Bear, who is the prime mover in the late bloody work at Fort Pitt, is well known to many residents of Edmonton, who formerly resided at Fort Pitt. Mr. J. S. Snider, who was in charge of Fort Pitt for the Hudson Bay Company for twelve years, is well acquainted with him, and gives the following particulars: He is a plain Cree, a native of the Carlton region, and is about 60 years of age. He is of short stature, thin and old looking. His appearance is anything but impressive. He speaks with a loud voice, but is short of breath, and is not an orator by any means. About twenty years ago he removed from Carlton to Pitt, and became the head man of a small band of his relatives who resided at Pitt, numbering about twenty tents, or perhaps twenty men. He never was recognized as a chief until after treaty six was made, and he removed to Cypress Hills. At Fort Pitt he was frequently employed by the Hudson Bay company as a buffalo hunter, and had the reputation of being a good Indian. His band, however, were generally regarded as the greatest being his nephew named Little Poplar. During a famine which occurred thirteen years ago, caused by the buffalo leaving for the south and the Indians being unable to follow them, they began to kill the Hudson Bay cattle, but were prevented from doing so by the justice of the peace of Big Bear. He and his band seldom engaged in war, but they were notorious for their depredations on the Hudson Bay cattle.
He was thought to be rather cowardly. On one occasion four Crees were attacked by Big Bear and his band. Big Bear was killed, while Big Bear was the first to fall. He refused to go to the aid of his relatives, although Mr. Snider offered him him the use of the boat and the Hudson Bay horses. The four Crees, however, succeeded in killing the band of Big Bear. On several occasions he showed that his courage was not of the highest order. At the making of treaty No. 6 in 1875, Big Bear refused to accept the terms offered to him, and he was thought to be rather cowardly.
Between frequent depredations on the Hudson Bay cattle, and the depredations on the Hudson Bay cattle, the Indians have become much more expert than formerly in the art of war, and he came to be looked upon as a big chief, equal in importance to Piapot. At last circumstances, in the shape of food and many United States troops, coupled with the depredations on the Hudson Bay cattle, induced the Indians to the Bear to return to his old camping ground near Pitt some two years ago. Although he looked to be a brave man, he was a coward, and he was not yet known here. There is a story that he had been killed one trip from Pitt to Edmonton. He always kept moving about and fermented discontent wherever he went, which the management of the Indian department, induced the Indians to leave the Hudson Bay cattle, especially among the Fort Pitt Indians, who never had a good reputation, and of whom he seems to have secured control. A large number of the original band of Sweet Grass, who had just issued an official circular announcing the promotion of James Wilson to the position of superintendent of the Ontario division. Mr. Wilson will then have the superintendence of the line between the terminal points of Owen Sound, Treewater, St. Thomas and Smith's Falls Junction. The new superintendent was for many years in the service of the Grand Trunk, first as operator, and later as station agent at Alton Craig. He was agent of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce railway at the Queen's wharf, and when this line merged into the Canada Pacific he was advanced to the position of master of transport. An assistant superintendent to Mr. Wilson, he retained charge of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce railway until the opening of the Ontario and Quebec division, when he had the superintendence of this part of the line in addition to his former charge. That Mr. Wilson's administration has so far been singularly efficient is proved by his advance to the post of superintendent of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce, Ontario and Quebec and Credit Valley sections. J. W.
Wilson, a zealous superintendent of the Credit Valley railway, has been appointed to the same position over the Ontario division.—Toronto

INDIAN WAR IN THE STATES.

Many White Men Killed by the I. & C. class in New Mexico.

DENVER, N. M., May 27.—A backboard from Alma came through Silver City last night bringing news of additional murders by Apaches.
An old man named Benton, two Sutter brothers,
Pete Anderson, Jim Montgomery, M. Smith
W. E. Lyon, and an unknown man were killed recently. A number have been killed who cannot be recognized. Mr. Conroy writes to John Smith as follows: "There is bad business here.
Twenty four men are already buried within a radius of 24 miles, 7 by the troops and 17
by the citizens."

The following are reported wounded above Alma:—Jno. Walworth, Tom Welch and a woman, Woods, Poland, Tom McKinney and Baxter, of Pinos Alto, were camped above Hot Springs, and during the absence of Woods and Poland the camp was attacked. When Poland returned he found Baxter dead and McKinney missing. Poland hastened to Gila river to warn the citizens and was shot on the way.

LAVIN.—Thirty Indians passed near bear hollow, and killed two men at the Cantwell and Pattee ranch, and Gila, and on Sunday afternoon they killed Charles Stevenson, foreman at the G. & Ingolf ranch, and Harvey Moreland, son of James Moreland, living between Gray and Fairview. The bodies were found six miles north of Grafton. They were shot with arrows. Moreland was shot several times in the back, and his body was found near an iron rod driven through his head into the ground. Frank Adams, son of George Adams, ranchman near Fairview, is supposed to be killed. His body was found near the bodies of the other two dead men.
A special from Winslow, Arizona, says: About 100 Navajos, Utes and Pimas, all thoroughly armed with war paint on, camped near Harts last night. It is reported that they are making preparations to join Geronimo's Apaches. The latest indications from the front states that the Navajos are on Diamond Creek, north-east of Fort Bayard, in the Black Range. Col. Morrow and San Carlos scouts are in that vicinity, and Col. Hildreth, with a battalion of the 6th cavalry, are ready to meet them. There are about 60
White Mountain Apache scouts, on their trail.

CANADA PACIFIC CHANGES.

An Official Circular Announces a Reorganization of the Local Staff.

General Superintendent Wm. White of the Eastern and Ontario division Canada Pacific railway, has just issued an official circular announcing the promotion of James Wilson to

HALIFAX, N.S., May 27.—A report reached Halifax to-night that the keeper of the cemetery near Charlottetown, P.E.I., was murdered by morning. It is stated by the authorities here, by whom the information was received, that the perpetrators of the crime have not been apprehended so far.

Fatally Shot.

BELLEFLEUR, May 27.—Gen. Gerdis accidentally shot himself on Friday evening last by the careless handling of his gun whilst crawling

Death was probably instantaneous, as the bullet passed through his lung.

A CONSERVATIVE MINISTER.

The Port Hope Guide has dealt largely with the subject of the Franchise Bill lately, and has done so in a manner intended to give its readers an exalted idea of the wonderful knowledge of public affairs that it possesses. In Tuesday's issue, however, the Guide exposes itself in a very amusing manner. It launched out into extravagant praise of the course adopted by the Opposition, and named the men whom it deemed especially worthy of praise. Among those names appears that of Mr. Outingen, and that gentleman would not doubt be greatly surprised to learn that he is in opposition to a government of which he is an honored member. He would, however, after the abuse he has received from the Reform press, be still more surprised to see a Reform paper praising his "skill, ability and statesmanship," and dilating on his "transcendent ability," and his "integrity and devotion to his country's honor and interests." What explanation will the Guide give when it discovers that it has been praising one of the able colleagues of the hated Sir John Macdonald?

Mr. BLAKE has advanced another "argument" against giving Indians the right to vote. It is that some of the Indians are Orangemen. If that is sufficient to debar the Indians from voting, all Orangemen should be disqualified, but Mr. Blake would not care to go that far. It is also true that many Indians are Roman Catholics, but the question of their religious belief has nothing to do with the matter. In a country where even Catholics are allowed to exercise the franchise, no man professing a belief in any form of Christianity should be disqualified on account of that belief. Mr. Blake's attempt to arouse religious ill-feeling over this question was a most reprehensible action, and will be censured by the people of Canada, of all denominations, as it deserves.

The Reformers (press and leaders), in their eagerness to oppose the Government bill, have smothered at the judges, reviled the barristers of the Province, denounced the Indians wholesale as being everything that is bad, objected to factory employees having votes, endeavored to disfranchise the Civil Service and have even gone as far as to try to arouse religious differences in order to defeat the bill. But perhaps they will lay claim to liberality because some of them endeavored to have the franchise extended to Chinese.

The London Advertiser says that the Franchise Bill "says the judges may be appointed" reviling officers. Exactly, and where it is not practicable to appoint judges, barristers of five years' standing, who will be sworn in the same manner as judges, will be appointed. Thus the officers will either be judges, or men belonging to the profession from which judges are taken and appointed in the same manner as judges.

"Conscience doth make onwards of us all." Remembering the manner in which Reform officials prevented Conservatives from polling their votes in Algoma, the Reformers feel that officials appointed by a Conservative Administration might adopt the same tactics. There is no ground for fear. Every man's right vote is carefully guarded in the Dominion Franchise Bill.

The Belleville Ontario says:—"Now that the halfbreed rebellion has so completely collapsed and its leaders are prisoners it is time to look for the true cause of the trouble."

And yet the Ontario and other Reform journals have professed to know for some time the true cause of the trouble, which they are now going to look for.

TORNADO WARNING.

Mr. W. H. Smith, of Montreal, has published the following letter:—

On the 24th and 25th days of June, 1885, the planets Mercury and Venus are respectively at their perihelion points. Past records show that some of the most disastrous tornadoes, cyclones and storms have occurred in summer seasons, even when only one of these planets has been nearest the sun, and I fear that there exists every probability of a recurrence of grave atmospheric disturbances this year. An imperfect record for the more recent perihelion dates gives:—August 3rd, 1882, Mercury at perihelion. On the 2nd a cyclone wrecked Snowflake, Man.; 3rd, a great water-pint prevailed at Shelby, Ohio, and a heated river, with several displays landed from the 11th to the 7th, followed by high winds, rain and a cool reaction. July 21, 1883, Mercury at perihelion. A terrible tornado wrecked Minnesota and adjacent parts, doing $150,000 damage in 1-1/2 days; alone, with tornadoes as far south as Sorel, Can., houses there being wrecked on the 22nd. August 22nd, 1883, Venus at perihelion. Great heat in the Eastern States and Canada. 20th and 21st, sun-stroke a number, with heavy storms west; great tornado on the 21st, at Rochester, Minn., which tore up 135 dwelling houses and killed 30 persons; 22nd a hurricane at Ottawa, Ont. July 7th, 1884, Mercury in perihelion. Great heat on the 8th and 9th, heavy storms over Iowa, Wisconsin, New York and other states; on the 7th a water-pint fell in Madison Co., Ark., drowning persons, sweeping houses and crops away, etc.

July 1st to 4th, high winds, thunder showers and unsettled weather in the northeastern United States and Canada; tornadoes probable in Iowa, Wisconsin, New York and other states; on the 7th a water-pint fell in Madison Co., Ark., drowning persons, sweeping houses and crops away, etc.

Not to weary your readers with repetitions, I close by giving my general tornado forecast for the last eight or ten days of June, 1885, as follows:—

THE MIDLAND SOLDIERS.

From Entire Order Book After the Battle of Batoche.

The deeds yesterday performed by the Midland during the battle of Batoche have been such as to call from all encomiums of the highest order. That flank movement entrusted to us was so rapidly and determinedly made that it is admitted that by it the tide of the victory was turned. Amid a shower of lead from the front and left flank, the red line of the Midland pressed steadily on with British cheer and pluck, through the entangled brush on the river slope, until the proper time arrived for the rush across the open prairie front to the houses, the capital of the rebels, a distance of about 500 yds.

The response to this was a noble one and would have done credit to the most experienced soldiers, as amid a shower of bullets the charge was made and the cheers went up. The Midland had the honor of having been in front in the advance and the gratitude of the prisoners who were held by the rebels as they emerged from the cellars of these houses seemed to be a reward for the noble effort of the day, which was ours.

The Lieut. Col. commanding has issued commendatory orders to the Battalion before this; for pluck shown in enduring hardships, for good order and discipline, and for efforts put forth as the line of march, and now words would fail to convey his deep sense of what is due to the Midland for their steadfastness under the fire of a determined and well-entrenched enemy. Nobly have the officers done their duty, and the response of the rank and file to their command under the most trying circumstances has always been a ready and reliable one, as day after day and night after night the throbs of the enemy's bullets sounded about our advanced rifle pits.

The Lieut. Col. commanding desires to place on record the pride he feels in having had the honor of commanding such soldiers, and to express his thanks to the officers and men for the ready response given under such circumstances to his orders.

The action yesterday, which virtually has broken the rebellion, will call forth the thanks and gratitude of the country and none will be more deserving of this than the Midland. While we rejoice over the victory, we cannot forget our wounded comrades who we leave behind us as we push farther on. Let us express our deepest sense of gratitude that none have been dangerously wounded.

(Signed) A. H. WILLIAMS,
Lieutenant Col. commanding
Midland Battalion.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FIRE PROTECTION.—The fire season has now begun, and in every paper there are accounts of fires in all parts of the Dominion. Madoc, only a few days ago, had a blaze which destroyed over $10,000 worth of property. Up to the present Lakefield has been lucky enough to escape anything serious, but the evil day may come at any time, and if it does, what may the village in the way of protection? Absolutely nothing, for the hand engines belonging to the village would be of little, if any, use. The question of fire protection has been brought up by the Council, but was immediately cried down by those who would not be directly benefited by the necessary outlay, and as there would be a small amount added to their taxes, they are prepared to take the risk of seeing the village destroyed by fire, and business paralyzed for years to come. The Village Council should take the matter into their own hands, and carry it through. They would, of course, be abused and blamed, as is the way of the world, but should a large fire occur in the centre of the village, and more unlikely things have happened, they would have the pleasure of knowing that owing to their timely action, the village had been saved from destruction.

DROWNING ACCIDENT.—Mr. White, who lived near Young's Point, was drowned on Saturday last. He went out fishing in the morning, and not returning at his usual time, search was made for him and his punt was found bottom up, but no trace of the body could be found, though it is still being looked for.

CHEESE FACTORY.—The new cheese factory erected at Mr. Grieve's corner is doing extremely well, and resolves more milk than was at first expected.

A MILD SUGGESTION.—I trust the churchwardens of St. John's Church will pardon me for suggesting that the appearance of the Old English Church would be much improved if the grass was kept cut and the dead leaves raked off.

A RARE SIGHT.—A gentleman saw a flight of ducks flying north this morning to the number of nearly four hundred. He has been many years in Canada, but he says he never saw so many ducks in one flight before.

AN EXTRAORDINARY HEN.—A hen belonging to a gentleman living close to the village has built herself a most extraordinary nest. She first dug a hole in the ground, and then collected pine needles and horse hair, of which she built it. She is now sitting proud and happy on sixteen eggs.

Nurses for the North-West.

The first party of nurses for the North-West left Toronto in charge of Dr. Caniff on Tuesday morning. They consisted of the Mother Superior and three sisters of the order of St. John the Divine, Miss J. Matheson, of Perth, daughter of the late Senator Matheson, Miss Macdonald, of Toronto, daughter of the late Rev. Mr. Macdonald, and Miss Cockle, of London, seven nurses in all. Miss Matheson and Miss Macdonald were trained at the nurses training school in connection with Bellevue Hospital, New York, and Miss Cockle at the St. Catherine's training school. They proceed via Port Arthur to Moose Jaw, N. W. T., where a hospital will be established to receive the wounded volunteers removed from Saskatoon. They took with them a large quantity of hospital supplies. Many ladies and gentlemen interested in the work were at the station to see them off. It may be mentioned that Dr. Caniff last week received word from Saskatoon that his son William, who was wounded at Fish Creek, was not improving satisfactorily, suppurating having set in, and another operation on his arm requiring to be performed. The doctor is therefore anxious to see his son, and bring him home, where he can have every care and attention bestowed upon him.—Mail.

The Royal Society of Canada.

OTTAWA, May 26.—The fourth annual meeting of the Royal Society of Canada opened at 10 o'clock this morning in the railway committee room of the house of commons. Dr. T. Sterry Hunt, president, occupied the chair. Dr. Daniel Wilson, the vice-president, and Mr. J. G. Bourinot, hon. secretary, were in attendance. The honorary president the Marquis of Lansdowne was present in the afternoon and delivered an interesting address on the work being performed by the society.

Pirates on the Hudson.

PETERBOROUGH, N. Y., May 26.—Thos. H. Casson and John E. Casson, 18 and 24, were arrested while towing behind a steamer to-day in a small boat, which they were charged with stealing. They had two large navy revolvers loaded, a fish knife, bottles of chloroform, arsenic, strychnine and ether with a sponge, a number of keys, ball cartridge and small iron instruments. They say they belong in Maine.

A Village Swept by Fire.

One hundred and forty four buildings were destroyed in the conflagration which recently swept the village of Somerset, Quebec, causing a loss of $500,000. An appalling state of destruction exists among the unfortunate inhabitants.

THE SCENE OF THE MASSACRE AT FROG LAKE VISITED.

Remains of Victims Found—Gen. Strange

Arrived at Fort Pitt—Big Bear's Friends

Calgary, N.W.T., May 27.—No courier

Arrived from the north up to the time of sending the dispatch. Gen. Strange has been instructed by General Middleton to send word to Big Bear that he must surrender unconditionally or be thrashed.

REACHED BATTLEFORD.

The steamer Marquette reached Battleford at a late hour last night from Fort Carlton, bringing the Tenth Royals and half of "A"

Battery.

A CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS.

General Middleton has called for non-commissioned officers and privates in the different corps now at Battleford to volunteer for service in the Northwest for a period of time after matters are settled. This would seem to indicate the early retirement of the volunteers new on service.

PROPERTY RECOVERED.

BATTLEFORD, May 27.—A body of Mounted

Police went out to the Indian camp and brought in a number of Indians, one hundred cattle and quite a number of horses, with carts and wagons.

These have all been identified by settlers here

as their property, stolen by the Indians.

STRANGE BEAR FORT PITT.

Scouts have been unable to find Big Bear's location. There is much doubt as to where he is now. It is supposed that he is near Fort Pitt, and will likely follow up Big Bear's trail.

Couriers were sent to Gen. Strange with

THE INDIAN VOTE.

SURELY the Reform misrepresentation as to the Indian vote under the Dominion Franchise Act should now come to an end. The Indians in Manitoba, British Columbia and the Territories are not to have votes. In Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces Indians on the reserves who are not in possession and occupation of separate and distinct tracts of land, and whose improvements on those separate tracts are not of the value of $150 at least, and who are not otherwise possessed of qualifications entitling them to be registered on the list of voters, are not to enjoy the franchise. Surely Indians who have given such evidence of steady industry should not be denied a vote. As to the absurd exaggerations concerning the white vote being swamped by the new Indian vote, the idea is preposterous, for it is estimated that there will only be about 5,000 Indians so qualified or only one in every two or three hundred white voters.

Even those who are opposed to the Indian franchise cannot maintain that this is a change warranting the revolutionary attempt to subvert our constitution, by endeavouring to force the will of the minority of the people's representatives upon the majority through the obstruction of the public business.

ARBOR DAY.

All who are interested in the subject of arboriculture in Canada watched with a feeling akin to anxiety the manner in which the first Arbor Day in Ontario would be observed. The holiday was only extended to village and rural schools, but it was a commencement, and the manner in which the holiday was taken advantage of by the rural schools to plant trees and to otherwise beautify the school grounds was very satisfactory. The success of this experiment was such as to warrant the authorities in extending the holiday to all schools next year, and the question of making the day a general holiday might with propriety be considered.

There are two results to be aimed at in setting apart one day in each year as Arbor Day. One is the planting of trees, etc., for beautifying purposes, and the other is to teach the people the practical and monetary value of the forests. Towns and cities are as much interested in, indeed, they are not more interested, in the first object, than are the people who reside in the country. As regards the practical value of our forests, however, the farmers and owners of the land outside the centres of population are more directly interested. While all sections of the community are interested in the subject there appears to be no reason why Arbor Day should be confined to the village and township schools, and if by making the day a general holiday the people generally could be made to see the many reasons why they should take a more lively interest in the subject of arboriculture, it would be judicious to hereafter make the holiday partake of that character.

CHEESE FAIR.

The first organized meeting of the dairymen of Peterborough district was held in the Council Chamber on Thursday afternoon.

Those present: James Drummond, Chairman; J. G. Galvin, Secretary; Sidney Payne for the Warwick factory, T. J. Grivas for Pine Grove, John Donoghue and John Leonard for Myrtle, David Taylor and Samuel Edwards for Warramster, J. W. Moore and J. G. Galvin for Lakeside, W. J. Fleber for Fairdale, H. Reynolds for Norwood, J. G. Armstrong for Cherry Grove, Andrew Young for Newmarket, Thomas Parker for Woodlawn, G. W. Fitzgerald for Trewern, John Middleton for Lily Lake, John Scott for South Dumfries, Thomas Leonard for Westwood, and J. Drummond for Kenna.

The Liverpool market stood at 50 shillings. The Chairman announced that Mr. Whittow was now in the County visiting the factories in relation for the purpose of instructing the cheesemakers in accordance with the arrangements made with the Eastern Dairymen's Association. He urged upon the salesmen the necessity of becoming acquainted with the class of goods offered by them for sale. They should know how to judge the article, and he recommended them to take a few lessons from Mr. Whittow on this special branch. The salesmen and the makers should work in harmony with each other, so that if there were any defects in the cheese they would be pointed out to the buyer, and thus all business would be fairly and squarely transacted.

The buyers present were Messrs. J. D. Flavell, Lindsay; C. Bartlett, Napassee, for Kirkpatrick & Coleson, Montreal; W. Cook, for Warrington & Co., Belleville; and Wm. Wrighton, Peterborough.

The following is the amount of cheese made by the respective factories, together with the quality, up to May 23rd:—

	Quality.	Bones.
Lakeside	White	51
Kenna	Colored	145
Pine Grove	Half and half	59
Newmarket	Colored	29
Trewern	Colored	75
Woodlawn	Colored	100
Warramster	Colored	25
Myrtle	Colored	34
Warramster	Colored	10
Lily Lake	White	120
Westwood	Colored	80

The question of coloring was discussed. The chairman was of opinion that the one and a half ounces coloring was not sufficient; from 2 to 2½ ounces was little enough.

Messrs. Flavell and Cook expressed themselves in favour of having the cheese highly colored or dead white, the latter stating that he had received strict orders not to buy any colored cheese but what was highly colored.

During a hall in the proceedings the chairman expressed, on behalf of the dairymen, their thanks to the Town Council for placing such a nice, comfortable room at their disposal to meet in.

After some bidding on the part of the buyers, the following sales were made in Mr. Bartlett at 7½ cents per pound:—

	Bones.
Kenna	200
Newmarket	20
Warramster	13
Warramster	70
Westwood	140
Cherry Grove	20

The meeting then adjourned.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

TUESDAY, May 26.—Several petitions against the Senate Amendments as to the Scott Act were presented.

The circular petitions against the Franchise Bill still came in.

MR. EDGAR read letters from some Conservatives, whose names appeared in the Warrington petition against the Franchise Bill, saying they had really signed it, also statutory declarations to the same effect.

MR. McNEILL said he had received information that the signatures had been obtained by the false representation that it was proposed to enfranchise the Indians of the Northwest.

Several Reform members exclaimed that it was so proposed.

THE INDIAN VOTE.

The House went into Committee on the Franchise Bill.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD moved that the following persons be disqualified from voting:—Indians in Manitoba, Keweenaw, and the North-west Territories and Indians on any reservation elsewhere in Canada, who are not in possession and occupation of separate and distinct tracts of land, and whose improvements on such separate tracts are not of the value of at least $150. He thought the question being sufficiently discussed.

MR. BLAIR made a long speech against the Indians. He argued that the settled, industrious, Indians of the older Provinces should not have votes, because the nomadic Indians to whom it is not proposed to give the franchise are unfit for it. He also pretended that it was a movement in favor of the Orange body, though well knew that large numbers of the Indians are Roman Catholics.

Many other Reform members spoke at considerable length against the Indians, till the Committee rose at 2.30, and the House adjourned.

PETITIONS.

Wednesday, May 27.—There were some more petitions against releasing the Scott Act. The dubious petitions against the Franchise Bill still came in, one for a variety being described as signed by an Indian chief.

THE INDIAN VOTE.

The House went into Committee on the Franchise Bill.

Some remarks were made as to the breach by the Reformers of the agreement made by Mr. Mills with Sir H. Langevin that the debate on the Indian clause should not be prolonged.

SIR J. MACDONALD moved an amendment that the Indian voters must be possessed of the qualifications entitling him to be registered on the list of voters as provided by the bill.

MR. MILLER, MR. CAMERON, and others, continued the debate at great length.

MR. DAVIS moved an amendment excluding the Indians of all the Provinces except British Columbia.

SIR J. MACDONALD moved a further amendment excluding the Indians of British Columbia, as it was considered best not to enfranchise them at present.

After some further discussion Sir J. Macdonald's amendment was carried and Mr. Davis' was negatived.

The disqualification clause was passed, the Committee rose, and the House adjourned at 12.30.

GREAT FIRE IN NEW YORK.

Property Destroyed to the Extent of a Million and a Half.

NEW YORK, May 27.—The large furniture factory of H. Heriman & Bros., at Manin and Tompkins streets, was discovered to be on fire at 2.30 this morning. It is a five-story brick building, occupying the whole block, 300 feet on Delancy and 150 on other streets. The Singer Sewing Machine Co. once occupied the building and it was saturated with oil. The whole building is surrounded by tenement houses. The fire was intensely hot, and nearly a hundred families were driven from their homes. They rushed out in their night clothes, and were compelled to camp on the river side, where they shivered in the chilly winds of the morning. At four o'clock the whole building was in flames, with no hope of saving any of the property. At 4.30 alarms were sent out for extra engines, and it looked as though the whole surrounding neighborhood would be destroyed. At five o'clock alarms were still being sent out for extra engines. The factory was fitted with furniture, and the estimated loss will amount to $1,500,000. Over 300 men will be thrown out of work. The streets were crowded and the greatest excitement prevailed. It is believed the fire started in the engine room. The fire was so hot that water had to be turned on the firemen to prevent them from being scorched.

Another Tenement Destroyed.

JERSEY CITY, May 27.—The three-story frame tenement house, 76 Colgate street, collapsed this morning. Five families occupied the premises, including 27 persons. Four were killed—Barney, Nellie and Mary Anderson, aged 9 and 7 years, and 3 months respectively. They were all smothered in bed. Michael Webb, aged 15, had his head crushed. John Coyne, aged 39, an insurance agent, was badly injured. Nine other persons were hurt more or less seriously. The building was known to be insecure, and it was to have been repaired next week.

THE funeral of Lieut. Fitch in Toronto on Wednesday was a solemn and imposing event. The route of the procession was thronged with spectators. Many regiments outside of Toronto sent representatives to follow the remains of their deceased comrade to the grave.

TO OUR READERS.—If you suffer from headache, dizziness, back ache, biliousness, or humors of the blood, try Burdock Blood Bitters. It is a guaranteed cure for all irregularities of the blood, liver and kidneys.

WELL AN EVER.—Lottie Howard writes from Buffalo, N. Y.:—"My system became grossly debilitated through arduous professional duties; suffering from nausea, sick headache and biliousness. Tried Burdock Blood Bitters with the most beneficial effect. Am well as ever."

IT is said the new Anglo-Chinese opium treaty will abolish all barriers heretofore existing against the free diffusion of opium throughout the Chinese Empire.

LATEST LOCAL NEWS.

A Reminiscence.
Remember the day at Mrs. James Dixon's?

The Little Beauty.
Just see that "Little Beauty" increase stock at SALADIN'S—The best stock. 50 each.

Stone.
It was 200 pieces of double and single quoin stone that arrived from Kingston for Mr. Jas.
Boyes, not 30.

Plate Glass.
During the past two or three weeks several light of plate glass have been mysteriously broken or cracked. Some time on Thursday evening a large light in the front of China Hall was slightly cracked near the bottom. Mr.
Wilson does not know how it was done.

The Probabilities.
The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Variable winds, mostly fair weather, with a few local showers to-night in Western Ontario; slightly higher temperatures.

A Challenge.
The following challenge was published in the Aft:—
"A hearty challenge Job Dixon to match his horse 'Wild Deer' to run any mare 'Lady Macdonald' mile heat, for five hundred dollars a side. Race to take place on the Peterborough Driving park two weeks from August 1st. I have this day deposited one hundred dollars in the hands of A. Adams, Queen's hotel, Fort Hope."

Yours, etc.
"Peterborough, May 28." JAMES McLEAN.

Another Fire.
A cooking stove used by the circus man lay in the close proximity to Tarn's livery stable and the result was that some of the boards of the stable caught on fire. At thirteen minutes after five the alarm was sounded and in two and a half minutes the horse was laid and the engine was on the ground in position to start operations.
The fire, however, was checked out by a few pails of water thrown on by the circus men.

From Prince Albert.
A post card has been received by his mother from Mr. M. R. Orde dated at Prince Albert on May 15th. He states that he has just arrived there at 11 o'clock with the 90th after marching 16 miles since 6 o'clock. He mentions having seen Mr. Wm. Rogers, and expected to meet Mr. Ronald Elliot, as he heard he was looking for him. He thought it uncertain whether his regiment would be stationed at Prince Albert or would go on to Regina. He reports himself all alone the worse for the campaign.

Memorable Quinette.
Speaking of the Mandelacha Quinette Club concert, the Detroit News says:—
"It is not too much to say that one of the most delightful concerts ever given in this city was the one listened to last night by a large audience at Harmonic Hall. The temptation is to be extravagantly enthusiastic with the recognition of the individual performers fresh in mind. The programme opened with a movement from Mandelacha Quinette in B flat, op. 57, and closed with the Turkish march from Beethoven's 'Rodeo of Aethia.' These were the only concerted numbers rendered by the Quinette Club, but they were sufficient to show that the changes that the organization has undergone have in no degree destroyed its ability to group the hidden beauties of instrumental music and disclose them by delicate, spontaneous and intelligent interpretation."

Personal.
Mr. L. J. McIntyre, representing the Hand in Hand Plate Glass Insurance Co., is in town.
Mr. W. J. Green's recent loss will be paid by the company. Messrs. Morrison and Wilson are the Peterborough agents.

Mr. A. S. Maschard, Travelling Passenger agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway, who has had his headquarters at Toronto up to date, will now operate from Montreal westward. For the past three months Mr. Maschard has, as Peterborough is the most important intermediate point on the Ontario and Quebec line between Toronto and Montreal, been here a good part of the time. During his stay, through his courteous manner and obliging ways in business dealing, he has made many warm friends. He departed last night for Montreal.
Mr. Charles Hampshire, late organist of St.
Matthew's Church, Quebec, and formerly of Yorkminster, England, has been appointed an organist of St. John's Church here. He will arrive in a few days and take charge of the choir and on the first Sunday in June he will enter upon his engagement as organist.

LADIES' and children's Fine Dress in great variety at the Bon Marche at about half price.

Lacrosse.
The President of the Lacrosse club particularly desires that there be a large turn out of the boys this evening. Buses will leave the corner of George and Hunter streets at the usual hour.

For the Town Council.
Licence Inspector Beavis collected as licence the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars from the Frank A. Robbins' circus. The sum was paid over in one dollar bills which made, as may be imagined, quite a pile.

Lawn Social.
A lawn social under the auspices of the Paul's Church Ladies Aid Society will take place on Friday, 29th inst., at half past seven o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. J. A. Dixon.
Admission 15 cents. Refreshments. Free
Fire Bell Band.

The Weather.
The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—
Thermometer. Barometer.
9 o'clock.....58.....29.30
1 o'clock.....57.....29.15
2 o'clock.....57.....29.10

Seen by the Week.
While Mr. Alex. Gibson, the city horse show, was engaged in showing one of Mr. Snowden's "bus horses some days ago, he received a severe kick on the side from the animal. He has been laid up for the past few days, but will soon be at work.

Masonic.
A number of the Masonic brethren from Peterborough visited Keene lodge last night and expressed themselves very much surprised at the progress and prosperity of the craft in Keene. They were hospitably entertained by the Keene brethren, and spent a profitable evening with them.

Look at Them!
The manager of the Parlor skating rink request us to announce that he has received a fine stock of new roller skates which are well worth seeing by all who love the sport. A speciality is the new sidewalk skate for children at $1.25 and a pair. Samples of all the new skates are on view in Kingston & Co.'s store.

GEORGE A. MORRISON

Accident.
This morning while Mrs. Lamour was leaving a neighbour's house on Water street she fell down the short flight of steps which led from the house to the street, struck her shoulder against the sidewalk and broke her collar bone.
A surgeon, who was passing at the time, was called and the necessary operations were successfully performed. The injured lady suffers much.

THE ACCIDENT AGENT.

Base Ball Match.
A base ball match will take place on the grounds of the P.A.A.A. in Ashburnham this evening, to commence at 8 p.m. sharp, between a side representing the Cricket Club and side of the Base Ball Club. The teams will be composed of the following players, viz., Orrick—Messrs. Lane, Cooper, Gault, Rogers, Hutton, Hammond, Norley, Hamilton,
Max, Sabine. Base ball—Messrs. Henderson, Haskins, Curran, Edling, Lynch, F. Mercer, Ballbury, Dymann. No doubt many will avail themselves of the opportunity and witness the match.

Star Regatta Trip.
The steamer Golden-Eye will commence her regular trips on Monday, June 1st, running to Harwood, Lyle and Hastings, along the coast between being made at Harwood with the Cobourg road. Arrangements have been made with Midland Railway for cheap pleasure tickets, so parties may go down on the steamer and return on the train, or vice versa. Those enjoyable cheap excursions will be run to Lyle Wild every Wednesday. The hotel is under the management of Mr. S. Ray, the celebrated cricketer and courier of Whiffy.

Fancy Work.
During the forenoon and afternoon of to-day a large number of ladies have been paying visits to Smart's music store, the attraction being a display of the samples of work done by the sewing machine as Mr. Smart represents. The work is indeed highly creditable, some specimens one would almost think it impossible to be done otherwise than by hand. A lace spread ornamented by Japanese fans does in satin and another ornamented by satin block work are both very beautiful. Baste are very accurately outlined on black satin back ground and a large number of other kinds of fancy work amply show the marvellous work that can be done by the modern sewing machine. The exhibit is free and will be open until Saturday evening.

The Circus.
The attendance at the Frank A. Robbins circus was rather sparse in the afternoon, but in the evening there was a fairly good house.
Although there is nothing of the "elephant aggregation" about this circus, yet the show taken in all possesses considerable merit. The menagerie embraces, not numbers of a few kinds of animals, but single specimens of many.
The horses are all in good order, and are fully up to the mark. The ring performance was supplied with a good range of talent. The bar-back riding of Mr. C. W. Fish was fully in keeping with his high reputation; the acrobatic performance was decidedly above the average;
the trapeze acts were good, a new feature being the suspension of the performers from a bicycle wheel along a rope in mid air; and the juggling was clever. Altogether the show was one worthy of the patronage of circus goers.

When They Come Home.
There will be great rejoicing in every city and town where the soldiers in the Northwest belong when they arrive home again. Mothers will shed tears of joy at the sight of their boys;
wives will throw themselves into the arms of their husbands, and beneath them never to leave them again; the blushing sweethearts will feel a joy that the brave soldier cannot help but notice, while the fond and loving sisters will just smother him with kisses. Many a brave heart will beat rapidly under the red coat at the sight of his home and friends, and there will be rejoicings on all sides. Riel, Duncanson and other rebel leaders will be totally forgotten for the time being, and also other matters, but in all the hurry and bustle that will necessarily follow a meeting such as this will be, the wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of the red coats should insist on changing their regimentals at the earliest possible moment after they are discharged from duty, and instead thereof go direct to A. McEwen, Habillment Hall, and get a neat and nobby suit of clothes.

A Pointer to Business Men.
Dinner will be served to business men from 12.30 to 2.30 every day at FARMER'S Restaurant and Lodge.

RIEL JURY.

Abie Comments from American Exchange on the Rebellion.

Minneapolis Tribune: Interest does not relax in the Canadian revolt.

Herman Herald: The boom in the Northwest in Riel's rebellion.

Shakopee Courier: They have got Riel mad over in Canada.

St. Paul Dispatch: The martial music that Mr. Louis Riel likes best is the Riel-ry.

Spring Valley Vidette: The Northwest rebel may be called A-ri-el of the Indians.

St. Peter Herald: General Middleton seems to be suffering something in the nature of a Riel-spo.

Red Wing Advance: There is very little religious sentiment about the war in Manitoba.

Shillwater Gazette: There seems to be something about the Riel-spo in the Canadian and the Northwest Indians.

Perham Bulletin: My son, Riel, is a pun on the red man. He will live and Riel-ly while he has his Riel-eye on your whiskey flask.

Chaska Times: It may be remarked that, for a pocket-edition rebellion, the Northwest war is being waged with Riel-spo vigor.

Alexandria News: In re Riel; seems to be it is about time to Riel-spo him to forgetfulness. He has attracted too much attention already.

Albert Lea Standard: Riel doesn't Riel-spo his grip on the Indians of Manitoba, and he leaves little Riel-spo for the Canadian amateur soldiers.

Anoka News: There is a question in our mind whether the reports from the Saskatchewan are wholly reliable. In fact we think some of them are rather Riel-spo-able.

St. Cloud Times: Picaresquely speaking, Louis Riel is "running the Riel" of the Canadian fish line, as 'twere. He may turn out to be nothing but a "rucker," though, after all.

Waverly Journal: A horrible story has reached Montreal to the effect that a band of Indians with Riel at the head of a white man last week, during one of the skirmishes of the revolt. The details are too revolting to Riel-spo.

Wadena Warmer: To save many paragraphs many paragraphs will be used to tell the Northwest rebel's name is Riel, pronounced real, not rila. Chubbs about the two Indians being rolled off into oblivion are consequently unorthodox.

Wilkes County Gazette: While, at the present writing, we are not disposed to wholly espouse the cause of either contestant in the four-for-one-dollar conflict now fiercely raging in the suburbs of the village of Winnipeg, we are convinced that it will give the Canadian government no little Riel-spo.

Madison Pioneer: We notice in an exchange that the name Riel is pronounced "Real" instead of "Rid." This has knocked nine of our jokes into hopeless "pi," but we have just time to reach back to the old and throw the remark that Mr. Riel will probably not Riel-spo his little war until the last Indian is dead. And well he may, for his salary this is no cheat.

AN AMERICAN OPINION.

A High Compliment to the Canadian Authorities and Volunteers.

The St. Louis Republic says:—Insignificant as the Riel rebellion has seemed in some respects, it is not without its valuable lessons. Viewed in a military light, it at once discloses the fact that in fifty days the Canadian Militia called into the field 4,000 organized volunteer troops with 400 horses, furnished them with transportation to the seat of war, 3,000 miles distant, pushed forward three columns widely separated to points hundreds of miles from the railroad, kept the troops supplied, and covered an immense frontier, so that from the time the troops began to arrive the rebels were able to strike only scattered forays. The only disaster possessing any special military significance that has befallen the troops was the capture of a train of thirty wagons by Poundmaker's Indians. This, the actual fighting was concerned there was not much of it, and the history of our own Indian wars against the Sioux, when the growing army of Indians had been in Canada, and the border trouble that could have been a necessity for keeping troops in readiness—keeping all these things in mind, the Canadian authorities, and the volunteers, are to be commended for the most perfect illustrations of the great changes that have taken place in modes and means of warfare.

Wolsey's campaign into the same region, some ideas may also be gained of what the Canadian Pacific railway has done for the Dominion. We read of the blunders of the British War Office is true, the Canadian Minister of Militia is deserving of more than a passing expression than any English War Minister who has fitted out an army in the past 40 years. The fact that the troops in the field are commanded by a regular officer does not in the least detract from the merit of the Dominion volunteer system.

SUPERFLUOUS WORDS.

They Cost New York $100,000 a Year, According to David B. Field.

The New York Language Club, taking for a text, "The last day of the rebellion," discussed the expression words used in English rhetoric in Hamilton hall of Columbia College, this city, last evening. David Dudley Field began with the constitution of the United States, which, he said, contained two flagrant instances of iteration. One was in the clause that contained the words that the President should appoint by and with the consent of the senate. If the senate advised an appointment, Mr. Field said, that implied their consent to it. The other instance was in the clause concerning the power of Congress to pass all necessary and proper laws, for if the laws were necessary they were proper, Mr. Field dwelt regretfully upon the failure of the legal state to pass his code doing away with superfluous words in legal documents. In the ordinary deed of transfer, he said, there were 900 words, of which 800 were superfluous. In the ordinary mortgage there were 1,500, of which 1,200 were superfluous.

For recording deeds and mortgages, Mr. Field said 10 cents per 100 words were paid. There were recorded in New York during one month 600 deeds and 700 mortgages. "If my code had been adopted," said Mr. Field, "the people could have saved $100,000 per year by the saving of the superfluous words."

The Rev. John Collier said that he thanked God that there was no such word as iteration in the English language. He said that there were very few faults in the English language.

Attended the Police.

At St. Silvestre, Que., the farm of Michael Keenan was sold under a writ to Jean Napier, a neighbor. Keenan refused to give possession, killed Napier's horse, and aided by his two sisters attacked the police with axes and clubs, badly wounding one of the latter. Finally he was arrested.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

A Big Night at the Barracks—Several Officers Present.

Capt. Mills, who was first left in charge of this station of the Salvation Army, having been removed to another station, the corps had for a few days been commanded by Capt. Langtry and Hart. On Friday night, however, Capt. Willis, who succeeded Capt. Mills, arrived and took charge.

In the evening there were several officers from a distance present, namely, Capt. Edie, A.D.C., Capt. Scott, Lindsay; Capt. Menzies, Toronto; Lieut. Pierce, Millbrook, and Capt. Willis. A silver collection was taken at the door, but the attraction of so many officers was sufficient to fill the barracks.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner, having been preceded by a parade on the streets. Capt. Edie, who had been here before, and whose peculiarities of manner we have referred to, then gave an address. Several Peterborough "recruits" took part in the "experience meeting," and when one said that he had overcome his pride that he could not only march the streets, but kneel any place and even crawl on the streets if necessary, Capt. Edie called on the soldiers to "fire a volley," and a chorus of "Amens" made the barracks ring.

The audience appeared to take more interest in the strangers, and the majority watched closely their manner of speaking. The matter contained in their addresses was of the usual kind—relating happy experiences, describing wonderful conversions and impassioned appeals to the unconverted.

Lieut. Pierce was first called on. She spoke quietly, with a sing-song inflection and a tone of voice.

Capt. Menzies—a "halloo-lah" man with her hands lined with white—spoke in clear, measured tones. When she first rose she kept her arms folded, and then placed her elbows akimbo. Soon her right hand was taken from that position and used in mild gesticulation.

Capt. Scott's manner was watched closely by those who had heard of his antics in Kingston, where he had several times been mobbed. However, he did not get very much excited, and only indulged in rapid walking across the platform, continued gesticulations with his hands and an occasional stamp with his foot to emphasize a remark.

Capt. Willis, who takes charge here, is a voluble speaker. Usually she speaks steadily, emphasizing her words with movements of her hands and a peculiar motion of the body which, from the rear of the barracks, makes her appear as if raising on her toes, and occasionally she impacts a tragic tone to her voice. Once when the captain stated that conversion would "save a soul," the audience uttered, "oh, oh," and the speaker looked louder than before and uttered the laugh.

Salvation Army songs were sung between the addresses, and a prayer meeting followed the experience meeting, and brought the exercises to a close.

STRIKE EXTRAORDINARY.

The Resignation of the Medical Staff of Halifax Hospital.

HALIFAX, May 28.—The Board of Commissioners of Public Charities held a long meeting yesterday afternoon to discuss the difficulties which led to, and the difficulties which have arisen out of, the resignation of the entire medical staff of the City and Provincial hospital.

The relations between the medical staff and the Board of Charities have been "strained" ever since the formation of the latter body, the staff complaining that its functions are usurped by the Board, and its advice and recommendations ignored. Patients suffering from contagious diseases have been admitted to the hospital against the will of the medical staff, who in one case at least a fatal result. Two years ago, the Board appointed a house surgeon without any examination, and without consulting the medical staff, and last month the position again being vacant, the Board advertised for applicants to undergo a competitive examination, after the appointment of Dr. Hawkins, who graduated at McGill this year. The examiners reported in favor of Dr. Goodwin, but the Board appointed Dr. Hawkins, and the medical staff, after an ineffectual protest, resigned. This left Dr. Hawkins in sole charge of the hospital, which contains about 400 patients. None of the Halifax doctors visit the hospital, but it is understood that Dr. Ried and Dr. Sinclair, of the Asylum for the Insane, who are in the employ of the Board, have been ordered to do duty at the hospital until further arrangements can be made, and are obeying the order under protest. It is said that some of the patients are in poor health, and that the medical staff is in a state of great dissatisfaction. The Board decided yesterday to follow out their own line of action, declaring that they were responsible to the Government for what they did, and that the hospital had all the medical assistance it required, and was in first-class condition. There is no truth in the report that one of the commissioners had resigned.

SMALLEST IN THE WORLD.

A Colt That is Only Twenty-Three Inches High—A Happy Owner.

This morning George Robinson rushed into the front room out of breath, and as he dropped into a chair he exclaimed, "It's the smallest in the world." The members of the staff present looked at him in amazement, and a boy was told to bring a glass of water, but before he had arrived the visitor had recovered, and arising he stated excitedly that he had just returned from his brother's farm back of Naples, where he saw the smallest colt in the world. George has several Shetland ponies on the farm, and he says that his brother was the owner of the colt. The little thing was secured, measured and weighed, and found to be twenty-three inches high and to weigh thirty-seven pounds. Its hoof is exactly the size of a penny, and it is as full of life and very little larger than a lamb. The farmers for miles around are flocking to see the little fellow, and he looks at the spectators as proudly as if he were aware that he was the object of their admiration. His owner was so much taken up with his new property that he had to tear himself away from the farm, and this morning when asked what he valued the colt at, he replied, "A farm or two."

LATEST LOCAL NEWS.

Confirmation Services.
His Lordship Bishop Jamot, after returning from Douro this evening, will depart for Lindsay, where he will hold confirmation services to-morrow. During the week he will hold service in different places through the diocese and on Sunday, the 7th of June, will hold confirmation services at the Victoria Road Mission.

Another March out.
A Battalion order was issued to-day by Major Bell, acting Adjutant, to the effect that numbers 1, 2 and 3 companies, together with the Battalion Band, will parade in light marching order on Tuesday evening next in the Drill Shed at 7 o'clock. Immediately after, a march out and light infantry drill with firing blank ammunition will take place. The companies will march somewhere outside of the corporation, not yet decided, to drill in the various movements.

Fine Canoe.
In its notice of the canoe trip to Sturgeon Point on the Queen's birthday the Lindsay Post says:—

"There were some very handsome boats among the lot, particularly an over-decked Juniper, cedar rib canoe, from the Ontario Canoe Club's shops at Peterborough. It was a beautiful specimen of the admirable work turned out under the superintendence of the president and manager, Mr. J. Z. Rogers. A fine basswood canoe, finished in varnish, and fitted with canvas from W. England's factory, Peterborough, was much admired. The model is good and the work first-class. Other canoes are also deserving of notice if space permitted."

Calcutta's Line of Steamers.
The Whistle Wing, of Calcutta's line of steamers, is still at Margaret's Island, Rice Lake. A force of men will shortly be put on to give her a general overhauling, and put her in good shape. During the summer she will be used chiefly as a tug boat. The Golden-Eye will soon commence making her regular trips.
Capt. R. W. Carson, who will be in command, could not easily be replaced to public satisfaction. He is accommodating to passengers, sees that everyone is comfortable, and he knows how to run his boat. No doubt it was due to a large extent to Capt. Carson, that the Golden Eye closed such a successful season last year.

His Opinions.
Mr. George Ingles, a Lindsay ex-councillor, was in town a day or two ago. Like all there, he was, as a matter of course, surprised at the wonderful progress our goodly burgh is making.
"It'll be a city before long," he said, "if it continues to grow this way." From the present prospects it looks as if our town is going to grow, and Mr. Ingles is not far astray in his conjectures as to the city part of it. There promises to be a big boom in Peterborough during the coming summer than any other time since its incorporation. Mr. Ingles was formerly a resident of Peterborough, leaving here when the place was little more than a village. He now occupies a prominent place among the citizens of our sister town.

Young People's Association.
The Young People's Association in connection with the Murray Street Baptist Church held another very successful entertainment on Friday night, and from the increased attendance and the interest manifested, the promoters will certainly feel assured of the Association's success.
A very interesting feature in the programme was an excellent essay read by Miss Nellie Gil-mour, the subject being "Newspapers." The essayist handled the subject in a very able manner. Miss Gilmour also showed to those present copies of the London Spectator of the date 1712, and also of the London Guardian of 1740. Mr. Duff, of Bernard's Home, also read an essay, the subject being "Total Abstinence in the Abstract." This essay was the occasion of a very spirited discussion. We wish the Association success.

No Get Out.
They sat together in a rustic bower with every one just beginning to merge into the heat of the day. The young man, leaning back and smiling at her closely to his side, said:
"The day was warm here, darling, when we two shall be met, one—oh that happy hour!"
"Yes," she answered, "one week, but you know, dear George, there are a good many days in a week, and I am not going to let you know of my future life." "What is it?"
he asked eagerly. She looked on— "I don't think I could ever happily about a Light Running Dumb-bell." "What is it?" he asked again. "Why I don't know just a gem of a thing, and it is called a 'Smart-Smart' the Bell Organ office." "Oh, if that's all," he replied with a feeling of relief,
"you shall have a dozen if you want them. I'll order one right away."

Decoration Day.
Today being Decoration Day in New York, the Board of Trade in that city and Chicago are closed.

The Probabilities.
The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from 1 o'clock this morning, as issued by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Fresh to strong easterly winds, partly cloudy weather, with a few showers in Southern Ontario, not much change in temperature.

The Home Physician.
We are pleased to notice that Mr. John Morrison, of Lindsay, who, as we mentioned a few weeks ago, was about to undertake a canvass of this town for the sale of a new medical work called "The Practical Home Physician," is meeting with great success. The work is a book bound in cloth and very generally recommended.

Baseball.
The first baseball match of the season was played on the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, on Friday evening, between teams representing the Cricket Club and the Silver Stars. The result of the match was a score of 27 runs to 13 in favor of the cricketers. Of course the baseballers had by means their best nine on, but still the play of the cricketers was very creditable.

Ordained.
The ceremony of ordaining P. O'Brien, of Douro, into the priesthood, was performed today at the Douro church. His Lordship Bishop Jamot, Father Conway, Father Keilly, of Ennismore, Father McEvoy, of Fenelon Falls, Mr. McGuire, student in theology, and others were present. This was the first service of the kind ever held in Douro. Father Conway preached the sermon.

Gingham, Gingham. A large stock of New Gingham, to arrive this week at Turnbull's. Look for them.

Lawn Social.
The inaugural lawn social of the season was held at the residence of Mrs. Jas. Dickson, Smith Street, on Friday evening, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St.
Paul's Church. The grounds were illuminated with Chinese lanterns hanging from the trees.
The lawn was dotted with refreshment tables and decorated with flower stands. The Fire Brigade Band took their places on the upper platform, and furnished pleasing melodies to the fairly large number of people in attendance.
Those happily combined circumstances made the evening hours pass away most pleasantly.

Preparing for Emergencies.
The Peterborough Lacrosse Club have taken out accident policies on the first twelve for the coming lacrosse season. They will perhaps find this method much cheaper than the way the accident claims are paid off last season, for when "Bill" Roddick was laid up with a broken arm the club very properly recompensed him for the pecuniary loss sustained by his not being able to resume work for some weeks. His medical attendance was also paid. The premiums cost only $40 for fourteen players with an indemnity of $5 per week if accident occurs. Mr. T. Mahony, the agent who has charge of Messrs. Wilson & Morrison's accident insurance department, has successfully closed negotiations. Some of the members have taken out special policies on their own account, which entitles them to a larger indemnity.

If you want a mantle made of all that you will never regret buying, go to Turnbull's and ask for the silk of the olden time.

The F. L. C.
Mr. Geo. H. Giroux, Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, has received several communications from different clubs with regard to arranging matches. The Kingston Lacrosse Club (not the Maple Leafs) want our boys to give them a match at the Limestone City. They say that most of their matches were played out of town last season, but this season they propose to do things up otherwise.
If the boys come down, though, they will give them a good time and play a return match here later in the season. Mr. F. E. Fairbairn, Secretary of the Brockville club, invites our club down to play a match on June 27th, on which day a freeman's tournament will be held.
J. C. Roberts, Secretary of the Excelsior club of Brampton, says that their club will either play a single match or take part in a tournament (if such be arranged) here on July 1st. Negotiations are now opened with the latter club and it is probable that a match for the 1st will be the result.

Not Correct.
The Lindsay Post says:—
"The Lindsay base ball club have certainly just reason to complain of ungenerous treatment at the hands of the Peterborough club. A match was arranged at Peterborough to be played on the 25th. The Peterborough Club refused to allow customary expenses, and after the Lindsay club had decided to go and pay their own expenses, the Peterborough backed out, saying they could not get their club together. The Lindsay club had declined to arrange a match with the Lindsay club on that date so as to be free to play at Peterborough, and had held over other engagements. The Peterborough club must get together a little pluck and come to the scratch later on."

It is to be regretted that the above was published, as such "squabbling" between sporting clubs is not in the interest of the sports. The Peterborough club is part of the Amateur Athletic Association, under the auspices of which the sports on the Association grounds were conducted. A challenge was sent to the Lindsay club and accepted, without any reference to expenses, but as the Directors of the Association decided that they could not pay the expenses of a visiting club, the decision was communicated to the Lindsay club, in order that there might be no misunderstanding. The Lindsay club, however, asked that their expenses be paid and that a share of the gate receipts should be given to them, as they stated that was the way they intended to deal with club visiting that town. It would not be consistent with the rules of the Amateur Association to do this, and it was so stated, and the Lindsay club was then considered off. On the 23rd of May a card was received from the Lindsay club offering to pay if their expenses alone were paid, but this offer was not accepted, and, in fact, it was too late then to consider it. At no time did the Lindsay club offer to play and pay their own expenses, and the Peterborough club did not say that they could not get their team together. We fail to see where the un-generous treatment came in, except in the ungenerous conduct of someone in furnishing misleading information to the Post.

The Court House Park.
The Committee of the Horticultural Society, in charge of the beautifying of the Court House Park are energetically prosecuting the work.
Several old poplar trees have been dug up and young elms have been inserted in their places.
Already the work of laying out the walks has been commenced, and one along the lower end is being constructed. In about two weeks a handsome new fountain will be put up.

A Complete Outfit.
Sergeant Dixon, of the signal corps, has returned from Toronto where he has purchased the necessary instruments to complete the outfit of the signal corps. Two Lancers field glasses, eight at eleven miles, with handsome mounted mounting, two signaling lamps and three nickel plated message lamps are the instruments which the Sergeant has just purchased. The outfit of these is about $75, which amount has been raised by voluntary subscription of the citizens, who have substantially attested their appreciation of the efforts of the signal corps men. Noah L. Piper supplied the field glasses, which are the same make as those used by the Halifax signal corps.

Not Generally Known.
A knowledge of certain things belongs to almost everyone, that is, those things which are generally known. But some things are not generally known, such as that sound travels at the rate of 1,118 miles per minute; that a ball shot from a rifle moves at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour; that George A. Morrison does the largest accident insurance business done in town; that one George Morrison represents the best Accident Company, and insures at a low rate; that there are 17,700 yards in a mile; that the Mutual Reserve Fire Life Association does the largest insurance business in the world, and that George A. Morrison, general insurance agent, represents five companies, the united capital of which is twenty millions of dollars.
Those interested should bear in mind the above.

A Slight Mistake.
Almost everybody has heard of funny things resulting in mistaking oil for varnish, but perhaps the most laughable event in the oil-varnish line occurred on Friday evening. Two young blades, votaries of the oil, took it into their heads to have a row down to the lake.
They launched the boat, when one of them remembered that the sliding seat had not been oiled. He sought the greasy fluid, and as he imagined, found some. He applied it liberally and the two started out. Everything went lovely going down, as they were with the stream and the varnish had not yet begun to stick.
But alas! when about half way up they began to wonder why the seats didn't slide. The current began to be heavy, and the seats at last refused altogether to move. They tugged and strained, and it was only after a prolonged effort they reached the boat house to find out where he, who administered the dose, had made a slight mistake.

When They Come Home.
There will be great rejoicing in every city and town where the soldiers in the Northwest
belong when they arrive home again. Mothers will shed tears of joy at the sight of their boys;
wives will throw themselves into the arms of their husbands, and beseech them never to leave them again; the blushing sweethearts will feel a joy that the brave soldier cannot help but notice, while the fond and loving sisters will just smother him with kisses. Many a brave heart
will beat rapidly under the red coat at the sight
of his home and friends, and there will be rejoicings on all sides. Riel, Dumont and other rebel leaders will be totally forgotten for the time being, and also other matters, but all the hurry and bustle that will necessarily
wives, mothers, sisters and sweethearts of the red coats should insist on their changing their regimental at the earliest possible moment
after they are discharged from duty, and instead thereof go direct to A. McKinn, Habichtsm Hall, and get a neat and noble suit of clothes.

The Churches.
At St. John's Church the regular services will be conducted. The Rev. T. Angel, curate, will preach the sermon at the morning service on Monday, and the Rev. W. R. Becher, rector, will preach the sermon at the evening service at 7 p.m.
At St. Peter's Cathedral there will be held the usual services. First mass will be celebrated at 8 a.m., and second mass at 10.30. Vespers at 7.30 in the evening.
The Rev. Alex. Bell, Rector of St. Andrew's Church, will preach a sermon at the morning service, on "The Grace of God," as shown by Atonement," and in the evening "The Holy Spirit, the Earnest of our Inheritance."

The Rev. E. F. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's Church, will preach in the morning service on "The Commission which Paul Received from Christ to Preach," and in the evening he will deliver the fourth of a series of sermons on the Prophetic Book, entitled "The Conduct of the Elder Brother."

At the St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, the Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, rector, will conduct the regular services.
The pulpit of the Mark Street Methodist church, Ashburnham, will be occupied by the Rev. F. McAmmond, the pastor, both morning and evening.
In the George Street Methodist Church the Rev. Geo. Davis, son of the Rev. G. H. Davis, formerly of Peterborough, will occupy the pulpit in the morning, and in the evening the Rev. T. Manning will preach a sermon on "The Use and Abuse of Money."

The Rev. T. Manning, pastor of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, will preach the same sermon in his church in the morning, and in the evening the pulpit will be occupied by Mr. Duff, of the Hazel Brae Home.
The Rev. A. H. Mauro, pastor of the Baptist Church, will preach a sermon on the character of Samuel in the evening, and will also administer the ordinance of baptism to several candidates. In the morning he will preach a sermon entitled, "The Voice of God in Spring."

POLICE COURT.

D & D.
SATURDAY, May 30.—John Barry and Martin Neary were charged by P. C. Pidgeon with having been drunk and disorderly. They both pleaded guilty and were duly assessed $5 or ten days at castle Naught. Neither culprit had a dime and how to pay their fines became a problem. They adjourned from the Police Court to the Constables room, where one silently rummaged over the matter with a wax expression while the other solaced himself with a pipe of T. & B. After some consideration they decided to take the alternative ten.

THEY LIKE THE TOWN.

Peterborough becoming a favorite resort for excursionists.
The people from the outside world are just beginning to find out what kind of a town we have here and there is no doubt that a large number of excursions will be run with Peterborough as their destination this summer.
Some excursions are already being arranged, and one under the auspices of the Sons of England Benevolent Society will be run from Toronto to Peterborough on July 1st. The excursionists will have the use of the Central Park and the drill shed. The Landowne lodge of this town will have charge of the entertainment of the visitors, and the officials of the lodge are in communication with the kindred societies of Port Hope, Cobourg, Lindsay and other places with a view to arrange for excursions to be run from these places, and the holding of a grand Sons of England demonstration in Peterborough.
There will probably be between 2,000 and 3,000 members of the order here on that day.

The Foresters' fraternity of Brantford have also arranged to run an excursion here on July 1st. They will be accompanied by a team from the Excelsior Lacrosse Club of the same town.
Satisfactorily arranged for a match will be made with the home club, and it is altogether likely such will be made, a lacrosse match will be played in the new lacrosse grounds at the driving park.
On decoration day the Oddfellows of this town expect to have a large number of visiting brethren from the different towns and villages in this district. The joint committee of the Otonabee and Peterborough lodges are now communicating with a number of the district lodges.

The Perth firemen will probably visit the town some time next month. Mr. A. S. Man-hard, travelling passenger agent of the Canada Pacific railway, informs us that a number of excursions will be run to Peterborough over the Ontario & Quebec road from Ottawa, Montreal and other eastward places during the season.

TO ADVERTISERS.
We desire to call the attention of advertisers to the necessity of sending in advertisements intended for the DAILY REVIEW as early as possible. By delaying until the very last moment, all the value of proper classification is lost, and after one o'clock we cannot guarantee to change contract advertisements in the edition of that day.

Daily Evening Review
MONDAY, JUNE 1, 1885.

A WELCOME HOME.
In view of the probable early return of the Midland Battalion from the Northwest, the Midland Post suggests that a reception be given to the Battalion at some central point. It says:—
"Now that the backbone of the Midland Battalion is broken, the volunteers on duty may be expected to return home very shortly. It would be a capital idea to send out the project of a grand celebration and reception to the Midland Battalion, to be held at some point in the Midland district, say at Toronto, Fort Hope or Lindsay, which place could be readily reached by rail from all points. Toronto will have the honor of receiving the Battalion, and would not doubt have the whole country holding its hands in that respect. As the leaders of the charge, the Battalion to whom the credit is due of clearing out the rebel rifle pits and winning the battle at Betsko, should have a right royal reception."

The Battalion is certainly deserving of a celebration and reception on as grand a scale as can be arranged. The great service they rendered at the storming of Betsko has been recognized by all the correspondents and papers, and the dangerous work they were engaged in on the river was only less hazardous than an actual engagement, such as the one in which they distinguished themselves. A reception such as that outlined by the Post, where representatives of the whole district would come together to do them honor, would certainly impress on the minds of the men the fact that they have done a courageous, a worthy and a noble act in offering themselves to defend their country against armed invaders. The whole Battalion—officers, non-commissioned officers and men—are worthy of such a recognition of the services they have rendered.

There is, however, one consideration which should not be forgotten in making any arrangements for a reception. All the people in each county, town and village from which volunteers joined the Battalion feel an interest in them and would gladly participate in a reception in their honor. In giving a general reception at a central place, which would necessarily be limited to representatives from each locality, this should be borne in mind, and a reception for the companies when they reach the headquarters of their own Battalion should also be held. In fact, a company reception should in any case be considered indispensable.

If it is decided to hold a general reception, the place where it is to be held should be carefully considered, as it should be as central and as easy of access from all localities as possible. Peterborough would certainly be a central place, and is on the line of the Grand Junction, connecting with Belleville and Campbellford, and other railway lines connecting with the different company headquarters. Peterborough or Port Hope should be the town selected for the celebration.

We commend the suggestion of the Post to the attention of the militia officers and civil authorities.

OUR MINERAL WEALTH.
The letter from "Leontine," which we publish to-day, merits the attention of the public, for it makes a valuable suggestion on a subject of great interest to the people of Ontario, and one with which our correspondents in exceptionally conversant.

The mineral wealth of Canada is a very important portion of the resources of the country. This is especially true of the Province of Ontario, and in the highest degree of the country of Peterborough and immediately adjacent districts, such as Haliburton, North Victoria and North Hastings. Individuals have prospected in the northern and western portions of the county with good results as to the discovery of valuable minerals. But these explorations have by no means covered the whole ground, and the mines and quarries have been very inadequately developed through want of sufficient capital, of banking facilities, of means of transport and of a dearth of general information and interest as to such matters.

Little aid has so far been given, either by the Dominion Government or by the Province. The geological survey is not sufficiently detailed, especially for this district, to be of much service in developing our mineral resources. An efficient officer, such as our correspondent suggests, who would combine practical knowledge of mining with a thorough acquaintance with scientific geology and mineralogy, would be able to render far more valuable service.

The development of our mineral wealth is a matter which more directly concerns the Provincial Government than that of the Dominion, as it is the Province which possesses the mineral lands, when, as is largely the case, they have not been appropriated. Our mines are, indeed, part of our capital—a portion of our valuable real estate.

The Mineral Administration took a sensible step, the wisdom of which we recognized, when they secured the services of Mr. Phelps with a view to the conservation, and more economical dealing with, our forest wealth. Let them now do as much for another great industry, which is at present so imperfectly developed.

In the vast importance of our mines and quarries will be practically demonstrated by their active and remunerative operation, to the benefit of the Provincial treasury, and the maintenance of great numbers, who will be directly or indirectly employed. This period may be hastened by the appointment of an efficient officer, such as is suggested.

In its cartoon in reference to the present meeting in Toronto of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars, the ruling body of the order throughout the world, Grip depicts Dr. Oronokytchka as the representative temperance man of Canada, grouped with representatives from England and of the white and colored men of the United States. Yet Grip, with other Reform organs, supported the view of the obstructionists that Dr. Oronokytchka should not be allowed to vote for a representative in the House of Commons.

Mr. Mowat has expressed his opinion very strongly that it is improper to entrust the County Judges and baristers of five years standing with the duty of refusing the Dominion voters' list. Yet Mr. Mowat has legislated that in Algoma the Deputy Returning Officers shall have power to reject votes at their will, and resist the efforts of the Conservative opposition to make them responsible for a misuse of this power.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

PEITITIONS.
FRIDAY, May 29.—More than the petitions to order against the Franchise Bill were presented, and also a number in favor of excluding beer, wine, &c., from the operation of the Scott Act.

REVISING OFFICERS.
The House went into Committee on the Franchise Bill. Mr. DAVIES moved an amendment that the voters lists be prepared by the municipal officers.

Mr. COOK censured the bill and admitted having spent $15,000 on an election. Mr. MILLER, after some other Reform speeches, moved an amendment to the amendment that the municipal officers should divide the voters' lists into polling divisions of 200 voters arranged in alphabetical order.

Both amendments were lost. Mr. CAMERON (Huron) moved an amendment that Provincial Chief Justices should appoint the revising baristers for one year.

The amendment was lost and the clause was carried. Mr. DAVIES moved an amendment to the next clause that when the County Judges did not act, the Chief Judges should appoint the revising officers.

Sir J. MACDONALD pointed out that by the latest Imperial legislation on this subject the appointment of a revising officer was made by the Government.

After some discussion, the amendment was negatived and the clause adopted.

A MESSAGE.
A message was brought down for an additional vote of one million dollars.

Mr. CARON said that it was matter for congratulation that the circumstances connected with this vote were so favorable. He gave deserved praise to the General, his officers and men. The previous vote was expended, and it was necessary that the men should be paid. The expenses for forage and transport were also very heavy.

Mr. BLAKE complained of not having sufficient notice, and wanted details of the expenditure. He was alarmed at the cost of transport. Mr. CARON said when 5,000 men were called out at a moment's notice it was necessary to arrange hastily for their commissariat, and the weather made transport difficult. He gave high praise to the Hudson Bay Company's officials for their valuable assistance. He could not undertake to give details; for instance, they knew very little about Gen. Strange's column. He had closed expensive contracts, and had been as economical as possible, but he would not have been fit for his position if he had hesitated to incur the expense necessary to make the campaign a success.

Mr. LANGRISH objected to a Montreal grocer being placed on the commissariat, and alleged political motives. The officers of the force should have been appointed to such positions. Mr. CARON thought in such an emergency they had done right in employing the officers to command the troops and grocers to look after groceries. He would be prepared to meet any such charges at the proper time.

The vote was carried.

The House adjourned at 10.40 till Monday.

A NEW CHANNEL.

In Which a Considerable Amount of Trade May Flow into Peterborough.

No one disputes that the people of Peterborough possess any amount of enterprise and "go." But it seems as if each citizen is trying to do all of the enterprising acts himself, for many of the prize-winning projects advanced for increasing our trade have met with faint support. Not this should not be, and the citizens should give substantial aid as well as good wishes to the scheme of furthering trade interests to which we now give ventilation.

Mr. H. Calcutt has, during the past winter, been working out a scheme whereby the merchants of Peterborough, as well as himself, may be largely benefited. The Grand Junction branch of the Great Trunk Railway skirts the north shore of Rice Lake for a considerable distance and draws a fairly large volume of trade to Peterborough from that section; but between those townships, Percy and Alnwick, which lie on the southern side of the lake, and the town of Peterborough, there is no regular communication.

What Mr. Calcutt proposes to do is to have his steamers touch at different points on the south side of the lake on their regular trips to Hastings and intermediate places and at certain times to give the residents the benefit of a very cheap rate up to Peterborough. A few years ago such a cheap excursion was run per Calcutt's line of steamers from these places, and by actual computation it was ascertained that those who visited Peterborough on that day spent something over $1,100.

The residents of the townships of Percy and Alnwick are people whose acquaintance our merchants would do well to cultivate. They like Peterborough and like to trade here, because, being shrewd buyers, they know where the best bargains are to be obtained. But they have no means of getting here; in fact they have easy access to no town or village on a railway. Hastings is, by the circuitous roads of a hilly country, removed from some portions of these townships a distance of more than fifteen miles; Cobourg is almost twice as far, while Peterborough, if the proposed communication be made, will be more easily reached than either.

Unless, however, Mr. Calcutt finds himself well enough supported to ensure financial success (or he will be satisfied if it pays at all), he will be unable to open up this connection. Season tickets will shortly be issued to all points down the river and along the lake. The merchants and others will be called on to purchase single or family tickets, and if enough be taken to warrant the going ahead with the project, such will be commenced at no distant date. The merchants will find that they will be well repaid for the money they invest, for not only will they have the right to get on board with their wives and families at any time they please for a pleasant sail down the river, but if this connection be opened up they will, in all probability, receive substantial pecuniary benefit.

OUR MINERAL WEALTH.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—As our mineral interests are becoming more important every year, I think the time has arrived that it would be to the interest of this Province that the Ontario Government created an office of Mining Engineer and Inspector. Every other Province has Mining Inspectors. Quebec has both a Mining Engineer and several Mining Inspectors. Every State in the Union having any mineral resources, besides the Geological Survey of the United States, and the separate States Geological Surveys, has either a Mining Engineer, or more Mining Inspectors, or Commissioners of Mineral Statistics. Some States have all these officers, but for the present in Ontario one official might have the three offices combined. The Committee appointed by the House of Commons, Ottawa, February, 1884, after examining a large number of witnesses, representing the scientific, mining and commercial interests of the Dominion, and after having procured by correspondence the written views of a large number of experts, and representative men of all interests in other countries, without one exception strongly advocated the advisability of procuring and preserving the mineral resources of the Dominion, and the Committee also recommended the appointment of a first-class Mining Engineer and Inspector, whose special duty it should be to keep himself and the public informed as to all mining and metallurgical developments and progress, and to procure and preserve full statistical information as to the product of the mines, and interesting facts of a geological, chemical and economical character.

In the hope you will cause these lines publication, and that it will lead to the discussion of the subject in other leading journals of the Province, and consequently to its favorable consideration and action thereon by the Ontario Government at an early day.

I am yours, J. M. URENTIAN.

Statistics of Bible Manufacture.
At the Oxford University's own paper mill, which is situated at Wolvercote, near Oxford, 375 tons of paper have been consumed in making 250 tons of paper for the issue of the revised version. It would go round twice in a strip of six inches wide, or say, if the paper were laid open one after the other, it would go round the world. The sheets piled in reams as they leave the mill would make a column ten times the height of St. Paul's or folding into books before binding at least one hundred times the height.

The house which is being prepared at this Oxford University press alone would, if piled flat one upon another, make a column more than fourteen miles high, or 375 times the height of Mount Everest. If piled on end they would reach seventy-four miles high, or 1,944 times the height of the monument. It is hardly possible to give an idea of the number of good and cheap copies which have been prepared for binding the copies, but it has been calculated that 1,579 great sheets have been used in binding the copies which will be presented by the American Committee of Revision on the 21st inst.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Shower of Birds.

A terrific rain and windstorm swept over Central Mississippi on the night of May 2. It came from a northwesterly direction, and lasted several hours, blowing down trees, fences and outbuildings, and in some places, washed up corn and other seeds that had been recently planted. The next morning at Canton and vicinity a number of strange birds were found lying or sitting on the ground, some of them dead and some being killed from the violence of the storm, and in some places, washed up corn and other seeds that had been recently planted. LATEST LOCAL NEWS.

Journalistic.
Following the example set long ago by the Review and recently by the Times, the Examiner on Saturday issued a daily.

Vital Statistics.
The number of births, marriages and deaths, as taken from the Town Clerk's register, is as follows:—
Births.....18
Marriages.....5
Deaths.....7

Monster Plume.
Preparations are now on foot for the holding of a monster plume in Wallis' grove on July 1st, under the auspices of the congregation of St.
Peter's Cathedral. The sporting bill of fare will be as extensive one, as a committee who know how to make an affair of this kind a success is in charge.

Immersion.
At the close of his sermon in the Baptist church on Sunday evening, the Rev. A. H. Munro baptized four persons according to the mode of that church, namely, by immersion.
Previous to performing the ceremony he briefly stated the manner in which each of the persons had been led to conversion. There was a large congregation present.

Quarter Sessions.
The arrangements heretofore existing by which the Quarter Sessions for Peterborough were on the first Tuesday and for Victoria on the second Tuesday in June, is done away with, and now all sittings of the County Court and Quarter Sessions are held on the second Tuesday in June. The Court will open here on Tuesday, 9th June, at noon.

The Peterborough Northwest company.
In the news from the Northwest the Intelligence company that Private Bell, of the Peterborough Company, met with an accident. The name of Private Bell does not appear in the list of names of the volunteers from this county.
An error may have been made in the name, or a mistake made as to the Company to which he belonged.

St. John's Church Choir.
The Rev. J. W. R. Beck, rector of St. John's Church, announced on Sunday that the new organist and choir master would be in Peterborough this week, and take charge of the choir on Sunday next. The members of the choir will meet the organist on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the church for a practice. There is room for some new members who have good voices and are able to read music.

An Eloquent Impression.
From the way in which an item was worded that appeared in Saturday's issue of the Review, it might be inferred that it was because of the amount of money presented during last season by the club to a lacrosse player, who was injured in a match, that the club decided to insure the first twelve this season. Such is not the case.
The club has intended to adopt this plan for the past two years, and as far as the amount presented goes, the club feels that it should have been double what it was, and even then the player would have been insufficiently recompensed for the valuable time he lost. The statement that the medical attendance was also paid is incorrect.

Belle, There!
Perhaps the best way to trace, generally speaking, the amount of business done in towns or cities of the civilized world, or the enterprise and vim of its citizens, is to go to the central telephone office in such place and ask how many instruments are in use. In the telephone lines Peterborough compares favourably with the adjacent towns. According to the last Bell Telephone Directory, issued in January last,
Lindsay had forty instruments in use; Port Hope, fifty four; Belleville, forty six; Bowmanville, forty nine; Cobourg, forty four, while our backwoodsburgh modestly boasts of having eighty five in use. Since January the number of instruments brought into use here has largely increased, no fewer than ninety eight of our citizens having their places of business or residences connected with the exchange. Those who have lately adopted the telephone service are:
P. R. Brock, carriage maker; Kingston & Co., hardware merchants; G. W. Hall, wholesale biscuit and confectionery manufacturer; J. J.
McRae, grain buyer; H. Deane, miller, and China Hall, he; town office of the C.P.R.;
the Phelps House, and Mr. E. B. Edwards. residence are also connected with the exchange.
Mr. H. W. Kent and his capable staff of assistants attend promptly to the calls, and give general satisfaction to the company's patrons.

Canoe for Calgary.
On Saturday last two folding canoes were shipped from the Ontario Canoe Factory to Calgary. Shipments of canoes are being daily made to various places in Canada and the United States.

The Probabilities.
The weather probabilities for this district for this morning, as issued by the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate winds, fine warm weather.

Early Closing.
The assigned boot and shoe merchants will close their places of business during the months of June, July and August at 7 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, excepted:—R.
Steeles & Son, J. H. Ames, John Carey, Foot & McMillan, Joseph Griffin, J. Mc-
Robert, and J. W. Miller.

Cheese Factories.
The manufacture of cheese in the county of Peterborough is beginning to be one of the principal industries. Each year new factories are erected and now there are few counties in Ontario that export more cheese than the county of Peterborough. This year three more factories have sprung into existence; one at Warsaw, one near Lakefield and one at Blairton.

Movement in Freight.
A large amount of freight still continues to move over the Ontario and Quebec branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Within two hours on Sunday morning no fewer than seven trains, heavily laden, consisting of from fifteen to seventeen cars, passed through town. The freight is chiefly composed of through traffic from the Canadian Pacific Railway line of steamers.

The Finest.
Shipments of fine cattle are being made almost daily from Peterborough to the Montreal and other markets. On Saturday afternoon, however, Mr. George Webber acknowledged carried off the prize in this line. He shipped to the Montreal market 40 head of the finest cattle ever brought together in this district.
Fifty three head were fed by Messrs. C. and J.
Moore, of Smith, the well known feeders.

A New Paper in Ferry Sound.
A new journalistic venture will soon make its appearance in Burk's Falls, Perry Sound District. The publishers are Messrs. W. A.
Kelsey, formerly of Peterborough, and Henry Armstrong, of McKellar. The new paper, which will be called the Arrow, will be independent in politics and devoted to the interests of the district in which it is published. Burk's Falls is situated in the Northern and Pacific Junction railway, and at the head of navigation on the Magnetawan river. We wish the publishers of the Arrow success.

The First.
Wallis' grove, the favorite resort for picnic parties, has already been visited by summer excursionists. On Saturday, shortly after dinner, a party composed of Collegiate Institute people and teachers, about twenty-five in all, drove out to the grove and spent a pleasant afternoon. Had it not been for a heavy shower of rain that fell as evening was approaching there would have been nothing to mar the meritment of the little gathering. As it was, however, the buoyant spirits and the clothing of the greater number of the picnickers were considerably dampened.

Sale of Property.
Mr. D. W. Dumble has completed the sale of several town lots during the past few days.
He has sold part of lot 13, 64 x 114, north of Dundas and west of George street, to Mr. Wm.
Smith, for the sum of $600 cash. Mr. T. H.
Bent has purchased from him a part of lot 10,
north of Edinburgh street and west of George, for the sum of $900 cash. Part of lots 20 and 21, north of Dalhousie street and west of George, which consists of about two-thirds of a half acre
lot, adjoining the creek, were purchased by Mr.
J. W. Flavell for $900 cash. Mrs. Redman purchased a small house and lot on Donegal street, part of lot 20, west of George street and south of Murray street. The lot is 64 x 114, and the price paid $600.

A Modern Miracle.
In his sermon on Sunday evening the Rev. A.
H. Munro, of the Baptist Church, incidentally referred to a miracle and related an occurrence which took place in Liverpool, Nova Scotia, some years ago. When Mr. Munro was pastor of the Baptist church in that town a fire broke out which destroyed a large amount of property.
The Baptist and Methodist churches had been burned, the fire was still spreading and the whole town was in danger. There was no appearance of rain—not a cloud in the sky—but a number of religious people knelt in prayer and sent up a united petition for rain. Soon, the reverend man said, drops of rain as large as fifty cent pieces began to fall, and there was a downpour of rain which continued until everything was drenched. Two or three hundred people in Liverpool, he said, would corroborate his statement.

The Engagement.
When a couple become engaged there is seldom any sensible reason why all the world should not know it, and therefore the new fashion of announcing engagements just before a local entertainment and having the ladies and gentlemen congratulated by their friends is to be commended. To be sure if the engagement is afterwards broken the thought of these public congratulations would be embarrassing; but if the fact tends to prevent promises of marriage being lightly given it will serve good purpose. The girl who might say yes, when asked to marry, with the mental reservation that if anything better comes along she will contrive not to keep her word, will think twice about it if she has to go through with such a form.
Marriage engagements are frequently too lightly entered into and too lightly not made.
The engagement should be nearly as sacred a contract as the marriage itself, and it should be such an engagement that both parties would be proud to have it known among all their common acquaintances. The young man should, after the engagement, dress tolerably well, and should on the wedding day appear in proper attire, viz., in a suit of clothes becoming the occasion. A.
McNeil, at Habington Hall, is the right man to make nubby suits.

If you want to replenish your closet and wardrobe, you will find everything of suitable quality, color and price

LAKEFIELD VS. PETERBOROUGH

The First Cricket Match of the season played on the F. A. A. Grounds.

The first match of the season was played on the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association on Saturday afternoon, and resulted in a victory for the Peterborough club by an innings and 46 runs. For Peterborough Messrs R. B. Rogers, Miles Hamilton, Max Hamilton, J. H. Long and J. E. Hammond all reached double figures, and for Lakefield Mr. R. C. Strickland was the only one who obtained double figures. The scoring on both sides was good. The wicket was an excellent one and proved Norley is the right man in the right place. The following is the score:—

The total score, as will be seen, was made by Mr. J. E. Hammond. His batting was done in the best form, and he was the recipient of more than one compliment on his excellent play.
Messrs. Miles and Max Hamilton did both good bowling and good batting. Under Mr. J.
Norley's tuition the players all show an improvement, and with his first class coaching, and the good material which he had to work on, the Peterborough club will no doubt be among the leading ones in the Province this season.
The match commenced at 1:30 and was concluded at 6:30. The crowd was in excellent order.

Home from Egypt.
Messrs. Sidney Blade and Albert Bradshaw arrived home from Egypt on the 5:50 C. P. R. train on Sunday morning. Mr. Blade re-engaged with the Nile expedition after his first term was out, and went up the river with Gen.
Karl's column. Mr. Bradshaw, when returning with the men who came home March, took sick at Cairo and remained there until the remainder of the men reached that city on their way home.

Grand Hunt.
The seats for the Middlesex Hunt Club concert on Friday evening are being rapidly taken, and it would indeed be hard to say much for the musical taste of any city where this company should fail to draw a crowded house. It would seem at the time of such performances as if one artistic soul had taken possession of five minds, working through the fingers and eyes and minds of each at envying, informing, ennobling and inspiring the common work.

Health Matters.
Dr. Clarke, the Medical Health Officer, reports that the provisions of the Health Act are being much better carried out than they were last year. Yards are being cleaned up much more promptly, and it is altogether likely there will be fewer prosecutions for non-compliance with the provisions of the Act during the coming summer than there were last summer. The people look on the placarding system with less disfavor, and are beginning to regard it as a necessary measure, and the householders now voluntarily register the cases of infectious diseases, and apply for the placards to be posted up.

The Telegraphic Small Boy.
"It is dangerous to fool with a buzz saw," no one says more gravely. It was probably merely an omission on his part that the words "and a railway train" were not added. The officials of the Grand Trunk railway train passing through here have been patrolling for a considerable time with small boys crawling in and out among the wheels, etc. What happened a few days ago will probably serve as a useful lesson to the small boy fraternity. A boy about thirteen years of age was crossing from one car to another when he slipped and fell. His foot passed in between the bumpers and was severely crushed.
Parents should warn their children of the danger
there is in climbing over trains in this way.

Obituary.
On Sunday, the 31st of May, Peterborough lost one of its best and most respected citizens, in the person of Mr. William Fairweather. The deceased has long occupied a foremost place among the dry goods men of the town. He was born in Inverury, A. B. emigrated, Scotland, in the year 1841. In 1857 he came to Canada, having in his possession a stock of goods which he commenced in his new sphere of life.
Shortly after his arrival he engaged with Messrs. Moffat, Murray & Co., Toronto, wholesale dry goods merchants, as buyer, and during the years which he held that position he crossed the Atlantic twenty-three times. In 1868 he came to Peterborough and opened up a general store on Hunter street.
Upon the erection of the Dickson block he removed the corner store, which place he has occupied as a place of business until his death.
In religion he was a Presbyterian, and in politics a Reformist. He deceased had been suffering for eighteen months, but for the past three months he had been confined to the house.
The funeral will take place at half past two o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

REVIEWS

HARPER'S MONTHLY.—The June number of Harper has for its frontispiece an effective engraving by W. B. Chase, from the powerful painting of "Paco and Francisco," by G. F.
Watts, R.A. The "Ladies' day at the Ranch," by Mrs. Robbins and its admirable illustrations shows how even on the great stock farms civilization may be combined with the enjoyment of nature. The third installment of "The Wild Goose Chase," by Mr. Miller, profusely illustrated, continues the interesting sketches of life and scenery around the Baltic. Lieut.
Lemly takes us to a very different country in his graphic description of Santa Fe de Bogota, the capital of Columbia. Mr. Kirk in his account of "Knockville in the olden times," tells the story of John Sevier, a celebrated scourge of hostile Indians, and therefore a subject which has a special interest in these days. Hardly less timely is E. F. Zephaniah's "Night with the Germans," an account of the military maneuvers, by which that power in times of peace prepares its army for war. Prof. Hill gives some useful hints on "English in the Schools." Miss Magill's "Georgian at the Opera" is a humorous if slightly exaggerated sketch. R. A. Proctor gives in popular language the latest scientific theories as to "How earthquakes are caused." Some reminiscences of "Margaret Fuller," by Mrs. Spring are full of interest. In an account of "The Watts Exhibition," Mr. Milley appreciatively discusses the question "What shall our Artists Paint?" The serial story "At the Red Glove" is brought to a satisfactory conclusion, and "East Angela" progresses with increasing interest. Some excellent verses, a striking short story and the editorial miscellanies, admirable as ever, complete a number worthy of Harper, and praise can hardly go further.

POLICE COURT.
VAGRANCY.
MONDAY, JUNE 1.—Charles Alexander was charged by Chief Johnston with being a vagrant, having no means of support. He pleaded not guilty at first, stating that he worked at his trade when well, but lately he had been very sick. He afterwards pleaded guilty and said he wanted a month's rest to recuperate his health.
He was committed to goal for one month.

We are pleased to notice that Mr. John Morrison, of Lindsay, who, as we mentioned a few weeks ago, was about to commence a canvass of this town for the sale of a new medical work
called "The Practical Home Physician," is making great success, the value of the book being undoubted and very generally recognized.

NORTHWEST REBELLION.

ANOTHER ENGAGEMENT WITH BIG BEAR EXPECTED TO-DAY.

Where the Peterborough Company is—
The Supplies sent to the Midland Battalion—Provisions sent from Calgary to Edmonton.

There is some difficulty, owing to the manner in which the Hudson Bay Company has up, in watching the movements of the companies and knowing where each one is. Many are now always convenient, the despatches have from the first given rather meagre news regarding their movements. However, we believe the following is correct:— After the Battalion arrived at Swift Current, four companies went down the river on the steamer Northcote, two remained at Saskatchewan Landing, and two (the 1st and 2nd) went on to Regina.

at Saskatchewan Landing also went down the river with supplies, and the two at Swift Current were moved to the Landing. Finally those two companies proceeded to Clarke's Crossing. Two companies (Lindsay and 15th of Belleville) were at the battle of Batoche's, and after that engagement the four companies which had come up joined Gen. Middleton. The despatches state that 250 men of the Midland went with Gen. Middleton against Big Bear, which would include all the companies of the Battalion except the Peterborough and 49th Companies, after they left here. They were at once forwarded to the Elbow, on the South Saskatchewan, and were given right of way over other supplies. It was expected, Col. Lazier said in his letter, which was dated on May 30th, that they would reach Battleford in a day or two, and as they were forwarded by the river, it is very probable that the Peterborough company have received theirs at Clarke's Crossing.

Application is to be made to have his body brought to Montreal.

BATTLEFORD, June 1.—Gen. Middleton's force is expected to land to night and with General Strange's column on the other side surround the enemy. The fight is expected on Tuesday.

At present there are 5,000 men at work on the railway, 1,000 having been sent out within the last ten days, and inside a month 2,000 more will be forwarded. The C. P. R. is now being operated to the first crossing of the Columbia river—a distance of 1,925 miles. Not many months will elapse before a train will run from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The durability of the framed timber of buildings is very considerable. The trusses of the old part of the roof of the basilic of St. Paul, at Rome, were framed in 816, and were sound and good in 1816, a space of nearly thousand years. These trusses are of fir. The timber work of the external domes of the Church of St. Mark, at Venice, is more than church of St. Peter, at Rome, to be whole and sound after being up nearly 600 years. The inner roof of the chapel of St. Nicholas, King Lynn, Norfolk, is of oak, and was constructed upwards of five hundred years ago. Daville states, as an instance of the durability of fir, that the large dormitory of the Jacobins' convent, at Paris, was executed in fir and lasted 400 years.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, JUNE 2, 1885.

OUR MILITIA.
According to the Provincial Philosopher there is good in things evil, and this is certainly true of the lamentable rebellion in the Northwest. For one thing it has shown to other nations, and even to some Thomas-like Canadians, the value of our militia. For the present at all events we are likely to have no more secess, at home or abroad, in regard to Canadian volunteers.

From the day when they received orders for active service, to the conclusive contest, there has not been one sign of hesitation, one symptom of flinching. Every man of every branch of our service, and from every Province, has shown himself ready to suffer inconvenience and pecuniary loss, hardships or danger. Not a grumble has been heard, unless indeed it was from those who had to remain at home because their services were not required.

Without a murmur our volunteers endured the hardships necessarily attendant upon a hurried movement to the front, especially at that season of the year, and upon the difficulties of improving a transport and commissariat service. They knew that the authorities were doing their best, and recognizing how much was done, they bore with patience any unavoidable discomfort.

And when it came to facing a resolute enemy in the trenches of their own selection, our volunteers showed to still greater advantage. These green troops displayed all the dash of a crack regiment, all the steadiness under fire of veterans. Their courage, their discipline, their skill in the use of their arms, their soldier-like bearing would have been creditable to any army in the world. They have won the hearty recognition of so skilled and practiced a judge as General Middleton, who have gained the applause of their countrymen, and the esteem of the world.

And it must be remembered that those who have thus distinguished themselves are not picked men, in the sense that there are not other Canadian regiments as fit for such a duty as their services are required. Though our Minister of Militia and the General in command undoubtedly selected such corps as they knew to be efficient, yet there are many others upon whom equal dependence could be placed. Those who have thus distinguished themselves would be the first to own that if it was their good fortune to have the opportunity, others were as ready if the chance had been theirs.

It is to be hoped that these proofs of their mettle will insure better things for our volunteer militia in the future, that there will not be the old story of "playing soldiers," or at the annual camps as mere pawns, that there will not be the old impatience as an expenditure on our citizen army, that even as it was hardly sufficient to redeem our pledge to the Imperial Government in return for property handed over to the Dominion.

On the other hand it is to be hoped that there will not be a tendency to assume that because our militia has done so well it is adequately trained for service. One week's drill every second year is not adequate training, nor is it right to depend on the extra drilling voluntarily undertaken by zealous officers and enthusiasts.

Now we have had such proof of the excellence of the material it is true economy to improve it, and more parsimony to neglect it.

And if our fighting men have distinguished themselves, the much criticized Militia Department, from the able and indefatigable Minister downwards, has stood the test as well. One cause of its success has been that it knew how to let well alone and not interfere unduly with a thoroughly competent commander.

That such a formidable insurrection should have been so speedily suppressed by the prompt and effective use of our home resources is a credit to all concerned, and a just cause for pride on the part of the Dominion of Canada.

Death of C. Pelham Mulvaney.
Mr. C. Pelham Mulvaney, M.D., well known as a contributor to the local press and periodicals, died at Toronto on Sunday after a short illness. The deceased was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and when a young man entered holy orders. He remained in the Church of England ministry for some years, when he was attracted to the study of medicine, the practice of which he subsequently adopted as a profession. He was a cultured scholar and a clever literary man, which is attested by many scholarly articles that he contributed to the press, and several works of prose and poetry of which he was the author.

A Merciful Murderer.
New York, May 31.—When the day clerk entered Crawford's drug store, Hudson street, this morning he found the door open and the dead body of the night clerk, Richard Hand, in a sitting posture on the floor in the sitting room. He summoned the police and it was found Hand's skull had been crushed with a heavy iron pestle, which lay near by, his throat cut from ear to ear, and other marks of violence on the face. Thirty five or forty dollars had been taken from the till.

Fate of a Bitter Novel Hero.
Bellefleur, May 30.—A boy named Hodgkins, whose parents reside in this city, stole some money from his mother to purchase a revolver, and started on the road as a dime novel hero. He was arrested at Trenton, and sentenced to three years in the reformatory at Pene-tangulene.

A Destructive Flood.
Numbers of houses swept away on Wednesday night by a sudden flood, caused by a furious rain storm, and their occupants, entire families in many cases, drowned. Enormous damage was also done to farms, crops, and railroad property.

An Oriental Anecdote.
As a woman was walking out one day a man looked very attentively at her, and continued to follow her, till at length, turning round, she said:
"Why do you follow me?"
"Because," he replied, "I have fallen in love with you."
"Why are you in love with me?" said the woman. "My sister, who is coming after me, is much handsomer than I am; go and make love to her."
The man went back, and met the woman behind, who was very ugly. Being disappointed and displeased he returned to the first woman, saying:
"Why did you tell me a story?"
"Neither did you speak the truth," answered the woman. "For if you were in love with me why did you go after another woman?"
This remark had the desired effect, and the man was too much confused to reply.

LAND OF THE PHAROHS

THE EXPERIENCES OF CANADIANS ON THE RIVER NILE.

The Battle of Kibekah—Dangerous Cat-eracts—The Death of John Sherlock—Interesting Trophies from Egypt.

On Sunday morning the Canada Pacific train going west, which arrived here at 5.35 o'clock, brought to Peterborough Messrs. Sidney Blade and Albert Bradshaw, who had been absent nearly nine months, having left Peterborough on the 9th of last September, in answer to the call of the Imperial Government for Canadian voyageurs to assist Lord Wolsey's expedition for the relief of Gen. Gordon, in its ascent of the river Nile. The men were engaged for six months, and at the expiration of the time for which they had engaged thirteen of the fifteen who went from Peterborough started to return, while John A. Sherlock and Sidney Blade re-remained for another period with a number of voyageurs from other places. Albert Bradshaw, however, was TAKEN ILL AT CAIRO, and remained there until the remainder of the Canadians were on their way home. His illness was brought on by sunstroke, and he afterwards suffered with inflammation of the lungs. He says that he received the very best of care and attention at Cairo, and the last three weeks he was there he was able to walk about and view the capital of the land of the Pharaohs. He was paid full wages for the time he remained there.

AN INTERESTING NARRATIVE.
A representative of the REVIEW met the returning voyageurs at the station and made an appointment to meet them on the following day. The result of the appointment was an interesting interview. Mr. Blade had the honor of going further up the river than any other of the Peterborough men. He was also in the boat which received the first fire from the Arabs, which occurred just after they had left Dal, a place 10 miles from Wady Halfa. There were several shots fired at them without any effect, and the fire was not returned, but a careful guard was kept that night.

When the men were asked to re-engage, Blade was further south than any of the men from Peterborough, and he was therefore unaware whether any of them had decided to remain. After arriving at Korti, which Lord Wolsey had made his headquarters, Blade was among the Canadians who were sent to assist Gen. Earle. He was therefore present at

THE BATTLE OF KIBEKAH, where the commander met his death. During the voyage up the river to this place, Blade was in one of the boats which was in the lead, sometimes being first and never further from the front than fourth. At Kibekah the Sudanese were in a good position. They had made a stand on a hill, which was very rocky and covered with debris. The Canadians volunteered to assist in the ambulance corps during the engagement, but their offer was not accepted, as their number was not too great for the work they had to do on the river. Blade and Capt. Jas. Kennedy took up a position on a rock, where they could get a very good view of the battle. One courageous Canadian named Dundas was DETERMINED TO FIGHT, and he got past the pickets and ascended the hill with the soldiers. A soldier asked him what he intended to do without arms, and the significant reply was that one of them would be a soldier near him, Dundas picked up his arms and fought during the remainder of the engagement.

THE DEATH OF GEN. EARLE.
A magazine with mud walls was held by nineteen Sudanese, and Gen. Earle, the commander of the column, called on the 42nd Regiment to take it. The brave general rushed forward himself and tried to force an entrance, but he was shot by a bullet in the chest. As soon as a soldier near him fell, Dundas picked up his arms and fought during the remainder of the engagement.

TROPHIES OF THE BATTLE FIELD.
which he brought home with him. Among them was a sword before mentioned, a double barreled gun, a rifle, a spear which he took from the body of a slain soldier, a shield, several small spears, knives, and a cap which was worn by a Sudanese. The rifle had been struck by a bullet, just as the Arab was about to fire, and the ball had passed through the stock, splintering it, and inflicting a mortal wound. The cap had been worn by the same unfortunate child of the desert.

THE SCENE OF COL. STEWART'S MURDER.
After the battle Gen. Brakenbury took command and the column proceeded up the river. A village was reached, where it was thought that Col. Stewart, who had left Khartoum on a steamer, had met his fate. The steamer was not found there, however. The village was deserted, and it was destroyed, the date trees being cut down and the huts fired. Blade applied a torch to many of them himself. It was known that the Sudanese buried provisions in graveyards, covering them up in the same manner as graves, and a large number of the caches were unearthed, and quantities of dates and dhora (four) taken. Proceeding on, another large village was reached, and there Col. Stewart's steamer was found. It had been riddled with bullets. Blade went on the steamer and cut off a piece of brass, which also forms a part of his collection of curiosities. In the village Col. Stewart's papers and other articles which had belonged to him were found. This village was also destroyed, and more provisions were unearthed from the "graves." The house of the Sheikh who murdered Col. Stewart was blown up.

THE ORDER TO RETURN.
The voyage up the river towards Berber was again resumed. Some dangerous places (dangerous on account of the cat-eracts) were passed. They passed villages on their route which were all deserted. They picked up loads on the way and many articles, and Blade kept a goat in his boat to supply milk. When the army was approaching Abu Ahmed, at the head of the Nile, word was received that a large army was coming to attack them. They were preparing to meet the Mahdi's followers when the order reached them from Lord Wolsey commanding them to return. The soldiers were greatly disappointed, as they were eager for the fray. The return voyage needed very careful work, as a strong more was at many places certain to wreck a boat. At some places as many as thirty or forty miles were run in an hour. When Korti was reached the Canadians received great praise from Gen. Brakenbury and other officers. Mr. Blade had a very successful voyage from the time he first entered the boats until he returned, not wrecking one in his charge.

JOHN A. SHERLOCK.
Mr. Blade learned when he got back to Korti that Mr. John A. Sherlock had also re-engage-d. He had also been further up than Korti, but was then further down the river. Letters and papers for Mr. Sherlock, which had passed him, were given to Mr. Blade to take down to him.

When Kaybar, where Mr. Sherlock was, was reached they received the sad news that he was ill with smallpox, and he was not allowed to see him. Mr. Thos. H. Leckie, of Ottawa, was with Mr. Sherlock, but they were not allowed to see him either, although he was then well. Mr. Blade laid down the mail he had in charge, and Mr. Leckie then went and got it. Col. Kennedy and Mr. Blade held a conversation with Mr. Leckie, by remaining a distance apart, and a conversation was also held with Mr. Sherlock through messages being carried. Mr. Blade asked if he would remain, but Mr. Sherlock sent out word that he was believed to be out of danger and expected to make them, and for Mr. Blade to go on, but that if he did not recover to let his father know. Mr. Blade says that when he found that Mr. Leckie was with him he felt perfectly satisfied that he would receive the very best of attention. This was on the 23rd of March. Col. Kennedy sent in the following letter to Mr. Sherlock, which John's father, Mr. Lucius Sherlock, now has, and which was the last John Sherlock received and one of the last Kennedy wrote, March 23, 1885.

"MY DEAR SHERLOCK,—I am sorry to hear that you are laid up with the smallpox, although I am pleased to hear that the danger is over and that you are in a fair way for recovery. Some letters I have sent you, also papers which I have managed to pick up, although they seem to have been opened. Several mails with papers have, it is said, been broken. I am all much grieved that you are not with us on the way home, but hope that you will overtake us before we leave London. I will see your father, who is to be paid off in London. You and others remaining can get any money you require from the station commandant where you may be. We will not forget you, and hope to meet you soon in your usual haunts."

"Yours sincerely,"
"W. N. KENNEDY."

After they had proceeded on down the river three days a telegram was received, stating that Mr. Sherlock was dead. The men were very much affected by the news. When speaking of the deaths of Col. Kennedy, Mr. Sherlock and Mr. Leckie, Mr. Blade could not repress his emotion. Mr. Leckie said that Mr. Blade's papers, maps and other small articles belonging to John Sherlock, to his father. Among the articles sent was a piece cut from a petrified tree, which marks his grave, and this Mr. Sherlock will have inserted into a monument, which will be placed in the cemetery. Before his death Mr. Sherlock was appointed foreman of a company of voyageurs. Among the papers which Mr. Leckie brought back and sent to Mr. Sherlock before he took ship at Kaybar, was the following order issued to John Sherlock before he took ship at Kaybar:—

KATBAR, Feb. 24, 1885.
"The Foreman of Voyagers:—
"It appears that a nigger with sick left Abu Fatmeah some days ago, and is overdue here. Probably it is on a rock. Please take a whaler which is lying at anchor at cat-eract, under the charge of corporal of engineers, and make up a crew and proceed up the river towards Abu Fatmeah, and ascertain when an accident has occurred, in which case do all you can to assist."
By order,
"T. P. W. KENNEDY," Capt. E. A."

THE RETURN HOME.
After leaving Kaybar, the voyageurs made a two days' journey on camels, and they were glad when they got off them. When Cairo was reached, everything was done for them that could be done. They were driven to the pyramids and other places, free of expense. They went from there to Suez, and through the canal into the Mediterranean. They had a few hours at Malta, where coal was taken on. They landed at Portsmouth, and went on the railway to London, where they were stationed at the Wellington barracks—very good quarters. They were given a trip to the Woolwich arsenal and visited the theatres, parks, &c., in London, all their expenses being paid. In Mr. Blade's words, "the Government behaved handsomely."

They were to have visited the Queen, but when the smallpox broke out, it was not deemed advisable for them to go to Windsor. Her Majesty, however, sent a letter thanking them for their services, and when it was read by Quartermaster Remington, the men gave three rousing cheers for the Queen.

COL. KENNEDY TOOK HIK
soon after they reached London. Mr. Blade attended his funeral with the other voyageurs, and he says it was a grand one. He has a good word for all the British officers who were connected with the campaign he was with, but like the voyageurs who returned before, he is emphatic in his praise of Col. Kennedy. Capt. Jas. C. Kennedy, who was with the voyageurs, was sick when they left London, and he remained behind.

BOUND FOR CANADA.
They had a rough passage across the Atlantic in the Hanoverian, but they were well treated on the steamer, and before leaving they presented the captain with an address. On Sunday morning they arrived in Peterborough.

JOHN SHERLOCK'S LAST LETTER.
Many of Mr. John Sherlock's letters appeared in the REVIEW, and our readers will read with interest the following one which was never able to finish and which was brought to Canada by Mr. Leckie with his other papers. It is dated thirteen days before he died:—
"KATBAR, March 13, 1885.
"DEAR FATHER,—Gussie I will send you a few lines, as I have nothing to do and nothing to read. On the 3rd of March we were ordered to be ready to port the steam pinnace through the cat-eract. We manned the gig and towed her across the river to the head of the fall. Unfortunately some of her gear was broken, and we had to make the attempt without the assistance of steam, and without a sketch of the rapid and the channel through which we lowered the steamer. A minute description of the work would be of very little use to you, but I will describe it as well as I can. The cat-eract proper is a great bed of rocks which the river at this season (low Nile) rushes wild confusion and is impracticable for navigation in any kind of craft. The channel through which we lowered the pinnace is on the west side of the river. It has been worn through the bar current, and I am inclined to think the latter, as Nature must have had convulsions while making so crooked a path. The commandant of the station placed 1000 soldiers at our disposal. With them we manned the four guys, an interpreter being with each squad. But here our troubles almost ended, as the coxswain of the craft retained command, and undertook to boss the job. We, of course, assisted all we could, but he was more of a complete rascal, and the poor craft had a rather rough passage. It would have been better for the boat if he had sat down and rode through as a passenger."

At this point the letter breaks off abruptly never having been completed.

THE HORRIBLE DEATH.
Of the fifteen men who went from Peterborough to serve Her Majesty's Government, thirteen returned home, and two, Messrs. John E. Faulkner and John A. Sherlock, will never return. Besides these two, Col. Wm. N. Kennedy, who was born in Peterborough, although he went from Winnipeg, did not reach his home. Let their memory live and be honored among those who have died in the service of their country.

FOUND IN A RESERVOIR.
FORT WORTH, Texas, May 30.—The body of a man named Charles H. Swink was found today near the depot in a reservoir. Swink was on his way from the east to visit his brother at Temple, Texas. While dozing in a seat at a few nights ago confidences men attempted to rob him. The sleeping man awoke in a frenzy of alarm and began firing at every one in the room. Two innocent men named Hagood and Tice were fatally wounded. Swink then ran pan-stricken from the room. Nothing further was heard of him until the body was found today.

CRIMINAL OF LANDERDALE.
NEW YORK, May 29.—Senator Edmunds has been summoned to England to testify in the contest for the pardon of Landerdale.

The Morning Dress.
It is said that a lady's standing in society can easily be determined by her dress at the breakfast-table; an expensive, showy costume, indicating that the wearer has not yet learned the proprieties. Her morning dress is as apparent as a shield; if her toilet is as apparent as a shield, it is a sign of her social position; above all, it is a sign of her social position; above all, it is a sign of her social position.

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammersmen Incorporation. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was out of a trifling matter, thanked the smith very politely, and was passing out of the door, when the Smith in jeremiatic tones, recalled him. Re-entering the Smithy, he handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to do with these?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail 'em there and pay no expense!"

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Just Down" you will find at ALEXANDER, on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

LATEST LOCAL NEWS.

Regular Meeting.
A regular meeting of the Board of Education will be held this evening at 7.45 o'clock.

River sold.
Mr. A. Wilson has sold his handsome young brown mare to Mr. Stevenson, of Cobourg, for the sum of $200 cash.

Young Men's Bible Study.
This very interesting class will be held this evening as usual. The subject will be the "Life of Samuel." All those who have attended the class testify to the interesting way in which it is conducted by the Rev. Mr. Munro. It is held for one hour, commencing at 8 o'clock.

Regular Services.
On Sunday next there will be three masses celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral, one at seven o'clock in the morning, one at half-past eight, and one at half-past ten. At the second mass a sermon in the French language will be preached by the Rev. Father Guay. These services will continue regularly.

Cricket.
The following is the team that will contest against the Toronto University cricketers tomorrow:—Messrs Miles Hamilton, Max Hamilton, P. E. Cooper, R. B. Rogers, S. Ray, H. Grundy, W. Sabine, T. Rutherford, Jas. Norley (prod), G. W. Hutton, Jno. E. Hammond. The match will commence at half past one o'clock.

Municipal Indifference.
At the last meeting of the Ashburnham village council application was made by the Salvation Army for the use of the municipal hall for the purpose of holding their meetings. The council refused to grant the request until the members of the council had time to consult the ratepayers as to the advisability of granting the same. The matter stands over until the next meeting.

Coming Down.
The water in the river is perceptibly falling. It did not reach the height this year that was expected by many. It would appear from the large amount of snow that fell last winter that the Ontonabee would have been unusually high in the spring. Such was not the case, for it exceeded the usual high water mark only a very little. During the past week it has fallen about two feet.

Booming.
Lacrosse matters are now fairly booming. At a meeting of the club held on Monday evening it was decided to accept the challenge of the Beaverton Checkers to play here on either the 19th or 23rd of June. This morning it was decided to play the Excelsiors of Brampton on July 1st. Owing to other matches on hand the challenge received this morning by Mr. G. H. Giroux, the Secretary from the Orillias, will necessarily have to stand over until after the 1st of July.

See and Share.
One of the most attractive signs in Peterborough has just been finished by Watson, the painter, for Mr. A. Elliott, uptown agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway. The sign is long enough to stretch across the front of the office. On one end there is painted a locomotive tender and the front of a coach, and on the other an ocean steamer just reaching harbor. Other craft sail around in the distance. In the centre the letters "C. P. R." are painted in large, bold characters. The sign is representative of the operations carried on by the company. It will be elevated above the entrance to the office in a day or two.

A Famine.
A few Sundays ago a certain clergyman, seen in the course of his sermon that famine was unknown to Canada. In the general acceptance of the term he was correct, but it may surprise the reader to be told that there is a famine existing in our town at the present moment. It is a dwelling house famine. Every day enquiries for dwelling houses may be heard, and if there is a house vacated it is snatched up in very short order. There is a married man working at the Luck Works, Simcoe street, who has been in town with his family of four for the last month, and he has been unable up to date to secure a suitable house. The demand for dwelling houses will probably be largely supplied during the present building season.

Decorations Day.
On June 23rd Peterborough promises to be the scene of a grand floral festival. At a meeting of the joint committee of the Ontonabee and Peterborough Lodges of Oddfellows held on Monday evening, further arrangements for the celebration were made. An excursion over the Midland division of the Grand Trunk Railway is to be run here on that day, under the auspices of the Newmarket Incumbent. The Lorneville Junction, Woodville and Lindsay Oddfellows have signified their intention to join the excursion, and satisfactory answers are expected in the course of the next few days to invitations issued to those of Cobourg, Port Hope, Beaverton, Barris, Orillia, and other places.

Spelt Bound.
Speaking of the Mendocino Quintette Club concert, the Cincinnati Commercial says:—"The audience is first impressed with the quiet demeanor and dignified bearing of the performers. They enter in the quietest possible manner, and commence the work before them as if moved by one prevailing, harmonious and controlling spirit. Whether this lurks in the eyes of the first violator or is born with all, it would be difficult to say; perhaps it is the result of long years of discipline and association under the prevailing idea of success, which must not only be won, but maintained; but however it comes, it certainly exists, and the delighted auditor sits spell-bound by the soft enchantment."

The Lansdowne Roller Rink.
The above rink is drawing a large patronage from the public. Every evening the large floor is comfortably filled with the followers of the skatorial art, and during the day the number of those who attend is by no means scanty. Mr. Ed. Brown, the Manager, is indefatigable in his efforts to cater to the comfort and enjoyment of all those who attend, and with this end in view, has made arrangements with the Fire Brigade Band to be in attendance every night that the rink is open during the season. We understand there will be an extra attraction in this rink on Dominion Day, particulars of which will be duly announced.

Agreed.
A basis of agreement has been arrived at between Mr. George Hilliard and the Town Council in regard to the long pending gravel pit affair. It will be remembered that some months ago Mr. Hilliard sent a communication, through his solicitors, to the Council, claiming $500 damages on account of gravel having been taken from his property for use on the streets, thus injuring it considerably. The basis of agreement arrived at through a conference between the Street and Bridge Committee and Mr. Hilliard is that Sperry street be opened up for traffic, in consideration of which Mr. Hilliard withdraws all claim for damages.

Music from a Coffee Pot.
Orpheus may have moved trees and stones by the magic touches of his lyre, but he will venture to say that he never drew forth music from a coffee pot. In this respect Mr. G. R. Joseph, one of Montreal's urbane drummers, rises above the musical god. On Monday afternoon he took his pet (an instrument shaped like a coffee pot, fitted inside with finely made gamut of the tin whistle type) to Mr. E. J. Hartley's music store, and warbled forth several operatic strains. A wondering crowd soon gathered to listen to the mellifluous tones of this strange thing. "Well, that beats all," said an old man, as the musician finished, and everyone present silently seconded the expression.

A New Way.
There is a little Englishman working on the new block which is being erected by Mr. J. Lynch on Hunter street. He is a queer little fellow, this little Englishman. He carries the hod; but he has a novel way, a way peculiar to himself, of doing so. Instead of filling the old-fashioned hod with mortar, and then tugging up ladders with it by the assistance of only one hand, he takes a small platform about three feet square, shovels on the lime, lumpy stuff, lifts it on his head and marches off pompously with both arms swinging as freely as if he were a St. Roger de Coverley. He never lets his load fall, and he climbs the ladder hand over hand and foot over foot with perfect ease.

The New Battery.
Major McLean, of the Durham Field Battery, was in town a few days ago. It is whispered around among the battery men that the Major had read the item that appeared in the Review a short time ago, and was in town to ascertain whether the scheme outlined was likely to be carried out. The Major must not be surprised if it is. We have good men up here plenty of them and we have an officer in every way qualified to command. Even if the secession of the Peterborough men does lessen the strength of the Durham Battery by half, it will probably be for only a time, and the right division will be ere long filled up with good men from elsewhere. It is understood that application will soon be made for the formation of the new battery, and no doubt when formed the members of the new battery and those of the old one will be on the best of terms.

Personal.
We are glad to learn that Mr. E. E. Henderson has been appointed to the agency of the Phoenix Fire Insurance Company, of London, Ontario, in 1882, commenced business in Canada in 1884, and has since been doing business in Peterborough for over a quarter of a century. The agent is a man of excellent standing in the community, popular, very energetic and thoroughly reliable. The company is one of the oldest and most successful in the country, and has no reason why it should not continue to be a large business with such a five agent. We understand that Mr. Henderson's acceptance of this agency does not in any way interfere with his connection with the British Empire Mutual Life. We extend our congratulations to Mr. Henderson.

Mr. F. J. White, Toronto, Inspector of Separate Schools, is in town. He will remain here engaged in his official duties for two days.

Mr. J. F. Holden, formerly chief clerk in Mr. Geo. A. Owa's fire insurance department, is at present at home in Napawan. He will shortly go to Toronto to assume a responsible railway charge.

W. C. T. U.
A regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Young Men's Christian Association rooms on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Fitzgerald, President, presiding. The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read and received. A communication from Mrs. Chisholm, Provincial President, was read, stating that a fire in the office in which the journals were printed accounted for the lateness of the May number. A letter was also read from Miss Bowles, the organizer of the Province. It opened with words of encouragement, made enquiries as to the progress of the Union, and urged them to affiliate with the Provincial Union. She expressed the belief that the House of Commons would not concur in the Scotch wine and beer amendment to the Scott Act, but said that if it did they would strike immediately for prohibition. A blank report, to be filled and returned, was received from the Provincial Corresponding Secretary. One new member was reported by the committee. There was a discussion on the subject of literature. It was decided to have an entertainment at each regular meeting, and four ladies were appointed to prepare entertainment for the next meeting. These meetings are open to all, whether members or not, and all are invited to attend. The next meeting will be held on the afternoon of June 10th.

The Bike.
Mr. J. McNamara has purchased, through Mr. O'Brien, formerly of this town, a handsome Columbia bicycle. It is a nickel plated beauty, and cost the round little sum of $125.

A March Out.
The Peterborough and Ashburnham companies of the 57th Battalion will have a march out this evening, and will go through the skirminish drill, using blank cartridges. Ludgate's bill will probably be the scene of the skirminish.

The Weather.
The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

Thermometer. Barometer.
9 o'clock 57 29.15
1 o'clock 71 29.17
3 o'clock 75 29.17

Blindfold.
The Lansdowne rink, Charlotte Street, was well attended last night. The Fire Brigade Band furnished the music in their usual well known excellent style.

Painful Accident.
On Sunday, while the wife of Mr. Michael Collins, of Ennismore, was driving home from Church, the horse became frightened and ran violently along the road. The buggy was overturned and Mrs. Collins was thrown out. No bones were broken, but the shock to the system was so severe that it is doubtful if she will recover.

The Home Physician.
We are pleased to notice that Mr. John Morrison, of Lindsay, who, as we mentioned a few weeks ago, was about to commence a canvass of this town for the sale of a new medical work called "The Practical Home Physician," is meeting with great success, the value of the book being undoubted and very generally recognized.

Forgery Frauds.
Mr. George Johnston, Chief of Police, has received a notice from the Dominion Detective Agency which reads thus:—"Information wanted regarding W. H. Hall, alias Al. Wilson, and his pal, Robert Fox, arrested May 19th, 1885, charged by the Bank of British North America, with attempting to pass forged letters of credit of the National Bank of Scotland." Accompanying the notice are wood cuts of each and a description of them.

Improved.
Mr. George Stethem has lately improved the appearance of the front of his hardware establishment by having placed across the plate glass windows the words "George Stethem, Hardware," written in white glass Roman letters, with amber edging, imported from Burton, England. The letters are neat, attractive and add very much to the general appearance of the place. Mr. Stethem is agent here for Elliott & Son's white enamel block, Roman and ornamental lettering.

Conference Notes.
The Rev. I. Tovell is one of the Stationing Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference, which is now being held in Port Hope. The Revs. T. Manning and I. Tovell are billeted at the residence of Mr. George Michel, King Street.

June Fair.
To day being the regular June Fair Day the manufacturers of reapers, etc., were well represented on the market. Mr. P. Hamilton's new self binding reaper made its first appearance. Mr. Hamilton has manufactured 35 of them as a sample, but still is quite sanguine of the success of the machine. The Dundas Cord Binder, the Toronto Binder, the Minnesota Chief, the Sylvester Harvester and the Deering Binder, were all capably shown.

All Accepted.
In accordance with the agreement entered into by the cheese makers at the last fair with Mr. C. E. Bartlett, buyer for Messrs. Kirkpatrick & Cookson, Montreal, quite a large number of waggons laden with cheese made their appearance in town to-day. The cheese was bought subject to inspection, but we are pleased to say that all was taken. Mr. Bartlett made the Oriental Hotel his headquarters while here, and there the cheesemakers assembled for the settlement of the financial part of the transaction. In all there were about 400 boxes delivered.

Geological Survey.
Mr. E. C. Cret, Geologist and Mineralogist, and Mr. Vanstele, topographical, two of the officers of the Geological Survey, are in town. They are preparing to commence operations near the country of Peterborough and Victoria, being the western extension of the work done under Mr. Cret last year in the county of Hastings and in East Peterborough. Their first work will be to trace out the boundaries of the geological formations bordering on the chain of waters forming the Trent Valley navigation. The lakes will all be carefully plotted down, wherever a detailed survey has not yet been made. Special attention will be given to the mineral belts. Mr. Cret is not only entrusted by the Department with the execution of this important survey, but we have heard him spoken of very highly by practical and scientific mining experts who have had opportunities of judging of his proficiency. This survey should assist in the development of the rich mineral resources of this part of the country.

POLICE COURT.

NON-SUPPORT.
TUESDAY, JUNE 2.—It seems that the Shuter family are again in trouble. Mary Shuter had her husband up this morning on the same old charge of non-support. Mary Jane, the daughter, was sworn and in her evidence stated that her father could do anything, from cleaning a watch to dexterously wielding the carpenter's plane and chisel. Her father, she said, did not support the family but was quite able to do so. Her mother, two sisters and little brother were dependent on her for subsistence. But there was another side to the story. On being questioned by the defendant she acknowledged that her mother refused to let her go to a respectable house as servant girl, she had refused to do her father's washing, he did it himself, his meals were never prepared for him, etc., etc. The case stands over until to-morrow.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1885.

A GENERAL OUTLINE

Of Business Done by the Recent Council of War of the Saved Army.

On Monday, May 18th, the Executive Council of the Saved Army met in the Water Street barracks. This Executive is composed of four delegates from each of the three divisions. Important changes were made in the working of the Army in this meeting and the following general council of war. The first day was spent in laying out a programme for procedure the next day.

On Tuesday forenoon reports were received from the General of the Army, Major Moore, and from the divisional captains.

On Tuesday afternoon the delegates were engaged in settling up the business of the united council of war and making arrangements for the working of the Executive in future, defining its power and duties.

On Tuesday afternoon the executive adjourned and the united council of war, which is composed of representatives from each of the Eastern, Central and Western Divisions, took up the work. Reports of the different stations, on the whole satisfactory, came in. A number of resolutions regarding the working of the Army were passed, and the different committees reported. Application from the Benevolent Association of Jews for amalgamation with the Army was received. A committee was appointed to investigate and found that there was a clause in their incorporation, which stated that in the event of amalgamation with any other body the controlling power was to be retained by them. The committee reported that it was not advisable, and the matter was dropped. A resolution was passed authorizing the incorporation of the Army at once.

On Friday the executive sat again, when the officers were elected. It is a fact worthy of notice that it is the delegates in executive assembled who elect the officers of the Army. The officers were: General Lindsay, re-elected; Major Moore, re-elected; Staff Captain, Capt. Wyatt; Western Divisional Officer, Capt. Lathwell; Central Divisional Officer, Capt. Munt; Eastern Divisional Officer, Capt. Stubb; Secretary-Treasurer, Joseph McClelland. The divisional officers submitted the names of the captains whose services they required, whose appointment was made by the executive.

Under the regulations the appointment of the subordinate officers will be made as follows:—The divisional officer will select his officers, and forward their names to the General, whose headquarters is in Peterborough, and who signs their commissions.

The present system also relieves the General from a large amount of work, and the Army from a large amount of travelling expense.

The divisional officers are now in full charge of their respective divisions; they visit the stations, examine the accounts, etc. The General will now be more at leisure to look after the general working of the Army from all standpoints.

The election of divisional officers will necessitate changes to be made in several of the by-laws, which is accordingly now being done.

The Executive Council will henceforth transact all the business affairs of the Army, and will sit in Peterborough regularly.

It is calculated that the establishment of the headquarters at Peterborough will bring a revenue of $6,000 or $7,000 into the town, for supplies for the Army.

The Weather.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

Thermometer. Barometer.

9 o'clock 62 30.30

1 o'clock 60 30.23

3 o'clock 70 30.22

The Firemen.

A regular meeting of the Fire Brigade was held on Tuesday evening. During the course of the evening's business a deputation from the Amateur Athletic Association waited on the meeting and addressed it on the subject of the two organizations taking hold of some sporting events to be held on July 1st. The firemen have not yet given any definite answer.

Hand some Oil Painting.
There is now on view in the south window of Mr. A. McNeil's Tailoring and Gent's Furnishing Establishment, George street, a handsome oil painting executed by a fair artist in Dunmore. The subject is a camping scene on Stony Lake, with the members of the Syndicate camp as occupants. No doubt many who have camped on Stony Lake, will recognize the scene as being Boshink Narrows. The blending of colours is perfect. The tents and camping paraphernalia, such as tables, flags, cooking apparatus, &c., are quite a study. The members of the camp are taken in full life size, the most striking likeness being the special captain of the camp, Mr. Alex. Stewart. Altogether the painting reflects great credit on the artist, Mrs. Harriet Clague, of Dunmore.

The Attraction of the Week.
The attraction for this week is the concert by the Mandelachon Quintette Club, of Boston. We are pleased to know that the interest already taken in this concert promises a large house. This will be encouraging to the performers to do their best. Herr Giese, the violinist of the organization, is spoken of as the finest performer on the cello in America. A further attraction will be Madame Cora Giese, who makes her first appearance here. The seats are selling fast and all who propose to listen to an unusually good concert should mark off their seats at McClelland's jewellery store. The concert will be given on Friday evening, June 5.

"Bought on Kiss."

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

FIGHTING IN THE SOUDAN.

CAIRO, June 2.—Yesterday hostile Arabs attempted to wreck the Suakin Berber railway. They were dispersed by a force of tribal police. A party of Osman Digna's men at Adia. A fight ensued. Twenty hostile Arabs were killed and a number taken prisoner. A hundred and fifty of their camels and 1,000 sheep were captured.

AN INCENDIARY'S FATE.

VIENNA, June 2.—A village in Northern Hungary containing 400 houses was recently destroyed by an incendiary fire and 1000 persons rendered homeless and destitute. The enraged populace discovered the culprit and roasted him to death over a bonfire.

RUSSIAN'S DOINGS.

LONDON, June 2.—Thousands of Russian troops are being forwarded to hasten the completion of the Central Asian railway. The St. Petersburg Viedomosti wants Russia to insist that a limit be put upon Afghan armaments supplied by means of English money. It urges that a strong Russian fortress be built opposite Herat. A Persian paper states that Russia is negotiating with Bokhara for the cession to the former of all the towns on the left bank of the Amu Daria.

ANTI JEWISH RIOTS.

VIENNA, June 2.—The anti-Jewish riots were renewed yesterday with increased violence. The inciting cause is the excitement of the people growing out of the elections for the Reichsrath. The Carmelite platz was filled with a howling mob, and free fights were frequent. The shops of the Jews were raided and ruined and their owners violently assaulted. Many arrests have been made, but the police were unable to suppress the rioters, and called for the military. Similar riots have been carried on in the Weeden and Neubau districts. The entire police force is there patrolling the streets and preventing the gathering crowds.

ACCIDENTS AT THE FUNERAL.

PARIS, June 2.—While the funeral procession of Victor Hugo was moving toward the Pantheon yesterday the scaffolding on the Place Cligny collapsed. Many persons were injured. The fall caused a great panic and confusion, but the procession soon reformed. Another platform fell on the Rue Royale. A disturbance occurred early this morning in the Champs Elysees.

KEEP THEM APART.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 2.—Sir Peter Lumsden is much disappointed at the course taken by Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet. He says Russia is now able through the possession of the Fendek district to provoke fresh complications whenever it suits her policy to war England. Sir Peter also said that the present semi-neutral state of affairs between England and Russia may exist for weeks and perhaps for months, but the two powers are certain to again become embroiled before long. The old frontier line, which intersects 80 miles of desert between the disputants, is the best that can be decided upon.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

LONDON, June 2.—A portion of the official papers relating to the attack by the Russians on the Afghans on March 30th has been published. They show that on March 29th Gen. Lumsden telegraphed his Government that the Russians were moving heaven and earth to get the Afghans to fight, and that fighting was certain. On April 2nd he repeated his statement that an attack by Komaroff was deliberately planned. The subject of arbitration was first proposed by Lord Granville. De Giers demurred, saying that the two powers were certain to again become embroiled before long. The old frontier line, which intersects 80 miles of desert between the disputants, is the best that can be decided upon.

EMPEROR AND CZAR.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 2.—Prince Dolgorouki attached to the Russian Embassy at Berlin, has arrived here, bearing a letter from the Emperor William to the Czar.

AT SUAKIM.

SUAKIM, June 2.—The Italian consul has hoisted his flag, as he is the first consul that has been appointed. The circumstance causes much remark.

THE KAISER.

BERLIN, June 2.—There are conflicting reports regarding the health of the Emperor. The Court circular continues silent on the subject. The German and other newspapers say a fresh coup of the Emperor in bed all of Saturday and that three doctors were in the palace one day and night long lately.

THE BEER TAX.

LONDON, June 2.—A mass meeting was held in Her Majesty's theatre this afternoon to protest against the budget proposal to increase the tax on beer and spirits. Resolutions were adopted denouncing "The one-sided scheme of Mr. Childers, chancellor of the exchequer, to violate every principle of equity and justice by the imposition of a tax on the necessities of the people, and the expenditure of a foreign war." Several persons who attempted to move amendments to the resolution were summarily ejected.

A HAPPY FAMILY.

LONDON, June 2.—A complete reconciliation has been effected among the ministers regarding the Irish crime act. The cabinet will hold a meeting on Thursday.

POLICE COURT.

D. AND D.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3.—James Graham, a stalwart and good looking young man, was up this morning charged by Chief Johnston with having been drunk and disorderly. He wasn't sure of being guilty of the charge preferred, so the Chief was called on to prove it. He was found guilty and paid for his little sport by contributing $2 to the town officers.

THE SHUTTER CASE.

The Shutter non-support case next came up. Several witnesses were examined. After hearing all the evidence, the Magistrate said that he had come to the conclusion that the Shutter family were lazy all round. The wife and daughter were proud and lazy, and the husband was lazy, but perhaps not so proud. But the husband ought to do his duty. He was able to do light work, and if he had tried to get it he would easily have obtained a job. The treatment was bad on both sides, and he did not think that the prerogative of this Court could be stretched sufficiently to send this man to goal, after taking everything into consideration. He would first have to be satisfied that the defendant refused to support his family; and next that the family were unable to support themselves.

In his opinion the family were able to support themselves, and even if the defendant were sent to goal, that would not procure bread for the family. If he could do anything to further more amicable domestic relations he would be happy to do it, but if he sent this man to goal for three months, at the expiration of the term he did not think that the good feeling between husband and wife would be any way increased. On the evidence submitted he could not find the defendant guilty.

When the Magistrate finished giving judgment, Shutter commenced to clamour loudly as to how he had done his best to support his family, and such like, and he was willing to go to goal for any length of time if necessary.

The Court warned him that if ever he appeared on a similar charge he would be sent to goal, and he was dismissed.

NORTHWEST REBELLION.

THE SUPPLIES FOR THE MIDLAND BATTALION REACH CLARKES CROSSING.

The Peterborough Company Ready to Start for Battleford.—The Wires Down North of Humboldt.—Volunteers Enlisting.

HUMBOLDT, N. W. T., June 2.—The wires north of here are down. There has been no communication with Battleford since last night. General Strange probably arrived at Fort Pitt early on Monday morning, while the troops who took the southern trail would get there early this morning. If Big Bear stood his ground a fight must have taken place to-day.

THE PETERBOROUGH COMPANY.

CLARK'S CROSSING, N. W. T., June 2.—One thousand and one boxes of volunteer comforts for the Grenadiers as well as the Midland volunteers' comforts have arrived en route from the east. The Grenadiers will have three boxes apiece. The Midland Companies here are just crossing the river ready to march to Battleford on the arrival of the transport under Col. Duncan.

A MEMORIAL STATUE.

WINNIPEG, June 2.—The Volunteer Memorial Committee have decided to call for tenders for the erection of a monument for the dead volunteers at a cost of $5,000. It is proposed to place a memorial statue in the square in front of the new city hall. The names of the dead are to be inscribed thereon. Suitable designs for the proposed monument are now being asked for by the committee.

THE CALL FOR VOLUNTEERS.

In answer to General Middleton's call for enlistment of recruits for the North West force 37 members of the Governor-General's Body Guards, now stationed at Humboldt, have offered their services. Twenty-two recruits have volunteered from Lieut. Col. Turnbull's Quebec School of Cavalry. The alacrity with which recruits are enlisting shows that no difficulty will be found in securing the requisite number of volunteers.

CATTLE BOB BATTLEFORD.

One hundred and sixty head of cattle were shipped on Saturday by Mr. Patrick Gallagher from Moose Jaw, for the volunteers at Battleford. Mr. Gallagher has about 250 head at the latter point, which will be sent forward as required.

Twenty-Two Miners Supposed to have been Killed in England.

LONDON, June 8.—A fire broke out in the Phila Colliery, near Durham, to-day. Three hundred miners are in the pit. All attempts to subdue the flames or render the miners safe have failed. Great excitement exists, and is feared the majority will perish.

Later despatches say that all but 22 miners have been rescued. The 22 missing are supposed to have been killed. The fire was caused by an explosion of fire damp.

A TERRIBLE STORM.

CHICAGO, ILL., June 2.—A heavy storm of thunder and lightning, wind and rain struck the city this afternoon, lasting nearly an hour. Numerous buildings in the outskirts were struck and several demolished. John Montague, a watchman for the McCormick reaper works, stand-

SECRET

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

ITS OPINION CHANGING.

The Globe is growing decidedly impatient. It says: "The hopes of an active spring trade and of a general revival of business have not been realized. The Globe has been disappointed. It is not calculated to restore confidence or revive trade." Our opinion, we would add, is that the Globe is not calculated to restore confidence or revive trade. It is not calculated to restore confidence or revive trade. It is not calculated to restore confidence or revive trade.

LOOK OUT FOR HIM.

It is well that Canadians should carefully watch the proceedings of Sir R. Cartwright. That gentleman proposes to deliver another speech so soon as opposition to the Canada bill will be his best bet to injure the credit of Canada. We are justified in assuming that he will take the line he had taken in his speech in the House of Commons a few days ago when he was ruled out of order. In these and other public addresses Sir Richard said everything he possibly could say to the disadvantage of Canada's position. His statements were all unfair; many of them positively untrue. His arguments were the arguments of an enemy of Canada. If a foreigner desired to injure this country—desire to wholly prevent our Finance Minister from making a loan in London, or to cause him to get poor terms in making that loan, he could not have been more openly hostile, more reckless in his statements or more unfair in his arguments.

HEADS UP!

It is one that the first serious reverse has knocked the bottom out of Riel's rebellion, which at first promised to develop into formidable proportions. This result of the Canadian Government's policy in the eyes of the world. The fact which the Canadian troops have performed is one of which the army of any power on earth might be proud. The Canadian troops, gathered from the shores and off-shore and from the British world have been compelled to cover between Platin and Herat. They have met and conquered an armer and better armed than the Afghans and Turanians. In a great battle in the cap of our neighbor, and may indeed be called the "Battle of Blood" of the young nation which is growing up on our border, for it is the first war in which the Canadian Government has engaged. Canadians will hold their heads higher hereafter. —Detroit Evening News.

RIEL'S PROSECUTORS.

The Dominion Government, as stated in Saturday's Star, have retained as counsel against Riel, Messrs. Christopher Robinson, Q.C., and B. B. Oiler, Q.C. We do not think it is going too far to say that the Government could not have made a better selection. Mr. Robinson is a Conservative and Mr. Oiler a Liberal, but both are reputed to be the most fair-minded men as well as the most able lawyers. —Montreal Star (Indep.).

MICAWEER WEARIED.

A recent fact is that the opposition is stifling for want of a policy, like a man gasping for want of breath. If the Ottawa Free Press speaks truly, Mr. Blake blundered in the policy of merely waiting. —Toronto World (Indep.).

UNPATRIOTIC EFFORTS.

The appearance of a Canadian Minister in the money market of London to negotiate a loan, is always looked upon as a precious chance of getting in some patriotic opposition work. Sir Leonard Tilley has found it necessary to interview Mr. John Bull on this delicate subject again, and is now engaged in the task. The opportunity has of course been seized, and already expressions of opinion have been given. Finance Minister's work more difficult fallen in the Globe and other Opposition organs. —Toronto Grip (Reform).

AMONG PATAGONIANS.

Tales of Adventure That Read Like a Chapter from Capt. Marryat.

"I have had a pretty tough experience since I was last in this port," said Robert R. Jeffrey, first mate of the brig Charles Purves, which arrived from Cuba, to a Philadelphia Press reporter. "I have been fighting natives in Patagonia, and working silver mines illegally. I have been captured by an Argentine man-of-war, and set at liberty, all within the last two years. It happened in this way: About two years ago I was in New York, and met an old acquaintance, Capt. O'Brien. He told me he had just purchased the brig Eliza Thompson, and was going to Patagonia to work some silver mines he had discovered about a year before. He asked me to join him. I knew where the mines were located, and went into the scheme without much coaxing. He was then loading the brig with iron, consigned to parties in Rosario, Brazil. We left New York the next week, with a crew of seven men, for every one of whom we had rifles and a brace of revolvers with which to fight the natives. We reached Rosario without accident, and discharged our cargo. Five men were added to our crew at this port, and we started for the silver mines with a crew of twelve men, including, and mate. We reached the shores of Patagonia safely and ten of us, including the captain, started to work mines. They were found to be full of silver. The men went to work with a will, the rich lumps of ore seemed to inspire new life, all of us and we began to imagine ourselves millionaires. After we had been there about a week a band of natives discovered us one day and attacked us with poisoned arrows. Every man seized his rifle and we went into a volley into the savages, which killed two of their number and put the others to flight. From that time on there were skirmishes. Mingled with the silver we found a great quantity of nitre in the mines, and, after working them for about two months, we started for Montevideo with 200 tons of silver ore and 200 tons of nitre. The captain disposed of his cargo at his place and cleared $1,700 over all his expenses, including the cost of the brig.

"After lying in port for several weeks, and stocking the vessel with provisions, we started on a second expedition. In this we were not so fortunate. We had been at the mines only two days when a band of about thirty natives surprised us. Before we could reach our guns two of the sailors, a Dutchman and a Swede, both of whom had been shipped at Rosario, were pierced by the poisoned arrows. We had a sharp fight after that and killed a number of the natives before we could drive them off. We took our wounded men with us, and they died in a short time. The poison went all through them, and their remains swelled to five times their natural size. After that day we had a man on guard all the time, and we lost no more men in our fight. About three weeks after we had landed for our second cargo, an Argentine man-of-war was seen on our coast, and we took to our guns. We were then so close to the vessel that we were seen. Captain O'Brien received permission to visit the Argentine vessel, and through him he fired a shot, which was not seen at the Argentine vessel, which was the 18th of January last. The Argentine government, however, sold the brig and received $4,000 for her.

Capt. O'Brien afterwards learned that the numbering of balloons was not lawful, and that the only balloon that could be used was the one that he had at the bottom of the hope of throwing out the numbered balloons.

MINOTON, June 2.—Judge Price has fixed Monday, 15th as the date for the account in the Scott Act contest. In the argument before him in the Court House it was declared that the numbering of balloons was not lawful, and that the only balloon that could be used was the one that he had at the bottom of the hope of throwing out the numbered balloons.

CORKS.

Few persons have any conception of the important part which the cork plays in the commercial world.

Cork-tree forests abound in countries bordering on the Mediterranean, through the finest quality is found in the Spanish peninsula. There the cork-tree is cultivated especially for its bark, the gathering of which is an industry in which the whole communities are engaged. The bark is composed of two concentric layers. The interior is a fibrous tissue, called the mother or tannin, while the exterior is a spongy, elastic substance, the corkwood of commerce. The cork harvest occurs in summer, when the tree is in full sap. Circular cuts are made in the bark with a hatchet, while a vertical one is also made. The two edges are then rounded and the handle of the hatchet used to strip them down. A tree is not unharmed until it is 20 or 30 years old.

Corkwood, in its crude or uncut state, varies in value, according to its purity. This difference in price accompanies it through the various stages of manufacture, and classifies it for its multitudinous uses.

Machine-cut cork are of different grades, variety and price, and are devoted to all sorts of purposes. The finer quality are used for mineral waters, and other carbonated beverages, which are dependent upon the retention of the carbonic acid gas. The finest cork, which is almost free from the black and crumbly streaks found to a greater or less extent in all corkwood—is hand cut by experienced workmen, armed with razor-edged knives of peculiar shape. These are principally used in the bottling of champagne or other fermented wines, and command a high price.

Manufacturers of champagne, in addition to the labels which the place upon each bottle, have adopted a system of branding the cork with the makers' names. Of late there has sprung up a new industry, the buying of old corks, and for which high prices are in most instances paid. The object in the purchase of these corks is manifold. While a great portion of them are bought by the original owners of the cork as a matter of protection or for other purposes, the majority find their way into the hands of manufacturers of inferior goods.

In order to push their respective wares, the agents of the foreign houses have resorted to the device of buying back their corks. This serves as an incentive to dealers and to waiters to force upon customers brands of champagne in which they can make the greatest profit.

With this object in view other agents are employed, whose duty it is to visit all the leading hotels, restaurants and wine rooms in the country, and offer the wares or articles employed therein sums ranging from five cents to a dollar or more for every cork bearing their brand that is returned to them. With such an inducement it is not surprising that people will extol the wares of the highest bidder. —Bell's Gazette.

PRESERVATION OF OUR FORESTS.

There are reasons entirely independent of economic value which make the preservation of our forests a matter of prime importance, and would make their ruin a national calamity. It is not that they have much influence on the rainfall. Those who hold that they do so, mistake effect for cause. The rain produces the forest and not the forest the rain. A forest growth may not necessarily follow an adequate supply of moisture, but the supply of moisture is an indispensable condition of it. The utility of forests, aside from their marketable value, lies in their power, not to cause the rainfall, but to regulate its distribution. In this they are of incalculable benefit. When they cover the ground about the sources of great rivers and the tributaries, the porous soil, the mosses and its accumulation of fallen leaves, acts as a vast sponge to retain and slowly deliver the water that falls from the clouds in the form of rain or snow. When the sheltering trees are destroyed and the ground is laid bare, all the water runs off at once; the brooks that had before flowed continuously and with comparative regularity become roaring torrents in spring and dry channels in summer, while the rivers that depend on these sources of supply swell into freshets at one season and shrink into insignificance at another.

The recent destructive floods in the north of Italy, and notably along the river Po, with all the misery they have brought, are ascribed, and doubt with truth, to the partial denudation of the mountainous country about the sources of streams. The arid and comparatively valueless condition of certain parts of Spain is due to similar causes. It is for us to see, while there is yet time, that similar evils do not fall upon us. That wonderful region of the West known as the Great Divide, gives birth to the Missouri, the Yellowstone, the Columbia, the Colorado, and the North Fork of the Platte. The preservation of its sheltering forests is of vital interest to all the regions watered by these rivers. The same is true, in a different degree, of the sources of many lesser streams within our national territory. Sometimes, as in the case of the Hudson, the sources of the river and its whole course lie within the limits of one State, and the local government is therefore master of the situation. If New York should permit the Adirondack forests to be destroyed, she and the States which are answerable for the consequences. But, in most cases, our great rivers rise in one or more States or Territories, to flow through or by the domain of others on their way to the sea. Here the State authorities are powerless, and if the remedy is to be applied at all, it must be applied by the Federal Government. Momentous interests are at stake, and the welfare of the whole nation demands careful consideration. —Francis Parkman in June Atlantic.

"Down With the Dust"

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hammermen's Association. He happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer asked to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was not a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely, and was passing out of the door, when the Smith in presump-tuous tones, remarked him. Re-entering the Smithy he handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to do with these?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail 'em there and pay me expenses."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S, on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1886.

LATEST LOCAL NEWS.

No Name. We have received a letter from "Ratepayer" in reference to loading in the north ward, but as no name accompanies it, we cannot give it publicity, in accordance with the well-known rule.

Coolness Persevered. A short time ago some cool headed individual entered the porch of a resident on one of our principal streets, and took a plant, pot and all, leaving as payment a small sum of money and a lot of dirty foot prints. The money left was not quarter the value of the plant taken.

Almost a Runaway. On Wednesday afternoon one of Mr. Calcutt's delivery wagons was being driven along London street. The horses became frightened at some object, reared to one side and precipitated one of the occupants to the ground. The team lunged forward, but the wagon colliding with a tree they were stopped. The injuries were slight.

They Came. Once more joyous June has come and with it the usual quota of the real sinners pure river drives. Yesterday evening a squad of these sturdy artists of the pile came down George street arrayed in fantastic straw, red shirts, and regulation suit caps. They seemed to have caught the military spirit of the day (perhaps they saw the march out) for they marched in double file and soldierly bearing straight through crowd or space, followed by curious looks of the bystanders.

To be Thrown Open. The Directors of the Driving Park Association have decided to throw the park open to the public on Monday evening. The track will be in the best condition, and those who have not had an opportunity of visiting the park as yet may take carriage or buggy and drive over what is considered by those who know all about it to be one of the finest courses in Canada. The members of the Lacrosse Club will muster in full force and a scratch match will be played. Everybody is invited by the Directors to pay a visit to the park. The grand stand will be reserved for spectators and no admission whatever will be charged.

Altering Their Places. Complaints come from the north ward to the effect that several owners of flyers are in the habit of indulging in an evening brush on George street, from London street north, to the peril of those crossing the street. It is not many months since P. C. Adams brought several such offenders before the bench who exercised their fast horses in the same locality. It is just possible that His Worship will not be quite so lenient if a second batch be brought before him. Boys, if you want to compare the rate of speed of your respective peers, proceed methodically! Pay your fee and be entitled to all the advantages which the Driving Park affords.

A Decided Improvement. The cutting away of the poplar trees at the lower end of the Court House Park and the removal of the band stand farther north is commended by all to be a decided improvement. A much better view of the Court House is now to be obtained, and even the park itself is more prominent. The large fountain to be placed in the grounds was shipped for Peterborough to-day by Messrs. Ormiston Bros., of Hamilton. It is made of cast iron, suitably figured, and weighs 3,000 pounds. Those who have seen fountains of the same pattern and make may say that the action is very pretty. The fountain will be placed where the band stand formerly stood.

A Beautiful Hall. Court Peterborough, No. 30, Canadian Order of Foresters, can boast of having one of the finest halls in the Province. We have referred to this hall before, but it seems that the members of the Court are not content to "let wall enough alone" in the matter of adornment, but on the other hand are constantly putting forth their efforts to improve the appearance of the hall and otherwise beautify it. The new painting that forms a pretty and striking background for the lawn that is placed in position directly over the chair of the Worthy Chief Ranger, is an excellent piece of work. The painting is a large one, being five by ten feet, and gives evidence of the painter's good taste and original ideas of a real forest scene. Standing at the proper distance and viewing the picture, one would almost think that the scene was real. A running brook, overhung by tall and leafy trees, near which stands a young fawn, with here and there large rocks, over which is a mossy covering, an occasional opening in the thicket, through which can be seen the rippling water, all go to make up a woodland picture that is as nearly natural as possible. The painting is the work of Mr. Watson. The citizens will have an opportunity of seeing the hall on Saturday evening, as it is the intention of the Court to throw it open to the public on that night, so that they may inspect it. All are cordially invited. The High Court of Foresters will meet in Peterborough on Tuesday next, and the members of Court Peterborough, No. 30, can well feel proud of their handsome hall on the occasion.

Ladies' and children's shoes in great variety at the Bon Marche at about half price.

Council Meeting. A regular meeting of the Town Council will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock.

The Little Beauty. Just see that "Little Beauty" increase stick at SALLSBURY'S—The boss stick. $2 each.

The Weather. The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—
Thermometer. Barometer.
9 o'clock 55 29.35
1 o'clock 80 29.32
3 o'clock 75 29.32

The Probabilities. The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Variable winds, partly cloudy weather with a few local showers or thunder storms, mostly in the southern portion.

On the Track. As the engine connected with the train to Lakeside was shunting some loaded box cars around in the Lakeside yard about two o'clock on Wednesday, two of them left the track, in consequence of a defective switch. The cars were overturned, but the damage was comparatively small.

Personal. The removal of Mr. William Ross from this town to Bagby necessitated the appointment of an agent in his place to represent the Confederation Life Association. A most satisfactory appointment has been made in the person of Mr. Alex. Elliott. Mr. Elliott has every facility and proper qualifications to attend to such an agency: a commodious office is a central place, a wide business connection, and a popularity among the general community.

Insurance. Mr. W. H. Hill's Insurance and War Agency, Water street, continues to meet with the favor of the public and receives a liberal patronage. The reason of this is that each department of the business is represented by the best companies. He is the representative of the well known and reliable Sun Life and Accident Company, and represents six first class fire insurance companies. He has recently been appointed agent and appraiser for the Canada Permanent Loan Company, and is prepared to transact and negotiate loans on the most favorable terms.

The Staff of Life. The Medical Health Officer, in company with P. C. Adams, made a tour of inspection on Wednesday to all of the bakeries and confectionery stores. The ingredient in baking that was more closely looked into than anything else was that of the water which was being used. The quality was found to be satisfactory; some used water works water, some spring water and others well water. Several of the bakers are beginning to bring the filter into use, which departure was highly recommended by the Medical Health Officer. The general condition of the bakeries and confectionery shops is clean, everyone seeming to be trying to comply with the requirements of the law. As everyone will at once see, the inspection of bakeries and confectionery shops is a very important thing, and the Medical Health Officer is determined that no impure material shall be sent out therefrom.

Boof on the Fly. Three dire disasters happened in the bovine community on Wednesday. Well on in the forenoon two cows stood on a crossing a few miles this side of Campbellford thoughtfully chewing their cud. So intense were their cogitations that they did not show the slightest intention of moving off when the morning train from Belleville hove in sight. In about two minutes time one was gracefully executing the "new jumped over the moon" movements, while the other was passing alive like through a neighboring wire fence. The third of the chapter of accidents occurred near Hilliard's junction shortly after twelve o'clock. The cow stood on the railway track whence all but she had fled, but flying hair and sliced up steak soon told that she was numbered among the deceased. She was cut in two just back of the fore legs, and it was some time before the mangled remains could be dragged out so as to allow the train to proceed.

Questions of the Hour. There is always burning questions of some nature to engage public attention, and for the time cause no end of surmises and prophecies. The question of how Riel will be disposed of is being pretty thoroughly sifted by the average Peterboroughian, and many are the ways and means devised and put forth for his speedy extermination from off the face of the earth. No doubt, if the unfortunate and misguided Rebel leader could only hear some of the ways advocated whereby he might be satisfactorily disposed of, he would acquiesce in his very boots. Another question engaging a good deal of the public mind is "when will the boys be home again?" Gen. Middleton has issued a call for volunteers to do service in the Northwest, and he is meeting with great success. Those who are there, as well as those at home, are expressing their willingness to go or remain, as the case may be. Another question, and one that is causing no end of editorial and local comments in the papers, is "where will the Midland Battalion be entertained on their arrival home?" Still another important question before the board is "How is it that a suit of clothes made up by A. McNeil, at Hamilton Hall, give more satisfaction?" The answer is, "Call on Mac and he will explain."

Art. Mr. T. Workman, portrait painter, has placed on exhibition in the windows of Mr. A. Clegg's Furniture Store, what most of those acquainted with his productions pronounce to be his two best efforts. The subjects are the two daughters of Mr. E. Nimmo, dentist, aged respectively 3 and 13 years, and each of the portraits are life size. The elder is dressed in a blue dress trimmed with lace, and wears blue stockings. The younger is dressed in a blue serge suit edged with embroidery. In both the artist seems to have caught a living likeness, every point showing a charming naturalness. The poses in each case is a study, and here it is perhaps that the artist has displayed his taste to the best advantage. The former sits modestly back, becoming a mix of twelve, while the plump little three-year-old looks out with a freedom that is at once winning and naive. A noticeable feature in the work is the absence of that floridly which marks and mars the paintings of so many artists. The figures stand out well from the background, and taken altogether they are works that exhibit an artistic taste, good judgment and a skilful hand. Perhaps the most flattering compliment which the artist has received lies in the fact that a continual knot of people stand near admiring the portraits. The price of the larger of the two is $150, and the smaller $100. They are somewhat in heavy six inch gold panel, high back frames, worth $30 each.

Complimentary to the Editor. The management of the Foresters Hall (Court Peterborough No. 29, C.O.F.) have kindly consented to have the Hall open for public inspection on Saturday evening June 6th between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. As this is one of the prettiest Hall's in Canada, no doubt many of the fair sex will avail themselves of the opportunity.

On Saturday Evening. Mr. A. P. Pousette has received a telegram from Mr. Hampshire, the newly appointed organist of St. John's church, stating that on account of temporary illness he will be unable to be here at the appointed time. He will arrive on Saturday and meet the choir at the church in the evening.

The Book Estate. A meeting of the creditors of the late W. A. Scott, was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday afternoon. There were about twenty-five creditors present. The business before the meeting was the appointment of an assignee in the place of Geo. Kempt, deceased. Mr. John Carnegie was appointed to wind up the affairs of the estate.

Journalistic. We have been shown by Mr. T. Huston a copy of the Sydney, Australia, Mail dated Saturday, 18th April, 1886. The Mail is a four column, forty-eight page paper, exceptionally neat in make up, and ranks among the leading colonial journals. This number contains a full and detailed account of the Haslam-Beach boat race and also an editorial on the same subject.

Te-Mooney's Night. It is just as well to remind all who contemplate being present at the Concert to be given by the Mendelssohn Quintette Club in Bradburn's Opera House to-morrow evening, and who have not yet procured tickets or secured seats, that the time is now short, and that neglect to arrange for seats may cause trouble or inconvenience to ladies on the night of the Concert.

Heavy Suits. Two important examinations took place before Mr. C. A. Waller, at his office, today. The examinations were in connection with two suits, Worts vs. Ross and Ross vs. Worts, arising out of an action taken some time ago by the Rosses against S. P. Wigs, by the Rosses. The examinations were conducted here under an order issued by the Supreme Court of Ontario County, New York State. Each suit involves a large amount of money and one connected mainly in lumber interests.

Court of Revision. The adjourned meeting of the Court of Revision was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening. All the members present. The assessment of the real estate on the corner of Park and Lake streets belonging to Mr. Henry Carveth was reduced from $3,000 to $2,400. The Gas Company was relieved of $2,000 income assessment, and $400 income assessment charged to Mr. Wm. Davidson was also struck off. Mr. John Burnham's appeal was withdrawn. The following assessments were confirmed:—M. D. Brown, D. Moore, H. T. Strickland, J. Godfrey, F. Sandy, G. A. Smith, Mrs. Murphy, and Mrs. C. J. Nicholls. The name of Wm. Charlton was substituted for that of G. A. Smith in the assessment of a house on Robbidge street.

Out For a Spin. The first run made by the bicycle club this year took place on Wednesday evening. Wheelmen Ames, McNamara, Billinger, Gibson, McClelland and Rice, headed by Capt. Lawford, took a run up as far as the Nassan mill, by way of Ashburnham and the river road. All went well until the return, which was made on the Peterborough side of the river. Coasting around the corner of Water and Brook streets one of the champions of the bike did not notice a cavity in the street, produced by a bursting water pipe. On he came, quite oblivious to his fate. The bike sank, and stopped short, but the bike didn't. He flew over and onward, and stumbled several yards before he could overcome his inertia. After relieving himself of the spontaneous overflow of wrath by passing a few remarks, he fished up the bike and proceeded down to the market square with the rest, where the final movements were gone through.

Chit-Chat. —Wet. —On account of the rain the regular rifle practice at the butts was postponed until next Thursday. —Staff Captain Wyatt addressed an open air meeting of the Saved Army last night. —The catnip he had been wrested from the small boy by the law's iron grip, but the love of propelling stones, &c., is not by any means gone. Several small boys cotterly amused themselves last night by piling houses at the north end of George street. —A few bicyclists intended accompanying the orchestra to Lakeside on Saturday. —There was a clean sheet at the Police Court this morning, and a clean, well ordered court room.

THE LATE JOHN A. HERLOCK.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The return home of the last of the Nile voyagers reminds us sadly of one who will not return, one whose above all others we would have been proud to welcome back. Unknown, as he was, to many of your readers before the expedition started, I feel safe in saying that there is not one of them who did not experience a feeling of sadness as for the loss of a friend, when the news came of his death in that far distant land. His letters published in your paper had made him well known to your readers, who could not but admire his ability and skill, both as a letter writer and as a business man. In the former respect everyone was taken by surprise and delighted with his graphic and vivid style of composition, which would have done credit to a veteran war correspondent. With regard to his skill, readiness of resource, daring and pluck as a boatman, while some instances are modestly referred to in his letters, the information received from other sources confirms the belief that the half was not told. Without expressing any opinion as to other means that may be taken to keep alive the memory of a young man of whom Peterborough may well be proud, I beg to suggest that as a fitting tribute to his worth, that his letters be collected and reprinted in a neat form, with a short sketch of his life. I am satisfied that such a memorial would be greatly appreciated by many of the friends who have learned to know and admire him through those letters. Yours, etc., A CANADIAN.

THE PARK STREET FLOTS.

"Down With the Dust"

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hamamman Incorporation. We happened to get a look at him when a customer entered to get a look at the Deacon's shop. He was in the middle of putting the look in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a looking matter, thanked the Smith very politely, and was passing out of the door, when the Smith in person, to my astonishment, turned round and said, "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to do with these Deacons?" "Why," replied the Deacon with much politeness, and pointing at the wall, "I'll tell you that and pay me expenses."

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S, on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

CALL AT

JAMES ALEXANDER'S.
Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.Message Lamps.

Sergeant Dixon has just received two more message lamps for the signal corps. The signal lamps are expected along shortly.

The Checkers.

Mr. G. H. Giroux has received a communication from the Secretary of the Beverton Checkers stating that they will be unable to play here on June 15th. The 23rd will, therefore, be the date of the match.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours, commencing from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh winds; cloudy and showery, followed by partially clearing weather.

Some Storms.

Some one fond of a joke changed the weather bulletin in the Post Office this morning for an old one dated January 21st. Several who read "some storms turning to rain" on the bulletin, were startled to shiver, and one person standing by remarked that he guessed he would go up to his home and get his overcoat.

To be Rebuilt.

Mr. J. H. Brumwell, of Bridgton, informs us that he intends shortly to begin the rebuilding of his saw and shingle mill which was burnt some time ago. In addition to machinery suitable for the manufacture of lumber and shingles, he intends placing in his new mill complete attachments for making lath. The new mill will commence running on or about August 15th.

Journalists.

The Belleville Intelligencer says:—"Peterborough is well supplied with newspapers, there being at present no less than three daily journals in that enterprising town. These are, in order of seniority: The Review (Conservative), the Times (Independent Conservative), and the Examiner (Grit). The first issue of the latter appeared on Saturday last, and is a creditable production. The Review is very much the best of the three, and is prospering, whilst the other two will have a hard struggle, as it hardly seems possible that so small a place can support three daily papers."

Drilling the Boys.

The two school squads, under the training of Mr. R. B. Edwards, are making very satisfactory progress in executing military movements. Each Tuesday and Friday morning the Collegiate Institute squad is trained from half past eight to nine, and that from the Central School from nine to half past nine. There are about forty in the former and about forty-five in the latter. On some occasions Lieut. Desautels enters in the drill, at which time the two squads are thrown into one and the regular battalion drill is gone through. The boys all march creditably, and are arriving at a high degree of efficiency in executing the various movements.

The Cretes and Independents.

There seems to be considerable contention between the Cretes and Independent junior lacrosse clubs as to the cup presented for competition by Mr. W. A. Sanderson. The conditions of ownership were to be the holding of the cup for one season. The Cretes first won it and held it until near the close of the season, when they were defeated by the Independents, who now hold it. The Cretes want the cup again for competition, but there has been no effort on the part of the latter towards returning it. Mr. Sanderson says that there was so much squabbling among the boys last year that he has decided to allow those who now hold it to retain it altogether.

Bowling Street.

The appearance of the above named street from Brock to Hunter streets has been greatly improved this spring. During last summer to very handsome residences were built in this locality. The occupants of these houses have had no means of reaching their houses during the past spring from either Brock or Hunter streets except through mud and mud, but now the case is different. A new sidewalk has been laid along the west side the full length of the block. In addition to a new sidewalk a row of young maple trees has been planted on each side, and in a few years this promise to be one of the most pleasant parts of the town. During the summer the street will be graded and watered.

Young People's Association.

The regular weekly meeting of the Young People's Association of the Baptist Church, Manning street, was held in the school room of the church on Friday evening. A vocal solo by Miss V. Mann was the first on the programme. The Rev. A. H. Mann then spoke on "Church Work," which subject he handled in a very interesting way. Miss E. Mann and Mr. Brown, of the Edwards home, sang a duet. A solo by Mr. G. Matthews followed and a reading by Miss Nicholls was then given. The entertainment was closed by the reading of an essay on "Sunday Schools" by Mr. John Minor. These weekly entertainments are becoming more and more popular. From the present interest evinced in them they promise long to continue.

Ladies' and children's Fine Boots is great variety at the Bon Marche at about half price.

Personal.
The Rev. Alex. Bell, of St. Andrew's church, and the Rev. E. F. Torrance, M. A., of St. Paul's church, are expected to be present at the services in connection with the ordination and induction of the Rev. John McKay, B. D., at Campbellford, on Tuesday next.

Chamberlain's Bedegs.
Since Mr. Jas. Dolan, who is familiarly called "Mull," has taken charge of the above popular Restaurant and Bodega, things are fairly booming. "Jim" has a happy knack of making a friend of everyone, and his genial smile is a sure indication, even to a perfect stranger, that he is the real "Simon pure" to cater to the wants of the customers.

Fighting Females.
Several females engaged in a pugilistic encounter on Charlotte street, on Thursday evening, about half way between George and Aymer streets. A crowd soon gathered and watched with interest which way the battle would turn. It appeared from the broken sentences, ornamented by profuse exclamations, which escaped from the contestants between rounds, that there had been some disagreement in the boarding house and this means of settling the dispute was adopted.

The Same Attraction.
A young man who is learning to cut the "infinite edge," and do the "diamond gravers," and perform other feats on the rollers, after the Lane-downe rink closed on Thursday night, thus spoke to his sweetheart:—"You've come from the rink," said the maiden fair. To the youth that was on her waiting; "I pray tell me what the attraction there To-night—is it fancy skating?"

He rubbed his spine, and his face betrayed His bosom's agitation; "The same old attraction is there," he said, "The attraction of gravitation."

Doing Their Duty.

Up to date the Sanitary Inspectors have done their duties effectually without having to bring one offender before the Police Court. So well have they got along that a meeting of the Board of Health was not deemed necessary. There is one place in town though that bothers them. There is a lane running across the block from Hunter street to Simcoe, about thirty yards east of water street. The property owners along this lane say that it is a public street and the Town Council say it is not a public street. One thing is certain; it is a public nuisance, and all sorts of refuse is deposited there, and the Inspectors would like to know who they are to proceed against.

Chit-Chat.

—Mendelssohn concert to night at Bradburn's Opera House.

—The Salvation Army is now led by a standard bearer.

—A new sidewalk is to be built on Mill street, from the end of the present one to London street—a long needed improvement.

—Janitor Tighe, of the Collegiate Institute, is keeping a sharp lookout for missile propellers.

He laid his heavy hand on a small boy, who indulged in making the windows of the Institute a target, and lodged him in the cooler.

—Everybody smiles as they pass the novel billboard next to Van Every & Co's. The Mendelssohn Concert is being well advertised.

—The east side of Water street, between Brock and McDonnell streets, is to be boulevarded, the Council supplying the necessary plank.

—Would it not be wise for the Council to extend their liberality in this line to all property owners?

We Was Pleased.

Not long ago a strong and healthy tiller of the soil paid a visit to Peterborough for the first time in many months. He naturally enough felt greatly surprised at the rapid progress that had been made on every hand, and to use his own words, "never saw the like of it." After walking around the principal business portions of the town, and stopping at almost every store on George street, he slowly wended his way towards a certain gentleman's furnishing establishment, and when he took a look in at the door, a broad grin fitted across his face, and with a "How are ye, Mac?" proceeded to enter. The proprietor, after gazing at the rural visitor for a few seconds, recognised him. "I am glad to see you, John; how is your family getting along?" "Eh, mon," replied the Scot, "they're at a swell that their less room for complaint." After a short conversation concerning the crops and other matters, the visitor suddenly exclaimed, "Look ye here, Mac, I have travelled at the very fast pace to get ye to make me a pair o' breeks, the same as the last ones ye made. They're every bit as good now as when I got them from ye store, bairn! and mebbe 'n't in the leg o' one o' them." The proprietor soon took the measure and the Scot departed after telling him that he would call the following week for them, and bring down Jock and Willie, his "ain twa sons," and get them a pair also. A. McNEIL, Habillment Hall.

Miss Everett's Concert.

On Thursday evening Miss Minnie Everett, of this town, who is engaged in musical pursuits at Newwood, gave a very successful concert in the Music Hall at the latter place. The evening train on the Canadian Pacific Railway took down quite a number who proposed to be present at it, among whom were several whose names were down on the programme. Owing to the wet weather there was not the crowded house that there would otherwise have doubtless been, but those who were present were well repaid for having come out. The following long and well selected programme was fully carried out:—

By Special Request.
At the request of a large number of ladies Mr. E. Brown has consented to give a children's carnival in about two weeks. No doubt the children will hail the coming carnival with delight.

Insurance Notes.
Mr. A. Wilson has removed his office to over Mr. T. Kelly's dry goods store.

It was not to Barrie that Mr. William Ross, agent of the Confederated Life Association, was removed, but to Toronto.

Mr. Geo. Morrison has received another batch of his court plaster envelopes. Foot-balls, cricketers and lacrosse players look on him as a benefactor.

Policy holders in the Phoenix Fire Insurance Company will be interested in Mr. E. E. Henderson's card which appears in another column.

Reminiscence day.
The Sons of England excursion which is to be run to Peterborough is under the auspices of the twelve Sons of England lodges of the city of Toronto. Mr. W. Brundrett, President of the Landowne lodge here, has received a communication from Mr. T. Cannon, secretary of the committee of the united lodges, saying that it is their intention to invite all the Sons of England lodges throughout eastern Ontario to meet in Peterborough on July 1st. It is estimated that about two thousand excursionists will leave Toronto alone, and there will probably be more than three thousand members of the Sons of England organization here on that day. The general committee are gratified to learn that such interest is being taken in them by the people of Peterborough.

Masonic Excursion.
The excursion of the Masonic Fraternity from Peterborough and neighbourhood to Toronto on St. John's day, June 24th, promises to be a great success. The special occasion is the laying of the corner stone of the new Masonic Hall in the capital of our Province, a matter of great interest to all of the craft. Arrangements have been made with the Grand Trunk Railway Company for a special train at convenient hours, and there will also be very low rates. In fact those members of the fraternity (and their wives) who have not yet visited Toronto could not have a better opportunity of seeing it and carrying out any other objects, after the special business of the day is over. Full particulars may be seen in the posters which will appear to-morrow. Already many of the craft and their friends have arranged to join the excursion not only from the town of Peterborough, but also from Norwood, Kenna, Lakeside, Mulbrook, Omemee, Lindsay and other places in this district. It promises to be the excursion of the season.

THE INDIAN VOTE.

The London Advertiser, in the following editorial paragraph, virtually gives up the case of those who like Mr. Mills, Mr. Patterson and others, fulminate against the granting of tribal Indians of the right to vote. Our contemporary says:—

"The Peterborough Review is characteristically Tory when it cites Dr. Oronohy as an Indian when the Reformers wish to deprive of the power of voting. The doctor may be a tribal Indian technically; we believe he is. But he is not a tribal Indian in his mode of life. He does not live on the reserve, but on one of the most thickly populated residential streets of this city. He is an educated man, following a learned profession, and there is no reason whatever why he should not be allowed to participate in all the rights and privileges of citizenship. No Reformer will object to Dr. Oronohy voting because he is an Indian, strong Tory though he be."

If Dr. Oronohy is to be permitted to vote, where is the line to be drawn? Is Dr. Jones (Head Chief Kahkewaqua) to be excluded? Is a reverend gentleman, with whom we have lately had a conversation, to be denied a vote because he is a tribal Indian? Are the other professional men, the other gentlemen in clerical orders, to be similarly excluded? If there is to be an educational test these Indians surely cannot be excluded. If non-residence on a reserve is to be the test, why should a substantial farmer, or a well-to-do store keeper on such a reserve as that of the Six Nations Indians, be denied a vote, which would be given to some tribal Indian of less steady industry, who might have a dwelling or even wages outside his reserve. If, in short, Dr. Oronohy is to be within the line, where is the line to be drawn? It can only be fairly drawn where the Franchise Bill draws it, that is, that the Indians having the same qualifications as white voters should also have votes, and that those not so qualified should have none.

That the Indians of our western Provinces and Territories should be temporarily deprived of the privilege of voting, is a matter resting on quite different considerations. Expediency, which must have its weight in human affairs, may require, where the Indian population is so much larger than the white population, that they should not be allowed a controlling influence at the polls. When they are outnumbered, as they are in the older Provinces by the white men, and when they become more settled, there may no longer be any necessity for this exceptional treatment of them. Then the same qualification may prevail throughout the Dominion for the red man as for the white or black man.

To hear some Reformers talk one would suppose that the Indian is to be exceptionally privileged. Disfranchisement representations are made that the Indians of the plains, even the rebels in arms, were to be allowed votes. It is even falsely asserted that Sir John Macdonald said that Poundmaker and his followers were to be enfranchised. He said no such thing, but in response to some foolish questions, explained that they were to come under the common rule for all Indians, that they would have votes if possessed of the same qualifications as white voters. Since then the policy has been adopted of only enfranchising the Indians of old Canada and the Maritime Provinces.

As to the objections that the Indians are annuitants and are under the control of the Dominion authorities, they need have very little weight. Their annuities are payments of money due to them and should no more disqualify them than the payment of rent to the owner of a building used as government offices. And as to the control, it is certainly no greater than that of a manufacturer over his employees in a large factory, and such influence the ballot is especially designed to check.

The Advertiser, in its talk about "Tories," betrays the reason of the antipathy to the Indian vote felt by Messrs. Mills, Patterson and other obstructionists. They know the rebellious and ignorant unsettled Indians of the plains are not to have votes and are very little better than they have not, though pretending to rage about it. But they have a mortal dread that the loyal, industrious, educated Indians of the Six Nations will vote Conservative. That is their grief.

Dr. Oronohy is obtaining the withdrawal of the objections against himself has in fact gained an important point for the race of which he is an ornament.

This London Post again refers to the proposed reception for the Midland Battalion on its return, and says:—

"The Daily Review has a capital article in favour of the suggestion, namely, 'Peterborough as the place for the demonstration. Our impression is that Port Hope is more central and convenient for all the companies, but there will be no difficulty on that score."

That is the proper spirit in which to discuss the question of where the celebration will be held, and we agree with the Post that there will be no difficulty on that score. The most important matter is for the military officers of the district to take hold and make the necessary arrangements. Let the most central place be chosen (our impression still is that it should be either Peterborough or Port Hope) and the people will not hold aloof on account of any sectional jealousy, whatever place may be selected. The expedition against Big Bear makes the return of the battalion more distant than was expected, yet no time should be lost in commencing the preparations.

It is surprising that even the Globe should pass such a sentence as the following:—

"Riel was once a member and sold out to Sir George Cartier."

The Globe well knows that it is uttering a deliberate falsehood in making the above statement. It is well aware that Riel was expelled on the motion of Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, members of the late Reform administration voting against his expulsion, as they might be expected to do, when he was introduced to sign the roll and take the oath by one of the leading members of his party. Riel consequently had no need to sell to Sir George Cartier or to anyone else.

Organic weakness or loss of power in either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Endorse three letter stamps for book of particulars. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N.Y.

THE FIGHT AT BATOCHE.

AN ACCOUNT OF THE FOUR DAYS ENGAGEMENT.

How the First Three Days were Spent—The Final Day—The Victorious Charge on the Enemy's Position.

The following interesting letter, giving a graphic account of some of the details of the victory at Batocche, was written by Mr. Walter F. Stewart, a sergeant on the staff of the Midland Battalion, to his sister and brother-in-law at Toronto. Mr. Stewart is a son of Mr. George A. Stewart, an old resident of Peterborough, but now residing in Manitoba, and he is himself well known to many of our readers. Being on a visit to his relations in this district he joined the Battalion at Kingston:—

ON BOARD STEAMER NORTHWEST,
North Saskatchewan, May 22nd, 1885.

I am once more on the river bank, or I should say a river bank, for it is not the same old bank we were on whilst navigating the South Saskatchewan. Yesterday we left Prince Albert, and are now bound for Battleford. What we are going to do there I don't know; I hope we are going to have another fight, for I am right on the business now. Our, the Midland Battalion, A Battery, Boulton's Scouts, and General Middleton and his staff, are all on board. But I will hurry on and give you my experience in the battle of Batocche. I will tell you first in case you might be a bit anxious, that I was neither killed nor wounded, but three occasions particularly. One bullet from across the river carried away a button from my tunic, another grazed along the barrel of my rifle and grazed my little finger, just moving the skin, and another grazed my neck, just under the right jaw, making quite a gash. Others came so close over my head, that if I had been three inches taller I would have been killed half a dozen times. Well, about the battle. Saturday, May 9th.—Left our camp in the hands of our teamsters, and started on our march on Batocche, eight miles distant, at 6.30 a.m., all singing and eager for the fray. We'll hang Louis Riel on a crooked poplar tree, etc., the most popular one sung, and all felt in the best of spirits. Boulton's scouts and the gelling gun took the lead. When we got within half a mile of Batocche, we heard sharp firing going on and knew at once that the Northcote with O'School on board were at it. But we did not go far before we heard our gelling splitting bullets at them; then not a sound was heard for some minutes. The gelling had created astonishment among the rebels. All that day's performance you saw in the papers. We Midlanders did not fire a shot until evening.

Sunday, 10th.—Had no sleep till night. The rebels were continually creeping on us and firing volleys among us. If we sat down to tea we would get a volley; whilst making up our beds, or doing anything or nothing. We would get volley after volley poured into us, killed one man and two horses, and wounded four men and several horses. Our two companies were sent out in skirmishing order to drive them back. I was given charge of twenty men, and we all had to keep watch all night without relief. The night was pitch dark, could see nothing, so we fired into the flash from their rifles. All Sunday we went out skirmishing, and had it pretty hot from the enemy. All heads were itching to charge into them, but the General would not permit us to do so. I talked to some of the officers, telling them that the rebels could not stand a bayonet charge from us one hour, but would run like sheep. They seemed to doubt it, and some even said that "not a man of us would come out alive." However, they thought differently later on.

Monday, 11th.—The weather was something magnificent, calm, the very weather to make shots tell. While I was in bed, and all the rest asleep, I thought of a scheme to carry out, that was, I would creep down into the ravine, among the rebels, find a good position, where I could command a view of their position and stronghold, and the nature of the ground through the ravine, sketch it all out and present it to the General, and let him see if there was a possibility of making a charge through it. There was nothing I was more anxious for than to make a brilliant charge.

So on this Monday morning we went out early in our usual skirmishing order, our two companies to the left and the 90th to the right, about fifty or one hundred yards back from the edge of the ravine. The Grenadiers were held back in front of the ravine for reserve. We opened fire, lying low, the rebels replying, but we could see nothing but puffs of smoke. After awhile I crept away from the rest, telling them to watch the direction I took, and not fire at me. I kept on through the bush and scrub until I got to the edge of the ravine, saw all was clear, slipped head first over the edge and down. I went quietly and slowly, wriggling snake fashion through low bushes, until I came to a bit of clearing, about 25 yards. Here was my greatest danger. I wanted to cross this bit of clearing and reach a heavier bush cover, where I could get a better view of the ravine. The danger was not only on each side of me, but on the opposite side of the river. The river here was only 350 feet wide. However, I went on going, so on I went, lying very low, now and then stopping to listen for the click of a hammer near at hand, or the cracking of a bush. I got across all right, and into bushes thick enough to hide me, but not bullet proof. I was not here long before I heard the noise of bushes moving, and saw some Indians stealing along towards me, a little to the right of me, place themselves on top of the ravine, completely cutting off my retreat, the nearest one being only about 60 or 70 yards from me. I saw at once they were not aware of my presence, so lay perfectly still, with my rifle at full cock and the head drawn on the nearest one, and my revolver on the ground beside me. It was hard to resist the temptation of firing, but I knew it would be sure death to me, so I had to lie quiet and chew hard tack. After lying in this state for about three hours I heard some heavy firing, followed by yells or war whoops, down the ravine about half a mile, which had the effect of calling my rather treacherous neighbors away. As the last of them was disappearing I could not resist the temptation any longer, so drew a bead and shot him. I don't know if I killed him, but I hit him, for he threw up his hands, gave a yell and disappeared. At the same time I rolled to one side a few feet. It was well I did, for a whole volley of bullets came whizzing through and tearing up the bushes just where I had been lying. A few minutes later I heard some movement to my right, and on looking that direction saw three of our Midlanders creeping down the slope to join me. If they had been ten minutes sooner the poor fellows would very likely have been shot. I then went and got more men, and we formed a line from the top of the ravine to the bottom, and passed the word along to Col. Williams what we had done, and if he liked could get a good view of the surroundings. Very soon, to my surprise, down came the Col., Gen. Middleton and all his staff, with their field guns. The General sent back at once for the battery to bring down a field gun, this being a good position to shell the ravine from. We in the meantime stood up and acted as a body guard. When the gun came it was found impossible to bring it down, so placed it on top and sent about half a dozen shells down among the houses. It was then Riel sent a messenger threatening to kill his prisoners if we did not stop shelling. After the General and staff retired we had a sharp tussle for a while from a few rebels in some rifle pits a few hundred yards away. I sent word to Col. Williams to let us charge and take these few pits, that I would lead the men. He soon came down and said: "Now, men, let us charge into these rifle pits, there are only twelve of us, but we can drive them out, and then fall back out of the ravine. Sergeant Stewart, keep by my right side, and keep up the right flank." With a cheer we made a charge, and in five minutes drove them out and took possession of four rifle pits. You ought to see them; they are the most perfectly secure rifle pits I ever saw or heard of. They kept up a hot fire on us all the while, which we returned with interest, edged to our right and down. The 90th was just retiring for the night and having it pretty hot. That day two men were killed and about six wounded.

Tuesday, 12th.—The day of the great charge. I will run this over more rapidly, as it is all in the papers better described than I can do. But remember this—the Midland Battalion should get the lion's share of credit, for we led the charge through the ravine and others supported us as far as Batocche village. It all seems a kind of dream to me now. I knew no fear, but bounded on at the highest pitch of excitement, and whether I was quicker at getting through the bush or the men slower I don't know, but I got away from them and up on the high land of the ravine amongst some very thick brush, where the bullets whistled about my ears from all sides, from our own men, the Grenadiers and rebels, so I had to drop low. Very soon I saw some of the Grenadiers passing, and I rushed out and joined them yelling, "Hurray for the Grenadiers and the Toronto boys!" they gave me a cheer and yelled, "Hurray for the Midland!" It turned out to be No. 4 Company, Capt. French and some of his scouts. We rushed on with wild cheers, firing as we went, until we reached Batocche's house, which was full of rebels, besides four or five houses and stores, all crowded with Indians and breeds, some in the buildings and others behind the corners and fences. Here we had most of our men killed and wounded. Storming the houses now was the order of the moment. We rushed on right in the teeth of the fire. Capt. French was the first one in Batocche's house, a Grenadier next, and I was third; we rushed up stairs, rammed our rifles through the windows, and shot down the rebels as they were being driven out of the other houses. We were not there three minutes before poor Capt. French fell, shot through the heart. The rebel no sooner fired his fatal shot before he got eight bullets into him. I was right beside the poor Captain when shot. His last words were, "Remember, boys, I led you here." Up to this time I had not seen or heard anything of poor Ted (Capt. E. T. Brown) since morning. Little later I was told he was shot fighting bravely. Shortly after this we left the house and went into the ravine. I was still with some of the Grenadiers, mostly No. 4 Company, and we charged on down away ahead of all others and came on about 40 yards belonging to the rebels. I caught sight of an Indian crawling along among the tents, but I soon put a bullet in him. The rest of the rebels cleared out, after giving us a volley as they went. We ran round from tent to tent looking for something to shoot, when we came to a very large one, which we found on closer examination was full of women and children. Now, I will give you a picture which, if sketched out, would be something worth looking at. "About thirty rough looking soldiers, their caps on the back of their heads, and faces lighted up with excitement, at the same time blackened with burnt powder—rifles in hand; about twenty women on their knees before them wringing their hands, crying and holding up their babies, imploring us not to hurt them." It is a picture I can never forget. It brought tears to the eyes of the roughest of them—the noble fellows walked up and shook hands and smoothed their hair, telling them we would not touch a hair of their heads. While this was going on we felt the whizz of bullets about our ears again—from behind us this time, and all of a sudden we remembered that our own men in all probability did not know we were there, and as the bushes were so thick they could not distinguish our red coats, a happy thought struck us that we would give three hearty British cheers, which could easily be distinguished from Indian war whoops. This we did, which soon stopped the firing in our direction. We then pushed on and took the house you see on the hill farthest off. This was full of rebels, as well as the bluff round about, and they gave us a hot reception as we advanced, but we soon drove them out and took possession. This was mostly No. 4 company 10th Royal. When I got back to our own men I thought they would shake my arm off. They all thought and heard that I had been either killed or wounded. We threw up extraneous round the house and camped all night, and all evening you would see little white flags coming out of the bluffs. I have not time to write more now, as we are just nearing Battleford and in another hour we will be with Col. Otter. I am going back with our battalion when it goes, so will see you and tell you all particulars.

With a great deal of love,
Your affectionate brother,
WALTER.

Riel's Narrow Escape.

The Winnipeg Times of June 1st says:—As they, who for some weeks was a prisoner at Batocche, and who was the victim of Riel's constant and cruel treatment, was upon his liberation by the volunteers, very determined in his expressions to be revenged upon the rebel insurgent, for the indignities and cruelties heaped upon him during his captivity. At Batocche, one day just before the start for Prince Albert was commenced, As they went to the entrance of the guard room, where Riel was confined, and asked the guard to allow him to see Riel for a moment, stating that he desired to see him in reference to some personal matters. His request was refused, which so aroused As they that he became very unruly and was put under arrest, but was subsequently released. He had on his person a revolver, and carried a formidable looking stick, which he doubtless intended using upon Riel, if he could have secured access to the guard room.

The Kansas Wheat Crop.
TORONTO, Kan., June 4.—Much anxiety is expressed over the disastrous reports regarding the condition of the wheat crop in this State. The best wheat in many instances will be a total failure on account of the Houston fly and the chinch bug. Many wheat fields that up to ten days ago promised half a crop are now heading out cheap. This is the worst failure in wheat Kansas has experienced. The crop is estimated at 15,000,000 to 18,000,000 bushels, or 35,000,000 less than last year. Corn now is the only hope for Kansas this year.

It is not the change of some that cures so many travelling invalids. It is absence from the doctor.

Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy luster, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

TEACHER'S INSTITUTE.

THE OPENING MEETING HELD IN THE SCHOOL ROOM OF ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

"The Sunday School Teacher's Working for Teachers."

At eight o'clock on Monday a Teacher's Institute opened in the school room of St. Paul's Church. There were about one hundred and fifty persons interested in Sunday school work present. The Rev. J. McEwen, Secretary of the Sunday School Association, the Rev. R. F. Turvane and Mr. J. W. Fawcett, Superintendent of the George Street Methodist Church school, occupied seats on the platform.

After prayer by the Rev. Mr. Turvane, Mr. Fawcett briefly introduced the Rev. Mr. McEwen, the conductor of the Institute.

The Rev. Mr. McEwen, after a few introductory remarks, asked those present to turn to the seventh verse of the nineteenth Psalm and read alternate verses with him. This was a good plan for preserving attention, he said; one that was now generally adopted.

In coming to the subject of the evening, he said, it was to be distinctly understood that any one present had a right to stop him at any time and ask a question, provided it appeared to the subject under consideration.

The reason of dealing with this subject he briefly gave as follows: Thirteen years ago the United Sunday Schools launched out into what is known as the international selection of Sabbath School lessons—this was a very important act. The heretofore existing few periodicals connected with the work multiplied, lesson leaves and such like were scattered broadcast. As an outcome of the enthusiasm of the International Association, 18 months after its organization sixteen million of children were being taught from the same lessons. But the result of the introduction of lesson leaves was, so handy was it, that it took the place of the Bible, to a large extent.

Both teachers and scholars took their lesson leaves to class instead of the Bible, and he often found teachers actually embarrassed to find a text given out, from not being acquainted with the order of the books of the Bible. Teachers should use these helps in the preparation of their lessons, but the Bible should ever be used in the class.

He then proceeded to question those present as follows:—

Q. How many great divisions of the Bible are there?

A. Two.

Q. What are they?

A. The Old and the New Testaments.

Q. How many books are there in the Bible?

A. Sixty-six.

Q. How many are there in the Old Testament?

A. Thirty-nine.

Q. How many in the New Testament?

A. Twenty-seven.

Q. How long did it take to write the Bible?

A. About 1,600 years.

Q. How do you know?

A. Because Moses, who wrote the first books, lived about 1,500 years before Christ, and St. John, who wrote the last, came after Christ.

Such questioning was continued for some time when he suddenly asked how many there were who could name the sixty-six books of the Bible? No one appearing willing to undertake such a task, he said that he did not desire any one to do so, but wished to illustrate a point. There were some teachers who gave information without doing any teaching. In giving facts there should be a ground work for each. The books of the Bible should be learned, not by a dead effort of memory, but by the natural dependence of the books one upon another, such as construction, command, etc. This evening they would take up the construction. As there was a heart in man, a central organ, the seat of vitality, so was there a great organic thought prevailing through the whole Bible, in which was connected in interdependence all books and each book of the Bible. That thought was "God's word to the children of men, as manifested in Jesus Christ."

He then wrote down the names of the first five books and asked what central thought ran through these? Law, was the answer. Next he asked what was the central thought in each? It took a considerable time to arrive at the correct conclusion, which was as follows:—

Genesis, a promise of a Saviour to the people; Exodus, deliverance of the people; Leviticus, worship under the priesthood of the redeemed people; Numbers, education and discipline of the redeemed people; Deuteronomy, a review of the interdependence and fitting up of each other of these five books. He proceeded then in grouping the rest of the books of the Bible under the heads of poetry, history, prophecy, and dealt with them in a similar way. In this manner should the teacher strive to give knowledge to the pupil, not by saying that and so was the case and leaving the pupil to remember it by a dead effort of memory, but by grouping and building up a foundation, thus giving additional facts, while at the same time the task on the memory was easier.

To-night the subject will be, "God's educational method of giving the Bible."

AN ADVERSE VOTE IN THE COMMONS ACCEPTED AND ACTED ON.

The Ministry in the Cabinet Council decided to tender their Resignations—The Effect on the Exchange.

LONDON, June 8.—In the Commons this afternoon Right Hon. Hugh Childers announced that the Government had decided to not vote to the taxpayers the amount of the increased duty on spirits paid over and above the extra shilling per gallon finally decided on, because the Government had been charged higher rates after the announcement of the original increase. Mr. Childers moved the second reading of the budget, and in his speech he explained that of the total increase in beer and spirits duties England pays seven-ninths, Scotland one-ninth, and Ireland one-ninth.

Mr. Michael Hicks-Beach moved that the increase in the duty on spirits and beer was unwarranted in the absence of a corresponding addition to the duties on wine.

Mr. Gladstone responded.

The Government was defeated by a vote of 246 to 232.

When the result was announced, Lord Randolph Churchill and Mr. Parnell jumped up on their seats and enthusiastically waved their hands and cheering was renewed. Thirty-five Conservatives and all Conservatives voted with the majority. The minority included Mr. Michael Hicks-Beach, the brewer, and several Irish Liberals. Although strong whips had been issued many Government supporters were absent.

After the result of the division was announced, Mr. Gladstone adjourned the House. It is confidently expected that Mr. Gladstone will visit the Queen at Windsor, and tender his resignation.

LONDON, June 8.—The Telegraph says it is doubtful whether the Conservatives will accept office.

By Telegram to the Review.

LONDON, Eng., June 8.—Mr. Gladstone has just announced his resignation and that of the Cabinet in the House of Commons.

THE CABINET RESIGN.

A Cabinet Council was convened at noon and was in session until 1.15 o'clock. All the members were present. It is understood that the situation was thoroughly discussed and it was decided, in view of the defeat last night, that it would be inadvisable for the members of the Cabinet to remain longer in office, and it was resolved that their resignation be tendered to the Queen at once.

SOCIETY INSURANCE.

The recent meeting of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters, which is now being held in our town, is an event of considerable importance and of interest for more than the members of the society. The selection of Peterborough this year as the locality of the annual meeting is in itself satisfactory, for a large body of intelligent men will visit our town, many of them for the first time, and we have sufficient faith in the attractions and advantages of Peterborough to feel that it needs only to be known to be appreciated, so that there is every prospect of future benefits from such an assemblage.

The Order is also a body that is held in high esteem. It is especially flourishing in Peterborough, and its good effect in many ways is generally acknowledged. As to the excellence of its social influence, and its great advantage to its provident members and their families as a benefit club in the event of accident or sickness, these good points are recognized without a dissenting voice. The only difference of opinion as to the Order is the question raised by some as to the sufficiency of its provisions as an insurance company to meet the claims upon the funds in future years.

It may be said by the unthinking that this is a matter for the consideration of the High and Subordinate Courts alone, not for newspaper discussion, as affecting only the members, but we cannot admit this. In two aspects it is a matter of much wider concern. In the first place, in the town and county of Peterborough, so flourishing are the Courts and so large the membership, that with their wives, children and others depending upon them, and those having a less direct stake, those who have a pecuniary interest in the lives of Foresters and in their estates after death, must be numbered by thousands. This of itself makes the matter of a magnitude to become of public importance. Then there is a wider question that has for some little time past attracted attention, that has been justly discussed, that has already formed the subject of proposed legislation, and that will probably be dealt with by Parliament before very long. That is the question whether the Foresters and other societies of somewhat similar nature have provided for a financial stability that warrants them in promising undoubted certainty as to meeting their engagements on the death of their members.

The very essence of insurance is that it should be sure. There should not be room for a doubt on that point. The very fact that among the business of the High Court at the present meeting is the consideration of the endowment fund, shows that even some members have doubts. These should be removed.

The Canadian Order of Foresters has been the most careful and conservative of all such bodies. It has already accumulated a substantial reserve, and shows no disposition to tamper with it. Will that reserve, under the present system, grow as it ought to do in order to cover emergencies and to meet the increasing death rate that advancing years must bring. This question should be thoroughly considered. If it is found that increased payments are necessary, the fact should be faced in a manly fashion, and the necessary steps should be taken without shrinking. By no other course can the officers and the delegates perform their duty. It is a mere matter of calculation that can certainly be solved and if such a step will ever be necessary it should be taken at once. As a minor detail it should be carefully provided that the accumulating reserve should draw adequate interest with undoubted security.

We have no fear that the High Court will shrink from doing its duty in this matter. Possibly no serious change may be found requisite, but whatever is necessary should be done to keep up the good report and the beneficial effect of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

SHOT BY THE REBELS.

How the Halliwell Brothers Stopped the Rebels at Batocbe.

Rev. John Halliwell, rector of Hillier, was in Belleville, and gave a reporter of the Ontario news interesting facts about the wounds his two sons received in the attack on the rebel stronghold at Batocbe. He received letters from his boys early in the week giving their personal experience in the battle, some points of which will be of interest to the public. Both of his sons were in A. Company, Midland Battalion, and were among those who first charged the rebel rifle.

Rev. Mr. Halliwell states that Corp. E. A. K. Halliwell received a ball first through the front of his coat, then through the sleeve, when he remarked to his brother, "Lieut. J. E. Halliwell, who was by his side, 'I'm shot.' Lieut. Halliwell glanced his eye at his brother, but not seeing anything wrong concluded he was joking and again paid his attention to the rebels. Just then Corp. Halliwell received a third shot through the lapel of his tunic and a moment afterwards a fourth bullet grazed the fleshy part of his right arm. Lieut. Halliwell was the victim of the next shot, the ball striking the top of his left shoulder, which has since proved a painful wound. This shot knocked him down, and as his brother, E. A. E. Halliwell, turned to pick him up a piece of lead tore off a piece of flesh from his left wrist. The sixth shot which he received only pierced his tunic, and the seventh shot scratched his face and tore off a piece of flesh from his nose. Such was the experience of the brave Halliwell brothers while, with a ringing cheer, they charged down the ravine on the rebels and swept everything before them. When Corp. Harry James saw that the two boys were wounded he called an ambulance to take them to the hospital, but Corp. Halliwell refused to ride, following his wounded brother in the conveyance to the hospital. When they entered, Corp. Halliwell's face and coat were covered with blood, and of course the medical corps concluded he had been badly wounded. He was covered profusely with blood, and his tunic had been saturated with rifle balls, but when the medical officer approached him he said: "I am not hurt, it's my brother," pointing to Lieut. Halliwell lying on a blanket. Such a look of blank astonishment came over that doctor's countenance will never be described. Lieut. Halliwell's wound was then dressed, and his brother was about in a few days able to nurse him.

The boys state that all their wounds were made by bullets and not by shot.

Crushed to Death in an Elevator.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 7.—Mrs. J. G. Malloch, an aged patient at the condensed air sanitarium here, from London, Ont., had been caught in an elevator at the institution to-night and was choked to death. She was endeavoring to manipulate the elevator car herself.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

FRAUDULENT REPRESENTATIONS.

Mr. Rykert is punching holes in the anti-franchise petitions. Yesterday it was a petition from the town of Niagara containing 140 names; to-day it is another petition from Grantham, all setting forth that these petitioners were induced to sign the anti-franchise petitions through fraudulent representations of canvassers for names.—Toronto World (Indep.).

A RIEL APOLOGIST.

The Globe says—"This much is certain, that the blood of those who fell in the North West lies at somebody's door." And let us add—people generally entertain the conviction that that "somebody" is Riel, with those who urged him on as accomplices. We quite agreed with the Globe that if officials have been remiss in their duty they should be condoned; but the remissness of officials is no excuse for the crime of innocent people or the pillage of their property. The Globe should not apologize for Riel in that way.—Newmarket Era (Reform).

NO "SEETHING EXCITEMENT."

The signatures to the petitions for wine and beer outbatter the signatures to the petitions against the Franchise Bill, many fold; and yet nobody notices any seething excitement during the time the former were being signed.—Ottawa Sun (Indep.).

A BAD APPOINTMENT.

The Mail intimates that the Ontario Government has appointed the business partner of the Liberal candidate for West Algoma to be Returning Officer at the approaching election in that constituency. If this be true, we cannot endorse the action, as this same gentleman at last election for Algoma was charged with depriving five districts of the right of franchise. West Algoma has plenty of men well qualified to act as Returning Officers without resorting to questionable appointments.—Newmarket Era (Reform).

SIR JOHN IN DANGER.

The attitude of some of the Grit journals toward Sir John Macdonald is such that there is no denying the fact that they will soon positively dislike him, if he continues to refuse to dis.—Hamilton Spectator.

C. P. R. AND IMMIGRATION.

It is to be hoped that no Canadian journal or politician will feel called upon to denounce the action of the C. P. R. for announcing that hereafter it will only carry immigrants from St. Vincent to Winnipeg, except at passenger rates. This order is in the interests, not of the Canadian Pacific alone, but also of Canada generally, because although in many at first result in the loss of a few settlers, it will, if rigidly enforced, soon divert the tide of Canadian immigration to Canadian ports, a hence settlers can proceed to the North-West by an all Canadian route. The order will doubtless interfere somewhat with Minnesota and Dakota land speculators, but as their interest in Canada has generally been limited to settling a proceeding to our North-West by American routes, there is no reason why they should be shielded any interference with their congenial occupation of slandering and caricaturing our climate and our soil.—Montreal Star (Indep.).

WAITING FOR THE CAT TO JUMP.

The Globe has not a word to say as to what in its opinion should be done with Riel. Now this is a weak position, as it is not a party matter, it holds any views on the subject it is its duty to give utterance to them or hereafter hold its tongue. The Opposition have just as much a duty to declare in this matter as the Government, and it is creating an important matter in a cowardly and partisan way to remain silent and wait to see in what manner the Government shall deal with him, and then, for political capital, endorse the opposite view.—Kingston News.

REFORM "AGITATIONS."

In a few weeks this agitation against the Government on account of its mismanagement of the Northwest will be dead as old agitations. The public of Canada have had many agitations since 1878. Indeed, there has been a continual procession of agitations, regarding the Pacific Railway, the tariff, the disallowance of railway charters, the land companies, etc., but not once has Mr. Blake had the courage to deliberately formulate a specific charge of corruption or wrong-doing, and take his stand upon it.—Toronto Mail.

PROPOSED SCHOOL OF FORESTRY.

In the English House of Commons on May 15th, on the motion for going into Committee of Supply.

Sir John Lubbock called attention to the state of forestry in this country, and moved for a Select Committee to consider whether, by the establishment of a forest school or otherwise, our woodlands could be rendered more remunerative. After pointing out that this was the only great country in Europe which took no notice at all of its national forests, he said this was a time when it was peculiarly desirable that they should have an inquiry of the kind he proposed; because, in the first place, the head of the Indian Forest Department was in this country at the present moment, and they might have the advantage of his co-operation and advice; and secondly, because the Indian Office was at the present moment engaged in organizing the system of instruction of the Indian officials. He thought it would be very desirable to consider the whole subject before the Government made any arrangements that would apply to the Indian officials. If a well-organized forest school was established it would afford a valuable nucleus in the first instance. He did not, however, wish to express any decided opinion in favor of the establishment of a Government School of Forestry. It was a subject for inquiry. Every one, he thought, would admit that they could not have a successful school without having access to a large tract of forest. It was almost impossible for private individuals to establish for themselves a satisfactory forest school, and it might be possible to render our national woodlands available to private institutions, so that young men might have the advantage of instruction in arboriculture.

Dr. Lyons, in seconding the motion, stated that the total amount of woodland in Ireland was only 250,000 acres, being 45 acres less than in 1841. The amount of timber in England was infinitely below that which she ought properly to possess for the purposes of the national protection of the soil, and for the protection of our herds and flocks. The question of our timber supplies was of the greatest agricultural, commercial and industrial importance to this country.

Sir H. Maxwell said that there was an immense quantity of money wasted just now in mistaken forestry operations. (Heard, heart.) No one who had spent any portion of his life in studying the subject could fail to be distressed in going through the country to see hundreds and thousands of acres of neglected woodland. Considering the amount of private energy and self denial involved in the formation of woodlands, it was not too much to ask the Government of this country to recognize that, and to take steps to place within the reach of the public the best possible information on the subject.

Mr. Gladstone thought there was great room for improvement in the management of our woodlands, for there was a widespread and mischievous superstition against cutting down trees, and very few indeed understood how to cut down a tree. Everything was done too much at haphazard, and he thought the appointment of a committee might be of great advantage. But as to the establishment of a school he desired to keep entirely from any engagement.

Arrest of a Murderer in Italy.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 6.—Veto Davis, the Italian who almost cut Peter Kent's nose off with a knife, and also stabbed him in the left side, last September, and escaped at that time, was arrested here to-day by Detective Wynn, of the Ontario police. The cutting took place during a row, and for a long time Kent's life was in danger. Rents identified Veto to day as his assassin, and he has been remanded for trial.

BOYCOTTE.

BATHURST.—Many of the village folk drove out to the South Line, on Sunday, to witness the baptism of some twelve persons by Total Immersion. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. McGregor, the Baptist Minister, and took place on the shore of Sturgeon Lake.

DANFORTH.—The Pigeon Creek bridge though passable is in a most dangerous condition. At one place if a horse slips, nothing can prevent the rig from going into the lake. On Tuesday night, two gentlemen had a very narrow escape. Peterborough should make it safe, and then settle with Victoria. It is a shame that while the two counties are quarrelling over their liability public life should be jeopardized.—Independent.

Especially to Women.—"Sweet is revenge especially to women," said the gifted, but the naughty, Lord Byron. Surely he was in bad humor when he wrote such words. But there are complaints that only women suffer, that are carrying numbers of them down to early graves. There is hope for those who suffer, no matter how sorely or severely, in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." State in its action it is a blessing, especially to women and to men, too, for when women suffer, the household is saken.

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The cases in which it has accomplished a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dandruff away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it disappoints no one.

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Baptist Church. We happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely, and was passing out of the door, when the Smith in person, very much surprised, called him back. He entered the Smithy, and handed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to do with these Deacon's?" "Why," replied the Deacon with much politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail 'em there and pay me my money."

He doubts but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER'S, on George street, Dry Goods as prices that will astonish you.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Town Council.
A special meeting of the Town Council will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock, at the Nicholas Hotel.

Specialties.
Among the many specialties at the Golden Lion are Ladies' Gossamer Coats, new Sootproof Jerseys, Men's Straw and felt Hats, Boys' Hats and Jersey Suits in great variety.

The Weather.
The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

The Post Office Robbery.
A despatch from Wollaton says that the trial of "Clutch" Deane, the Port Erie saloon keeper, charged with being implicated in various robberies, including that of the Peterborough post office, will be postponed for a term, his counsel not being ready.

The Probabilities.
The weather probabilities for this district for the following twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh winds, mostly northwest and west; sea weather; slightly higher temperature; fine and warmer to-morrow.

Cobourg's Renaming.
In regard to the bragging done by the Cobourg Sentinel-Star on behalf of the local baseball team, the Peterborough Maple Leaf baseball club desire to state that if the item referred to is intended for a challenge, all the Cobourg baseballers will have to do is to come to Peterborough on July 1st, and they will be fairly met.

Getting Along Well.
Those in charge of beautifying the Court House Park are still prosecuting the work vigorously. Walks have been laid out more than half way round the whole park, a terrace is being constructed across the Park about half way up and the water works are now being introduced. The new fountain will be put up shortly.

The Musical Lamp.
The equipment of the Signal Corps of the 57th Battalion are now complete. The last of the instruments were received today from Noah I. Piper, Toronto, in the shape of two signal lamps. The lamps are mounted on tripods and all attachments are made so as to be folded up into small compass and easily carried. The instruments were received by Sergeant Dixon at noon today.

The Matched Race.
Final arrangements have been completed for the matched running race between J. McLean's Lady Macdonald and John Dickenson's Wild Deer. The race will be run on the Peterborough Driving Park on June 20th for $500 a side. The Driving Park Association are arranging for a programme of other events to be carried out. An excursion will be run from Port Hope on the above date.

The Old "Huffman House."
To-day and yesterday workmen have been engaged in tearing off the plaster from the front of the Commercial House, George street. The old sign bring taken down the words "Huffman House" were described in legible characters on the back. The sight of the name led the thoughts of several old residents back to the good old days of yore, and those who were recalled to memory the time when mine host Huffman, the elder, catered so well for his many patrons.

More Slaughter.
It would seem as if the owners of cattle would soon learn that to increase their store they must keep their line away from railway tracks. Last week there were no fewer than six cows killed on the different railway lines in the vicinity. On Monday the morning train running between North Hastings Junction and Madoc struck three cows when about half way between the two places and killed them instantly. The owners of cattle will be interested to learn that the law enacted that no cattle shall roam within half a mile of a railway track at a public crossing, and if, under such circumstances, any beast is killed the railway company is not responsible for the damage done. Not only that, but the owner of cattle is responsible for any damage that may be done to such railway train in the event of cattle being killed.

At the Driving Park.
On Monday evening the Driving Park was opened to the public, but owing to the disagreeable weather, the number who took advantage of the privilege was not large. Several, however, enjoyed a drive around the race course. The track was in capital condition, and a better place for driving could not be wished for. A lacrosse match was played between teams chosen from the Peterborough club, and captained by Messrs. J. J. Shooky and J. Coughlin. The match was a lively one, and some very good playing was done. Each side had secured a goal when darkness put an end to the match. The grass on the grounds is being cut, and it will then be rolled, when it will be in very good condition for a match. The match on Monday evening was splendid practice for the players, and they intend to have such practices frequently.

Mr. J. W. Mathison, of the Port Hope, called on us today.
Mr. A. Riley, formerly Vice Chief Ranger of Court Peterborough, O. C. F., is in town for a short visit.

Child-Chat.
—Bright and cool.
—The lawn at the Midland Railway Station has been trimmed up and ornamented, and is now looks very pretty.

—A new wooden ceiling has been constructed over the main entrance to the Court House.
—The handsome sign recently painted by Mr. H. W. Watson, for the uptown office of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was erected into position to-day.

—Mr. W. Aldridge is engaged in completing the additions to, and improvements in the office of the Clerk of the County Court.
—Flags are flying to-day over the Court House, from the hall of Peterborough, O. C. F., and from the Oriental Hotel.

—Mr. Wm. Ferguson now presides with efficiency over the office of the Grand Central Hotel.
—The work constructing boulevards continues in every part of the town. Mr. Grundy has ornamented a part of Hunter street in this way.

Don't Act as Savages.
People are often led astray by advice given by those who are too apt to make statements that are not strictly in keeping with facts, and, as a consequence, suffer more or less as the result of acting on advice thus given. A person sometimes gives his opinion, and in connection with it throws in a little advice—advice that in too many cases is misleading, and in the end invariably proves groundless and of no avail to himself or anyone else. This practice is carried on to a great extent at the present day, and men are more than likely to fall into a trap of some kind that has been set for them by unscrupulous designers. To avoid this, people should ever be on the watch. Don't be caught napping.

The age we live in requires that a man should not only have his wits about him, but that he should be careful to utilize his brains in a practical and shrewd business-like manner, avoiding as much as possible persons of evil and underhanded tactics. There is no reason why the inhabitants of Peterborough should not get a "square deal" in the clothing line, and if there are any who do not, just pay a visit to Habilitation Hall, and you will get one hundred cents for every dollar expended there. A. McNam.

The High Court.
The High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters met to-day at half past two o'clock in the room of Court Peterborough, No. 29. The delegates arrived on the morning and noon trains of the different railways, and were met at the depot and conducted by the Entertainment Committee to the various hotels.

The delegates number more than one hundred in all, and represent all the Courts of the Canadian Order of Foresters. This afternoon's business consisted mainly of preliminary work. The credentials of the delegates were presented, and a few reports read. At half-past five o'clock the sittings adjourned and at six o'clock a procession will be formed, headed by the Fire Brigade Band, to proceed to the Wolfe street wharf, where the delegates, Executive Committee, and members and officers of the two local courts, will embark for Parker's Summer Resort. Here there will be a grand banquet given, at which speeches, addresses, &c., will be given. Directly after the banquet the return will be made. To-morrow morning at nine o'clock the High Court will resume its duties, and the sittings will be regularly conducted until Thursday night, when it is expected all business will be finished.

THE CHARGE AT BATOCHE.

There is a widespread impression that the gulf between the Canadian volunteers and the General commanding, or at least, without his orders. It might reflect some credit on the spirit of the men if they, bursting through authority, dashed at the enemy and conquered, but it has long been an axiom in military law that a soldier's first duty is to obey orders, and it is a wholesome and necessary law. Whether the charge was made with or without orders from Gen. Middleton, the enemy and spirited courage of the men remains the same, but we would rather praise them for carrying out with such dash and spirit the orders of a brave commander, than say that they advanced and won in disobedience to the command of those in authority over them. If they did charge contrary to orders, their fame as courageous and irresistible defenders of their country would remain untouched, but, looking at the matter from a military point of view, their fair name as obedient soldiers would not be so bright. We therefore are pleased to be able to believe that the now famous charge was made by the volunteers, led by the Midland, in obedience to the orders of their highest officer, and that gallantly and with the true spirit of British soldiers, or Canadian volunteers, they obeyed the command and drove the rebels from their stronghold.

Direct testimony bearing on this point we have not seen in any letters from the officers on the staff or in command of battalions, but indirect and apparently plain testimony from them, and evidence from other sources, has led us to the conclusion expressed above. The correspondent of the Montreal Star, whose graphic account of the charge was published in the Review, said that "at a council of the leading officers on Monday the General decided on attempting an attack on the rebel position from different sides the next morning." That programme, laid out on the previous evening by the General, was carried out next day. A former Peterborough boy, a member of the Midland contingent of the Midland Battalion, in a letter written after the battle, says that "on Tuesday the General decided on a different plan," meaning that he had decided on a charge, so that this volunteer, who was among the very first to advance, did not believe that he was "taking the bit in his teeth." Capt. Grace, who is on Gen. Middleton's staff, in a letter to a friend in Lindsay, and which was published in the Review, says:—

"The company of the 45th Battalion, which forms Company of the Midland Battalion, was chosen by Brigadier-General Strathmore for the charge, and, I must say, nobly did they respond to the call of duty."

Capt. Grace does not speak of disobedience, or of a charge made without orders, but shows that Col. Strathmore chose the Midland to lead the charge, and the men, therefore, did not disobey orders. The men were ordered and led forward by their commander, Col. Williams, and had been chosen for that work by the officer in command of all the infantry, Col. Strathmore. If there was any disobedience of orders it was on the part of the officers, and not of the men. But, by referring to the official report of the capture of Batoche, we find Gen. Middleton saying, "Have just made a general attack and carried the whole settlement." Then, after referring to the visit of Ashley with the communications from Riel, the General says:—

"I then returned to camp and pushed on my advance parties, who were heavily fired on. I proceeded on until I saw my advance and ordered a general advance. The men responded nobly, splendidly led on by their officers."

It thus appears to be conclusively proven that neither officers or men acted contrary to the orders they had received. They obeyed their commands to the letter, advanced in the face of a heavy fire, made a brilliant charge, drove out the enemy, conquered, and bivouaced on the enemy's position. The Midland led this charge, and were nobly seconded by the other regiments, so when the village was reached near the Midland and 50th Battalions were mixed together and the others were along with them. All the men did nobly, but it is quite natural that in this district we should feel more interest in the Midland battalion, and they are deserving of the best reception that can be accorded them.

PRACTICAL SENSE.

The contractors for the Sinking and Barber railroad have decided to adopt electric lighting in order to encounter satisfactorily the obstacles as to climate, etc., of which so much has been said. By this means they intend to construct the road during night time, when the temperature will be such as Europeans can withstand with tolerable ease, while during the heat of the day they can take their rest. To carry out this arrangement a firm of Leeds, England, have already supplied two complete installations for the electric lighting.

The engine boiler and dynamo for each set, as well as the support for the lamps when not in use, are all neatly fixed on a specially designed light railway truck. When in use the lamps will be hung from iron tripods 35 feet in height, and placed at intervals of 30 yards along the line of the proposed railway. The tripods are made of light iron tubing joined at the top and made telescopic in the middle, so that they can be folded together, removed and united whenever required with the least possible trouble. The insulated cable to convey the electric current to the lamps is coiled on reels, two being supplied with each installation. On these reels the cable can be run off or wound up, as required. The lamps, which are of 2,000 candle power each, can also be moved forward, one at a time, from one end to the other as the work of construction proceeds, a simple switch arrangement being provided for the cutting off of the current from any particular lamp without interference with any of the others. The dynamo machines are of the Brush type and are driven by Parsons' patent high-speed engines. The boilers are of the locomotive type and are supplied by means of a feed pump with water from a tank fixed under the dynamo machine, which latter, by this means, is also kept cool during work. The current of the lamps are arranged to burn for a period of 16 hours.—Iron Age.

OUR FINANCIAL.
 Mr. McLELLAN, in reply to Mr. Vail, said the protection of our fisheries after July 1st was under consideration, and full information would be submitted in a few days.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.
 The House went into Committee on the Franchise Bill.

The new clause, providing for appeals when the Reviewing Officer is not a judge, was passed. Mr. PARSONS (Burlington) moved an amendment that Indians must make personal application to be put on the voters' list, that the description of their holdings should be exact, and that the effect of the improvements must be established on oath.

Mr. DAWSON objected to this, and said that only 1,200 or 1,400 Indians would be enfranchised in Ontario.

Sir J. MACDONALD read an able letter from Dr. Jones (Head Chief Kahkwaquashy) on behalf of his race.

After considerable discussion the amendment was carried.

The concluding clauses were passed. There remain a few still standing for consideration. The Committee rose and the House adjourned at 3 o'clock.

INDIAN ATROCITIES.

Belgian of Terror in New Mexico—Men, Women and Children Slaughtered.

SILVER CITY, Arizona, June 8.—The last week has been one of unexampled suspense and terror in Silver City. Never have the Indians on the bloody ranks come so near the city. The first news of the proximity of the Indians was received on Wednesday of last week, when a boy riding a horse white with foam dashed into town from Malley's Ranch, on Bear Creek. He brought word that hostile Indians were in the hills, and that an attack on the ranch in which were gathered many women and children was expected, and help was needed. A volunteer company of thirty-five men was soon organized and went to the rescue. At 7.30 o'clock the ranch was reached. All the families within a radius of seven miles were collected there except one. A party set off to bring them in, while two other parties started for a water tank in the hills, where they expected to find the Indians, but the latter had fled. Retreating to the ranch, a large party was organized to go to Malley's Springs, but the Indians had fled from that spot also. Some men went out looking for the trail which led to Little Walnut Creek. Along this stream the most horrible signs were witnessed. Dead bodies, frightfully mutilated and naked, were found at frequent intervals. The houses were pillaged, and clothing and household articles were scattered everywhere. At William Ogden's five dead bodies, all scalped, lay in a row on the ground. The two women had been most cruelly assaulted. A five year old girl had both hands cut off. Following the trail over the hills to Coconino ranch, the bodies of a number of children were gathered here who had escaped death by hiding. Their parents had all been killed, and six miles farther, in the house of Mr. Marquette five dead bodies were found. Mrs. Marquette and her seven year old daughter had both suffered at the hands of the Indians before being killed. The bodies were horribly mutilated. By this time the party proceeded on a fifteen hour ride toward into the Pinal mountains, without food or sleep, but did not overtake the Indians. By this time all but six or seven of the party were exhausted, and a telegram was despatched to General Bradley asking for fresh horses, but he replied that he had none. Troops were sent out to take up the trail where the citizens had left it, and to return trail the dead were brought in waggon. The Americans were cared for, but the bodies of the Mexicans lay here for hours before any thing was done to them. Finally two women with the aid of a Mexican woman, washed the bodies, clothed the women with their own clothes, went about and procured clothing for the children from others, and laid them to rest. One of the heroic deeds that occur on such occasions was performed by little Willie Carpenter. His parents were some distance from the house when the Indians appeared. Willie and his one year old sister were playing in the yard. The boy with wonderful wisdom caught up his little sister and slipped into the woods. He crawled a long distance and finally reached his home. The parents were wild with joy to find their children, whom they supposed the Indians had carried off. Up to this time the only fight between the troops and Indians was brought on by Indians attacking Captain Smith's command while the men were bathing in Bull Creek. Two of the men, a trooper and an Indian scout, were wounded, and two horses killed. The wounded scout is said to be a son of Chief Loon. The Indians were beaten back, but they managed to carry off everything with them except a quantity of jerked beef.

After the fight the Indians went on to Stalworth's ranch, on which they made an attack, but were driven off after having wounded Stalworth. The story is that a building heard the Indians. Stalworth heard the roar, and came out with his revolver to see what was the matter, and was shot in the wrist.

Following the death of the dead: H. Smith, prospector; Luther brother, two stockmen; Peter Anderson, prospector; Robert Benton, ranchman; James Montgomery, ranchman; Nate Hoss, miner; Olivia Orvick, P. E. Lyon, J. H. Baxter, Thomas McKinnon, John Woods and a family of four, Rafael, Schuch, Pax Ransom, Felix Marquette and family, and 21 others.

A WELL KNOWN journalist of Berlin, named Tubenbeck, was murdered at a restaurant, and it was only on the day of the funeral that the police suspected a crime, and as the body was being lowered into the grave they took possession of it in order that a post mortem might be held.

DUPED AND DECEIVED

A Widow Wronged—Frustrated by a Rascally Signaller—Frustrated Signaller.

DETROIT, June 8.—Marceline Edison, sixty years of age, who claims relationship to the famous inventor, and who also claimed to be the owner of a big cattle ranch at Independence, Missouri, became engaged to a widow in Windsor Ontario, named Barton, who he induced to sell her property so that they could immediately go West. Edison took a trip west, keeping up a close correspondence with his affianced. From Kansas City he sent her a telegram asking for a thousand dollars, saying he had lost fifty thousand. The request raised the widow's suspicions, and she began an investigation which proved fruitful in the end. The first result was in the discovery of another prospective bride at Stinson, Ont. Mrs. Barton received a letter enclosing a photograph of Edison from Port Huron, Ont., on an alleged wife there, who said they had eight children, all grown up. She had not seen her husband for ten years. Closely following this was another communication from Toronto, Ill., which was apparently written by a young wife, and the contents were most touching. "Your loving little one, Lou Edison," was the signature, and Edison was implored to come home as she was in desperate circumstances. Edison returned to Windsor on Saturday and was arrested, but these latter facts did not then become known, and he was released and disappeared. Mrs. Barton loses $1,000 by the episode.

SEVENTEEN YEAR LOUDEST.

Appearing in Large Numbers in Chester County—Their Habits.

The first of what are known as the seventeen year locusts were seen yesterday on trees near the city. They have been seen in large numbers for several days in different parts in Chester county. Many of them were what are termed the "jackets." By a careful provision of nature the seventeen year locust, when he crawls up to the surface through his carefully packed and ornamented hole and comes out, has a dark jacket which envelopes him and which he ingeniously throws off after a few warm days.

The jacket is a great embarrassment and he is not a full fledged seventeen-year locust, ready for business, until he gets outside of it. It seems that the creatures in their larva state, are susceptible to cold and moisture. Accordingly through their seventeen year sleep, they keep very far underground, and as they begin to work their way up and out of their dark subterranean retreats molting their chambers with something that appears to make it water proof. Their final appearance is often postponed on account of the weather.

But in the case of the locusts, however, many of them have been prematurely turned up, and after getting some sustenance by hanging on to the roots as is their wont they have determined to bite and burrow their way out. In a few cases the sun has dried them enough so that they have been able to spit their jackets in the back, which they do by gradually tearing a rent in the jacket from the feet to the head. A little more sun for the drying process enables the insect to unfold his wings and fly about.

The last visitation in this section, as that is the word commonly used, according to a number of authorities in 1882, and it was Prof. C. V. Riley, the entomologist of the agricultural department at Washington, who first announced that they would appear in different parts of the country this year. Riley said all the signs of a large belt extending northwesterly through the state announce their coming. They have been day up in nests at Ashland, found in graves at West Chester, and in plough furrows at Reading, turned up in plough furrows at Oxford, found stuck in postholes at Wilkes-barre, found in a blackbird's nest in Lebanon, and in the claws of chickens brought to the city.

But the "Ciencia Septendecim," which is the name that Linnaeus gave it, is not a locust at all, but is a member of the cicada family. It is a fly, which is its second coming. The mystery that has always attended the creature and its strange possibilities, have led to many popular errors. Of all his locusts in the forest Mr. Ciencia Septendecim likes the oak the best, and it is a little strange that the monarch of the woods should be so amiable by a mere nasty little fly. Still he, or rather she—for it is Mrs. Ciencia that does the business—rarely comes occasionally to other forest trees and is frequently to be found even on shrubs. Indeed, there seems to be no tree or shrub that are exempt from her visits, except those of the pine and spruce, which they leave severely alone. It is Mr. Ciencia who makes the noise and Mrs. Ciencia who makes the havoc. The gentleman of the family is a drummer by profession, and the lady, strange to say, is a bass carpenter. While the male Ciencia keeps up a tattoo on his drum, the female, who is said to relish their music, comes out and beats her tambourine. A gentleman belonging to the academy of science, who is so old that he has seen four successive crops of these strange insects, which most of the present generation never saw in their life, says that close to the side of the body of the male 17-year old locust there is a little open like a pocket, in which is situated a little drum, which is made of skin and beaten by valves. In the hinder part of the body of the other insect is a wonderful implement called a pincer, which has the combined power of an awl and a saw. The male Ciencia is a pear-shaped and the sides have sharp little teeth. They bear their hole obliquely in the pith of the tree, at an angle of 45 degrees, and deposit their eggs in pairs, separated by a little wooden partition. It takes about fifteen minutes to prepare one of these nests and fill it with eggs, but it is not unusual for one insect to make 40 or 50 holes in the same limb. She goes thus from limb to limb and from tree to tree and her work of four to five thousands is exhausted. Then she lies down and dies. According to the most authorities in 1882, though some say 42, the young locusts in 1885 are said to be yellow white grub, which, with an infallible instinct like that which takes the duck to the water, drops to the earth burrows so master from which the insect issues. From a hole in the earth the locusts issue, yesterday, and it was a locust. The locust of the Bible is "our common grasshopper." This grub appears in different parts of the country, but it takes it seven to ten years to develop in any one place. Some years it covers a large territory than others. In fact, in the perfect state it eats nothing. Its only mission is to produce. Before it comes up it makes the hole of its tree. It injures trees by the female boring them to deposit her eggs. All the bored limbs and branches soon drop off.—Philadelphia Times.

Hair Renewer.

Seldom does a popular remedy win such a strong hold upon the public confidence as has HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. The essence in which it is compounded is a complete restoration of color to the hair, and vigorous health to the scalp, are innumerable.

Old people like it for its wonderful power to restore to their whitening locks their original color and beauty. Middle-aged people like it because it prevents them from getting bald, keeps dead hair away, and makes the hair grow thick and strong. Young ladies like it as a dressing because it gives the hair a beautiful glossy lustre, and enables them to dress it in whatever form they wish. Thus it is the favorite of all, and it has become so simply because it does precisely what it claims to do.

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Down Alexander, was a blacksmith and Deacon of the Freeholders' Association. We happened to be present in his smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely, and was passing out of the door, when the Smith in passing, very quietly, remarked: "Re-entering the Smith handed him a hammer and a nail. 'But,' exclaimed the astonished customer, 'what am I to do with these Deacons?' 'Why,' replied the Deacon with much politeness, and pointing at the wall, 'Nail your thankfulness there and pay me sixpence.'"

No doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Down With the Dust" you will find at ALEXANDER'S, on George Street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

CALL AT

JAMES ALEXANDER'S,Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.Sanctuary Home.

The meeting of the Ladies' Committee on behalf of the Sanctuary Home is postponed until further notice.

The Remembrance Picnic.

The Remembrance picnic at Bridgeport will be held on June 25th. As usual, it promises to be the picnic of the season.

Real Estate Transfer.

On Tuesday the transfer of one acre of land on Albert Street was effected, from Mr. J. Burroughs to Mr. James Bryson. The price paid was $700 cash.

Lost and Found.

The Evening Review says that the REVIEW is "the most recent and largest daily in the Province outside of the large cities. It is apparently well received by the Peterborough people and is now a prosperous journal."

One More.

Arrangements are now being made by the Sons of England Society in Belleville for the raising of a large excursion to this town on July 1st. The coming Sons of England demonstration promises to be one of the largest Society meetings ever held in Peterborough.

Change of Staff.

In consequence of the postal cars being changed on the C. P. R. from the day to the night train mail will be delivered up at this office for Montreal, Ottawa and all places on the line at 10.30 p.m., the same time the mail is made up for Toronto and West for the 8.30 a.m. train.

Just arrived at Turnbull's, a fresh stock of Potatoes to be sold below regular prices.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light to moderate winds, mostly west and north, fine warmer weather.

The Matched Race.

July 30th is the day on which the matched running race between J. McLean's "Lady Macdonald" and Job Dickinson's "Wild Deer" will take place. The stake is $1,000, and the race will take place in the Peterborough Driving Park.

The Firemen.

A special meeting of Fire Brigade was held on Tuesday evening for the purpose of deciding as to the Dominion Day celebration. After considerable discussion it was resolved that no action be taken in celebrating the 1st of July this year on the part of the Fire Brigade on account of the numerous situations already filled.

Sight and Sound.

The residence of Mr. John Lodge, "Highland Hall," Ashburnham, and attached grounds, was offered for sale at Cavanagh's Hotel on Tuesday afternoon. The bidding was spirited, but the highest did not reach the reserve bid. The highest amount offered for the whole estate was $12,000. The property was also offered in sections, but none was sold.

Counting Down Immediately.

In a few hours on Tuesday the Committee charged with the duty of soliciting subscriptions to enable the West Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society to fit up their new grounds and to have an exhibition this fall worthy the Town and County of Peterborough, obtained subscriptions amounting to over $500. This is the way to make the ball roll.

Somewhat Amusing.

It is somewhat amusing for one to hear the combinations of surprise that come from some of the High Court delegates on their arrival in Peterborough. The city-like appearance of the place, and the handsome buildings and stores, was new to a genuine surprise. On the train, as it passed the outside limits of the town, one delegate expressed the opinion that there was an abundant supply of "words" to be seen at all events. He expected to find Peterborough a rather small and unpretentious burgh, but to his infinite relief, however, was wide of the mark by not a little. Another prominent member of the Order, in conversation with one of the REVIEW representatives, asked the seemingly simple question, "What stream of water is there running through Peterborough that will float an excursion boat?" When told that it was the Ottawa River, he enquired where it ended and what waters did it empty into? After these questions were duly answered, the reporter took it upon himself to explain in a laudable manner as possible the superior advantages the water power in Peterborough offered to the manufacturer over that of other places, and the visitor seemed really surprised that we were the possessors of such an unlimited water power as we have. Other questions of a similar nature were asked and answered, when the steamer blew her whistle, and the "cries" took her leave to look for another item of news.

Personal.

The Evening Review says:—"Mr. D. J. LeRoy, of Peterborough, whose serious illness was recorded in the REVIEW some time ago, has recovered and his smiling countenance has once more beamed on his many friends in Montreal. D. J. looks just about as hearty as ever, but he says he has lost 45 pounds in weight."

Mr. M. A. Rice, for some time connected with the Bank of Toronto here, has been removed to the head office in Toronto.

Agenda Before the Court.

The case of King vs. Alford will come before the Court of Appeal in September next. It will be remembered that the defendant won his case in the recent sittings at Toronto, thus confirming the judgment given at the Chancery Sittings last fall. It is the intention, however, of John King and others, the plaintiffs, to carry the matter to a higher court. Mr. J. O'Meara is the solicitor for the plaintiffs.

The Autumn Session.

The dates on which the autumn session will be held on the Midland Circuit, Mr. Justice O'Connor presiding, are as follows:—
Napies—Monday, September 14.
Pilot—Monday, September 21.
Whitby—Thursday, September 24.
Lindsay—Thursday, October 1.
Peterborough—Thursday, October 8.
Belleville—Thursday, October 15.
Oshawa—Thursday, October 22.

News.

There is now quite a display of horseflesh in the Grand Central Hotel, which, by the way, have been largely improved of late. Messrs. Daly have recently purchased a clean limbed, heavy draught mare for full work on "two and baggage" waggon. She is a fine looking animal. The handsome pair of grey "bun horses" are comfortably stabled, while down at the lower end of the stable "Fanny B." recently purchased by Mr. J. J. Daly, pursues the even tenor of her way in a roomy box stall.

Big Attraction at the Landdowne.

Tomorrow evening Mr. Hurst, the champion high jumper of Canada, will appear in an engagement at the Landdowne Roller Skating Rink, Charlotte Street. This will afford the public an opportunity of witnessing the wonderful performance that can be accomplished on a high jump and the risk should therefore be crowded. Other events will be held, including boxing and roller races. The five Brigade Band (in full dress) will be in attendance, and furnish music during the evening. The price of admission has been placed at the low figure of 25 cents. This will entitle the holder to a pair of roller skates for the evening. Let there be a bumper house.

A Big Fall in the Price of White.

Looking for Justice.

On Saturday morning one of the several occupants of a boarding car in connection with a gravel train, situated about forty miles west of Peterborough, arose from his bed and commenced to make the fire for the purpose of cooking the breakfast. The name of him who acted thus commendably is Michael O'Neil, but John McDunn, another of the car, enquired Michael and took objection to the manner of procedure taken in building the fire. Michael was of opinion that he was burning the job, and a severe fire of words ensued for some time. John backed his arguments by first propelling his pipe Michaelward, striking his target under the eye, and then following up the attack by a vigorous use of fists. Michael was in town today looking for justice.

Don't Ask us Swims.

People are often led astray by advice given by those who are not up to make statements that are not strictly in keeping with facts, and, as a consequence, suffer more or less as the result of acting on advice thus given. A person sometimes gives his opinion, and in connection with it throws in a little advice—advice that in too many cases is misleading, and in the end invariably proves groundless and of no avail to himself or anyone else. This practice is carried on to a great extent at the present day, and men are more than likely to fall into a trap of some kind that has been set for them by unscrupulous designers. To avoid this, people should ever be on the watch. Don't be caught napping. The age we live in requires that a man should not only have his wife about him, but that he should be careful to utilize his brains in a practical and shrewd business-like manner, avoiding as much as possible persons of evil and unbalanced tactics. There is no reason why the inhabitants of Peterborough should not get a "square deal" in the clothing line, and if there are any who do not, just pay a visit to Habitment Hall, and you will get one hundred cents for every dollar expended there. High Chief Ranger Elliott opened the proceedings in due form.

An address of welcome from the Peterborough members of the Order to the visiting brethren was presented by Bro. A. McNeil, Chief Ranger of Court Peterborough, No. 29.

The following is the address:

To the R. W. High Chief Ranger, Vice-Chief Ranger, Officers and members of the Right Worthing High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters:

Brother—It is with feelings of much pleasure and gratification that as members of Court Peterborough, No. 29, we should have the honor of welcoming to our town for the first time such a representative body of men as the members of the Right Worthing High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters. We trust that your deliberations during the coming session will be characterized by the spirit of advancement and progress, which we hope will be emphasized by the steady march of improvement, looking forward to the time when every city, town, village and hamlet will contain a contingent of the great army of the Canadian Order of Foresters. We, therefore, extend to you a most cordial brotherly welcome, and trust that the memory of the house spent in Peterborough will be recalled with feelings of pleasure in after years, when the Canadian Order of Foresters shall rank second to none, and its beautiful and expressive motto, Liberty, Benevolence and Concord, shall be a household word through the length and breadth of our land.

On behalf, therefore, of Court Peterborough, No. 29, we welcome you to the conference embodied in a right royal Foresters' welcome.

(Signed),
Chairman of Committee.
J. Fanning,
Secretary of Committee.

High Chief Ranger ELLIOTT responded in warm terms, as did other High officers.

THE ENDOWMENT LAW.

On motion of Bro. A. McNeil, seconded by Bro. F. J. JAMIESON, it was resolved that the discussion on the proposed change in the endowment law should be taken at the Wednesday evening session, at 8 o'clock, in the subordinate degree, so that all Foresters of the Canadian Order may be present.

The Standing Committee for the year were elected.SATISFACTORY REPORTS.

The reports of the High Chief Ranger, the High Secretary, High Treasurer, and Chairman of the Medical Board were presented. They show the standing of the Order to be most satisfactory. Especially marked has been the progress during the past year. There has been a gain of 24 subordinate Courts, affording 114, and of 285 members, giving a total membership of 4,500. Several other projected Courts are ready to be instituted. The death claims paid during the year have been 23, still leaving a balance in the endowment fund of $7,000. In the general fund there is also a balance of $1,500, besides supplies to the value of $700.

The Subordinate Courts have also been doing a noble work. They have expended for relief $5,000, for medical aid $3,907, and for burying the dead $675, a total sum of $9,582, expended in relief of brethren and their families. Yet there remains in the Subordinate Court Treasuries $9,188, and they have property to the value of $7,792.

There was no evening session on Tuesday, on account of the excursion, of which a report will be found elsewhere.

You can get Federal Bottom Extension Tables for $2.50, worth $12.50. Best Rim Extension Tables for $6.50, worth $12.50. Handmade Bedsteads for $3.50, worth $6.50, all hardwood, at McKee's Furniture Warehouse, Water Street, three doors north of Simcoe Street.

NORTHWEST REBELLION.

A TERRIBLE TALE OF WAR AND MASSACRE TOLD BY A HALFBRED

The Pursuit of Big Bear - Measures Taken to Prevent Him from Escaping - A Difficult Country to Travel Through.

CALGARY, June 10.—One of the saddest stories of the rebellion was told yesterday to Rev. Father Lacombe. A halfbreed, fatigued, weary and hardly able to stand, walked into the mission. His name is Francis Remosa. Nearly five weeks ago his wife and five children, along

MURDERED NEARBY HIS EYES.
About the time of the Duck Lake fight Remeau was freighting north from Duck Lake for the Hudson Bay Company to Green Lake, returning to Saskatoon from the latter

According to Carlson, not far from the mouth place, Father Pequet told him of the Duck Lake fight, and advised him not to go further south. Father Pequet remained with his family and three other families, and they left for the north, intending to reach Green Lake. The party afterwards divided, leaving Rossman with his family to follow. One day, about five weeks ago, when they were on the trail to Green Lake, and while Rossman was away from camp hunting for game, several Indians and killed someone's wife, his three boys and two girls within sight of the father, who had nothing but a shot gun and a few charges of shot. His first impulse was to rush forward, but the distance was great, and he saw that he could be of no assistance. The Indians also killed the occupants of the other camp, and poor Roman turned about, struck south, and has been nearly five weeks reaching a place of safety, living on akroos, manikins, eggs and roots, some days doing without food. The Indians near of Big North bend and Roman think they have killed more people than is generally known. He lost everything.

STILL PURSUING BIG BEAR.

WINNIPEG, June 10.—Latest courier from Gen. Middleton report him eight miles from Big Bear yesterday. Big Bear is reported making rafts so across Turtle Lake. Otter was taken across by the steamer Barrens at Battleford yesterday, and will be in a good place to intercept the Indians should they slide Middleton. Capt. Bedson has supplies constantly forwarded to Middleton's force.

AN UNCONFIRMED RUMOR.

WINNIPEG, June 10.—A Calgary dispatch gives an unconfirmed report of the drowning of Major Lewis, of the 92nd, and ten men in the Saskatchewan.

HEAVY TRAIN.

BATTLEFORD, June 10.—There is nothing of importance from Pitt. Col. Otter's brigade has reached Jackson lake. Gen. Middleton is making slow time with his flying column. The country is a most difficult one; full of brush and ravines; and the trails are terribly heavy from the heavy rains.

AN ARTILLERY OFFICER ARRESTED.
MONTREAL, June 10.—Capt. Forbes, com-master of the Montreal Garrison artillery, who has just arrived here from the Northwest, has been called on by major Turnbull to return his sword into the armory and consider himself under arrest. The captain says he had the consent of Col. Oswald to leave, but it is stated that he was under arrest when he left. No definite information will be given on the matter.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PAR-LIAMENT OF CANADA.

PETITIONS.
TUESDAY, June 9th.—Petitions against the Franchise Bill and in favor of the Senate amendments to the Scott Act still come in.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.
The House went into Committee on the Franchise Bill.
Classes that had been left for further consideration were passed with some amendments, the subject now being taken up by the House.

COLONIAL AND INDIAN EXHIBITION.
The bill to provide for the fitting representation of Great Britain at the Exhibition of 1884, at Philadelphia, is now before the House of Commons.

1866 or 1868 at the Crystal Palace Exhibition in London, Eng., 1869, was put through several stages and passed.

STEAMBOAT INSPECTION ACT.

Mr. McLEAN moved the second reading of the Bill to amend the Steamboat Inspection Act of 1883. He explained that the principal object of the Bill was to restore the fourth class of steamboat engineers, which was abolished by the Act of 1862. The bill was read a second and third time.

THE LIQUOR LICENSE ACT.

Sir JOHN MACDONALD moved the second reading of the Bill to suspend that part of the Domestic Liquor License Act which had been declared ultra vires by the Supreme Court.

After some discussion and minor amendments the second reading was carried.

THE MOUNTED POLICE.

Sir J. MACDONALD moved a resolution to increase the Northwest Mounted Police to 1,000 men. He said the change was proposed before the rebellion occurred, on account of the increase of the work required from the force.

Mr. BLAIR complained of the increase and cost of the force and of the enlistment of 250 men without asking Parliament. He also attacked the Militia Department for not forming

Mr. CANON ably defended his department, and denounced the constant hostility shown by the Opposition to the volunteers. He showed that Northwest corps had been treated precisely the same as those of in the rest of the Dominion.

The House went into Committee on the resolution, when Mr. Blair again attacked Mr. Carson and the Militia Department. The reso-

"Down With the Dust"

JAMES ALEXANDER, better known as Deacon Alexander, was a Blacksmith and Deacon of the Hamamurrah Incorporation. He happened to be present in his Smithy when a customer entered to get a lock repaired. The Deacon spent fully half an hour in putting the lock in working order. On the completion of the job, the customer, thinking it was only a trifling matter, thanked the Smith very politely, and was passing out of the door, when the Smith in passing, tory voice, recalled him. Re-entering the Smithy headed him a hammer and a nail. "But," exclaimed the astonished customer, "what am I to do with those Deacons?" "Why," replied the Deacon with mock politeness, and pointing at the wall, "Nail 'em there and pay me expenses."

He doubt but the worthy Deacon was right on principle, and for the "Dust Down" you will find at ALEXANDER, on George street, Dry Goods at prices that will astonish you.

CALL AT

JAMES ALEXANDER'S.Daily Evening Review

FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.Boating Club.

There will be a meeting of the members of the Peterborough Boating Club this evening at eight o'clock at the Club House to make arrangements for the season now opening.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Moderate to fresh southerly and south-easterly winds, fair warm weather, followed by a few local showers or thunderstorms to-night or to-morrow, chiefly in the northern portion.

From the Northwest.

Mrs. Thos. Billing has shown up, and left with us that those interested may see it, a curiosity that she has just received from the Northwest, sent to her by her husband, Mr. Thos. Billing, now serving in the G. or Peterborough, Company of the Midland Battalion. It consists of a specimen of campaign bread, or "hard tack," prettily decorated with the wild flowers of the country and appropriate inscriptions by a skillful penman.

Battery Drill.

Major McLean has informed the right division of the Durham Field Battery that he has had no instructions as to the annual battery drill. The drill usually takes place in June each year, but up to the Deputy Adjutant General, Col. Villiers, of Kingston, has received no orders from Ottawa regarding it. Capt. Sanderson and the right division here, however, received an invitation to participate in the sham fight which takes place at Port Hope on July 1st, when a mimic taking of Bechoke will be gone through. Arrangements are being made for the entertainment of the Peterborough detachment, and it is quite probable that the invitation will be accepted.

Personal.

Mr. G. W. Hall, of Hall's Black and On-fectory works, has returned from a business tour down east.

The Norwood Register says that Mr. A. Frauman, of Peterborough, has been engaged as leader of the Norwood Band, and will take up his residence in that village.

The Cobourg World contains the following paragraph:—
"At the late meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference, the stations of both Rev. F. H. Wallace, B. D., and Rev. Jas. Young, were changed—their time in Cobourg, according to rule, having lapsed. The former goes to the Charlotte Street Church in Peterborough, and the latter to the Tabernacle, Belleville. Their many friends in Cobourg will be sorry to part with them. They have proved themselves worthy of the positions which they filled, good citizens, kind neighbors, and able and faithful ministers of the Gospel. They have both been appointed to good churches; and we have no doubt will acquire themselves with equal credit in the stations to which they go."

Mr. Donald MacKay, of the wholesale dry goods firm of Gordon, MacKay & Co., Toronto, paid a visit to this town on Thursday. This was his first visit here for thirty years. He was struck with the handsome appearance of the town generally, but was particularly fond in his praise of George street. When here the last time there was only one brick building on the street, but now it is one of the most business-like thoroughfares in the country. He was, of course, diligently enquiring after the old stock of the McFarlane, McDonald and other families.

For the best place in town try the Rochester Fruit Store, G. Brown, Proprietor.

At the Landowine Bank.

Those who attended the Landowine Roller Rink on Thursday evening were certainly well repaid for their trouble. The bicycle club, owing to some misunderstanding, did not turn out as announced in Thursday's issue, but what was lacking in this respect, was more than made up for by the marvelous performance of Prof. Hurst, of Toronto, who gave an exhibition at the rink like of which has never been witnessed in Peterborough. The numerous different feats executed by this "bicycle wonder," kept the large audience spell-bound. What he cannot do on a bicycle is hard to say, but all he can do is a vast deal. If ever manager Brown brings him back to Peterborough he will doubtless meet with hearty support. After the performance on the bicycle, a mile race on roller skates came off. For this race there were eight entries and Messrs. LeBrun, Daly and Vance acted as judges. The participants all got off fairly even together, and had to make sixteen laps around the rink to complete the mile. The falls on getting around corners were numerous, in fact too numerous for some of them, as they lost considerably by such falls. After the first few laps it was evident that the race was to be between Messrs. W. Lech and W. Logan. The latter tried hard for first place, but it was of no use and the former won by about half a lap. Mr. Brown in opening up points to afford entertainment for those who attend the Landowine rink and are pleased to see him meeting with success. The Fire Brigade Band was in attendance and as usual rendered the choicest of choice music.

The Weather.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

To Sing Sing.

The canoes manufactured by the Ontario Canoe Company are finding their way to every part of this continent, as well as to various places in Britain. Last evening one "Juniper" with complete attachments, was shipped to Mr. E. J. Becker, Sing Sing, New York.

The High Court.

The last session of the present sitting of the High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters was held on Thursday evening. All business was wound up satisfactorily and the delegates departed for their respective homes by the morning trains of the different railways. A few of the High Court Officers are still here.

Stunned.

On Thursday evening a gentleman was getting into the Royal Mail cart, which was standing near the post office, he slipped and fell, striking his head on the wheel and then falling heavily to the ground between the cart and the sidewalk, where he lay stunned for a few minutes. He was picked up and conveyed home in the cart.

Stunned.

On Thursday afternoon, two young men, who were pretty well loaded with some intoxicant, amused themselves in the Central Park by feigning to stab each other, each time pointing the blades of their jack-knives outward, but turning them when giving the blow. One drew back and made, as he thought, a feint, but he had forgotten to turn the blade and the result was that an ugly gash was inflicted in the leg of his companion in inebriation. The wound bled profusely for a while, and this had the effect of sobering up the unfortunate somewhat, for after he had bled it up as well as he could he limped off home.

Tat the Rochester Fruit Store for Fresh Strawberries, Pine Apples, Oranges, Lemons, Bananas and green vegetables of all descriptions fresh every day. Prices low. G. Brown, Proprietor.

The Last Session.

The last session of the Teachers' Institute, conducted by the Rev. J. McEwen on the afternoons and evenings of Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, was held on Thursday evening. The school room of St. Paul's church, where it was held, was comfortably filled, the attendance being larger than at any preceding session of the Institute. The subject was: "The vital steps in the approach, the process and product of teaching a Sunday School lesson," and the text of the subject was closely adhered to during the evening's discourse. The conductor first dealt with the various methods of communicating knowledge to the child, and then took up and accurately explained the way in which the lessons should be prepared by the teacher. It should be read over at least five times, the teacher concentrating his thought throughout each reading on one of the aspects in which it might be viewed. At the conclusion of the session there was an effort put forth to establish a permanent Institute here. A motion was put, and carried, appointing the Superintendents of the different Sunday Schools and one of the staff of teachers to be a committee to arrange for the establishing of such Institute. Mr. J. H. Roper, Superintendent of St. Paul's Church School, to be the Convener, and Mr. A. L. Davis, Superintendent of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church School, to be the Secretary of the committee.

All in Wet Feet.

It is indeed distressing to hear of unfortunate and too venturesome individuals (and there are many of them) staking their little all in some scheme which promises to bring them in a handsome return for their money, but in the end proves a decided failure. Many a man has lost a fortune in a few months by being too fond of dabbling in unwise, and in many cases, totally unknown ventures. Fortune sometimes comes to smile on one when sudden wealth is almost within their grasp, and they are financially raised. Some, however, in their determination to fight life's battles, put on a fresh armour and renew hostilities against down-trodden fortune, and regain what was at first supposed to be irretrievably lost. Men are, as a rule, too anxious to grow suddenly wealthy, and in a vain effort to do so, grow careless concerning their own happiness and that of their human. Too many are in the habit of spending all their valuable hours over the counting desks, mourning over losses in stock, or perhaps congratulating themselves on some slight gain in wealth. To them and to any others whom "the cap might fit," we would say: Don't worry over your losses in this world, and don't reject too much over wealth gotten by "flukes," but call at A. McNeil's, get a suit of his nobby clothes, and be happy like other people.

SIR,—I notice certain book advertisements and special in the columns of one of your contemporaries, which, to me, seem somewhat unusual for and out of place. I have only been a subscriber in your enterprising town for five weeks, but in that time I have placed something over $1,000.00 worth of books on subscription, besides making several very satisfactory cash sales. The knowledge of my success no doubt rattles in the minds of some in the book business here, who, all other means failing, descend to the meanest of baiting my goods, which I claim to be far superior to anything before offered to the Peterborough public. It seems strange to me that it was only after I reached town that your bookdealers wrote to me of their duty to the public. We sell year after year at a fair living profit, allowing subscribers a reasonable time to fulfil their contracts, whereas local dealers having a monopoly two-thirds of the season, are "drilled to death" when a go-ahead competitor enters the arena, and consequently proceed at once to fret of their own heads, thinking thereby to injure us. How could that be, when it is really only gives us a chance to pollyolly inform our many friends, that take what class of work be or they may choose—we can (should it come to a war in prices) sell cheaper than he or they can buy, and still meet all our engagements! In conclusion, I may say that on our return to town in the near future, there is a probability of our opening a branch subscription house. When such time arrives we don't despair of meeting all our friends, and will be ready for our enemies. Thanking you for the space accorded to your valuable paper.

THE COUNCILLORS TAKE A DRIVE

To inspect the improvements being made at the New Agricultural Grounds.

In response to an invitation given by the West Riding Agricultural Society, a number of the members of the Town Council assembled at 9 o'clock on Friday afternoon to take a drive down to the new agricultural grounds and see what improvements are being made, and hear of what improvements are in contemplation.

One of the conveyed Councillors Davidson, McClelland, McNaughton, Kelly, Yelland and Green, the Town Clerk, and the representatives of the daily papers. Mr. John Carnegie, President of the Society, and Councillor Menzies drove down in a buggy, as did also Mayor Cox and Dr. Kinnaird, ex-M. P. Arriving at the place of the building to be made on the site of the grounds, where the President of the Society pointed out that not only the twelve acres belonging to the Society would be used in exhibition times, but also the sixteen acres comprising the Driving Park would be used.

The horse stalls which are being erected on the south side were inspected. The total length of the building is six hundred and forty-three feet. This will be divided into single and double stalls, numbering ninety-three stalls.
By a four foot projection of the roof of the sheds the spectators, in case of wet weather, will be sheltered from rain as they walk along looking at the exhibits. A short discussion followed as to the buildings to be erected.
Councillor McClelland, also an energetic member of the Society, said that the Society intended ultimately to build a main exhibition building, a dairy hall, a machinery hall, a horticultural pavilion, and other small structures.

The Mayor suggested that the plans of the building be made in accordance with what is intended that they should ultimately be,
and each year to build them piece by piece.

The Driving Park was next visited, and all concerned in the fact that it would be one of the best places in Canada for exhibiting and speeding horses in connection with the exhibition. One lap was made and then the worthy councillors were driven back. A discussion arose as to the opening up of George Street to the exhibition grounds. All agreed that it was a work that should be done, and that the longer it was put off the more it would cost.

If the Town and County Councillors support the scheme of erecting suitable buildings on the new grounds, it is more than probable that the Provincial exhibition will be held in Peterborough at least within the next two years.
Five hundred dollars from each body is all that the Society has yet asked.

AN EXPLANATION.

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In looking over the columns of the Evening Review of Friday, I came across a paragraph from the pen of one Lawford, the Captain of the Bicycle Club, in which I naturally took an interest. The gentleman writing the article in question, the Editor of the Review, stated that the bicycle club was a "Pretty Sight," which appeared in our issue of Thursday, stating that the Bicycle Club would turn out and escort Mr. Hunt, the professional bicyclist, of Toronto, down George street from the post office corner to the Lan-downe Roller Rink, where this gentleman was to give an exhibition, was inaccurate. The writer says that "the item was evidently inserted by someone not in any way connected with the Bicycle Club, and who had no right to use the name of the Club as an advertisement." I wished to inform Mr. Lawford that I did not intend to hurt his very sensitive feelings when I called this item to his attention, and in answer to him would simply state that, having interviewed several members of the club, who were and all appeared not only willing, but anxious to have a meeting with Mr. Hunt, and not knowing the rules of the club, did not deem it necessary, under the circumstances, to ask the consent of this ambitious "knight of the wheel."
I fully expected that the club would turn out of their own accord and do honor to a visiting bicyclist, such as Prof. Hunt. As to the charge of using the name of the club for an advertisement, the thing is too funny for anything.
When next Mr. Lawford rushes into print to defend the honor of the club he explains, he had better be a little surer of the march.

of ministry in England will not involve any change in the position of Earl Dufferin.

cher, reporter of the Senate Committee to the pointed the Marquis of Salisbury to form a new Cabinet.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

COW BOY RUN.
The Marquis of Salisbury's employment of the Amusing Bunchman of Hootons.

"I shall never forget an experience of mine in Montana a little over two years ago," said Brahman Scholcher of the Northern Pacific.
"There were Andrews the conductor, Wythe the engineer, Colby the fireman, and myself running No. 3 passenger on the Montana division, and one night about dusk we were getting out of Miles city when a red light was seen by the engine and we stopped the train.
Just as it stopped about a dozen cowboys stepped up in full uniform, each one with a brace of revolvers in his belt, got into the coaches, while a few more of them guarded the engine. I knew trouble was coming as soon as I saw them get up, and I took a seat among the passengers. The conductor did not appear at first to realize that anything was wrong, but went to the forward part of the coach, when half a dozen of buck-knife boys grabbed him and sent him upon the roof. He protested, but the boys paid no attention other than to tell him not to move a finger, and as they were going to shoot the head of the train, I stepped out of the fun, though I lay mighty close feeling that they would notice me, and that they didn't before the conductor was shot the back of his head. He was white as a snow flake, but he held up bravely, fearing a misadventure. Then they caught me and tied me and a passenger back to back and set to over a coat, and then commenced betting among themselves which would pull the other over. The stakes were put up and then two of them got rough, knocking me up with their fists.
The fellow I had picked against was a Swede, and neither of us had any show to pull the other over the end and went so far over that he broke my back. We were located there, and they took the Swede's boots off and stood him on his head and then played the basquin on the sole of his foot. We were forced to leave the train, and then commenced betting among

VOLUNTEERS APPRECIATED.

The Toronto Globe having expressed the opinion that the volunteers should not be accorded a reception on their return from the Northwest, that a monument should not be erected in memory of those who fell, and that those who took part in suppressing the rebellion should not be given a medal, tries to make its readers believe that Sir John Macdonald shares in its opinion of the volunteers by saying that "Sir John Macdonald professes to believe that the common militia are merely food for powder." It is unnecessary to say that Sir John Macdonald did not profess to believe any such thing. In the discussion on the Mounted Police, Sir John expressed the opinion that the policemen, on account of their peculiar duties, required more intelligence than an ordinary soldier. He made his meaning plain by afterwards adding: "I spoke of soldiers. Our volunteers are more than soldiers." And yet the organ meekly tries to twist his words, and falsify his statements, to apply them as a slur upon the volunteers who have acted so nobly in the Northwest Territories. Words of praise were spoken, and the Globe would have the readers believe they were words of disparagement. The Premier also stated that the recognition of the services of the volunteers would not be confined to words alone, but that in a material way the country's sense of obligation to them would be marked. As the Globe opposed giving them a medal, perhaps the intimation that a more substantial reward would be given is what aroused its anger.

The Brockville Recorder discourses on the Franchise Bill as follows:—"A white man living in Brockville, who pays taxes, is subject to military service, liable to be called on a jury or to do any other duty required of him as a citizen, and who earns his property, must have real estate to the value of $500, or earn wages to the amount of $300, before he can vote under Sir John Macdonald's Franchise Bill, while an Indian on a reserve, who is subject to no public service, who stands as an infant in the eyes of the law, whose property has been given him by the people, requires only $100 worth of real estate to vote. Why is a white man no more inferior to an Indian?"

The Recorder is guilty of several errors of omission and commission. A white man who pays a rental of $20 a year, or whose rented property is assessed for $100 a year, is entitled to a vote. The property of the Indian on the reserve has not been given to him by the people. The Indians owned the land, and he sold a portion of it to the country, but the lands known as reserves they retained. An Indian does not even vote on that property alone, for his improvements must be of the value of $150 before he can vote, whereas a white voter's land and property need amount only to $100. If there is any disadvantage, the Indian is still in the worst position, but being allowed to vote is a great improvement in his condition.

LIMBAY.
AN ELECTRIC LIGHT PROJECT.—The latest project is that of a company organized to establish at Fenelon Falls a powerful electric light plant and by means of suitable wires serve the district within a radius of thirty miles with the luminous current. Fenelon Falls village, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay and all available points would participate in the general illumination.

PERSONAL.—Rev. W. Lambert, formerly B. C. minister here (before the action) was in town Wednesday on a visit to friends and received a hearty welcome. Mr. Lambert is reported to Hastings this year by conference. The people of Hastings will find Mr. Lambert earnest and eloquent in the pulpit and genial and straightforward in every day life—a decided acquisition to their prosperous village.

THE SCOTT ACT IN VICTORIA COUNTY.—It has been decided not to ask the submission of the act to the vote of the electors of the county of Victoria until the end of September or beginning of October. The petition has been accepted by the secretary of state and all that will be necessary now is to agree upon a date after harvest which will be convenient for the electors. There is apparently no objection to the act in the case of prohibition in its integrity.—Post.

CHEESE MARKET.—A cheese market was held at Lindsay on Friday. All the district factories were represented and 200 cheeses of May make were offered. Messrs. Cook and Flavell were the buyers present. As 6 cents was the highest bid, no sales were made and the meeting adjourned for one week.—Warrior.

The Extent of the British Empire.
The British Empire covers nearly a sixth of the land surface of the earth. The entire surface of the globe is estimated at 197,000,000 square miles, of which a little more than a quarter, or 51,500,000 square miles, are land, and the total extent of the British empire is 9,900,211 square miles, which may be tabulated thus:—

	Square Miles.
Great Britain and Ireland	32,145
Indian possessions	1,624,384
Other Eastern possessions	1,000,000
Australia	2,115,544
North America	2,838,500
China, etc.	1,000,000
Africa	270,000
West Indies	14,700
European possessions	120
Various settlements	94,171
Total	9,900,211

The population of this enormous empire is estimated at 210,250,000 souls, and well was it said to be "a power which has dotted the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military posts, whose morning drum beat following the sun and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial air of England."

INCREASED CAPACITY.

BRODIE'S WOOLLEN MILL ENLARGED AND IMPROVED.

New Machinery Added—An Effective System of Fire Protection to be Introduced.

During the past two months Mr. Brodie has received several consignments of machinery from the different manufacturers to furnish the new addition which has been made to his factory on Mill street, and it is only within the last few days that all of the new machinery has been adjusted, placed in position, and started to work.

THE ADDITION.
The new part of the factory consists of a frame addition 15x60 feet, three stories high with a high stone foundation. The addition is situated on the east side, next the river, and runs the full length of the main building, with the exception of about forty feet.

The present size of the main building is 100x57 feet. The cost of the addition is between $1,200 and $1,500.

THE MACHINERY.
Which has been added is all of the latest and most improved kind. The list of the machinery for furnishing the additional room is as follows: Eleven fancy Knowles' looms, together with warping and spooling machinery; one set of cards complete and one spinning mule. The carding, warping and spinning machinery was manufactured by Messrs. Goldie & McCulloch, Galt, Ont., and the new looms by Cant & Gortley, Galt, Ont., and the spinning machinery by John Tatham, Rochester, Eng. The new machinery will cost in all about $10,000. There are now three sets of cards and thirty broad looms in these mills, and with the additional facilities the manufacturing capacity is increased one third.

FIRE PROTECTION.

The old saw, "experience over teaches," has been verified once more. Mr. Brodie is determined, if it lies in his power, to prevent another such loss as that suffered by him last fall, first by fire, but more by the attending delay in getting the mills into operation again. A rotary force pump, made by the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, is now being put in. A stand pipe will be put up in every flat, attached to which will be seventy-five feet of hose, and two hydrants will be placed on the grounds. The water will be supplied by the rotary pump, which has power to force the water to any part of the buildings from either of the outside hydrants. Another notable feature in the reconstruction of the factory is the fact that the engine house is now quite isolated from the other buildings. This lessens the fire risk largely.

THE AGREEMENT.

The agreement between the Town Council and Mr. Brodie, whereby the factory of the latter was to be exempted from taxation for ten years, was that by the fall of the year 1885 three sets of cards should be in operation, and that not fewer than thirty hands should be employed. Three sets of cards are now in, but the way in which the mills are running greatly exceeds the agreement. The carding and spinning departments being in operation night and day. Instead of thirty hands being employed, there are, on an average, seventy-five persons receiving employment.

S. DAVIS AND SON'S CIGAR MFG.

The Home of the "El Padre," "Cable," "Moderns," etc.—A Monster Establishment for the Manufacture of the Franchise Weed.

The city of Montreal boasts the possession of acres of colonial structures devoted to the interests of trade and commerce, structures that afford the strongest evidence of the extent of her manufacturing, import interests. Prominent among these in the new premises erected by the above-mentioned firm, whose brands of cigars are a household word throughout the Dominion. These brands are the "El Padre," "Cable," "Moderns," and others, and no other guarantee of excellence is needed to the consumer than that his cigar bears either of these well-known stamps.

THE CHINA PALACE is located on Cote-street, in the very heart of the city, and its seven stories of graceful architecture form a prominent feature amid its busy surroundings. In exterior beauty and interior capaciousness and business convenience it is doubtless the most complete structure of the kind in America. The front is made increasingly attractive by two pictures que towers, one at either corner, and the stone, iron, and brick materials are blended into chaste architectural effects. The factory has a frontage of 86 feet and a depth of 108—an area of nearly 10,000 square feet. The stairways are in the towers, separated from the main building by wrought iron doors. The conveniences and steam elevators are also in detached towers, the least the immense rooms unobstructed. Though the firm has but recently entered the new buildings, yet its history dates back for many years, and its career has been marked by honors won in competitions with the largest manufacturers of the world. At

FARMER IN 1887.

Messrs. Davis & Son secured the first Medal, for best quality cigars, and at Philadelphia in 1876 the medal for the best value. In this latter competition the contest was for value of goods at a given price. Of course the "El Padre" and "Cable" were the most successful. The Dominion and Provincial Exhibitions, and the newer brands: "Moderns," "Very Fine," "Fidelity," etc., are rapidly coming into favor. The "Moderns" as a 10 cent and 15 cent article, is made a specialty of.

"THE BOARD OF TRADE."

The official organ of the Montreal Board of Trade notices the firm in the following terms:—"No cheap lines of cigars are manufactured. Their goods are placed before the trade at prices ranging from $50 to $75 per thousand. Volumes might be written in the various departments through which the 'leaf' passes before it reaches the smoker, classifying and packing. Throughout, the house is noted for its courteous and liberal dealing with its customers having, by the promptness and good faith it has always shown to patrons, and keeping one of the largest and best stocks in the Dominion, built up a large and productive business. Their trade on the far west, and for this reason, coupled with the advantages they are offering, we have deemed it a duty to call their establishment into prominence, although it needs it not, as the tongue of good report has brought their house into greater popularity than we can do in a cursory sketch."

THE FINEST EXPORTABLE IN THE SYSTEM employed to handle this mammoth industrial pursuit, emanates from that close relationship found between the senior Mr. S. Davis and the three sons, F. H., M. E., and W. B. Davis. They are among the very foremost of Montreal's enterprising public spirited, and responsible citizens, and have reflected, throughout their entire business career of 22 years in our midst, the highest credit on the city.

THE ECONOMIC DIMENSIONS to which the trade has grown have rendered it necessary to provide for the demands of the western portions of the country, and the shipment of goods—this is done from the head office at Montreal—but to provide convenient sample rooms and western headquarters for the large staff of travellers employed.

NOTE.

The population of an ordinary village finds employment in this establishment, as fully seven hundred hands are needed. The whole premises are about to be illuminated with the incandescent electric light. Each flat has an office for its superintendent, situated in front, the windows of which are of stained glass.

Wardrobes, lavatories, etc., are provided on each flat. The cost of the buildings and equipments averaged $100,000. The firm make a specialty of the fine and pure quality and flavor of the leaf used.

The furnace and brush boiler are in a separate building in the rear, and steam is conveyed to the engine and throughout the main building by iron pipes. All the doors are of iron, and the factory is therefore rendered as nearly fire-proof as possible.

Notes Tree a Bear.

Joseph Gilbert, the superintendent of the great farming operations of the Langens ranch, on Wednesday discovered a large cinnamon bear in one of the corrals of the ranch occupied by a band of mules. Bruin had evidently regarded himself on some young pigs and gone into the mule corral to get a drink of water. While Mr. Gilbert was gone to the house to get a rifle to shoot the bear, the mules became offended at the stranger and struck at him right and left, and all other ways known to an earnest and active mule. The heaviest battalions were on the side of the mules, and when Mr. Gilbert returned the bear had climbed a tree to escape their fury. It was then discovered that his bearship had a short chain attached to him, and on the presumption that somebody had let a bear, the workman on the ranch climbed another tree near by and with a rifle lashed the brute and brought him down to terra firma.—Los Angeles Herald.

The burglar who attempted to make two free

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, JUNE 15, 1885.

A NEW TEST FOR VOTERS.

THE Ottawa Free Press has not yet tired of discussing the Indian vote. It says:—
"A Munceetown Indian has been tried for having whiskey in his possession. A white man in a Munceetown court is not liable to trial for the same offence, unless he steals or illegally distills it. The Munceetown Indian who is in the eye of the law is not competent to be trusted as a white man is with a bottle of whiskey, is in the eye of Sir John Macdonald competent to be trusted with a ballot."

From an advocate of the Scott Act and prohibitory laws, this is somewhat ambiguous. Does the Free Press mean to say that before an Indian should be allowed to vote the law prohibiting him from drinking whiskey should be repealed? And does it profess to believe that if he was allowed to drink whiskey he would be more able to vote intelligently? Some men are afraid to trust themselves with a bottle of whiskey, and they bind themselves by a solemn vow to have nothing to do with it. Should they be disfranchised when they profess that they "are not competent to be trusted" with a bottle of liquor? The law does not permit the sale of liquor in Simcoe County, while in many other counties it is not prohibited. Should the people of Simcoe be disfranchised because "in the eyes of the law" they are not competent to be trusted with retail liquor stores, while in other counties the people can purchase all they wish? Is "competency to be trusted with a bottle of whiskey" to be made one of the necessary qualifications of a voter? If this principle is adopted, we presume the advocates of cumulative voting will argue that the number of votes a man should have should be determined by the number of bottles he can be trusted with and the possession of a well-filled flask will be a certain guarantee of admittance to the polling booth.

FRAUDULENT PETITIONS.

A NUMBER of petitions have been presented to Parliament which are described as being against the Franchise Bill. They are not petitions against the Franchise Bill, as it passed the Committee of the House, nor even against the Bill as it was introduced. They are petitions against an imaginary Bill, falsely asserted by the circular petitions and the hired canvassers, to be before the House of Commons.

One of these petitions has been published in full by the Globe. There is not a sentence in it that is not a falsehood. Such petitions are obviously of no value as an index of public opinion, and they are mere insults to the Legislature of our Dominion.

THE London Advertiser has the following editorial paragraph:—
"Our esteemed contemporary the Peterborough Review devotes nearly a column of its space to prove that the voting power should be given to such Indians as Dr. Oronohyastekha. It would have spared the Review a good deal of mental agony had it known, as the Advertiser knows, that the Doctor already exercises the power of voting."

Assuming this to be correct, for the sake of argument, it does not alter the fact that the London Advertiser and other Reform journals—that Messrs. Mills and Paterson, and other Reform politicians—have been raging against the Government for allowing tribal Indians to vote, and Dr. Oronohyastekha being a tribal Indian, would be excluded from the franchise if these opponents of educated Indians could enforce their views.

A Comedian in Despair.

At the Zoo matinee yesterday afternoon Mr. Geo. H. Adams seemed to be working in his richest vein of humor and kept the audience in the lower part of the house convulsed with laughter, but was sorely perplexed at the stolid demeanor of the occupants of the gallery. He determined to move them and fired a joke in that direction. It hit everywhere but in the gallery. He tried again. No effect. He grew desperate and settled down to work out his purpose as though his life were at stake. The lower part of the house was taken by storm, but the serene tranquility of the gallery was unbroken. At this critical juncture Manager Tammany came to the rescue and explained to the despairing comedian that Mr. Mills, the business manager, had invited the people from the Deaf and Dumb Institute to attend the matinee and had seated them in the gallery. Mr. Adams fainted—almost.—Belleville Intelligence.

A Very Strange Family.

Several Kingstonians, below Gananoque, some across a very remarkable family, consisting of two men and two women, brothers and sisters. They have a magnificent farm, the house being built upon the back end. No visible road leads to the residence. The family live much by themselves and it is said that at least two of the family have not been beyond the confines of the farm for 30 years. One, the business manager, only goes out in the spring and fall when he shells his grain and butter. The family are wealthy. Neighbors told the visitors to be cautious in approaching the house, as they might find themselves shut out, the inmates being so shy. One man went first, and catching the family kept them engaged until the others arrived. Everything about the place was neat and—Kingston Whig.

A Visit to the Little Lake Cemetery—The Appearance of the "City of the Dead."
—An Earthly Paradise.

The Little Lake Cemetery is, perhaps, at the time of writing, looking prettier than ever. Leafy June is a seasonable time to pay a visit to this beautiful spot, and at no other time of the year do the flowers and foliage look better. As one strolls along the different paths, viewing the pretty flowers, reading the pathetic verses on stones that mark the last resting place of friends, listening to the red breast and other feather-throated warblers as they carol sweet music from their lofty perches in the pines, and ever remembering the fact that man's race on this earth is but a short one, the visitor cannot but wish that when his earthly course is run and all the cares of this world are left behind, he too will be laid away to rest in some quiet and shady spot such as this cemetery is, where nothing will disturb him until Judgment day. Season after season, as one visits the cemetery, fresh graves and new monuments are to be seen. Often when passing along the different avenues a new tombstone is observed that tells where perhaps a dear friend or, maybe, a relative has been laid away in his bed of turf. Fond recollections of happy, by-gone days will then be brought back again from the garden of memory, and the form that was once so dear is again before our eyes.

A Review representative having paid a visit to this "City of the Dead" lately made an inspection of many of the lots and graves therein, and will endeavor to give the readers of the REVIEW the benefit of his visit. Since last season, Mr. Kelly, the indefatigable Superintendent, has made many improvements. What was only a thicket of brush, in some places last season, is now transferred into lovely lots. Alterations have been made in many places, and the good work continues to prosper. Mr. Kelly, who has entered upon his eleventh year as Superintendent, is truly the right man to have charge of such a cemetery as the one in question, and he appears untiring in his efforts this year to make this loved and revered spot still more picturesque, if such a thing were possible, than ever.

THE LUNDY LOT.—On entering the cemetery this beautiful lot is one of the first that strikes the eye. The large monument, pretty flowers, exquisite roses, vines, etc., together with the general appearance of the lot, can not fail to draw forth the admiration of all who see it.

THE MCNAUGHTON LOT.—This lot is becoming a pretty one. Flowers, shrubs, etc., are planted in profusion.

THE HALL BROS. LOT is perhaps one of the neatest and most attractive in the cemetery. A handsome flower bed (characteristic of the Order of Oddfellows) comprising the three links, neatly and artistically joined, filled with a variety of foliage plants and flowers, makes the lot very attractive.

THE DAVID HENTHORN LOT is receiving careful attention. A pretty hydrangea plant of unusual excellence sits in a large vase at the foot of the grave, while at the head a basket of flowers of different varieties adds considerably to the good appearance of the lot.

THE PETER HAMILTON LOT is looking pretty as usual. The flowers are all in full bloom, and the lot generally is attractive.

THE HATTON LOT, where are laid to rest the remains of our late and highly esteemed Police Magistrate, is made to look pretty with large vases of flowers, roses, shrubs and vines.

THE ULLYOTT LOT is looking well, and gives evidence of care and attention. Pretty flowers are planted there, and the lot generally looks well.

THE MCGHEE LOT, where the friends of the late John McGhee laid him away to rest after his melancholy death by drowning in the Little Lake, is indeed a handsome one. Flowers, trees, shrubs and vines vie with each other for beauty, while the large marble monument adds an additional charm to the solemnity and grandeur of the spot.

THE GLO. MCCOMBS LOT looks well, and is evidently receiving close attention from the caretaker and others.

MR. H. CALCUTT'S LOT presents a very neat and attractive appearance. The flowers, rich in their profusion, green shrubs and vines, are all well worthy the attention of the visitor, and the whole lot has an air of good care and attention.

THE BRAVIS LOT is being put in first class order, and when completed will look well.

THE JOHN WHITE LOT is indeed a handsome sight. Rose bushes, flowers, vines and shrubs are all looking healthy and in good order.

THE LAMAR LOT is, as usual, looking exceedingly pretty, and is receiving the careful attention at the hands of the superintendent it has always got.

THE RAY. V. CLEMENT LOT is in a good locality, and the large stone framework that surrounds it, together with the handsome monument, adds greatly to its good appearance.

THE BARRE LOT presents a beautiful appearance, as does also the RICHMOND LOT adjoining. Flowers, shrubs, vines, etc., are to be seen here in profusion.

THE ADAM HALL LOT is, as ever, looking very neat and pretty. A large vase of flowers is placed in position at the head of the grave where lies the remains of his little daughter, and generally the lot looks fresh and green.

THE ROBERT HALL LOT also looks as if loving hands tended it, and the exquisite flowers planted in it adds a great deal to the beautification of the lot.

THE RICHARD HALL LOT, too, looks well, and gives evidence of close attention from caretaker and relatives alike.

THE WILLIAM GALLAY LOT is a very handsome one, and when the improvements that are being made are completed, it will present a neat and attractive appearance.

THE DAVIDSON LOT looks well. Four hanging baskets filled with flowers, and a snow ball bush of unusual excellence add greatly to the good appearance of it.

THE ODDFELLOWS LOT cannot fail to draw attention. The flower beds representing the three links are filled with pretty flowers of different kinds, while a large vase of flowers in bloom makes the lot one worthy of more than passing notice.

THE MERCEZ LOT is being well cared for, and looks equally well with many others.

THE KING LOT is a pretty one, and is evidently well attended by the caretaker. The fresh blooming flowers are pretty and neatly arranged.

THE EDWARDS LOT presents a fine appearance just now. The flowers, shrubs, rosebushes and foliage plants are receiving the best of attention. Hanging baskets of flowers are conspicuous, and the general appearance of the lot is good.

THE ELWIN CHAMBERLAIN LOT is looking well, as usual, and a variety of choice new flowers are being planted therein.

THE JUDGE DENTMOUNT LOT looks fresh and green. A very handsome granite monument is placed in the lot, and tells the names of those who have gone on before to join the great majority.

THE JUDGE HALL LOT is receiving good care and attention, and is looking very well.

THE DICKSON LOT is indeed a pretty one. Willow trees, flowers, shrubs, vines and rose bushes add greatly to the otherwise good appearance of it.

THE GOODFELLOW LOT (Springville), is, perhaps, one of the prettiest in the cemetery. Hanging baskets, filled with choice flowers, and other plants of different kinds add to the good appearance of the last resting place of the dead, who sleep beneath the green sod below.

THE LATE RYER, JOHN GILMORE LOT has lately been re-arranged by the superintendent and is now a decidedly handsome lot.

THE J. W. FLAVELLE LOT looks well, as usual. The flowers are in full bloom, and a handsome vase is also well filled with pretty plants.

THE HADLAIN LOT are receiving careful attention from the caretaker.

THE LATE DAVID CARLISLE (JR.) LOT, gives evidence of the attention of loving hands.

THE MCWHINERY LOT and the GOODFELLOW LOT adjoining are both well cared for. Flowers and shrubs are planted in profusion.

THE BENNETT LOT looks excellent. A large bronze monument (the only one of the kind in the cemetery) adds greatly to the good appearance of the lot. No doubt other monuments of this kind will be erected.

THE SANDERSON LOT (Cavan), presents a neat and pretty appearance. Flowers of various kinds are planted in profusion, and the lot generally looks neat and attractive.

THE W. A. KING LOT is securing the usual good attention from the caretaker. It is a handsome lot, and looks to be in good order.

THE COCHRANE LOT, although a new one, presents a good appearance. Pretty flowers of different varieties are planted therein, and the lot looks well.

MR. W. H. RACKHAM'S LOT is a pretty one. Herein are laid away to rest the remains of the late Mrs. W. H. Rackham, awaiting in peace the sound of the last trumpet, when the graves shall give up their dead, and the righteous will be in glory with God. The lot is a good one, and looks well.

THE JAS. HOWDEN LOT is encircled with a beautiful green hedge, and flowers of various kinds are planted therein.

THE STEWART LOT has been beautified by the erection of a large white monument, while flowers, vines, etc., have also been planted.

THE WALTER PATTERSON (JR.) LOT is looking well as usual, and gives evidence of care and attention.

THE CART. WALLIS LOT looks very neat and attractive. Flowers, roses, vines, etc., are planted in profusion.

THE S. WHITE LOT is planted with an endless variety of sweet smelling flowers, rose bushes, etc., and is one of the many pretty lots that are to be seen in the Little Lake Cemetery.

THE S. MILLIKEN LOT is a pretty one and attracts general attention.

THE W. W. JOHNSON LOT is also a noticeable one. Flowers, roses, vines, etc., add much to the appearance of the lot.

THE MACFARLANE LOT has been improved by the erection of a large Scotch granite monument and the design is good.

THE LATE W. H. SCOTT LOT has been newly sodded, and otherwise greatly improved in appearance.

THE (WILLIAM AND POOLE) EASTLAND LOTS are both looking well, and receiving close attention.

THE LUCAS SHERLOCK LOTS are being put into excellent shape. It is the intention of Mr. Sherlock to have a handsome monument erected in one of his lots in memory of his son, the late John A. Sherlock, who died while on his way home from Egypt, where he went with the Nile voyageurs to participate in the Sudan war. When erected it will be viewed by hundreds of his friends and acquaintances, who will ever have a kind word and fond thought for one who gave his life for the good of his country.

THE GENERAL APPEARANCE OF THE CEMETERY is good. Handsome new monuments have been erected in many lots, among them one for the late Richard Wright, who was universally respected by everyone.

There are many other lots and pretty graves in the cemetery that are well worthy of notice, but time and space will not permit of it at present. Visitors continue numerous on Sundays, and there are by no means a few on week days.

It is painful to those who know what the result must be, to see the work of destruction the water of the Little Lake is doing to the road leading to the Cemetery. We have spoken of this matter before, and feel in duty bound to do so again and again, until action is taken.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, JUNE 15, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Council Meeting.

A meeting of the Town Council will be held at 7.45 o'clock this evening.

Acknowledgment.

Mr. Wm. Spence wishes to thank the Fire Brigade, his neighbors and others who assisted in extinguishing the fire at his premises on Friday afternoon.

Knight of Labour.

And members of the union, and workers in general, are requested to attend on Friday evening, June 15, at the Temperance Hall, Water street, at 8 o'clock sharp.

Reserved Success.

The Milton (Halt county) Sun appears to be prospering in the hands of Mr. Watson. A new press and other additions have been made to the plant, and the paper is to be enlarged on the first of next month. Its success is deserved.

The Landowner's Bitter Drink.

There was a very large attendance at the above rink on Saturday evening. The Fire Brigade Band was in attendance and during the evening discoursed charming music to the skaters. As usual the grand march was much admired by the spectators, and viewed from the gallery above it looked very pretty.

Quick Work.

Last week Mr. Thos. Hokay, of the 7th line of Smith, caught, clipped and sheared, and banded his own wool, twenty-six South Down sheep, on the farm of Mr. Robert Walton, in four hours and twenty minutes. The South Down sheep are the hardest to shear of any, and as this work is evidently fast, we ask the question: Who can beat it?

No Business.

There was no case for hearing at the Police Court this morning, and consequently Mr. Jas. Stevenson, J. P., who takes charge in the absence of the Magistrate, had his walk over for nothing. But if there is no business to-day, tomorrow promises to make up for it. Two informations for assault have already been laid.

A Big Fall in the Prices of White.

Shirts and Gent's Underwear at Turnbull's owing to the many job lots thrown on the retail market this season.

The Barracks Attacked.

On Sunday evening while the Salvation Army were conducting their service at the barracks, Aylmer street, the soldiers, officers and spectators were startled to hear a stone come crashing through one of the windows. A second smashed another window, and the sounds of several more were heard pinging the roof. The first one came through the second window from the east on the south side, and the second through the most easterly one on the same side. The stone, neither of which were very large, fell on the floor and hurt no one. Several of the officers went out, but the culprit or culprits were not to be found.

A Run.

Three Peterborough members of the wheelcraft, took their bicycles out on Sunday morning, intending to take a run to Keneo. They arrived at that place in good time, when one proposed extending the tour as far as Hastings. This was agreed to, and the continuation run was also made in good time. Such confidence had these three in their powers of endurance that they determined to return by way of Newwood. They arrived home in the evening, well tired out, after having made about thirty three miles, over rough roads, that is, for the bike.

Saturday Night on George Street.

With a considerable portion of our population the Saturday night promenade on George street has become one of the events of the week. As one stands at some corner of vantage and gazes at the moving throng that covers each side of the street on any fine Saturday evening he begins to ask himself where all the people come from and what brings them out? The latter question can easily be answered. Men's gregarious nature (for there are scores that prefer promading in a crowd to amusements one would think more attractive), coupled with the love of seeing activity as displayed by express and delivery wagons of all kinds rushing hither and thither, are strong points. Apart from this George street possesses a peculiar attraction on Saturday night. The places of business are all brilliantly lighted up, the windows are tastefully dressed, and everything looks its best. The stores are filled with shoppers and the clerks are kept busy waiting on customers. The show from the electric lights, too, adds its quota to make our principal thoroughfare look its prettiest on the night of the closing of the week's business.

A New Exchange.

There is every probability of a Bell Telephone station being established in Campbellville. Mr. H. W. Kent, the company's agent here, went down to that goodly little place this afternoon for the purpose of completing arrangements for the opening of an exchange there.

Out.

James Sullivan, who was committed to goal for having been drunk and disorderly in default of payment of a fine, has had his fine paid, and is free once more. The man Crowley, committed for abusing his wife, has also made successful arrangements for being liberated.

Attracts Notice.

There are several fine specimens of taxidermy in the south window of the Canadian Pacific Railway uptown office. A deer, a bear cub, two owls, a beaver and a lynx, form the attractive group. The collection is valued at over one hundred dollars.

Legal.

Mr. Charles McLean, of the Township of Belmont, who was charged by Napoleon Prenevaux with having obtained $50 from him by false pretences, and against whom the Grand Jury found a "No Bill," has, through his solicitor, Mr. C. W. Sewers, commenced legal proceedings against Mr. Prenevaux, to recover $1,000 damages for false imprisonment, &c.

For a complete fitting of a new suit or a new coat, get up in the latest style, leave your order at Turnbull's.

Various Driving and Rowing.

The residents living on the north part of Water street complain of the regular recurrence of rowdiness and fast driving in that part of the town on Sundays. On Sunday evening a number of young men, to all appearances under the influence of liquor, drove down the street in buggies, pressing their horses to their utmost speed, and shouting in the most profane language. The residents of this street would like to see an example made of one or two of these rowdies.

Wake Up.

There is now only one week for the first twelve of the Lacrosse Club to get themselves into shape for the championship match with the Beaverton Checkers. The boys should remember that determined efforts the Checkers made last season to wrest the coveted honor from them, and make preparations for one of the hottest contests they have ever engaged in, for we are informed on good authority that the Checkers are making good every spare hour in energetic practice. If the boys don't get to work and train more persistently there is a prospect of the championship going out of town on the 23rd.

The Salvation Army.

The War Cry of June 13th contains the following from Peterborough:—"Since this station has been opened, many sinners of the deepest dye have found their way to the foot of the Cross, and they are not only getting their hearts clean but they are getting their mouths clean. Hallelujah! One dear brother said he could praise God not only with a clean heart, but the Lord had washed away his tobacco. Praise the Lord! Sunday, the power of God was in our minds. One out for Salvation and one for Salvation, making it for the week. Hallelujah! for such a work." In the same paper the appointment of Capt. Lottie Willis to this station is gazetted, and the circulation of the War Cry in Peterborough is given as 500.

Chemong Lake Regatta.

The third annual regatta will be held at Chemong Lake, Bridgton, on Thursday, June 18th, when the following races will be contested for:—1. Single canoe race, to start at 2 o'clock, first prize, handsome silver cup. 2. Double canoe race, first prize, first prize, two handsome medals. 3. Double scull race (lapped), 3 o'clock, first prize, two handsome medals. 4. Boys single canoe race, under 15 years of age, at 4 o'clock, first prize, handsome silver cup. There is to be no other than hunting canoes and single bladed paddles used in the above events. The races to be governed by the judges. All entries to be sent to Mr. A. Elliott, on or before the 18th, who will give all information. Races to be 1 mile (half mile and return), except the double scull race, which will be a straight mile. Races to start and finish by gun report. The prizes will be presented by Mr. L. G. Foster, Judge—A. Elliott and G. Stevenson. Referee—John McCalland. Arrangements have been made with the ferry men for conveying passengers to and from there gratis.

Crickets.

A very interesting, if not a very evenly contested match, was played on the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association by teams representing the juniors of Peterborough and Lakeland. The villagers won the toss and elected to take the field. Hamilton, the Peterborough Captain, sent in Rogers and Haultain to face the bowling of Bell and Streetman. The first two wickets were obtained for a very small cost of runs, but notwithstanding their unfortunate beginning the "youngsters" managed to reach the handsome total of 80. The Lakeland team was less fortunate, having placed only 43 runs to their credit in the first essay, owing chiefly to the accurate "trundling" of Strickland and Hamilton. In their second innings the Peterborough juniors scored 74, and with 100 runs to win the villagers commenced their second attempt. They played a plucky uphill game, but to no purpose, as when the 10th wicket fell the score's book only indicated 47 runs, or 63 runs behind their opponents. For Peterborough the most successful batsman was Hamilton. His scores (30 and 16) were made in excellent style. His outlying and forward drives being particularly good, whilst in bowling he claims no less than 13 wickets. Haultain is accountable for 13 and 12, obtained by good substantial cricket, and Haultain, Woods and Strickland deserve credit for their respective scores of 16, 17 and 12. Mention must be made of two remarkably good catches taken by Boucher, and one by Schofield. For Lakeland the chief contributors were Walker (19 and 10), Bell (10 and 9), and Murchall (8 and 11).

Club Swinging.

The following challenge, issued by Mr. Richard Reeves, of this town, appears in Saturday's Mail:—"I will match an unknown to swing clubs—fancy swinging—against any man in Canada for $25 or $100 a side and the championship of the Dominion. If this challenge is not responded to within two weeks from date will claim championship." We understand that an effort will be made, in the event of the acceptance of the challenge, to have the contest take place in Peterborough.

An Important Lumber Case.

The following appeared in Toronto Mail of June 15th:—"Scott v. Benedict.—The case of Scott v. Benedict was concluded on Friday night before the Court of Appeal and judgment was reserved. The action is brought to establish a vendor's lien on 114 square miles of timber limits in the County of Peterborough, the amount of property involved being valued at about half a million dollars. At the trial and subsequently the decision in the case was adverse to the plaintiff, and they appealed to the Court of Appeal. Mr. T. H. A. Scott, one of the plaintiffs, conducted his own case, arguing for seven hours, and at the conclusion of his address was complimented by Mr. Justice Burton, who told him that his arguments would reflect credit on an old counsel. Mr. W. Barwick appeared for the defendants."

A Fall in Corn.

This afternoon, at about one o'clock, an engine or the Grand Junction Branch of the Grand trunk Railway, was taking a car load of western corn up to the Otsego Mills. The engine shunted the car down the track and let it go at the junction of the switch with the main line. A brakeman was left in charge to stop the car at the proper place. The car came down the switch at a pretty swift pace and when nearing the end, which rises above Ellersburgh street about twenty feet, the brakeman applied the brakes. To his surprise he found that they took no effect and the car was rapidly nearing the end. He jumped off and threw a board under the wheels to stop it, but it was of no use. The heavily laden car crashed the board in pieces in a second. Arriving at the end of the switch, the car struck the abutments, displaced them and jumped violently into the street. The end was smashed in, other holes were rent, and nearly all of the five hundred bushels of grain lay scattered over the street, some of it reaching the sidewalk on the opposite side.

All is Not Lost.

It is indeed distressing to hear of unfortunate and too venturesome individuals (and there are many of them) staking their little all in some scheme which promises to bring them in a handsome return for their money, but in the end proves a decided failure. Many a man has lost a fortune in a few months by being too fond of dabbling in unseason, and in many cases, totally unknown ventures. Fortune oftentimes ceases to smile on one when sudden wealth is almost within their grasp, and they are financially ruined. Some, however, in the determination to fight life's battles, put on a fresh armor and renew hostilities against down-trodden fortune, and again what was at first supposed to be irretrievably lost. Men, as a rule, too anxious to grow suddenly wealthy, and in a vain effort to do so, grow careless concerning their own happiness and that of their homes. Too many are in the habit of spending all their waking hours over the counting desks, musing over losses in stocks, or perhaps congratulating themselves on some slight gain in wealth. To them and to others whom "the night might sit," we would say: Don't worry over your losses in this world, and don't rejoice too much over wealth gotten by a "fak," but call at A. McNULTY, get a suit of his sobby clothes, and be happy like other people.

Are Not Coming.

It appears that neither the Grand Trunk nor Canadian Pacific railways can furnish the necessary cars for their proposed excursion to Peterborough on July 1st. Neither the Foresters nor the Excelsior Lacrosse Club will therefore be in town on that day. In a letter to Mr. Geo. Giroux, Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, the Secretary of the Excelsior expresses his regret at the Club's not being able to come to Peterborough on the appointed day. A joint excursion from Brampton will, however, in all probability be run to Peterborough on the civic holiday at the former place.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

The Government has formed a wise resolve, and has exposed the hollowness of another reformer's scheme, by its proposal to demand a poll tax of $50 an entry from each Chinese immigrant, and to restrict the number of Chinese brought in by any vessel. This system has been found thoroughly efficacious in Australia, combined as it is with the proviso, which will not doubt be adopted here, that the vessel shall be responsible for the payment of the head money, leaving upon it the burden of making the collection, which otherwise would be nearly impossible.

This has not only been found satisfactory by past experience, but it has the advantage that having been allowed in the Australian colonies there is no danger of a veto by the Home authorities as being inconsistent with Imperial treaties. It is a very different thing from shutting our coast against the Mongolians, while claiming a right of free entry into the Chinese Empire for British subjects. If the Chinese choose to retaliate by making a similar entrance fee from our people, no objection is likely to be made by them.

Thus is refuted another false platform of Reformers, who take care not to repeat it in the House, that the Conservative Administration of Canada encourages Chinese competition with our own people on our own soil. In this respect, as in others, the Macdonald Administration shows its belief in a national policy.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

BUTTER.

Mr. Blake pointed out that a member of the Opposition had actually suggested improvement in the butter. Mr. Blake had suggested that the butter might be improved. And upon the suggestion about butter the Opposition met their demand to be regarded as patriots.—Hamilton Standard.

NO RIGHTS WITHHELD.

The halfbreeds who joined the Indians in this district as a means of securing their "rights" were confirmed in the lands they held at the time of the transfer as settlers; they got their allotments of land apart to secure the extinguishment of their title as halfbreeds; as white men they have been given homesteads and pre-emptions; and many of them had their wives placed on the Indian lists and annually drew from the public treasury the same amount as Indians under their treaties. They enjoyed all the liberties secured to each of the classes with which they claimed alliance as occasion made it profitable, without any of their disabilities. We have never been able to get from one of them a statement of the rights said to be withheld. Will the eastern papers that are discussing the matter kindly tell us what it is and what it is withheld? The horrors of an Indian massacre are as nothing in their eyes compared with making a point in a political controversy.—Bathurst Herald.

THE MOUNTED POLICE.

In accordance with a resolution introduced in Parliament on Tuesday by Sir John Macdonald the mounted police force is to be increased from five hundred to 1,070 men. This step is strictly necessary in consequence of the rebellion. Order must be maintained and security for life and property provided in lately disturbed regions. It will no longer do to trust in the supposed peaceful disposition of treacherous savages who may at any time break out in insurrection. The present force is inadequate and the requirement of the region could not be met by Mr. Blake's proposal to raise militia. What is wanted is a body of men who will be constantly on the alert and to march to distant points at a moment's notice. Local militiamen are well enough for suppressing disturbances in their own immediate neighborhood, but the settlers would not be available for the kind of service which is required of the mounted police. The objection is founded in its character and prompted merely by the disposition to oppose everything done by the government right or wrong, which in Edward Blake's idea of the police is a parliamentary opposition.—Toronto News (Indep.).

THE INDIAN PROBLEM.

In the Dominion House yesterday, Dr. O'Brien, who struck a note of importance when he adverted to the possibility of the North West Indians being still in the future, as herdsmen on the cattle ranches. The ranches of ranches in the North West would do their country a service by testing the value of Indians in such a capacity. If they can be so utilized, it will go far towards solving the "Indian problem." The cattle ranches are growing very rapidly, and will soon give employment to large numbers of men, and the work should be congenial to Indians.—Montreal Star (Indep.).

A CERTAIN REMEDY.

St. John, N. B., deserves a compliment for discovering a sure way of putting an end to "slugging" matches. Sullivan and his combination appeared there recently, after receiving $1,000 in advance. The receipts were $500. A remedy of this kind carefully applied a few times will effect a sure cure in the "slugging" nuisance.—New York Tribune.

FORSAKEN BY HIS FRIENDS.

Riel seems to have alienated all. The sympathy which was felt for him to a considerable extent among the French speaking Canadians appears to have been almost destroyed by the full light thrown on his ideas and actions since the suppression of the rebellion.—Montreal Star (Indep.).

MURDERED BY HIS FRIENDS.

STANTON, Va., June 12.—Last week a boy living with his uncle, Jack Huffman, a mountaineer, died from the alleged effects of a fall, and was buried. Suspicion was aroused, and the body exhumed. An autopsy disclosed death from a knife wound in the throat and spine. Huffman disliked the boy, and it is believed he murdered him. Several years ago a little girl mysteriously disappeared in the same way. Lynching is threatened.

Four Days' Fighting in Central America.
LA LIBERTAD, June 13.—Two thousand Guatemaltecos with nine cannons have entered Santa Anna. Fighting has been going on around Ahuehuetlan, Coahuila, and Guayabal, in Salvador, for four days without definite result.

NORTHWEST REBELLION.

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW REGARDING EVENTS CONNECTED WITH IT.

The Battle of Duck Lake and Batoche—A Defence of the Mounted Police—The Outbreak of the Rebellion.

Mr. Ronald Hilton, formerly of Peterborough, and who is connected with the staff of Emmanuel College, Prince Albert, N. W. T., is in Peterborough spending a portion of his vacation. On Monday a representative of the REVIEW met him, and a conversation which brought out many interesting facts followed.

Mr. Hilton has resided in Prince Albert for five years. He was in that village all through the siege, as well as before the rising began, having left there on May 28th. Regarding the OUTBREAK OF THE REBELLION,

Mr. Hilton says that it was unexpected at Prince Albert. When Louis Riel came to that part of the country last year there were no apprehensions of a rebellion, and not before the fatal day on which the fight at Duck Lake took place did the people believe that there would be any serious trouble. At that fight the Mounted Police acted with great bravery, as did also the volunteers. One policeman named Arnold did not cease firing until he received the third bullet wound, and his last words were, "Don't let them beat us, boys." Mr. Hilton received his information regarding from volunteers and policemen who took part, and he believes that there were 250 or 300 rebels present, and that, therefore, the police and volunteers were largely outnumbered, as well as at a disadvantage on account of the position the rebels held. The volunteers suffered more than the police in the engagement because they were on the side from which the heaviest fire came and were near houses from which sheltered rebels fired upon them. The loyal men were compelled to leave their dead on the field, because if they had not done so they would have been annihilated. Wm. Drain, son of Mr. Hugh Drain, License Inspector for East Peterborough, was one of the men who went to the scene of the battle afterwards and brought away the dead. Mr. Drain afterwards acted as a scout, and, Mr. Hilton says, was one of the best scouts in the service.

While Col. Irvine and the police were at Cartoon, one night there was a serious panic at Prince Albert. A scout came in with the word that a band of rebels was MARCHING ON THE VILLAGE.

The excitement that the announcement caused was very great, some women fainting from the shock and fright. The people had constructed a stockade and they fortified themselves as they best could in it. The rebels, however, saw the track of Col. Irvine returning to Prince Albert and then abandoned the attack on the village. From that time the police remained in Prince Albert, except on one Sunday when they were understood, acting on orders from Gen. Middleton started for Batoche, but when they had gone twenty miles other orders were received and they returned. He was surprised when he heard of the complaints that had been made against the action of Col. Irvine and the police. He states that the

and have courageous officers. The men were anxious to go out and assist in crushing the rebellion, but Mr. Hilton believes it would have been very injudicious on their part to have left the village. The number of armed men at the village had been exaggerated. There were 200 police and four companies of volunteers. One company of the volunteers was fully armed, one nearly so and the remainder were unarmed, so that there were not more than 250 armed men in the place. There were 200 or 300 women and children to be protected. Had Col. Irvine moved out, there were seven or eight trails leading to the place on which the rebels could have come, and Mr. Hilton feels confident that only for the presence of the police and the means taken for defence the place would have been attacked. Scouts and persons who had been prisoners who came in to Prince Albert reported that an attack was contemplated, and he believes that such was the intention of the rebels, but they were prevented by the presence of the police. Col. Irvine, Mr. Hilton says, felt that he should have been consulted more regarding the suppression of the rebellion, and the men and officers felt their forced inactivity very irksome. He had a high opinion of the courage of the officers, and if in an engagement he knew of no man he would prefer as a commander before Major Crozier. The non-commissioned officers of the police force were fine men, many of them old soldiers.

Regarding the removal of the women and children from the stockade, for which Col. Irvine has been censured by some newspaper critics, Mr. Hilton says that their removal was rendered absolutely necessary for sanitary reasons. The place was terribly crowded, had become unhealthy, and nothing else could be done. They were removed to the houses nearest the stockade, and he heard no complaints there regarding it.

THE VOLUNTEER FORCE.

When Gen. Middleton's men arrived at Prince Albert they were ragged and weary—certain evidences of the hard work they had undergone. He saw Messrs. Mark Onda and W. Stewart from that section, and talked with many of the men. In regard to the charge at Batoche, he says that all united in praising Col. Williams, and many bore testimony to the good work done by Walter Stewart. The Midland Battalion led the charge on the rebel position, and the charge became general, when all the men did nobly, advancing together. From what he heard the men say, he thinks it doubtful that any of the rebels were bayoneted. When on his way home, Mr. Hilton

PASSED THROUGH BATOCHE.

He says that the rifle pits constructed by the rebels were perfect, and that nothing but a charge could have dislodged them. He counted 23 houses that were destroyed on the south side of the river, and others had been shelled on the opposite side. The houses that remained had white flags hoisted in a prominent position on them. He does not think that any more trouble would be feared, as the halfbreeds were thoroughly cowed. On the way from Prince Albert his party (which consisted of three men) occasionally saw Indians, but when they would begin to handle their rifles the red men would immediately display the white flag. From Batoche they took the trail direct to Humboldt and did not pass Fish Creek or Clarke's Crossing.

RIEL'S SYMPATHIZERS.

Mr. Hilton says that Riel's sympathizers in Prince Albert were few. He does not believe that any documents in the possession of Gen. Middleton will implicate any influential citizens of the place, because he does not believe he had any sympathizers among that class, and says that he had met but been few in number. If the people had any grievances sufficient to justify resorting to arms, he could not fail to have known of them, and he certainly was not aware of any. There were several Indians reserved in the vicinity of Prince Albert, but they were civilized and Christianized, and none of them took part in the rising. Some of them, he understood, had offered to assist in quelling the insurrection. Batoche's rebels were 40 or 50 miles from Prince Albert. Jackson, who has been frequently spoken of, he considered to be not strictly comports himself before the rebellion broke out. After it had been commenced, the elder Jackson went from Prince Albert to Batoche to take his brother away, having heard that he was insane, but Riel refused to allow him to go, as he said that the younger Jackson knew too much then to be allowed to go away.

THE NUMBER OF REBELS KILLED in the engagements at Duck Lake, Fish Creek and Batoche, it was believed at Prince Albert, numbered about thirty, but not more than forty, including halfbreeds and Indians.

The settlers around Prince Albert from this section were well when he left Prince Albert.

Interesting Legal Points.

The Laurierdale perjury case turns upon two legal questions. First, was the marriage in New York in 1873 between Mary MacAdam and Sir Richard Maitland, the fourth son of the sixth Earl of Lauderdale, celebrated without bans or license, legal, and, if so, whether it legitimates the children born prior to the marriage. United States Minister Phelps and United States Senator Edmunds have opposite opinions on the first question.

A Woman's Suspicious Death.

Blackville, Ont., June 15.—A disheveled woman named Hand, living on Garden street, was found dead yesterday morning under circumstances which warranted the arrest of her husband last night on a charge of murder. A post mortem examination of the remains was made this afternoon and the result will be given as an inquest before Coroner Vaux.

THE SECOND SESSION

WEDNESDAY.

The Road and Bridge committee was in session during the forenoon, and a deputation from the Victoria County Council, consisting of Mr. Fairbairn, Reeve of Verulam, and Mr. McQuade, Reeve of Emily, waited upon them in reference to the Pigeon Creek Bridge.

At a few minutes before 12 o'clock the Wardens took the chair. The minutes of the preceding day's sittings were read.

Mr. McQuade submitted the following report of the committee on the Warden's address:—

THE WARDEN'S ADDRESS.

The special committee on the Warden's Address beg leave to report as follows:—

Your committee have the honor to acknowledge the Warden's address to the Council, and in his congratulatory and the bright prospects of a peaceful and prosperous year. When your committee recall that the year 1885 was heralded by the Council as a year of peace and order, and that the Warden's address, at a time, too, when the country was watching with grave anxiety the strained relations between the Motherland and Russia, and when your committee now behold the backbones of our own rebellion broken and the peaceful solution of the Imperial difficulty, your committee consider for congratulations. Your committee wish to pay a high tribute to the noble response made by our citizen soldiers at the first call of danger and to the courage and endurance they have since displayed in their arduous and trying duties, and especially do they desire to recognize the bravery and military skill of Col. A. A. Boulton, a former member of this Council, who, as commander of Boulton's Scouts, and his half-brothers of the Northwest, at a time, too, when the country was watching with grave anxiety the strained relations between the Motherland and Russia, and when your committee now behold the backbones of our own rebellion broken and the peaceful solution of the Imperial difficulty, your committee consider for congratulations. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Secretary.

The committee appointed to arrange for the entertainment of the High Court of Foresters in connection with the recent sittings, will meet to-night to settle up the expenses incurred. The regular meeting of Court Peterborough, No. 29, will be held on Friday evening.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light to moderate winds, mostly westerly, fine weather, slightly higher temperatures.

A New Society.

At a meeting held in Port Hope on Monday afternoon, the Guide says, a new temperance insurance society was organized, called the Canadian Independent Order of Royal Templars. Mr. James Stratton, of Peterborough, was appointed President.

Just arrived at Turnbull's, a fresh stock of Parasols to be sold below regular prices.

3 o'clock.....	80	29.55

St. Peter's Cathedral.

Mr. Horne, contractors for the restoration of St. Peter's Cathedral, is vigorously prosecuting the work. The buttresses now reach the eiting height of the tower and preparations are at present being made for the raising of the roof of the nave so as architecturally agree with the roofing of the transept.

Prof. Doremund Arrived.

The ladies of Peterborough will be interested in learning that Prof. Doremund, from the Paris Hair Works, Toronto, has arrived at the Grand Central Hotel, with a large stock of fashionable hair goods, which should be seen to be appreciated. An early call will be necessary to ensure a choice.

People's Insurance Office.

Messrs. Geo. A. Morrison and A. Wilson have opened out a new insurance office over Mr. J. D. Tully's drug store. It is light, airy, commodious, conveniently fitted and well adapted for the carrying on of such a branch of business. It has been given the cosmopolitan title of "The People's Insurance Office."

The Market.

The attendance at the market this morning was rather sparse, and the commodities offered for sale consisted mainly of garden produce. Butter sold at from 12 to 14 cents per pound; eggs at 11 cents per dozen; chickens, at 50 cents per pair; and ducks, at 75 cents per pair. These two classes were the only kind of fowl and the quantity was but small. Garden produce sold at the usual prices. Potatoes were very low of late at 30 per bag, 10 cents per bag lower since last Saturday. Seventeen cents per pound was asked for wool.

Grange Trust.

A meeting of the Directors and Stockholders of the Grange Trust Loan Company was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Dawson Kennedy occupied the chair. This company has a membership extending all over Canada, but one-third of the stock is owned by residents of East Peterborough and the Township of South Monaghan. One stockholder, dissatisfied with the management, called the meeting to investigate. He moved a motion, but out of the twenty or so directors and stockholders present there was not a second to the motion. Some discussion followed, but no action was taken.

Decorative Day.

The united committees for the Otonabee and Peterborough Lodges of Oddfellows are working energetically in making every preparation for the celebration of Decorative Day, Friday, June 26th. A large number of urns have been collected and put in good order and every necessary detail has been looked after. A poster has been issued at Stirling stating that the local lodge No. 220 and the organization from Belleville, Foxboro, Madoc and North Hastings Junction, will take part in the Decorative Day proceedings at Peterborough. They will be accompanied by the Stirling Brass Band.

Cheese Shipment.

Mr. Charles Stewart, agent for Messrs. J. T. & F. H. Warrington, cheese exporters, of Belleville, received at the freight sheds of the Grand Trunk Railway to-day about 775 boxes of cheese from the factories in this district. Mr. Cook, buyer for the same firm, at the last cheese market bought considerably more than that amount, but the non-delivery is accounted for by the salesman not having given in the exact figures. Mr. Stewart has visited nearly all of the factories in the county, and reports them to be in a highly satisfactory condition. All of the cheese delivered was in first-class order. Mr. Stewart made his headquarters at Morgan's Hotel, and paid over the various amounts to the respective shippers. The cheese was purchased at 75 cents per pound.

For Choice Potatoes and Good value in Hump and Tapered Carrots, go to Turnbull's.

CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS

THE MELANCHOLY DROWNING OF TWO BOYS AT ASPLEY.

Loss Armstrong and Andrew Moffat Thrown from a Ferry and Considerably Hurt—A Boy Struck with a Stone in Ashburham.

One of the saddest drowning accidents that ever happened in this district occurred at Aspley on Monday. The two sons of Mr. Joseph B. Hawley, Stanley and James, went to school as usual in the morning. After school they, together with one of their school mates, Cecil Shewen, went down to Kels river to take a bath.

The boys went into the water and James, the elder of the two brothers, eleven years of age, went in first up to his shoulders and then waded back to his companions. He turned round, went in a little farther and sank in a hole. He cried to his brother, who was about two years younger, to come and help him as he was drowning. Stanley went to his brother's rescue, but in his efforts to bring him to a place of safety he sank in the same hole and both were carried away by the current.

The boy Shewen when he saw his companions run off crying for help, dressing himself as he ran. Many turned out to give assistance but it was fully half an hour before the bodies were recovered and life was gone.

Mr. H. Anderson, teacher of the school, left the school house where the boys were at play in the most buoyant spirits. He was walking leisurely home and was crossing a bridge over Kels river at a certain point. He looked down into the water and to his horror beheld the form of Stanley floating rapidly along. He struck dumb and could scarcely believe his eyes, for only a few short minutes before he had left the boy at play full of life and merriment.

The floating body was secured and that of James was found a little distance above the bridge.

The parents have the earnest sympathy of a large circle of friends and neighbors in this time of bereavement, the greater as it is by about a fortnight since they buried a baby girl.

THROWING STONES.

At about half past six o'clock on Tuesday evening Messrs. Loss Armstrong and Andrew Moffat were driving in a buggy northward along the road leading to Ashburham from Downer's Corner. They were engaged in conversation and did not notice that the evening express on the Canadian Pacific Railway was coming along the track. They were almost at the crossing when the train dashed by. The horse turned in a twinkling, upset the buggy and bolted southward. The occupants of the rig were thrown to the ground and Mr. Moffat lay stunned for some time. He recovered from the shock but still suffers from severe bruises. Mr. Armstrong was bruised considerably. His shoulder was hurt and his upper lip was split through.

A lad named Crowe was indulging in throwing stones in Ashburham on Tuesday. One of the missiles struck another lad named Forsyth about two inches below the temple. The boy fell senseless to the ground and for some time doubts of his recovery were entertained. The wound inflicted bled profusely, it having been cut made by the sharp edge of the stone. On Tuesday evening, beyond being somewhat faint from the loss of blood, the lad was doing well.

A large variety of Colored Hosiery at Turnbull's. See what he is now offering at 8 o'clock a yard.

Remember the Anniversary to-night, commencing at 8 o'clock, in the store next door to Messrs. Innes & Co., Simcoe street. The oil painting should be seen by all who desire to add to their collections. This will be a rare chance.

Important to the Ladies. Fair, Van Every & Co. have received a large consignment of new millinery (wholesale) comprising Ladies' Millinery and children's Hats, &c., in all conceivable shapes to be sold at half price. Don't miss this opportunity of getting a decided bargain.

Garden Party. A garden party is to be held at Englewood, the residence of W. E. Sherwood, Esq., in aid of the Women's Foreign and Domestic Mission of St. John's Church on Tuesday, June 23rd, from 6 to 9 p.m. Contributions for tea from the ladies of the congregation will be thankfully received by Mrs. Halliday before 4 p.m. on Tuesday, June 23rd.

At the Bow Grounds. Immediately after the adjournment of the County Council on Tuesday evening the members entered carriages at the Court House and, together with the President and several Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society, went down to inspect the new grounds. The Warden and Messrs. Moloney, Walsh, Stephenson, Brown, Foley, Crough, Mansfield, Hicks, Foster, Lang, Stewart, Sanderson and Fitzgerald, and members of the Society filled the three carriages. Dr. Kincaid and Mr. A. R. Kidd drove down in a private carriage, as did also Messrs. Hugh Davidson and Francis Kinnaird. The drive to the grounds was made and an inspection of the various points followed. The sheds were examined and the proposed improvements were pointed out. After a drive around the Driving Park course the members of the two bodies returned to town.

The Old Story.

Not unfrequently do we hear tell of an unassuming and simple individual being caught by sharpers and blacklegs in some manner or other, and his money all taken from him before he is aware of it. The means adopted by these travelling sharpers to making money varies in many respects from the ordinary pursuits of an honest man, inasmuch as they do not earn bread by the sweat of their brow, but get it by making others earn it for them. A young man was at one time travelling on a railway train and in the course of his trip made the acquaintance of two well dressed men who, after some minutes conversation, changed the subject, and one of them drew out a package of cards from an inside pocket. The stranger was invited to play, only for pastime, of course. Well, he played to pass away time, but before he got through, he managed to pass away more than that, for he passed over all the money in his possession, and at the next station the "men of the pasteboards" passed out to secure another victim elsewhere. The green youth had fallen only too readily into a trap, and got badly duped. He was a victim of misplaced confidence, for he, doubtless thought all would be right in the end. A man must be cautious about everything—especially when he is purchasing a suit of clothes. A good article is essential at all times. Go to A. McNeill, at Habillment Hall, and you won't get "caught."

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.

A Preliminary Meeting Held to Organize a Branch Lodge.

A meeting of the workmen of Peterborough was held on Tuesday evening in the Temperance Hall, Water street, for the purpose of considering the advisability of establishing a branch lodge of the Knights of Labor organization in this town.

There were about fifty men present, representing all the principal trades. Mr. T. M. D. Croley was elected to the chair and Mr. James P. Bryson was appointed secretary.

It was moved and seconded, after some discussion, that steps be taken that will lead to the establishment of an organized branch of the order of the Knights of Labor in this town—Carried.

Committees were appointed from the St. Crispin's Organization (Shoemakers), the Moulder's Union and other local labor organizations, to confer with the officers of such organizations with regard to affiliation with the new order.

It was also moved, seconded and carried, that the Secretary be authorized to correspond with the General Secretary of the Knights of Labor to secure an organizer to come here, explain the benefits of the Order, and organize a permanent branch here.

After a vote of thanks being passed for the use of the hall, the meeting adjourned.

The Knights of Labor organization differs very materially from Trades Unions, etc., inasmuch as they are entirely opposed to strikes. They accomplish their end in view so far as possible by arbitration, and look on strikes as a kind of barbarity.

SAVED ARMY DEMONSTRATION.

Representatives of the Various Highland District Stations Take Part.

At twenty minutes after eight o'clock this morning the first Saved Army excursion train arrived over the Grand Trunk Railway, bringing detachments from Port Hope, officered by Capt. Wilson and Lieut. Gabbon, from Cobourg, officered by Capt. McGregor and Lieut. Lewis, from Colborne, officered by Capt. Pratt, and from Brighton, officered by Capt. King and White.

The first quote of the excursion, consisting of about 100 people, was met by officers from Peterborough, and by the General of the Army. A procession was formed, and the soldiers and officers marched up street, led by standard bearer Wylie. Another banner in the procession was carried by Capt. McGregor.

At 10.30 a small detachment arrived by the regular train over the Grand Junction Railway from Campbellford. It was under the command of Lieut. Armstrong.

At 11.55 the detachments from Lindsay, officered by Capt. Munro and Cadet Job (formerly of Peterborough), from Hopewell, Lieut. Britain and Manille, officered by Lieut. Comwell, arrived at the Grand Trunk depot and were met by those already arrived. There were about 200 on board from the north. A procession was formed and the Army marched up Charlotte street to George street, and thence northward to the Central Park and drill shed singing army songs.

Arriving in the drill shed, a large circle was formed by the soldiers, the officers standing in the centre around the banners, after singing and prayer the gathering separated for dinner. A refreshment booth was erected in the south corner of the shed and was duly patronized.

This afternoon the meeting continues.

Crickets. A cricket match is being played in the grounds of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association, Ashburham, this afternoon. The Peterborough's were first to the bat, scoring 55, Max Hamilton and R. B. Rogers putting together 31 and 30 respectively. The Torontonians followed with 120. As we go to press the Peterboroughs have commenced their second innings.

A Lesson for the Ladies.

A few days ago a resident of this town, who has carried on business here for a good number of years, was walking, together with his better half, along one of the streets. Mr. ——— remarked, as he looked at a certain property, that he would like to own it. "Enquire what it is worth," he said. "It's of no use," he answered, "I can't spare the money to buy it at present." But still she persisted in having him enquire as to the value of the property. He did so, and found that it was in the neighbourhood of $3,000. With that she produced a bank book showing exactly $2,000 to her credit. As a matter of course the husband was amazed, but he was still more amazed when she told him that she had been saving from her allowance for housekeeping for nearly twenty-one years, and had resolved to keep saving until she had $2,000. The property was bought and the husband now smiles broadly over his new possession, the more, perhaps, since he knows that it is due to the long and careful saving by his good wife that he is possessor. This serves as an example to the ladies in several aspects. It shows what steady, not remember, pinching, frugality will do; it teaches that if husbands are liberal, it is no reason why the last cent should be expended, and lastly, it shows that the fair sex can keep a secret as well as the sterner sex, if they choose, and that for a number of years. This good lady is the very antithesis of those who bi-annually present their husbands with a well rounded off millinery bill.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the bands off our Cables, and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, or who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, palming them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (15c) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a money, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c) ten cents for our (5c) "Cable" cigars, and (15c) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c) cigars as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

Strawberry Festival.

A Strawberry Festival will be given by the Ladies' Aid Committee of the MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH, at the residence of

J. WALTON, Esq.,

HUNTER STREET, ON

THURSDAY EVENING, JUNE 18th.

Berries and cream, ice cream and other refreshments will be served at reasonable rates. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance. Fifteen cents admission will be charged at the gate.

Daily Evening Review

THURSDAY, JUNE 18, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

The County Council.

This forenoon was spent in committee by the members of the County Council and in the afternoon they went to Young's Point to inspect the new bridge there.

The Nickel Plate.

Harris' Nickel Plate Show, a small circus, passed through town on the Canadian Pacific Railway at about half past seven o'clock this morning, by special train. The train consisted of fifteen cars in all. It came from Brampton and went to Norwood, where the show is being held to-day.

A fresh supply of Summer Underclothing, just received at HAMILTON HALL.

Firemen's Festival.

A new boat house is being built on the river bank at the end of Sharbrooke street. It is a partnership concern, and will hold a fleet of six canoes in safe keeping. Nearly all the owners of the canoes are members of the Fire Brigade, which explains the name given to the festival at the head of this item.

Thumb Crushed.

On Wednesday evening a few boys were amusing themselves in the rear of Messrs Graham and Ritchie's agricultural implement warehouse, Hunter street, by riding around on an old horse power, two alternately turning the machine while the others rode around. It happened to be Charles Mayotte's turn, with another, to take a ride. While the machine was in motion Charles fell backward and the thumb of his right hand got caught in the gear. It was immediately crushed so that it was found necessary to amputate it.

Belmont Grove Templars.

The annual picnic of the Belmont Grove Lodge of Good Templars was held at Idyl Wild on Wednesday. The steamer Golden Eye conveyed the excursionists to the Idyl Wild Park. On the trip down a contingent from the Belmont Grove Lodge, Mount Zion, was taken on. In all there were about two hundred and fifty people who availed themselves of the trip. Games of different kinds were indulged in, and athletic sports were carried on. The steamer Golden Eye conveys a private party from North Monaghan down to Idyl Wild to-morrow.

The Boat House and Boat.

There are considerable improvements being made at the boat house of the Peterborough Boating Club. A new entrance has been constructed, which is much more convenient than the old one. The new entrance is on the west end. The stairs at the front of the boat have been torn down, and entrance to the second flat is now obtained from the rear. A new outside staircase is, however, to be constructed. The boat is being thoroughly repaired, that is, those that need it. Mr. J. Deane has been engaged in repairing for some time past and has done some very creditable work.

If you are in want of anything in the Gent's Furnishing Line, try A. McNair.

Free For All.

The attraction at the Lansdowne Roller Rink to-morrow evening will be a free for all roller race on roller skates for a free race and silver medals offered by Mr. E. Brown, the energetic manager, for the purpose of securing the art of skating. There will be great rivalry displayed on the rink and some young men who really skate very well and it is confidently expected that there will be a large number of spectators and that an immense crowd of both spectators and skaters who will be in attendance to witness this event. The admission will be, ladies two and gentlemen 10 cents, and without this existing race. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance.

An Excursion on Saturday.

Mr. J. H. Hoover was in town a few days ago for the purpose of making arrangements for an excursion for a large Methodist Sunday School excursion, which will be here on Saturday, from Woodbridge, Edgely and other villages. He was successful in securing the drill shed and Burnham's Point, so that the excursionists may have the choice of picnicking either indoors or out. The steamer Golden Eye has been engaged for the day and those who wish to take a sail down the river may do so. The excursionists will come down over the Toronto, Grey and Bruce and Canadian Pacific railways. Train accommodation has been engaged for one thousand five hundred people.

A Carnival for the Little Ones.

In order to afford the many children who attend the Lansdowne Roller Rink an opportunity of enjoying themselves equally as well as the hundreds of adults who daily participate in the graceful and invigorating art of roller skating, Mr. Brown has decided upon holding a Grand Fancy Dress Carnival in the rink on Saturday afternoon, the 20th inst., at 3 o'clock, for the little ones only. The children's carnival held in this rink last winter was a success in every respect, and many of the juveniles will hail this announcement with infinite delight. The children will have sole possession of the floor until four o'clock, when all present will be admitted on the floor to skate. The back will call for the lady judges at 1.45 on Saturday afternoon.

We have the largest stock of Gent's White and Colored Shirts in Peterborough at prices that defy competition. A. McNair.

Fiance Tuning.

George Gumprecht will be in town for a few days. Parties wishing their places properly tuned will please leave their orders at Mr. T. Macneil's bookstore, or Messrs. Taylor and Macdonald's drug store.

Always Excellent.

The Montreal Herald refers to this paper as "the Peterborough Evening Review, always was an excellent journal," and adds that it "is now the largest, as well as the best, daily in the Province, outside of Toronto."

Shipment of Machinery.

The William Hamilton Manufacturing Company shipped over the Ontario and Quebec Railway yesterday one shingle jointer, one shingle mill and a circular saw. They will go to furnish a mill at Collingwood Lake.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light to moderate winds, mostly west and north, fair weather, slightly higher temperatures.

Important to the Ladies.

Fair, Van Every & Co. have received a large consignment of new millinery (wholesale closure) comprising Ladies', Misses', and children's Hats, &c., in all conceivable shapes—to be sold at half price. Don't miss this opportunity of getting a decided bargain.

The finest stock of Summer Ties in Peterborough can be found at A. McNair's, George street.

Strawberry Festival.

The first strawberry festival of the season will be held on Thursday, June 18th, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Murray Street Baptist Church. Every section has been made to provide a very attractive entertainment.

Y. M. C. A.

A notice has been issued calling a special business meeting of all members of the Young Men's Christian Association for this evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. T. S. Cole Provincial Travelling Secretary, will be present. It is important that every member should attend.

Garden Party.

A garden party is to be held at Ingwood, the residence of W. R. Sherwood, Esq., in aid of the Women's Foreign and Domestic Mission of St. John's Church on Tuesday, June 23rd, from 6 to 9 p.m. Contributions for tea from the ladies of the congregation will be thankfully received by Mrs. Halliday before 4 p.m. on Tuesday, June 23rd.

Just received at HAMILTON HALL, a fine lot of Men's Linen Coats, just the thing for hot weather. A. McNair.

Personal.

The Rev. Father Lynch, of St. Ann's, Quebec, has been paying a visit to the Rev. Father O'Connell, of Douro, during the past few days. He is in his old parish to-day.

The Rev. Father Kelly, of Ennismore, was in town on Wednesday on business connected with the Ennismore picnic. Mr. Wm. English has been ill of late with a severe bilious attack. He is now convalescent.

Energetically as It.

The members of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club seem to have been awakened to the real danger in which there is of the championship passing out of the hands. On Wednesday evening there was a good turn out on the grounds, no fewer than fifty-four agile hands wielding the sticks. This sort of practice should be kept up every evening, if possible, till the twenty-third, when the match for the Midland District championship will be played.

The Bunko Parade.

The third meeting to make arrangements for the grand Indian parade to take place on July 1st, was held in the committee room of the Lansdowne rink on Wednesday evening. Further details were looked after and from the number of applicants for information there is every prospect of a monster procession filling down George street on Dominion Day. All who wish to take part in the unique and brilliant demonstration should hand in their names to Mr. A. Elliott not later than Monday.

The Military Demonstration.

Capt. Edwards, of No. 1 company of the 57th Battalion, has received a communication from Lieut. Graham, of No. 6 company of the 46th Battalion, secretary of the committee to arrange for the military demonstration at Lindsay on July 1st, regarding a contingent from the 57th taking part in the proceedings. He asks Capt. Edwards to bring over his company, and that all expenses will be paid. The matter is now under consideration and it is probable that one company taken from Nos. 1, 2 and 3 companies will go to Lindsay on Dominion Day.

The Ennismore Picnic.

A large number of people in both town and country will be pleased to learn that the date for the annual Ennismore picnic has been fixed. The Ennismore picnic has become a sort of institution and is annually looked forward to at this time of the year with interest. The picnic will be held this year on Thursday, June 25th, at Terra's Grove overlooking the picturesque Otonabee Lake. The attractions will be stronger than ever; a baseball match will be played, also a football match; all sorts of athletic games will be held and a fine dinner will be served. Dancing platforms will be erected and a fine quadrille band will be in attendance. The Ennismore picnic has always been a large one and no doubt the coming one will be no exception. See the large posters for full particulars.

Saved Army.

After the separation of the soldiers and officers of the Saved Army at the Drill Shed on Wednesday they again met at half past two o'clock. General Lindsay, several officers of the Army, the Rev. E. F. Torrance and the Hon. Sidney Smith took seats on the platform. General Lindsay, in a few appropriate remarks, introduced the Hon. B. Smith, who spoke for about an hour. The Rev. E. F. Torrance also gave a short address. After the closing exercises a procession was formed, commanded by Staff Capt. Wyatt, assisted by others, and the Lindsay, Macmillan and Hopwood detachments were escorted to the Grand Trunk station here, while they were waiting for the train as an experience meeting was held. About fifteen soldiers went to the centre of the ring which was formed and related their experience. Most of the soldiers and officers from other places departed on the regular evening train. In the evening a mass meeting was held at Bradburn's Opera House. The hall was fairly well filled and there were about forty officers and soldiers on the platform. During the evening's services the Hon. Sidney Smith gave another address.

For a Nobby Summer Suit, try ANDREW McNair.

CRICKET.

The Peterborough and Toronto Clubs on the Association Grounds.

In cricket circles for some time past the match between Toronto and Peterborough had been looked forward to with more than ordinary interest. Although the admirers of our own team had anticipated a victory for them, and are doubtless somewhat disappointed at the result of Wednesday's match, yet they may apply to themselves this consolation, "had time permitted the game to have been finished, in all probability another victory would have been scored to the credit of our Club." Hammond won the toss and sent his opponents to the field. In their first innings the home team scored 95. Toronto followed with 120. Peterborough was more fortunate in their second attempt, having amassed the handsome total of 134. With 109 runs to win the visitors commenced their second innings, and had three wickets down for 28 runs—a winning margin for our team.

For Peterborough the chief scorers were Max Hamilton (31 and 28), Norley (7 and 50), Rogers (20 and 24). Norley played in magnificent style for his half-century, his cutting, being particularly brilliant. The Peterborough team may congratulate themselves on having engaged him. To quote from the Mail of last year, "They could not have secured a better man." Great improvement was noticed in the style of Rogers, his scores being made by first class cricket. Craven showed good form for 9 and 8. For Toronto, Jones was the most successful batsman, having placed 35 and 18 (not out) to his credit. Winslow (11 and 2), Scadding (10 and 6, not out), Collins (22) and Brock (18) all reached double figures.

The wicket was all that could be desired, and great credit must be given to Norley for the vast improvement he has made on the crease of last year. Mr. J. Salisbury, of Oshawa, capably refereed the match.

Central Exhibition.

Some of the farmers of the neighborhood are afraid that the County Council does not quite appreciate the importance of aiding the proposed Central Exhibition. They express their hope that the grant will be made to an object so highly beneficial to our agricultural community, and think the members of the Council would be wanting in their duty if they neglected the interests of so large a portion of their constituents.

Fancher's Yacht.

Mr. D. Fancher's new yacht was launched in the Otonabee to-day. It is a neat little craft capable of comfortably accommodating from twenty-five to thirty passengers. It is thirty-five feet long, with a seven foot six inch beam, fitted with a nine horse power boiler and engine made by the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company. The hull of the yacht was built by Mr. T. Delaney, Oshawa. The cost when completed will be about $1,100. It is the intention of the owner to have his boat ply regularly between the town and Fancher's Park twice a day. The yacht will leave the old wharf, above the new railway bridge, at 9.30 and return at 1 p.m., leaving again at 4.30 p.m. and return at six o'clock the same evening. The first trip will be made on Saturday when a few invited guests will go down. During the first week no fare will be charged.

COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

Several Dead Bodies Recovered—One Hurt—Great Excitement in the Mine.

LONDON, June 18.—A terrible explosion took place to-day in the Pendolby colliery, near Manchester. Sixty persons have been rescued alive. Seven dead bodies have been recovered. A hundred miners are still below, and there is only a faint hope that any of them can be saved. The cages in which the volunteers were proceeding to the bottom of the pit got stuck in the shaft, and it was two hours before the party could get to work exploring the mine for the missing men. Those who were rescued state that when the explosion occurred they fled to the bottom of the shaft, and that they are ignorant of the fate of their companions.

EXPLOSION CAUSED BY FIRE DAMP.

Later despatches from Manchester say the explosion was caused by fire damp. There was a fire in the mine at the time it occurred, and 160 of these were at work on the level in the mine when the explosion occurred. They are still in the mine and cannot be rescued. The bodies of several of the men who were killed by the explosion and which closed up their means of exit. The 150 men before rescued were taken out before noon. Great excitement has been caused by the disaster.

OVER TWO HUNDRED MEN IMPRISONED.

Another account of the colliery explosion near Manchester says it occurred in the OFFICE colliery, where there were 200 men at work at the time. The explosion occurred at 6 p.m. one hundred additional men had been rescued from the mine. Probably one hundred have been killed.

THE LATEST REPORT.

The latest reports stated that 204 miners have been recovered alive from the Pendolby colliery; that 22 bodies have been taken out; and that 123 men are still unaccounted for.

A BRAVE WOMAN.

A heroine in Hamble Life who made no complaint on suffering.

"Ah, yes," rejoined the doctor, "he certainly was the coolest man I ever saw on a death bed, and on a ocean steamer. The second night out I was called up to his cabin. He lay in his berth, this tall, giant Westerner, looking already like a corpse. As I went in he said cheerily: 'Doctor, it looks like I've made a mistake. I reckon I ought not to have come out to sea just now. But I did think my strength would hold out to get me to Italy, and there might get round again.' I knelt down by his side and carefully examined him. I told him that he had asked my advice I should certainly have forbidden him to undertake the voyage. He smiled feebly and said, 'I know you would, but the reason why I didn't ask you, was I made that up before you came. Well, I'm glad to hear you say so. I'll stay at home.' Death had already set its foot on his neck, and I told him as gently as I could that I feared he would not survive the voyage. He interrupted me, saying: 'That's all right, doctor. Don't you worry about me. I ain't afraid of it, and my wife and my wife's prepared to see me go.' His wife, seated on the cabin sofa, but her face in her hands for a moment, but when she looked again it was placid. As I went out he repeated: 'Mind now, when I tell you, the reason why I didn't ask you, was I made that up before you came. Well, I'm glad to hear you say so. I'll stay at home.' Death had already set its foot on his neck, and I told him as gently as I could that I feared he would not survive the voyage. He interrupted me, saying: 'That's all right, doctor. THE CHEESE INDUSTRY.

It must be satisfactory to those who are engaged in the manufacture of cheese in this country to find that the country, as a whole, is progressing in the art of making good, marketable cheese. Inspector Whitton is reported to have spoken very favourably of the cheese made in Peterborough, and the prices which have been paid for the article at the market is such as to corroborate in a pleasant manner his statement, as compared with the prices paid at other places the figures have been very satisfactory.

The establishment of the cheese market was a movement which has proved to be one in the interest of the industry. It has other advantages besides the bringing together of the buyers and the sellers where they can make bargains, although that advantage is not to be despised, because the competition produced by the presence of several dealers has had a good result. It brings the manufacturers together in council, where questions regarding the best methods can be discussed, and becomes a means by which uniformity can be secured.
Uniformity in color and weight, is no doubt desirable, but it is even more important that there should be uniformly a good quality of cheese made in the country and sold at this market. When all the factories make a good article, there is a greater inducement for buyers to come where they can secure a large quantity of first-class cheese, and factories which make such an article are benefited by having all the factories come up to the same standard.

The cheese markets and the services of the Inspector have been beneficial agents in securing the desired results. The industry has a good standing in the country, and the prices worthily offered being put forth to improve it are meeting with such success that the cheese of this country will undoubtedly be uniform in quality and all in the highest grade.

DISALLOWANCE.

The Brookville Recorder, which, with other Reform papers, so strongly opposed the Government for exercising the power of disallowance, now admits that there are times when disallowance of Provincial legislation by the Federal executive is not only permissible, but becomes the duty of the Administration.
When the Recorder, however, urges that it is only when the Provincial Legislature is ultra vires that it should be disallowed, it falls into error, as if the legislation is unconstitutional disallowance is not necessary. In the case of the Manitoba Exemption Act, to which the Recorder refers, it is admitted by all parties that certain of its provisions are very unjust, and consequently a call is made upon the Dominion Government to make the Act of no effect. The Reformers feel forced to support this unanimous opinion of the business men of the Dominion, although by doing so they have to recede from the position they formerly took in reference to Provincial rights, but to try to make this case different from others by claiming that the Act is ultra vires is absurd. It is beyond the power of the Manitoba Legislature to enact, the Courts would disallow it. In fact it would be unnecessary for the Dominion Government to disallow it, on that ground alone, as there is not the duty of deciding what legislation is within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature, the power of making such decisions having been given to the Courts.
The Dominion Government, however, has been given the power to disallow Provincial Acts that are contrary to the interests of the Dominion, and in the exercise of that power they have, since the Reformers have lost the opportunity of using it, been opposed by the Reform party, until now some of them are trying to find an excuse for expressing another opinion.

A MODEL GRIT APPOINTMENT.

Says the Peterborough Review:—
"It is announced that Mr. F. J. Apjohn has been appointed by the Municipal Administration to the office of Registrar of Deeds for the Rainy River district. There is some curiosity expressed as to whether this Apjohn is the individual who was judicially condemned for defrauding daily qualified voters of their franchise, and who was saved from well deserved punishment in other cases by the action of Mr. Mowat, who legislated to prevent the courts from punishing his useful but dishonest tool."

There can be no question that the Apjohn who has been thus honored by the "Christian Politician" is the same individual who committed the crime from the consequences of which the Grits, including Dewar, of New York, were made their figures at those who with their sides and mocking cry, "What are you trying to do about it?" Let us remind those honest journalists in office that even the seemingly all-powerful Tweed was brought low by the force of public opinion, and we would add the warning that unless they reform their methods their downfall will not be long delayed.—Belleville Intelligencer.

DISTRICT INTELLIGENCE

CAMPELLFORD.

CADGET BY A FISH HOOK.—A few evenings ago Mr. R. Cumming, of this village, went fishing in the river, accompanied by his son, a boy about ten years of age, who sat near him on the bank. In pulling out a fish it fell off the hook, and the line swinging back to the pole came in contact with the boy's face, and the hook became fastened in his nose and penetrated his nostril. Mr. Cumming took the little fellow to Dr. Goldsmith, who removed the hook by twisting it up through the wound and cutting off the beard. So firmly had the hook buried itself in the flesh that if it had not been done it would have been necessary to cut the nose open for its extraction.

BOY BURGLARS.—Two small boys were caught one night last week in the act of entering the hardware store of Mr. C. W. Turner in this village, and taking money from the till. During a few weeks previous to this event Mr. Turner had missed several sums of money, and was unable to account for its disappearance he determined to watch the premises. He had only to do this a few times. On the night in question he and a young man in his employ, each with a revolver, lay in wait for the burglars, and between ten and eleven o'clock were successful in confronting the guilty party, but instead of meeting a man they were astonished to find a boy of about 10 years of age. He had gone into the store to make the plunder, while a companion, a boy about the same age, was keeping watch outside. He entered the premises through a rear window, and hidden behind the till had on other occasions helped himself to jack knives. The boy was terribly frightened when captured, and made a full confession.
Constable Bell was summoned to the store and the boys were searched, when money to the amount of $5 was found on them. They were let off with a caution, Mr. Turner not caring to prosecute out of sympathy for the parents, who pleaded hard for the release of the young burglars.—Reform.

HASTINGS.

DOWNED.—On Wednesday evening of last week about 7 o'clock, Wm. Henry Scrive, a ten year old son of Mr. John Scrive of this village, was missed by his parents, whose residence is close to the old race, and search was immediately made and continued late in the night with out discovering any trace of the boy. At an early hour on the following morning the search was resumed, when the little fellow was found in the eddy formed by the stop logs at the upper end of the mill pond. This mute witness told the sad tale, and after a couple of hours fruitless labor in grappling the water and drawing off, the body discovered a few yards below the bridge.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.—An engine No 623 drawing a freight, about noon on Thursday of last week, was proceeding westward, two miles west of the bridge, the engineer observed a child rise up from between the ties, about two hundred yards ahead. The train being a heavy one, and running the steep grade further on, it would be impossible to stop before reaching the child, who all unconsciously of the danger stood clapping his hands. The whistle whistled a warning, the brakes were applied until every wheel ceased revolving, the driving wheels of the engine were reversed and whistled backwards throwing showers of sparks of fire. All to no purpose; the monster struck the child, hurled it some twenty feet or thereabouts, then it rolled down a small embankment and came to rest. When the train was brought to a standstill, the child was picked up alive though unconscious. The mother Mrs. C.
Scrive was advised of the accident and medical aid summoned, when it was found that a gash over the eye and a severe shock was the extent of the injury.—Star.

PORT HOLT.

ATTEMPTED BURGLARY.—On Tuesday morning an attempt was made to burglarize the safe in the office of Mr. A. W. Spence. They were discovered at their work and saw. F. Hobbs, nightwatchman, pursued them and sent them to the police. Hobbs was armed and returned his weapons, when he again started in pursuit up the G. T. R. track. Finding two men in a box car he arrested them, and they were taken before the Magistrate and remanded.

A BRASS BAND COMPOSED OF LEMMINGS.
"Yes, sir; that is one of the best creative known," said Dr. Chase yesterday, as a brass band marched in front of the Northtown insane hospital. The musicians were all lunatics, and their troubles were of various descriptions.
The band was organized about a year ago, and the members practice from 4 to 5 o'clock every afternoon. The unfortunate fellows take great interest in this form of amusement, and their performances yesterday were of a rather favorable sort. They were uniformed in a suit closely resembling that of the National Guard. They were as proud of the new clothes and their playing as a regiment of soldiers.
As they marched about the grounds and halted to sweep the Board of Trustees their faces were as serious as expression as if they had some great responsibility to discharge in blow the bombs and beat the drums. It is remarkable that these men read their musical notes readily and are perfectly tractable when performing.
When the lunatics saw that their efforts were appreciated some of them began to get excited they blew into their horns and beat their drums with such increased vigor as to nearly knock the melody out of the playing. This is the third band composed of lunatics people in the United States.—Philadelphia Record.

BIG LAKE MISTAKE.

Further Proof of its Immense Size—Taken Within the Lake.

QUEBEC, June 17.—Mr. John Bignell, late head of the Government exploring expedition to Lake Mistassini, whose return to Quebec with a portion of his staff was announced yesterday, believes that his son, Mr. T. H. Bignell, is no way exaggerated the facts in the enormous estimate made by him last year of the size of this great unknown inland sea of north-eastern Canada, and extensively advertised at the time in Canadian and American papers, as well as his statement that none of the local Indians knew its exact extent. As some guide to its immensity he mentions that some of the numerous groups of islands which it contains, appeared to him to be over ten miles in length and were found to embrace large lakes in their interior and says it would have required another season to ascertain anything definite regarding its dimensions. At the time of his recall he had not completed his observations and cannot, therefore, speak with absolute exactness as to either the latitude or longitude of the great lake, but he was able to ascertain enough to convince him of the correctness of his estimate.
But one result of his observations was to show that the height of land formerly the northern boundary of this Province and the location of both Great and Little Mistassini, as laid down on the map is altogether erroneous, that the latitude of the Hudson Bay Company post is, at least, half a degree from that heretofore accepted as correct, and that Little Mistassini is in reality a distinct sheet of water and from one hundred to one hundred and twenty miles long by eight to ten, instead of 20 or 40 as it was made to appear. Among other natural curiosities of the region on Mr. Bignell visited an extraordinary cave known among local Indians as the "Cave of the Great Spirit," and in it is stored a great quantity of expedition supplies.
The expedition left Quebec on the 19th of August last and Mistassini on the 22nd of December.

PETITIONS TO PARLIAMENT.

THE right of petitioning the legislature under a constitutional parliamentary government like that of Canada is one of considerable importance. It is a useful channel by which the people may make their desires known, and it is no less useful to their representatives as adding to keep them well informed in regard to public opinion. It is therefore to be regretted, when anything is done to bring petitions to parliament into contempt, and to throw a suspicion upon their genuineness as in indication of popular feeling.

For this reason the tricks that have been played in regard to the Reform petitions against the Franchise Bill, are greatly to be condemned.
That they should be mere circulars issued from headquarters by an organized staff, and the spontaneous expression of local opinion, of course in itself detracts somewhat from the value of petitions, but an allowance can be made for this not uncommon practice. That they should be circulated by hired collectors of signatures, remunerated by commission on the names obtained, is still more objectionable. But far worse than this is the fact that the matter of the petitions is designedly false and fraudulent, nearly every paragraph misstating the contents of the Bill in a gross manner, and these misrepresentations were even circulated after amendments had been made by the friends of the Bill to render it still more clear that its intentions were not such as they were misrepresented to be. Hundreds of the petitioners have had to address Parliament formally again, in order to declare how they had been deluded by these base tactics, and to withdraw their names as countenancing such an imposture as the pretended popular objection to this very liberal enfranchising act.

But even these fraudulent pretences are not the lowest depths to which the concoctors of these bogus petitions have resorted. Mr. Edgar's colours have, as has in some cases been shown on the floor of the House, even resorted to deliberate forgery to swell their petitions, when they could not get sufficient dupes.

The morality of these practices is what might be expected from their chief originators. They are not only an insult to Parliament, but they also have the mischievous tendency to bring all parliamentary petitions into contempt. This is the reason why they are so strongly to be deprecated; of themselves and for their intended purpose they have proved harmless enough.

OMENIAZ.

INTO THE WATER.—Some days ago Mr. C.
Laidley's daughter, Ida, fell into the cattle guard on Sturgeon St. and had a narrow escape from being drowned.

COW KILLED.—On Wednesday Mr. George English had a valuable cow killed on the missing link between Laidley's storehouse and the bridge. Mr. English will try and recover the price of the animal from the railway Co. Our council should take some action in making the Railway authorities put the crossings and street in a proper state of repair, as they are now in a most dangerous condition.

MILK IN PARVO.—Last week Mr. Langley was presented with a rather miniature specimen of the quadruped to which the Fable attributes the race over the hare, being forwarded to him by a friend in Ottawa. This is not a specimen of the great "Colomocheley Atlas," but a genuine Coney Island Turtle, having a carapace of about 3 to 5 inches, and is already beginning to give evidence of possessing considerable talent, and capacity for grub, and we feel satisfied that under Mr. L's careful tuition it may become quite an adept performer. We hope to see Mr.
L. add in the way of collections of these beautiful members of the Nat. History, and very soon Harry Hiper and the "Zoo" will drop into nothingness.—Herald.

Now Bruin Hugged a Boy Saw.

"Talking about funny things," said a big, browned beard man in the reading room of an up-town hotel last night, "the funniest thing I ever heard of happened in my saw mill out in Michigan. We used a heavy upright saw for sawing heavy timber. One day not long ago the men had all gone to dinner, leaving the saw which ran by water power, going at full speed.
While were away a big black bear came into the mill and went round around. The saw caught his fur and twined him around. Bruin didn't like this for a cent, so he turned around and fetched the saw a lick with his paw.
Result a badly cut paw. A blow with the other paw followed, and it was also cut. The bear was by this time aroused to perfect fury, and rushing at the saw, caught it in his grasp and gave a tremendous hug. It was his last hug, and we lived on bear steak for a week. When we came up from dinner there was half a bear on each side of the saw, which was going ahead as nicely as though it had never seen a bear.
This is a fact, so help me Holy, and the big lumberman bit off a fresh chew of tobacco.—N.

Sold for a Song.

VICTORIA, Miss, June 18.—Mike Presley, an impressionable citizen, living in Yazo city, who eighteen months ago inherited a fortune of half a million, is missing. It is stated that Presley sold his claim, which was perfectly good, for $1,000, which was a fortune to him. The theory now is that the purchaser, fearing that the contract would not hold good on account of Mike's latencies, planned his taking off.

To be sure, you can't go that can, by the Great Train to the

A VISIT TO THE HUB

OF CANOE BUILDING IN CANADA—EVERY DEPARTMENT FLOURISHING.

The Ontario Canoe Company's Factory Taxed to its Utmost Capacity to Fill Orders.

In the fall of the year 1882 a number of Ashburnham's leading citizens resolved to form themselves into a company for the purpose of taking up the manufacture of Mr. John S.
Stephenson's patent cedar rib canoes on a large scale, a purchase of the right to manufacture having been effected. It was not, however, until the spring of 1884 that the new factory which was built was in full operation. Since the first canoe was turned out there has been a steady increase in the demand for the product of the factory, and the fact that the company has yet to hear dissatisfaction expressed from their patrons amply shows how the excellent goods are appreciated.

A VISIT TO THE FACTORY is always interesting to anyone, whether he be interested in canoes and canoe building or not, for it is well known that all are pleased with symmetrical forms, and here it is that that quality, combined with grace and artistic finish in canoes is to be seen in a high degree. Every boat in the large warehouses has an appearance that gives one not only that pleasing idea of beauty, but also they have a peculiar characteristic that immediately impresses one with the idea that there is both strength and wear in them. Of the spacious warehouses and their ample contents, and of the large factory and the excellent machinery it contains, we have heretofore spoken. It is unnecessary, therefore, to repeat the description.

THE FAVORITES.

Of the two hundred or more styles of canoes
now manufactured by the company, the Ontario still holds the favor of the canoeist community.
Other styles, however, are in considerable demand. Quite a large number of orders have come in for varnish finished basswood and longitudinal. Six of the second named were shipped to Halifax on Tuesday last. The new improvement introduced tends to give those canoes a finished appearance. It is that of jet dyed ribs, which, intersected on the clear white wood, has a very good effect. Besides adding to the appearance, the dyeing of the ribs improves and strengthens the wood.

HOW CANOES ARE MADE.
To look at one of the cedar rib canoes a person would naturally think that the process of manufacture must be very intricate. Such is not the case; indeed it is quite the opposite, and reduced to a system, as the manufacture of them is, the multitude of parts of this style of craft is very easily put together. The cedar boards are first planed and then they are run through gang saws which cut them up into strips three-eighths of an inch in thickness. The next machine through which the material passes is a four sided matcher, which tongues, groves, and planes on both sides each strip that passes through it. The strips are cut into the proper lengths and passed through an "oller," a machine which administers a dose of oil to the tongues and groves of each and every strip.
The strips are then tied up in bundles and laid away in the storeroom for future use. In making the canoes the ribs are steamed and bent on a mould. Three screw cleats are then put on, running from end to end, and the many parts are tightly compressed into one solid body. The mode of making basswood canoes is more simple. The ordinary planed strips are nailed on the model, and the ribs, after having been dyed in the dye vats, are attached to the inside.

WHERE THE CANOES GO.

The products of the Ontario Canoe Company's factory have now a wide market. They find their way in the west to Calgary and east to London, Eng. New York and other places in the United States send in their quota of orders also.
It may be said that Peterborough canoes daily sail on the Saskatchewan, the Thames and the Genesee. Several canoes are now being built by special order. Two large basswoods, 19 feet long, with a 37 inch beam, are ready for shipment to the Northwest. They are for Government use.
A little cedar rib beauty, high at the ends, in imitation of birch bark, is to be sent to Washington.
The secretary of a boating club at Halifax, N.S., was beaten in a race last year by an opponent in a Peterborough canoe. Not to be outdone, he has ordered a specially light running craft, and no doubt his efforts in the next race, in his new canoe, will be more successful. Twelve canoes have recently been shipped to the company's agents in London, Eng., Messrs. John Cordell & Co., 19 Piccadilly. Sixty-eight in all were shipped last winter. A nest of canoes shortly go to Wisconsin. The shipments of from one to four and five in different parts of Canada is an almost daily occurrence.

FURTHER.

Several new fittings have been introduced.
The Attwood and Radix centre boards, in brass or nickel finish, are now attached to the sailing canoes if ordered. In the fittings storeroom a large assortment of all kinds of nails, screws of brass, copper and iron are to be seen, besides all the small, though important, fixtures that help to complete the craft. The bow facing car is a novelty in rowboat fittings. Paddles in a great variety are always kept in stock. They are of different shapes and are to be had of butternut, soft maple, hard maple, ash, white cedar, red cedar, walnut, cherry, beech and spruce.

THE VETERAN BUILDER.

In this notice Mr. John S. Stephenson, the veteran canoe builder, must not by any means be forgotten, for it is to his ingenuity that the Ontario Canoe Company owe their success.
Mr. Stephenson was found by our reporter busily at work in a private workshop, provided for him by the Company, on a new style of canoe. This latest invention Mr. Stephenson is proud of as a father over his youngest babe, and to use his own words, "She is sure to be a great favorite." After an explanation of the advantages the new canoe possessed over all heretofore made, the "father" of canoe building in this district, and even in Canada, recounted some of the incidents of his childhood, when nothing so fanciful as the cedar rib was ever thought of. It was the dug out or the birch bark that was then used. "What a deal of difference there is,"
said he, "between our own day and the good old times gone by. Why, up at Stony Lake you wouldn't see a pleasure boat, it was all river drivers' heavy boats that were to be seen there, but now every island in the summer is dotted with camps, and almost every camper has a canoe. There's no doubt but that canoeing is getting more fashionable throughout the world."

Mr. Stephenson was very painstaking in showing our reporter all the points in the new style of canoe, and it certainly does possess many advantages both as to utility, durability and appearance. After a pleasant chat for some twenty minutes, leave was taken, and the well up in years, yet hale and hearty canoe builder again applied himself to his work. Every means is placed at his disposal by the Ontario Canoe Company for the working out of his ingenious methods, and it is just possible that he may again revolutionize canoe building as he retired from active duties.

NEW MACHINERY.—THE PROSPECTS.
Since last we visited the factory, a new boiler and engine and a new steam pump have been added. The boiler is a twenty-five horse power machine. The prospects of the Ontario Canoe Company are very bright. At the commencement there were only four hands employed;
now there are twenty-six workmen busily engaged. Although the factory has been working with a full staff at full time, yet the orders are by no means kept up with.

A NEGRO TURNING WHITE.

The queer Case Which is Exciting
Macon's Coloured Citizens.

A Macon, Ga., dispatch says: On Fourth street resides Tom Jones, a negro, who is 55 years old. Some time ago curious white spots began to appear on Jones' hands. His friends thought he had contracted some unknown disease, and suggested that he call on a physician. This Jones refused to do, saying that the spots gave him no pain. A week ago Jones' arm began to turn white, and soon after large white spots appeared all over his body. His friends again suggested calling in a physician, he again refused, saying that freedom had come and the "Lord" intended to turn all negroes white.

Jones' strange whiteness became known to the negroes in the city, and many of them accepted his explanation of it. They were highly elated, believing, as one expressed it "dat de Lawd done 'termed to make white folk often de niggers." Their view of the matter has been strengthened by the appearance of more white spots on Jones and his continued refusal to have a doctor visit him.

Oscar Renick, who has conversed with Jones, says there is no doubt that he is turning white. There is no appearance of disease, and the negro, while passed the middle age, is strong and healthy. Others who have seen the man are much puzzled, and they are anxious for some physician to examine the freak of nature presented by his case.

Daily Evening Review

MONDAY, JUNE 22, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Personal.

The many friends of the Rev. Dr. Harper were glad to have an opportunity of seeing him again, and of finding him in no less robust health than when he was stationed in our town.

Assisted.

The name of Mr. Louis La Fontaine, of Rochester, N.Y., who has been on a visit to our town, should have been associated with that of Mr. Clement Gordon in the discovery of the body of Mrs. Scollie.

Canoe Parade Postponed.

The canoe parade, which was announced for this evening, has again been postponed, owing to the high wind and other circumstances. It is now set out for Wednesday evening.

The New Picnic Ground.

The Ennismore picnic will be at Bridge-north this year, but in a beautiful grove on the other side of the bridge. Come one, come all. Keep to the left when you leave the bridge. Good music, field sports of all kinds.

Postponed.

The regular fortnightly sports that were to have taken place in the Association Grounds this evening have been postponed on account of the sad drowning accident of the young son of Mr. Norley. It is altogether likely that the cricket match with Toronto, dated for Wednesday, will be postponed also.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty-four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Strong winds and moderate gales from the west and north-west, decreasing in force towards evening, fair, considerably cooler weather.

If you are in want of anything in the Gents' Furnishing Line, try A. McNEIL.

Smashed.

On Saturday afternoon at about four o'clock a horse attached to a buggy was being driven along Aylmer street by two young men who were by no means in that level headed state of sobriety. Their untimely management of the horse did not seem to care about. He launched out and whirled the vehicle along at a rapid pace. The rig was owned by a local livery stable keeper.

Our Industries.

Those who do not reflect upon the matter, hardly appreciate the benefits that they may be conferred upon a locality by the advocacy of a journal that sets its advantages in a proper light. Two long descriptions of local industries are republished from the PETERBOROUGH REVIEW in the last number of the Canadian Manufacturer, and one such description from our columns is also reproduced in the latest number of the Toronto Mechanical and Milling News, so that the attention of the most enterprising manufacturers and capitalists throughout Canada is called to the advantages our good town can offer for such enterprises.

Fire.

Shortly after nine o'clock on Sunday night a fire broke out in the back part of the house situated on Waterford street, occupied by Mr. Geo. Tighe, janitor of the central school. Mr. Tighe was away from home and Mrs. Tighe was sitting in the front part of the house after having put the children to bed. Some of the neighbors noticed the flames coming up through the roof and the chimney and gave the alarm. In the excitement of the moment nothing was thought of the children, and it was not until the house was filled with smoke and the flames had reached near the bedroom in which they were sleeping that they were taken out. A donkey pump, owned by Mr. Tighe, did good service until the arrival of the engine and hose reels. A stream was brought up from Dickson's race and the flames were soon quenched. It is not known how the fire originated. The loss is about $200; insurance, $250 in the Royal.

An Exciting Runaway.

On Saturday afternoon a farmer from Emily was loading a barrel of salt in his wagon at Mr. J. W. Flavell's store when his horse became frightened and ran away. They ran across the market square, narrowly escaping a buggy and striking Mr. Flavell's delivery wagon. An axle of the delivery wagon was bent by the collision, and a boy who was in it was thrown out. After completing a circle on the square, the runaway horse started for George street. The tongue of the wagon fell down and ran into the hard ground on the square about two feet, raising the front part of the wagon many feet in the air and breaking the rods. The box was thrown off, and when the horse arrived in front of Mr. Desautel's blacksmith shop on Charlotte street, they ran against a post and did further damage to the wagon. They were secured at that place. One horse had a slight scratch on his leg, and the wagon was badly damaged.

For English, American and Canadian Prints, in their colors and fancy patterns, look for them at Turnbull's.

Masonic.

A synopsis of the sermon to the Masonic fraternity, preached by the Rev. Dr. Harper, will appear in to-morrow's issue.

Town Council.

A meeting of the Town Council has been called for to-morrow evening. General business will be transacted.

The First.

The Fire Brigade Band gave the first of their delightful open air concerts of the season on the market square on Saturday evening. The music was enjoyed by many promenaders.

Reduced Rates.

Favorable arrangements having been completed, will sell until 1st September, Whitefish, Trout, Bass and Mackinac at 7 cents a pound, delivered free to any part of town. SMITH'S MARKET.

Piano Tuning.

George Gumprecht will be in town for a few days. Parties wishing their piano properly tuned will please leave their orders at Mr. T. Menzies' bookstore, or Messrs. Taylor and MacDonald's drug store.

Weather.

The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:—

	Thermometer.	Barometer
9 o'clock	54	29.08
1 o'clock	64	29.08
3 o'clock	62	29.12

Garden Party.

A garden party will be held at Inglewood, the residence of W. B. Shaw, Esq., in aid of the Woman's Foreign and Domestic Mission of St. John's Church, on Wednesday, June 23rd, from 6 to 9 p.m. Contributions for tea from the ladies of the congregation will be thankfully received by Mrs. Halliday before 4 p.m. on Tuesday, June 23rd.

EXCURSIONISTS will find a large assortment of Zephyr Wool Boating Shaws in all shades at the Golden Lion. Also Gentlemen's Wool Yachting Coats in most desirable patterns. Don't fail to visit Fair Van Every & Co's, for Seasonable Comforts.

A FRESH supply of Summer Underclothing just received at HAMILTON HALL.

For the Championship.

The following will compose the team of the Peterboroughs that will compete in the championship match with the Beaverton Checkers to-morrow:—J. Joyal, R. Hall, M. Tierney, M. Halpin, M. McDonald, R. H. Fortye, J. Sheehy, A. Yelland, S. Cameron, J. Henderson, W. Scott, G. Giroux. Spare men, P. Annan, —, Ross. The Fire Brigade Band will be in attendance.

Struck by an Engine.

On the evening of Monday, June 15th, Mr. Patrick McCabe, of this town, was walking down a street in Buffalo, New York. He went to cross the street, but in stepping over a railway track was struck by an engine. He was knocked about fifteen feet away and an ugly scalp wound was inflicted, besides other minor injuries. Mr. McCabe was laid up for a week and did not reach home until Saturday night. The engine that struck him had no headlight burning, nor was the bell being sounded.

This finest stock of Summer Ties in Peterborough can be found at A. McNEIL's, George street.

Lakefield vs. Peterborough. A return cricket match between the juniors of the Peterborough and Lakefield cricket clubs, was played on Saturday afternoon at Lakefield, resulting in a defeat for the Peterborough juniors by one innings and 12 runs. The Peterborough scores for their two innings were 16 and 14 respectively. That of Lakefield was 42, 28 being alone made by Strickland. The home boys lay the blame of their defeat on the irregularities of the crease. They are itching for the time when they will again meet the Lakefielders on the Ashburnham grounds.

Parish Picnic.

The various committees in connection with the parish picnic to be held under the auspices of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral on Dominion Day have completed all arrangements, and everything ready to there being a big day at Walker Grove on that date. Among the events set down on the picnic programme, which will no doubt be interesting, a large dancing platform has been erected, and a band of a high class will be provided by Prof. Doucet and his string band. Athletic sports of various kinds will be held, commencing at ten o'clock in the forenoon. The attendance will no doubt be in accordance with the excellent bill of amusements provided by the committees.

To hand this week, at Turnbull's, a case of extra heavy Cottonades, all good patterns.

Served Him Right.

One of those individuals coming under the classification of "dudes" went to a livery stable on Saturday afternoon and procured one of the fastest horses and best outfit in the establishment. It was not long before he had his two girls by his side and while going through the principal streets the horse was driven leisurely enough, but when in the north he began to show his horsemanship. He laid on the whip most liberally; soon had the equine sailing along with the rig rattling along the road and the girls in a state of great trepidation. But here is the sequel. The owner of the horse driving the opposite way saw how his favorite pacer was being used. He shouted at the aforesaid young man and brought the rig to a stand still. They went up to him, politely invited him out and counseled the advisability of walking back to town. The young man reluctantly agreed to the proposal and "unfriendly, melancholy and slow" wended his way towards town. The livery stable keeper took charge of both the horse and the young man's girls and brought all safely back.

A reminder. Turnbull's is the right house for a cheap suit, made to order from his job line of fine Scotch Tweeds.

For a Nobby Summer Suit, try ANNEUR McNEIL.

DROWNED.

The Steamboat Becomes Another Victim at Rogers' Dam.

On Saturday evening at about eight o'clock two boys, James Norley, aged twelve years, son of Mr. J. Norley, coach for the Peterborough Cricket Club, and David McGregor, a lad about the same age, went out on a boom just above Rogers' dam.

Young Norley had a pike pole and was amusing himself by catching drift wood that was going over the slide. His companion turned and walked northward on the boom, but had not gone more than a dozen yards when he heard a scream. He turned around just in time to see the little fellow grasp a log and go over the slide. No one but McGregor was near at the time and how the deceased came to fall is unknown. It is probable that he had stuck the pike pole into log mistaking it for a piece of drift wood and was dragged in. Where the boy stood on the boom is not more than four or five yards from the slide, so that almost as soon as he fell in the water he was hurried over the slide in the swift current.

When the father heard of the sad fate of his boy he was almost frantic. He went to the place where the drowning took place, and, although nearly half an hour after the event had transpired, he insisted on plunging into the eddies in search of his son. It was only by the efforts of several friends that he was dissuaded from the perilous act.

Since the accident occurred search has been continued for the body, but up to the present it has proved unavailing.

CHILDREN'S CARNIVAL.

The Little ones in Wash Glide Around on the Rollers.

The children's carnival given at the Lakeside rink on Saturday afternoon was not that success which it should have been, owing, no doubt, to the intense heat.

However, as the afternoon advanced, there were quite a number of the little merry makers on the floor keeping time by the clatter of their skates to the enlivening strains of the Fire Brigade Band. The spectators were quite numerous. Mr. R. B. Landy and Miss N. Ferry were the judges and decided as follows:—

BEST DRESSED GIRL IN FANCY CLOTHING—Goodie Landy as Fairy. Prize, a pair of roller skates.

BEST DRESSED BOY IN FANCY CLOTHING—B. Clouston, as Sailor. Prize, a pair of roller skates.

BEST DRESSED GIRL IN COMIC CLOTHING—Irene Fitzgerald, as Topsy. Prize, a handsome bracelet.

BEST DRESSED BOY IN COMIC CLOTHING—F. Darcy, as Jockey. Prize a lacrosse stick.

Do not Buy

cheap incomplete and incorrect editions of Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Elliot, Irving, &c., until you inspect prices and style of editions for sale at Salisbury's.

County Cricket.

A return cricket match, East Riding vs. West Riding was played in the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association on Saturday afternoon. Only one innings was played. The East scored 40 but the West with only one wicket down overpowered their opponents by five. Rogers, Rutherford, Craven and Montgomery got in good work.

The Lister Telephone Trumpet.

Every telephone subscriber should have these instruments. They are now largely in use in Peterborough, and their merits are fully appreciated. Orders may be left at Ormond & Walsh's drug store, where the instruments can also be seen in use. Get the Lister Trumpet. It is the best.

Just received at Turnbull's, another shipment of Boys' and Youths' Ready-made Clothing, some of them entirely new styles.

An Ending.

Eighty-six children from the Convent de Notre Dame marched to Bradburn's Opera House in charge of the Sister Superior and the nuns of the convent at half past two o'clock this afternoon to practice for the closing exercises of the scholastic year which will be held on Friday evening. The children looked bright and happy, and the sight of so many little ones marching along was exceedingly novel and pleasing.

Another Fire.

At three o'clock this afternoon an alarm was rung for a fire in Ashburnham. It proved to be at the house of Mr. Francis Courtney, about three hundred feet in from Lake street. The brigade turned out, but on account of the burning house being situated so great a distance from the river or lake, they could render no assistance. Children playing with matches was the cause of the fire.

More Excursions.

Mr. A. S. Manhard, the popular Travelling Passenger Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has not been neglecting his duties since he left town for Montreal about a month ago. He has arranged for a large excursion to visit Peterborough early in August, under the auspices of the United Workmen Fraternity of Brockville, Smith's Falls and Perth. No doubt the members of the local lodge will make suitable preparations to greet the brethren from the east. Another excursion will probably be run from Ottawa and intermediate points to Peterborough in July.

The Murial.

The body found in the river on Saturday afternoon was recognized by relatives to be that of Mrs. Scollie. The face and arms were much bruised and badly swollen. Otherwise the body presented a natural appearance. The Chief of Police and relatives departed in a conveyance immediately on receiving the news of the body's being found. On reaching the spot on which the body lay, about two miles below the locks, the husband of the deceased and others instantly recognized the remains to be those of the ill-fated lady. A coffin and hearse were procured and the funeral took place from the river edge to the Little Lake Cemetery.

THE CLUB SWINGING CONTEST.

Reeve's Challenge Accepted by Dubois—A Match to be Arranged.

Considerable interest is now being felt in sporting circles in Peterborough regarding the coming club swinging contest for the championship of the Dominion. We republished from the Mail a few days ago a challenge from R. Reeve of this town, offering to back an unknown for from $25 to $100 a side for the championship of the Dominion.

The challenge was accepted a few days after in the following letter to the Mail:—

"J. H. Dubois and I wish to accept Mr. Reeve's Peterborough challenge to club swinging contest on behalf of H. F. Parkhill; terms, $25 a side, fancy swinging, to be held in Toronto three weeks from signing articles, for the championship of Canada."

"A. M. DUBOIS."

An admirer of Levi Reeve thinks that Reeve is doing an injustice in issuing a challenge when he (Levi) is on his way to England to compete for the championship of Great Britain. But all who know Levi and Reeve's unknown are quite satisfied that the former might profitably take lessons from the latter in the art.

The following letter from Reeve appears in today's Mail:—

"To the Sporting Editor of the Mail.

"Sir.—As Mr. Dubois has not given any particular address, I will meet him at John F. Shaker, Yonge street, on 24th June. If not convenient he can address me Peterborough, and save the Mail further trouble. With reference to 'Jack of Clubs' I was not aware that Levi was away, nor am I disposed to believe he is champion or can make any pretense to same. Perhaps 'Jack of Clubs' would like to post fifty dollars forfeit to make Levi's good when he returns from his visit to Europe."

"Peterborough, June 20, 1885."

Mr. Reeve starts to Toronto to arrange the match and will probably succeed in having the match take place here.

HALIBURTON.

DROWNED.—A sad drowning occurred last week. Chas. Austin who is bringing Irish's drive of logs out of Eyr, being short handed for the job, Martin's gang was sent from here. Van Archer, of Mirden, went up. The driving being bad, and the water falling, the work had to be continued night and day. Archer was on the night gang, and on Thursday morning when the men came in for breakfast, Archer

A SIGN OF THE TIMES

An Grip is one of the most prominent and thorough-going of the Reform journals and is evidently most completely imbued with the ideas of the party, it may be taken as a sure indication of the opinions of at least a large section of the Reformers. Its latest issue contains another striking evidence of the growing discontent of the Reformers with their leader, and of their wish to supplant him in favour of a more efficient successor. In its leading column the Hon. Edward Blake is represented as a statue on a lofty pedestal, regarded by Mr. Oliver Mowat in full armour, who, addressing "Reform," says:—"Grand statue that, very lofty, very classic, very dignified—but what you want is a fighting man." This want of a new leader has been expressed by several other Reform organs. It will be remembered that just before Mr. Blake's resignation, Mr. Macdonald there were similar indications, and it seems far from improbable that he is about to shed the fate he meted out so cynically to his old leader and colleague.

This is a matter that little concerns the Conservatives as a party; from a partisan view, indeed, nothing could be more satisfactory than a Reform leadership, which evidently could never restore Reform to power. All Canadians, however, have an interest, under our present system of responsible government, in seeing that the great parties are well and wisely led. In the interests of the Dominion, it is to be hoped that the Reform party may in future be led by a man who may in future be a more efficient leader, the party may adopt some policy that it may think for the good of the country, and not indulge in mere quibbling opposition and pettifoggery, but to anything that may be proposed by the Government, such criticism being with the sole object of embarrassing the authorities who have been trusted with power by the voice of the people.

A FALSHOOD EXPOSED.

A few days ago a Quebec paper, L'Electeur, published a statement regarding the Northwest which contained the following:

"A company was formed under the name of the Prince Albert Colonization Co. Its principal directors and shareholders were Mr. Jamieson, ex-lawyer of Mr. Bowell, Minister of Customs, and ex-Governor Grand Master, John White, Tory member for Hastings, Mr. Sharpley, brother-in-law of the Hon. A. P. Caron, and Mr. McGee, M. P. for Quebec West. The Government granted to the company an immense tract of land including the settlements at Batouche, St. Laurent, in a word all the principal French half-breed settlements on the South Saskatchewan. It was this company who omitted the evictions of the half-breeds, and it was after the receipt of these notices that the latter organized and armed themselves for the defence of their properties, expecting from moment to moment the arrival of the mounted police to evict them."

As this seemed to be an excuse for the rebellion, and an indirect attack upon the Government, it was extensively copied by the Reform press in Ontario. The untruthfulness of the statement has, however, been exposed.

There was not a half-breed or any other settlement upon the lands obtained by the company, there being only four settlers upon them, and they were not disturbed. Between the company's land and the half-breed settlement at Batouche there is an Indian reserve, the land being six miles from Batouche, and it is also a mile and a half from St. Laurent. It is also stated that all who have settled on the company's lands have been notified that their rights would be respected, and no notice of eviction has been emitted by the company. The Bellefleur Intelligencer also says that Mr. Jamieson is not a director of the company, and has not been a shareholder since the company was first formed, but it supplies the information, carefully withheld by the Reform paper, that Mr. Sutherland, M. P. for Selkirk, was a director, and among the stockholders are a number of Reformers.

These facts show that this attempt to find an excuse for the rebels, and to attack the Government, like many others that have been made, must fail. It shows, further, how anxious the Reformers are by doing as they can to injure the Conservative party, and it also proves what little foundations there is for the assertions that the half-breeds have been oppressed or ill treated, when such false testimony is produced to try to prove the assertion. The political animus is plainly shown by the suppression of the names of the Reform officials of the Colonization company and the putting forward of names of Conservatives who are not officials. Such weak attempts to make political capital must create contempt, and such efforts to cause a feeling in favor of the rebels, and to offer an excuse for their uprising, must create indignation among the people.

BOBAGYRON

STABLER.—Capt. Bottom, of the Forest House, possesses a pair of pigeons which have formed a remarkable attachment for each other. The pigeon lost his mate early in the spring, and for some time was not seen. After a while, the pair were found among the pigeons, and in the course of a few days, noticed that the pigeon was always with one particular black pig. The two are now to be seen every day, walking about together, and evincing the warmest attachment.

Logs.—These log drives are now going through. Some little rivalry exists as to who will take the lead. Hault's is ahead at present, Hillard is close behind and Frank Bell hauling up on the bank of the second. He swung around Sturgeon Point, on Wednesday, with a grand wind, but having lost his second anchor the day before, he was unable to hold himself to the north shore, and was carried across the lake. He would have held for one roll; he would have sailed down ahead of the others.—Independent.

DEDICATORY SERVICES.

THE NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AT KENOKE DEDICATED.

Sermons by the Rev. Principal Cavan, of Toronto—Other Rev. Gentlemen Take Part—Large Collections.

The new Presbyterian Church in Kenosha was dedicated on Sunday morning, June 21st. A very large congregation was in attendance, some having to occupy "the outer courts." The following gentlemen took seats in the pulpit:—The Rev. Principal Cavan, the Rev. F. Andrews, the pastor, and the Rev. J. Tozeland, Methodist minister. The following order of religious services ensued: The Rev. F. Andrews read the 100 Psalm, which was sung by the choir and congregation. He then read the sixth chapter of the Second Chronicles, beginning at the 12th verse, then the ninth chapter of Hebrews, beginning at the 9th verse, after which he offered the consecration prayer. The 122nd Psalm was sung, after which the Rev. Principal Cavan, of Toronto, announced his text—LXXIV Psalm, 10th verse, and delivered an eloquent, earnest and instructive sermon, which was listened to with deep attention by the entire congregation.

The Rev. Principal CAVAN drew a contrast between spending years in pleasure, business, &c., with spending one day in God's house, which resulted in benefit to the soul. Attention is drawn to the duties of the doerkeeper, and when engaged in the discharge of those duties might yet see and enjoy the services within. The real and love of the Psalmist was such that he could be happy in the lowest position in God's house. Such also was the experience of Daniel. The question arises, "Should our estimate of God's house be less in the Gospel dispensation?" Should it not be higher? While the Jewish service was grand and imposing, our appeals to the intellect. May we not endorse the language of the Psalmist on the occasion? Is the language extravagant? Why do we attend the house of God? Perhaps from custom. We have been trained to do so from childhood. Perhaps from conscience. We believe it right to do so. But are there sufficient reasons why God's people love His house and its services? They have higher reasons.

First reason—It is here God's truth is expounded and enforced. In the Jewish service, first and foremost, was the law. Their worship was all symbolic. Thus ours is higher. Second reason—The power of the truth is seen from the time that Peter preached on the day of Pentecost until now. Man likes variety, nevertheless he will tire of any subject except that of divine truth. Some may suggest that the truth that Peter preached was not a perfect right to discuss any subject that affects the conscience of men, preaching to be of value and lasting must be of "Jesus and Him crucified"—God manifests His power in convincing and converting men and blessing His people while in His house. The apostles went forth to preach the gospel; 5,000 are converted on day of Pentecost—Paul was on his mission and churches were everywhere as he goes on his way. Some imagine the gospel has lost its power because we do not see similar demonstrations. Europe and America are evangelized; but still we see grand triumphs of the truth from time to time—in Luther's time, and the grand revivals in England and America during the last and present century—evidences that the gospel still has its power. Some again imagine the power to be the chief means of diffusing these truths in our day and the pulpit to be degenerating, but if all our churches were closed, would our schools, our mission work, our Christian literature, &c., still go on? All would fail! and while we rejoice to see such good results attained by these means, they cannot be regarded as substitutes, but are auxiliaries to the house of God. We must not forget to take into consideration all the influences for good the church of God exerts outside of its sacred walls; how it influences the masses as well as the individual, the more our life as well as during the time occupied in sanctuary services.

Third reason—Christian fellowship is enjoyed under most favorable circumstances, and other evils that exist in some countries, in owing more or less, to the low state of Christianity that prevails. Christianity bids man to man, not by equal distribution of wealth, &c., but in heart to heart. The church is the symbol of this—hence is, and should be, loved. Political or other discussions may arise, but Christian love controls and binds the children of God together, hence we see in God's house—unity of worship—all join prayer, in praise, at the Lord's table, and thus "Are one in Christ Jesus." In conclusion, earnest plea is made to the members and hearers to love the house of God, and that God may abundantly bless the labors put forth, not in our time only, but in future years, that grand and glorious results may ensue from the dedication of this house of God.

At close of sermon the Rev. Mr. Tozeland offered up a very earnest and effective prayer. The 20th psalm was then sung—Ananias made for evening service, after which the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Principal Cavan. The collections at the close of the service amounted to $232.

EVENING SERVICE. The evening service was open by the singing of the 121st Psalm, then reading the 12th chapter of St. John's Gospel by Rev. Principal Cavan, who then engaged in prayer. The 121st Psalm was then sung, at the close of which the Rev. Principal Cavan announced his text—the 12th chapter of John—16 verse—from which he again preached an eloquent, earnest and practical sermon, one not only appreciated by the congregation, but calculated to do them good, as shown from remarks made on every hand at the close of the service. The Rev. gentleman in his opening remarks called attention to the fact that the Saviour had told the disciples that He was about to leave them, and this statement of our Lord fills them with sorrow—hence these words of comfort.

Words of comfort on two grounds, first—the time of their tribulation is short; also, He goes away only for a little while, to prepare mansions for them, and then, He comes again to receive them. Thus Heaven is for them at last. This consolation was out for the disciples only but for all. Second ground of comfort—Even during His absence He has provided a substitute in the person of the comforter who shall proceed from Him to them. This 2nd promise to be the subject on the present occasion.

This promise applies not only to the disciples, but to the church in all ages—to us. Let us look at the meaning of the term comforter, not only to soothe the troubled mind, to cheer the despondent, &c., as is generally supposed, but implies as true, a loving friend, one who will think with us, will feel with us, and bring all resources to ensure success. Thus the term seems to cover the whole ground of the spirit's work, showing His relation to God's people. Some of the things included in the work of the Holy Spirit are:

He is our teacher. Christ was a teacher in His day to His disciples and the people generally. The disciples improved in wisdom under His teaching, but were still very imperfect in their knowledge of the things of God. But after the Holy Spirit is given on the day of Pentecost, how different their views? So with the Apostle Paul, how changed he became? We, and the church universal, need this teacher. We never had the privilege the disciples had of sitting at the feet of Jesus and learning from Him, but we have the riper privileges of the teaching of the Holy Spirit and also the experience of the church in past ages. Why do we need this teaching of the Holy Spirit? Why cannot any intelligent person read and understand the Bible? The Bible is its own teacher, and the teaching cannot be its truth, unless by the aid of the Holy Spirit. Some passages appear mysterious to us. "Read them again more carefully," says one. "Read such and such books on the subject," says another. Get the best help possible, which is wise and right, yet without the teaching of the Divine Spirit we fail to find the true solution of these difficulties. Only God, who formed the mind of man, can open and enlighten the mind. We must sit at the feet of Jesus and learn through the influence of the Holy Spirit the certainty of God's truths as revealed by the Spirit of God.

Second—He is the sanctifier of God's people. The work of the Holy Spirit is to make some good. This work is going on by day and by night, in adversity and prosperity, till Heaven crowns the work at last. This work is accomplished through the Word of God. Says Jesus, "Sanctify them through thy truth." Hence our duty to study the Bible, meditate on its teaching and act upon them. Man's nature is rebellious, dark, the Spirit enlightens, and every removal of evil gives increase of joy. Those who work the works of the flesh, as enumerated by the Apostle Paul, must lead a life of misery, of death, the soul in captivity! Can it be happy? But notice the fruits of the Spirit—not works, here—joy, peace, love, &c.—against such there is no law. The Holy Spirit is given also to guide and assist in the decisions of God's people. Some think worship dull, while others experience great joy in prayer, as the Spirit assists. The Holy Spirit draws our hearts towards God, and the sweetest joy is experienced as the work of the shut out and the soul is talking with its God in prayer assisted by the Spirit. But there are times in our personal experience when all seems dark. How is this? The true reason is, we are not in the Spirit. The Spirit aids the soul, in the other the soul attempts to arise in its own strength. The Spirit conveys comfort directly and immediately to the heart, and the soul needs it, through the word of divine truth. The word may be in the mind, but the spirit must apply it—hence strength is given for the occasion. Polycarp, although 90 years of age, during his martyrdom evinced the greatest calmness—and so with others. This is not fanaticism, but a living divine power assisting God's people. Such are more than conquerors. Our personal experience in past trials and sorrows prove the truth of these statements; nature of itself is not able to resist these evils. The Holy Spirit is given to every man; it may be at different periods of life—in a different manner—but these manifestations are all the result of the attainment of our blessed Saviour, secured to us through His blood.

The Rev. F. Andrews led in prayer, after which Psalm 121 was sung by choir and congregation and benediction pronounced by Rev. J. Tozeland. The collections at the close of the service amounted to $80.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

The Young Men's Christian Association Recognize Miss Stephens' Services.

On Monday evening several members of the Young Men's Christian Association waited on Miss Grace Stephens at her home and Mr. Geo. Williams, on behalf of the Association, read the following address:—

PETERBOROUGH, 22nd June, 1886.

Dear Miss Stephens: The expressions of appreciation from our members of your self-denying and faithful services on behalf of our association, in the musical part of its work, have been frequent and sincerely as being so well deserved.

As a very slight testimonial of this appreciation we have the pleasure to present to you the accompanying present. While the intrinsic value of the articles is not great, we trust they will afford you pleasure, and that they may be of use to you. We also hope that the copy of the word of God will be helpful to you in your Christian work, and that the 'Word of Christ may dwell in you richly' so that you may be built up in the divine life and become 'thoroughly furnished into all good works.'

The following names were appended on behalf of the Young Men's Christian Association of Peterborough:—Isaac Richardson, John J. Hall, G. J. Early, A. W. Jones, H. Rosseter, G. E. Williams, Joseph Batton.

Miss Stephens has voluntarily filled the office of organist at the Association Rooms for the last three years, and the members took this method of showing their appreciation of her services in that capacity. The presents referred to are a handsome music rack and a beautifully bound Bible.

Miss Stephens accepted the presents and the sentiments embodied in the address, and conveyed her thanks in natural terms.

Just received at Habillment Hall, a fine lot of Men's Linen Coats, just the thing for hot weather. A. McNEIL.

THE CANAL.

Last Wednesday the temporary bridge across the canal was raised and shifted about forty feet on to the finished portion of the lock walls. In order to allow the other parts to be completed, which it is to be by the end of July. The bridge was first lifted so that the great effort of the crane could be put under it, and then, by means of a derrick at one end and horses, ropes and pulleys at the other, it was slid the required distance without much difficulty. There are at present about fifty men employed on the canal here, and half that number at the Bobcaygeon quarry preparing stone, which is towed up the Falls by means of the Mary Allen, which a few days ago suddenly broke through the boom that attempted to stop her. The lock gates, for which everything is now ready, are to be put in by the Government; but when a commencement is to be made upon them we are unable to learn. The heaviest mason work yet to be done is on the north side of the upper where a double wall is to be built to divide the canal from the railway; but Mr. MacDonald expects to have it completed within six weeks. Above the locks the canal has a very rough appearance, but as the greater part of it is already required, and as the work is steadily going on, it will not take long to reach the river, where the approaches to the canal were constructed last year. Whether the canal will or will not be finished this season we are unable to say, but are inclined to think that there will be some work to be done to it in 1886. Mr. MacDonald has no doubt about getting through with his contract before winter; but the lock gates and the swing bridge are not in it, and, so far, we have no word of a commencement upon them being made. —Frederic Falls Gazette.

FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

MATCH BETWEEN THE PETERBOROUGH AND BEAVERTON LACROSSE CLUBS.

The Home Club Lost After a Hard Fought Contest—They Fail to Secure a Game—Practice Match Perfect.

A lacrosse match for the championship of the Central District was played on the grounds of the Peterborough Club on Tuesday afternoon by teams representing the Peterborough Club and the Beaverton Club of Beaverton. The teams drove to the grounds at about two o'clock, accompanied by the Fine Belknap Band. The number of spectators was not very large, perhaps owing to the weather, which was not favorable for a large attendance, still there was quite a number of the friends of the game present. Mr. Jim Garvin, of the Toronto Lacrosse Club, was chosen referee, and shortly before three o'clock the teams took up their positions on the field. The following are the names of the representatives of the Clubs:—

PETERBOROUGH: J. Joyal, Goal; J. McLean, Point; D. McKinnon, Cover Point; S. Weeks, D. fence Field; D. McKinnon, F. McKinnon; J. J. Sheehy, Centre; A. Ross, A. H. Yelland, Home Field; J. A. Kennedy, J. Henderson, Second Home; W. K. Cameron, G. H. Giron, First Home; J. Coughlin, Field Captain; L. J. Cameron, J. Eisekett, Umpire; W. Robinson.

BEAVERTON: J. Joyal, Goal; J. McLean, Point; D. McKinnon, Cover Point; S. Weeks, D. fence Field; D. McKinnon, F. McKinnon; J. J. Sheehy, Centre; A. Ross, A. H. Yelland, Home Field; J. A. Kennedy, J. Henderson, Second Home; W. K. Cameron, G. H. Giron, First Home; J. Coughlin, Field Captain; L. J. Cameron, J. Eisekett, Umpire; W. Robinson.

THE FIRST GAME.

The ball was faced by Sheehy and Ross at ten minutes to 3 o'clock. Sheehy commenced the game well by drawing the ball, and the friends of the home club were pleased to see Yelland on hand, as of yore, but when he threw the ball it was neatly stopped. After some lively play to secure possession of the rubber, it went down to Peterborough's defence, when Tierney returned it to the Beaverton side of the field. A strong wind was blowing and the Beaverton club, having won the toss, had the wind in their favor, which assisted them in throwing, while Tierney and Joyal, who are both known to be excellent long throwers, could hardly send the ball past centre. The ball again threatened the Peterborough goal, when Joyal relieved the danger. Helpin passed it on up field and Giron dropped it in front of the goal, and a close call, but no game, was the result. After playing another visit to the Peterborough side, and being returned by Fortye, Henderson made a good, but ineffectual throw on the visitors' flags. Thus the game went on, but it was generally conceded by the spectators, on account of the strong wind that was blowing, that the visitors would take the game. The defence, however, worked hard, and the home, when opportunity offered, tried to secure a game, but without success. Finally a pretty drop shot by Kennedy gave the ball to M. C. Cameron and he scored the first game for Beaverton. Time, 16 minutes.

THE SECOND GAME—A SURPRISE.

The second game commenced with some lively play in the centre of the field, and the ball was taken, by short stages, and at the end of each one a scruff for the ball, close to the Peterborough goal. Joyal threw it down the field, when a Beaverton player secured it, but was nearly checked by 'Supple' Cameron, who passed it on to the Peterborough home, where it remained for a brief period, and was then again sent in centre field. The sphere travelled the length of the field four times, and once, when sent down by Fortye, went close to the visitors' goal, but the game was won by Beaverton, J. Birchard making the winning throw. Time, 6 minutes. This result was a surprise to the friends of the home club, as it was thought that, with the wind in their favor, they would be sure to win the game.

THIRD AND FINAL GAME.

In the third game, with the wind again against them, the Peterborough players did more effective work than in the other two games. Soon after the game commenced two close calls were made on the goal of the Beaverton, who returned the compliment by threatening the Peterborough goal. After five minutes' play time was called, Henderson having accidentally received a severe blow on the forehead. Soon, however, he appeared in his place with a bandage on his head, and the game went on, four minutes having been lost. Each side played earnestly, which led to several blows being received on the hands and other places, but there was no 'kicking.' No part of the field was allowed to remain idle long, but the Peterborough defence had considerable work. Finally the ball was dropped in front of the Peterborough goal and W. K. Cameron knocked it through. Time, 24 minutes after the game began, or 30 minutes of play.

REMARKS.

The Peterborough players contended that the ball was thrown too high when the last game was decided to be won, but the umpire, W. Robinson, decided against them, and the match went to the Beaverton Club. If a club which has, by persistent practice, brought itself forward into a first position, deserves the district championship, Beaverton should have it. Anyone who saw them play here two years ago, and saw them again on Tuesday, would not think they were the same team, they have improved to such an extent. But they are plucky, and went in and persisted to win, and they have won. Several of the best players in the Peterborough district did not play in their usual good form, but the explanation is not far to seek, as they have not done as much practice as is needed to 'keep one's hand in.' Several of the good players of last year's championship team were absent, two (Myler and Kelly) being in the Northwest with the volunteers, and, besides, Rodkin and Rutherford were not playing. We believe the Peterborough club will take their present defeat in good part and prepare to again win the title of champions. With all due deference to the result of the match, we believe that the team that played yesterday, if they practice as the Beaverton club has practiced, is able to and will again, and before long, win for the Peterborough club the championship of the Central District.

One of the best players in the Beaverton team, Kennedy, although he may be a member of the Checker Club, is a resident of Lindsay and is, we believe, an officer of the Lindsay club.

The championship medal was handed to the Beaverton club after the conclusion of the match.

A challenge has been sent to the Beaverton club to play for the championship on the 15th or 23rd of July.

THE RELEASED CAPTIVES

THE LAST OF BIG BEAR'S PRISONERS BROUGHT INTO CAMP.

Their Names and How they were Treated—The Troops to Return at Once—Reported Capture Confirmed.

WINNIPEG, June 23.—Troops are all expected to embark for home to-morrow via Lake Winnipeg. A and B batteries and C company infantry regulars will remain at Caledonia to co-operate with the mounted police in the capture of Big Bear. The Quebec school of cavalry will also remain. It is understood that those who volunteered to remain are not required to do so. The permanent corps with the police are to garrison Qu'Appelle, Humboldt, Fort Pitt, Edmonton and Prince Albert, in addition to the mounted police posts.

A CAPTURE CONFIRMED.

A despatch from Battleford announces the arrival of a courier from Col. Ostr's column, who confirms the reported capture at Turtle Lake of Yellow Sky and twenty head of cattle and four horses taken from Fort Pitt. All the infantry under Col. Ostr are ordered to return at once to Battleford.

RELEASED CAPTIVES BROUGHT IN.

FORT PITT, June 21, via Brandon, June 22. Capt. Redson, the master of transport, brought in the McLean family and the other white prisoners, numbering twenty, released by Big Bear. They were taken up by the captured wagons at Loon lake, sixty miles from here. All were in good health and spirits. Before they were allowed to return McLean promised to give a letter to the military authorities that the Cree should be allowed to accept of such terms they could surrender before being fired upon. On returning home the released prisoners were frequently out of pre, victims, once having only one shot for each of the twenty people. Fortunately afterwards they found an ox, which they killed and partly consumed. The prisoners unite in saying that the Indians are very cowardly, and had two more shots been fired at Redson they would have surrendered. Being under impression that the troops were following them, they would have retreated in hot haste, leaving arms, cattle, goods, etc., on the prairie. At Red Deer there was one killed and two wounded, and at Loon lake four were killed, having been shot in mistake by Little Bear.

THEIR TREATMENT.

Not one of the prisoners had been subjected to bodily injury or ill-treatment of any sort, but after the night with Gen. Strange they had to walk and pack back.

WHO THEY ARE.

The prisoners names are as follows: Foster and Mrs. McLean, Amelia McLean, aged 16, Eliza McLean, 12, Kiley 14, Angus 10, Unonon 8, Euphemia 4, John 5, and so infant in arms: George Mann, farm instructor, Mrs. Mann and the children, Malcolm Macdonald, H. B. Clark, John Fitzpatrick, farm instructor, Stanley Simpson, E. B. Clark, H. B. Hodson, cook to McLean, John Simpson, H. B. factor, and Joseph Parlin.

DEDICATORY SERVICES.

THE NEW PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AT KESWICK.

A Tea Meeting held on Monday Evening—Addressed by Several Clergymen—The Rev. Mr. McNeill.

From Our Own Correspondent.

The opening tea meeting of the new Presbyterian Church at Keswick was held on Monday evening. Tea was served in the old church from about 3.30 until 7 p.m., during which time nearly 700 had tea, and yet hardly half of the provisions were used, and the balance will be sold on Tuesday afternoon. The ladies were very nicely adorned with vase and flowers. The music was everywhere and very tentative. At about 7.30 p.m. the new church was filled to overflowing with a very large and intellectual audience. The pastor, the Rev. F. Andrews, opened the service by a few happy remarks, which were very appropriate to the occasion, and called upon the choir, who rendered the 23rd Psalm in very effective manner with Miss Moore as organist. Prayer was then offered by the Rev. Mr. Carmichael, of Newwood.

Gen. Read, Esq., was then elected Chairman, and a few remarks called on the choir, who rendered the 23rd Psalm in very effective manner with Miss Moore as organist. Prayer was then offered by the Rev. Mr. Carmichael, of Newwood.

The Rev. Mr. TOWNSEND was then called on, and he expressed his great pleasure at being present at the opening of the new church. As he was in the act of leaving to a new church, he had not time to prepare anything. He, however, paid a high tribute to Principal Cairns' sermon on Sunday, and congratulated the people on having secured such a beautiful structure, for which the Building Committee deserved great praise. He also hoped and strongly advised them to wipe out the debt now, because it would be easier now than later on, and besides, how much better would they feel if they gave it up to the Lord free of debt. He expressed his pleasure at meeting ministers of various churches on the same platform, as it showed the spirit of union that was abroad. Referring to Principal Cairns' letter in the Metropolitan Magazine a short time ago, showing the very marked difference between the Congregational, Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian churches, he also hoped for union, and that the Divine blessing would rest upon pastor and people.

The choir then sang "How beautiful upon the Mountains, &c." The Rev. Mr. CARMICHAEL, of Newwood, then referred to the honor and privilege he felt it to be to address the meeting in such a fine church. He referred to the old time when the people were glad of a chance to worship anywhere. He stated that he had not prepared a speech for tonight, and then he related how he had prepared one once and when he came to recite it he could not, so he would just give them a few thoughts. He then stated that we live in the grandest age of the world, giving a list of the various conveniences in steamers and railways, telegraph, condition of women, missionary operations and the revision of the Bible, so that everyone might have the same better. He then spoke of the glorious Dominion of our own, its vast improvements in canals and railways, especially the Canadian Pacific Railway, extending from coast to coast, and also our extensive privileges in every way, especially our educational system, the people being as intellectual and as well educated as any country; but let us remember the labor of our forefathers who have set us in possession of a grand country. He exhorted the people to go on and build up the church and to work for Christ. The church was regarded most by so called Christians. He closed his remarks with the wish that many might be born into a new life in this church.

The choir sang "I will call upon the Lord," &c.

The Rev. Mr. TOWNSEND referred to the centenary of the church, which he thought prevailed here, viz., of taking the good first and then the poor. However he was very glad to be here and to see the completion of this fine church, and especially as the pastor's long term of ministerial duties, which had lasted over 30 years. He advised them to attend church and pay attention to what they heard, not to give their pastor's sermon, as some but a minister knows the work both spiritual and mental required to prepare a sermon. Work for the welfare of the church and support all its various schemes. He closed with his best wishes for the welfare and success of the church in Keswick.

Mr. JAS. McNEIL, Superintendent of the Sunday school, then announced that the Sunday school would be held after this in the basement of the church from 9.30 to 10.30, instead of 13 m., as formerly, and in very earnest and forcible language urged all to attend early on time.

Then followed a number of motions for votes of thanks, viz.:—
Moved by Mr. JAS. Drummond, seconded by Mr. B. M. Wyke, and carried by a standing vote. That the thanks of the church be tendered to the Rev. Mr. TOWNSEND and the Methodist church for their kindness in withdrawing their services, &c., also to express their well wishes for Mr. TOWNSEND on his departure.

Mr. TOWNSEND spoke very feelingly and again expressed his very great pleasure at being with them and also thanked them for their well wishes on his behalf.

Moved by Mr. JAS. McNEIL, seconded by Mr. JAS. Galloway, and resolved:—That a hearty vote of thanks be tendered to the Rev. Mr. TOWNSEND for his noble assistance ever since the new church had been commenced, and if it had not been for their enthusiasm this church would never have been started.

Moved by Rev. Mr. Andrews, and seconded by Miss E. McNEIL and JAS. Drummond, and resolved:—That a vote of thanks be tendered to the choir for their noble assistance during the service.

The choir then sang "Nearer Home," after which the Rev. F. Andrews reviewed the speeches of the evening and gave a few reminiscences of his trip to this place and of the early times in this township. He also stated that he had preached over 1,000 sermons in the old church. He then moved a vote of thanks to the ministers who had addressed them, especially the Rev. Principal Cairns, and also another motion for a vote of thanks to the building committee with especial mention of Messrs. Richard Hope and James McNEIL. These motions were seconded by Mr. JAMES Drummond.

Moved by Mr. McNEIL, and seconded by Mr. B. M. Wyke, that a vote of thanks be tendered to the chairman.—Carried.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Mr. McNEIL.

THE NEW CHURCH.

The new church is a modern gothic, facing the East, with a very fine spire on the S. E. corner. The windows are of stained glass and the large one in the east end is a very beautiful one. A gallery capable of holding over 100 persons runs across the east end and the floor of the church is graded and seats are arranged in a similar form and will seat over 600. There are two furnaces in the basement for heating purposes. There is an open pulpit. The church is built of red brick with a stone foundation. There are two large iron staircases and a side and a rear door. The cost is $12,000. The proceeds of Sunday's services and the tea are over $25.00.

The building committee were indefatigable in their endeavors to push the building to a finish and also to see that all parts of the work were well done. Services will be held as usual on Sunday morning next at 10.30 a.m.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

Monday, June 22.—There still came in a few of Mr. Edgar's clerical pretensions to be petitions against the Franchise Bill.

THE END.

Mr. CARWILL introduced and moved the passing of the Bill to amend the act relating to food, drugs and fertilizers was read a third time and passed.

OUR CHURCH MAIL.

Mr. CARLTON moved the reception of the report in favor of the removal of the Allan school for five years.

Messrs. BLAIR, MILLER and a few other Reformers attacked the Allan and other members, some of them pointing to the New York town.

The resolution was passed and a bill founded on it was introduced and read a first time.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

The House went into committee on the Franchise Bill and passed the schedule and preamble.

Mr. JOHN MACDONALD, in reply to Mr. MILLER, said he did not propose to fix the salaries of the judges until next session. He believed the judges would accept the offer with slight modifications, and where they were not, they could be obtained for moderate payment.

Mr. MILLER made some important remarks about the judges and barristers, talking about "bribe-taking" and "padding."

PARLIAMENTARY LIBRARY.

The Bill respecting the Parliamentary Library was passed through its remaining stages after some opposition by the Reformers.

REVISION.

Sir J. MACDONALD, on concurrence in the vote for pensions for the veterans of 1812, said, in reply to Sir R. Cartwright, that it was the intention to provide pensions for the widows and orphans of those who fell in the Northwest, as well as literally as in the case of 1812. Attention would also be called to the necessity for showing some mark of the appreciation of the country.

THE MOUNTED POLICE.

The Bill for the augmentation of the Mounted Police was read a second time, as also was the bill to amend the act relating to the Mounted Police when serving with the Militia, and to give their officers relative rank.

PROGRESS.

Several other measures were advanced a stage.

The House adjourned at midnight.

Quit the Pipe during the Warm Weather, and Smoke Peterboro' Cigar Factory's Fragrant Cigars.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the hands off our $5.00 Cigar, and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also set our brains on cheap, trashy cigars, poisoning them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the hands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (10c) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a cheap, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c) ten cents for our "Cable" cigars (10c) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c) cigars as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you, and smokers have a great (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

PRIVILEGE.
TUESDAY, June 23rd. Mr. Sproule corrected the assertion that he had made insulting remarks on a petition from some ministers, though he had disclaimed it at the time.

THE FISHERIES.
Mr. PETER MITCHELL asked some questions as to the termination of the fishery clauses of the Washington treaty. He thought if fishing were to be allowed temporarily in our waters the United States duty on fish should also be held in abeyance. He asked what had been done.

Mr. J. MACDONALD said the United States had given notice to terminate those clauses. Negotiations were now going on, but he could not bring down the papers without the leave of the Imperial Government, which had been asked but not yet obtained.

Mr. VAIL expressed regret at the possibility of an arrangement throwing our fisheries open to the United States while they charged a duty on our fish.

Sir J. MACDONALD censured Mr. Vail for observations calculated to destroy the prospects of successful negotiations.

Mr. MACKENZIE BOWELL moved the House into committee on the arrangement with Manitoba, which he clearly explained. Owing to the increasing population it was necessary to increase the grant. It was proposed to give the Province all the swamp lands on condition that it would drain them; to give an additional grant of 150,000 acres of land for the endowment of the university; to increase the grant of the lands to $10,000 a year; to make the subsidy 80 cents a head on 150,000, to be increased by quinquennial census to 400,000; to deduct from the capital sum on which it was based the amount spent by the Dominion for local purposes and $150,000 to be advanced for a lunatic asylum. This was in full of all claims to January, 1886, and would give the Province, in addition to the proceeds from swamp lands, $150,000 a year instead of $110,000.

Mr. WATSON wasted words.

Mr. WATSON thought the terms satisfactory.

Mr. BLAKE complained of the disallowance of railways to take the trade of the Province to the United States and urged them to consent.

He related a story that somebody had told him that some people in Southwestern Manitoba were in want of food and clothing while their wheat was rotting for want of means of transport. He wanted the school lands given to the Province to manage.

Sir JOHN MACDONALD ridiculed Mr. Blake's picture of people starving when they had an abundance of the best wheat in the world. And when that wheat brought $1 a bushel, it was hard to see why they should be without clothing. As to railways the Dominion had only granted charters, but had given lavish land grants so that branch railways might be built. The policy not to allow the trade to be taken from their own line till it was completely established was the fault lay with the Province. There was a strong opinion in the Province that the school lands should be under the control of the Dominion Parliament and not the management had been made by the Province. The resolutions were passed.

SUPPLY.
The House went into committee of supply and passed several items.

On the emigration items some Reform members took the opportunity to decry Canada and advertise the United States in their old style.

The supplementary estimates for the current year were brought down.

THE MASONIC EXCURSION.

A Successful Opening of the Excursion Season by the Fraternity—A Fine Party and a Delightful Trip.

(By Our Own Reporter.)

The Masonic excursion to Toronto on Wednesday was a splendid success, and must have proved financially gratifying to the Committee of Management and the G. T. R. Company. Toronto was reached at 10.30, being ahead of the time usually taken. Conductor Butler and Driver Mallick were in charge of the train, and it was whispered around before starting that these two "goers" were determined to make the run a lively one for the party—and so it proved to be.

The trip was a delightful one. The party numbered about 450, every one of whom seemed to enjoy themselves. Much of that social ingling and intercourse which tends to enhance the pleasure of such trips was indulged in. No one seemed to be under restraint but all appeared to have met among friends on a common level—"on the square."

On arriving in Toronto the excursionists sought out the various hotels for refreshments, the Walker House getting the largest share. It was remarked by the members of the fraternity that not one of the Toronto brethren could be seen, and they did appear to be entirely oblivious of the presence of so many of their visiting brethren in the city. It was presumed, however, that the day being the festival of St. John, the craft of the city were all hard "at labor" and consequently were not aware of the arrival of their brethren. Although copies of the large posters announcing the excursion were duly sent to Toronto by the Secretary of the Committee.

The day was well spent in the city. Many of the excursionists made good use of their time in visiting the various places of interest, while others found time to transact business of a more profitable nature. At 6.30 the train started on the return home with only about half the party, the other half having remained behind to take advantage of the full time allowed by their tickets—a privilege which seemed to be very much appreciated.

Members of the craft and their friends from Millbrook, Oshawa, Lindsay, Uxbridge and Markham participated in this excursion, showing how general had been the response to co-operate all along the line.

NOTES.
The Committee of Management were very popular, having been unusually assiduous in their duties in looking after the comfort of their party.

Mr. Brundrette, the indefatigable secretary, lost his hat off the train going down. The Committee raised a purse on the spot, and presented it to him to buy a new one. He brought back with him one of the latest city style from Dinwiddie, which he now wears with considerable pride.

Mr. Arthur White, the popular Traffic Agent, was called on by many of the excursionists in his new quarters in the Union station. He was glad to see so many Peterborough faces, and made them welcome. When his new offices are put in shape, he will have very comfortable and convenient quarters. Johnny Hawkins and one or two other familiar faces are still with him on his staff.

Considerable fun was enjoyed in the parlour car going home. The ladies were determined that one of the members of the Committee, who had made a lucky purchase of strawberries in the city, should treat all round. But it was no use—he was an admirer of leather—and as the train was to B. shortly in town, the ladies decided to cut up a huge pineapple, and stand the treat themselves.

I understand that it is the intention of the Masons to run an annual excursion every year, and I have no doubt the success which they have met with on this occasion will follow them in future. The re-furnishing of a new Masonic hall on a grand scale, I believe, on the tapis.

AN EXPLANATION.
The Toronto Mail has the following:—

"A large Masonic excursion from Peterborough, Lindsay, Port Hope, and vicinity arrived in Toronto yesterday morning, and a large party of the excursionists were seen in 'doing' the city. Some surprise was expressed that the Toronto brethren did not give them some kind of a reception, but from enquiries made it appears that the fault lay with the visitors themselves and not with any one in Toronto. About three weeks ago the secretary of the excursion committee, a Peterborough brother, wrote to R. W. Bro. T. P. Blackwood, D. D. G. M., informing him of the contemplated visit, and asking if the Toronto brethren could assist them in arranging a programme for the day. A meeting of Masters of Orient Lodges, Riverside, and arrangements were made for their entertainment. Subsequently Mr. W. Bro. Hugh Murray, Grand Master, who was to lay the stone, found his engagements would not permit him to leave Hamilton yesterday, and he thereupon postponed the ceremony until next Tuesday. Accordingly, some days ago R. W. Bro. Blackwood again wrote to the secretary of the excursion committee stating the facts, and asking if arrangements for visiting Toronto were so far advanced that they could not be put off for a week. The District Deputy received to answer to this letter, neither did the Master of a city lodge who wrote in a similar strain, and it was therefore supposed that the excursion had been postponed until next week. To Bro. Blackwood's surprise he heard only at five o'clock yesterday morning that the visitors had been in the city for some hours. It is only due to the Toronto brethren that this explanation should be made, so that they may be exonerated from any seeming discourtesy and want of hospitality. Had due notice been given of the intended visit yesterday arrangements would have been made to tender the visiting brethren a hearty reception."

Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind, colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Nursing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

RETURN OF THE TROOPS.

They Will Not Have Homecoming for Eight Days.

WINNIPEG, June 24.—A dispatch from the west announces another delay in the departure of the troops from Fort Pitt. Two reasons are assigned: One, that they are awaiting the result of the dispatch of two Wood Creeks to the Chippewyan Indians to ask for the surrender of Wandering Spirit Little Bear, and other murderous spirits of the Frog Lake massacre. The other reason is that they are awaiting the concentration of troops from outlying points and the arrival of the steamers necessary to effect the transport to Grand Rapids near Lake Winnipeg.

A REPLY.
It is probable that the troops will rest a couple of days in Winnipeg, and the entire force be reviewed by General Middleton before separating and going east. The general will be a guest at government house, and will be thus enabled to meet as one body the force which he has commanded throughout the troubles.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.
Law Smith Leads a Blushing Bride to the Altar and David Pringle Brings a Bride.

There was more than a little ripple in Police Court circles on Tuesday when it was announced that this was to be the nuptial day with Law Smith and Catherine Carson. The most fact of the union was nothing in itself, but the circumstances leading to it lend more than the usual charm to such events, and border so close upon the romantic that they are of unusual interest.

Law's fair bride has been sequestered to the hill for being too fond of the bowl that incubates and was liberated to-day. Prior to her incarceration Law Smith and David Pringle had vied with each other in their new games of the fair Catherine was naturally divided in her choice between such distinguished men.

Finally David's fidelity proved more attractive than Law's eloquence and he won the prize. They celebrated the event and Catherine was sent up. As the time drew near for her release David grew joyful, but on Saturday he fell a prey to his old adversary, the police, and on Sunday was again in the clutches of the law. He was held for 10 days. Law immediately became hopeful, and as the woman was liberated on Tuesday he was on hand looking his best, and had no difficulty in winning her promise to share his joys and sorrows.

After some difficulty a friend was found who loaned him $2, when they started in quest of a garson. When the discarded David was informed of the turn events had taken his heart was so great that he wept like a little child and refused to be comforted.—Belleville Intelligence.

ONTARIO'S DEBT.

Mr. Mowat's leading organ seems to find a matter of rejoicing in the fact that the Mowat Administration is incurring an additional Provincial debt. We do not believe that the people of Ontario will take this view of the matter.

It certainly seems that we are burning the candle at both ends. A large portion of our public capital, our real estate, our crown lands and timber, is fast being alienated, and the proceeds are being used to meet current expenses. While we are being thus shorn of our capital to provide for our annual expenditure, which is not covered by the revenue, we are also heaping up a public debt, and are called upon to rejoice over it. It must be remembered too, that our revenue as a Province is not very elastic. Neither promotion of settlement by selling land, nor the opening of the country by railways is calculated to add much to the yearly receipts of our Treasury, increased population not bringing a greatly increased revenue. When our real estate is exhausted we will miss the proceeds unless they are regarded as capital and funded so as to draw interest. Deprived of this source of income, we will be less and less able to bear the heavy debt that is being accumulated.

Any farmer who was selling at intervals portions of his farm and at the same time placing mortgages on the remainder would soon find poverty staring him in the face, and this is precisely what our Provincial authorities are doing.

It is pretended by Mr. Mowat and his colleagues that they have a large available surplus. The hollowness of this pretence is shown by the fact that we have to sell real estate for money to pay our way, and also have to go to the money lenders. If we have an available surplus, why is it not used instead of borrowing money at interest?

There is another feature of this transaction and that is the uneconomical manner in which we are borrowing this money, if money must be borrowed. But we will not dwell upon this point on the present occasion.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE.

A Man Arrested by Detectives who Thought He was an Ambassador.

A New York despatch says that two weeks ago Frank L. Thorpe, of Chicago, started on a trip through Canada for his health, and soon found himself at Rideau Lake, near Kingston. On the train which left Toronto in the morning the traveller noticed that two sharp-eyed gentlemen watched him very closely. When the train reached Brockville he was somewhat surprised to see the strangers alight. During the evening the tourists took a short stroll about the town and again met the strangers. Before retiring the Chicago man booked himself for a stage which leaves daily for Rideau Lake, and then in the morning he found that the couple were also bound for Rideau Lake. During the tedious ride in a lumbering coach he found his fellow passengers excellent companions, the trio becoming quite social, and next day they all went fishing on the lake. At noon they had their baskets full of trout, and it was then suggested by one of Mr. Thorpe's new friends, who passed as George Gordon, of Buffalo, that they land at Little Cove and take their lunch at franco; and the boat was headed for the cove. A beverage resembling liquor was drunk. When Thorpe's head began to buzz he comprehended that the liquor was drugged. He soon became unconscious. He awoke in a small dining room.

"Good morning, my fine fellow," said a voice from behind him, and turning the drugged man saw his artful companion Gordon laughing sardonically. "You gave us a clever chase, but we were too many for you."

"In heaven's name, man," demanded Gordon's bewildered victim, "what does all this mean?"

"You are awfully innocent, but it won't work but, back, that's the Simpson's rap. Now you will learn why we dragged you down with a heap of trouble brought you back safe to New York."

Gordon's Thorpe noticed the entrance of Simpson accompanied by a venerable, pleasant faced gentleman.

"Ah, here we are, Richard Scott, allow me to present a man who will identify you," spoke the jubilant Gordon.

"The man who was to identify Scott said: 'Why, men, you are crazy. This man is not Scott. This is a horrible mistake!'"

"We have made a great mistake, Mr. Thorpe, and we beg a thousand pardons," said the identifier. "You greatly resemble the absconding bank teller, and to recover the $100,000 stolen and to punish crime, you were abducted from Canada here."

HASTINGS.

A SHINO. The long talked of siding for Birdall's station has at last been put in, which will be a very great convenience to residents of that neighborhood.

A NEW YACHT. Mr. Burset, of Birdall's launch, has a very fine steam yacht on Saturday last. The boat is to be christened "The Sunbeam." We trust Mr. B. and his friends will enjoy many pleasant days sail.

A Can of Dynamite.

QUERRO, June 23.—While some boys were looking for a lost baseball last evening underneath Taylor's stables at Cap Blanc, about a mile from the city, they came across a can of dynamite containing 250 lbs. of explosive, all done up in fancy paper packages. The can was neatly labelled with an American maker's name on it. How the can was placed there is a mystery. The detectives have taken up the case, and are searching for a clue. The inhabitants in the vicinity were very much excited over the "find," and the place was to day visited by hundreds of people. The can and contents are in the hands of the chief of police.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

NOT ALWAYS IN A HURRY.

The Globe is finding fault with the Government for not rushing precipitately into the trial of Riel. We pointed out in our last issue the weakness in fact, the absurdity of its complaint. Now if the Globe is honest, why is it silent regarding the delay in the inquiry into the charges against Warden Massey. Several months have passed since a commission was appointed. The defendant in an official meeting in Toronto, the witnesses can be got in 48 hours' notice, the commissioners could meet in the same time if they desired, yet they have not commenced operations. Why does the Globe not lift up its voice in condemnation of this delay? Mr. Massey is a good Grit, and the witnesses, being principally farmers of the province, will shortly be liberated, at the expiration of their terms, and being a free population will likely be out of the way when the trial takes place. The organ knows this. The public will not bear a whisper from the Globe if the inquiry does not take place for the next six months.—Kingston News.

THE REBELLION.

The following extract from a letter received by a wholesale house from a gentleman in Glasgow, under date of 4th June, having very large interests in this country, affords gratifying evidence of the feeling in the Old Country in regard to the Northwest. "On this side we have been watching the progress of the rebellion with great interest, and certainly you deserve great credit for the prompt and plucky way you took the matter in hand. While the immediate effect will be bad for the Northwest, still, when the rising is quite put down, I think it will have the effect of directing emigration there, by the fact that its existence and the power of the Government to keep order have been so prominently brought forward."—Montreal Gazette.

A STRETCHER.

Happening this morning to places at the outside of a Harvard which had just arrived, we noticed some remarks of Mr. Davies upon the Frenchman bill, wherein, speaking of the revision court, he is reported to have used the following language:—"Take my own case, a revision is to be held at Charlottetown. Say I object to the names of men who live along right and straight away, in one part of the county, and in the same way, to a number of names of persons who are at the other end of the county. The italics are ours. Our readers can judge for themselves how many constituents Mr. Davies has eighty miles away from Charlottetown in any direction. We never knew that Queen's county had such a circumference. Trifling as this instance is, it seems to show Mr. Davies' style, and must convince anyone that the words of a man who deals so carelessly with the truth must fall with very little weight upon his auditors."—Charlottetown Herald.

OUT-OF-DOORS.

This is the season for those outdoor activities, which, despite their recognized advantages, are so often neglected by dwellers amid bricks and mortar. Outdoor activities favor the cultivation of the observing faculties, which are so much neglected in our systems of education. The experience thus obtained is peculiarly valuable, both as a discipline and as a stimulant. It gives keenness and vigor to the mind, and develops an interest in nature that is a possession and a joy for ever. As a resource and a solace there is nothing more potent than that appreciation of natural beauty which elevates the outdoor life. The motto for the season is "Out-of-doors."—Boston Advertiser.

SANITARY DANGER SIGNALS.

A case of yellow fever in New Orleans, the continuance of fever at Plymouth and Sugar Notch, of diphtheria in the southwestern part of the state, and of disease incident to hot weather in the large cities, make the necessity of improved drainage, better water and greater cleanliness more imperative than ever. Besides, the cholera is increasing in Spain, and it may make a swift summer ocean passage to America.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE TRUTH.

There is an election on hand in Algoma, and now a local paper of that district revivifies the story that Sir George Cartier purchased the resignation of Riel in order to secure a constituency and a seat in the Commons—while the truth is, Sir George was dead before Riel was elected at all.—Newmarket Era (Ref.).

A LADDER OF A BAD CAUSE.

It is greatly to be regretted that the time, the talent, the energies and the influential assistance of the acknowledged leader of a great political party which Mr. Blake possesses, should be employed to damage or destroy the vital interests of the people of Canada.—Montreal Herald (Indep.).

A LESSON LEARNED.

Hereafter Canada need have no fear of her Indians and half-breeds. Her militia has shown its ability to whip any savage force which can be organized in the Northwest Territory, and the lesson of Riel's speedy defeat will be remembered a long time.—Cleveland Leader.

THE PUBLIC AND THE PRESS.

Promoters and managers of fairs and fustling shows of various kinds are very mindful of the newspaper press prior to the exhibition. They are very solicitous regarding the editorial and reportorial difficulty of finding something to "fill up" the space of journals. This they show by numerous contributions of advertising matter, which, they say, will be "news" to the readers, and therefore ought to be inserted free. Of course, editors and reporters know nothing about the kind of news their readers are willing to pay for. But if the bare announcement of good things to come is welcome news, no matter how private the interests to be primarily benefited, then surely accurate descriptions of the "affairs" after their occurrence will be more welcome intelligence. Yet, with strange inconsistency, the remarkable solicitude for the enlightening of the public often drops just at the point where nothing more can be done in the way of drumming up public patronage for a particular enterprise.—Honolulu (H. I.) Bulletin.

A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.

MATTAWA, June 23.—The following is a list of the men who were drowned in the Rapids des Quins, on Friday, the 5th instant:—Robert Martin (married), two Somervilles, brothers (single), Barnes, Kelly, Cole, and another, name unknown. The unfortunate men were engaged in towing square timber out of the river eddy at the head of the timber rapids, and passing the timber down the chute. They ventured on this occasion too far over the chute, the current, which was very strong, caught the boat and swept her rapidly on towards the chute which is very high and rough. Here a terrible struggle must have taken place between the drowned men and the boiling water, for the fact that all the men found were broken, show how the brave fellows must have pulled for their lives on becoming aware of their danger. Men were working at the head of the chute, rolling the log into the water, ready for them to be back to the chute. On her last trip the boat started out with a stick of timber. And the men on the shore soon missed her, rushing with all speed over the portage, all they could see was a place of a broken boat in the eddy, the crew of seven men were gone. Later on the broken oars were found, and the tale known. A singular circumstance occurred in connection with this disaster. A young half-breed who had been one of the boats crew over since the drive commenced, exchanged work that morning with one of the hands, whose duty consisted of rolling off top; the half-breed was of course saved and substituted drowned. The relatives of Somerville and Martin have gone up to the Quins, in the hope of finding the remains of the poor boys, but their chances of success are very small. Their employers are rendering all the assistance in their power, but the water in the rapids is very high, and the third chute at all seasons a very fierce and dangerous one, it is therefore probable that the bodies will be so crushed and mutilated as not to float, and all search will be in vain.

REMARKS ON CROQUETRY.

Lord Salisbury's Career.

The Marquis of Salisbury was born in 1830. He graduated from Eton and Oxford in 1850. The same year he was sent to Parliament from Stamford, representing the borough in the Conservative interest until his accession to the marquisate on the death of his father in 1868. In Lord Derby's third administration he was in July, 1866, appointed Secretary of State for India, which post he resigned on account of a difference of opinion respecting the Reform Bill, March 2, 1867, when Gen. Peel was Secretary. He was again appointed Secretary of State for India, which post he resigned on account of a difference of opinion respecting the Reform Bill, March 2, 1867, when Gen. WANTED.—Intelligent, Ambitious, Energetic, to secure and fill all orders in his territory at the head of the timber rapids, and passing the timber down the chute. They ventured on this occasion too far over the chute, the current, which was very strong, caught the boat and swept her rapidly on towards the chute which is very high and rough. Here a terrible struggle must have taken place between the drowned men and the boiling water, for the fact that all the men found were broken, show how the brave fellows must have pulled for their lives on becoming aware of their danger. Men were working at the head of the chute, rolling the log into the water, ready for them to be back to the chute. On her last trip the boat started out with a stick of timber. Port Hope Oracle

GHOSTS OF WEEKS.

A freight car in which three men were committed said to be haunted.

"It's the strangest thing I ever heard of. It often starts off on a perfectly level track and we have to keep the brakes on all the while in order to keep it quiet."

The above remarks were uttered by Jack Martin, a brakeman on the San Pedro road.

"What's the matter with the car?" asked the person addressed.

"I think it is haunted. At least the boys say it is. It may and it may not be; but it is certain that the car often moves when no one is near it."

"The car in question was an old one and stood on a side-track. Continuing, Martin said:

"That car has a strange history. No less than three murders have been committed in it.
Three years ago it was brought out from Boston loaded with furniture for a hotel in Sacramento.
Some where in Nevada the car was broken open and two trunks entered and closed the door.
They were anxious to get to Fresno, and being supplied with food and water, they proposed to go through without change. No one knows how the deed was done, but when the car was opened at Sacramento the body of one of the trunks was found. His throat was cut and an ugly wound was found in his right side. The other trunk could not be found.

"The car was side-tracked at Sacramento three months ago and was then found by four men. While at the depot at the latter place a couple of railroad hands occupied it one night, and during a game of cards one of them, named John Dwyer, stabbed his companion.
He died in a few moments.

"Well, the next was heard of 11,000 she was the scene of another mysterious affair. This was about a year ago at El Paso. During a strike among a lot of Italian laborers at that place the car was boarded by half a dozen of them. A quarrel ensued over some trifling matter and one of them was beaten so badly that he died before medical aid could be summoned.

"The car must be haunted," remarked Martin's companion, who listened to the story with the closest attention, "and I would not sleep in it for $100."

"All the train-men say it is," continued Martin, "and the fact that it will often move on a level track is an evidence that something is wrong."

"Do you ever hear any strange noises around it?" asked the reporter.

"I fancy sometimes I hear a moan or some indistinct muttering, but it may be only imagination," replied the brakeman. "The engineer said yesterday he heard a human voice in it, but upon investigation he found there was no one. The fact of the matter is, I do not have much to do with the old thing, and I wish the company would draw it off."—Los Angeles Express.

A Long Time Between Deaths.

Col. R. Wolfe, of Indiana, told an amusing incident that had occurred between himself and Gen. Hatch the day preceding. The last time the pair had met was in Tennessee, near Memphis, at the early part of the war. Hatch was in the regular service, and Wolfe a volunteer officer. On the night in question some movements were in operation, and orders were coming in thick and fast. To while away the tedium of the time, the two officers sat down to a game of poker in a log cabin which was commended as being quiet. The play was interrupted by the arrival of frequent orders, which were promptly attended to, and the game proceeded.
After a while, however, orderless began to come in at both doors, and the situation grew critical. At last Hatch started to his feet with the exclamation, "Wolfe, this thing is getting too hot. Mind, it's your deal," and leaving cards and stakes on the table, he rushed out. Wolfe heaved and mounted his horse. On Friday last the narrative of the story entered the Bretton house, in Winfield, and heading his grip-sack to the clerk waited the movements of a gray headed gentleman in order to place his grip-sack on the register. The former having entered his name, handed the pen to the Indianian; then came a pause, and recognition mutual. "Hello, Hatch," said the volunteer officer, "who would have thought of seeing you here?" A trifle came to the eyes of the veteran soldier, and extending his hand he dryly remarked, "Well, it's your deal!" A quarter of a century had elapsed since that unhappy game of poker, and since that night in the log cabin at Winfield, they had not seen each other.—Arkansas City Traveler.

Feeding Chickens for Market.

Much profit is made by feeding young chicks too long. The early broods should now be ready for feeding. It is better to have them already fed, for then the cockles will be ready for sale, and the pullets will be so far forward as to be ready to begin laying early in the fall.
But if the chickens have not been fully fed, the cockles should be separated now and the old cocks turned in with them. At any rate the cocks should be separated from the hens at once, as they are a worry and a nuisance to the hen, and more eggs will be laid without them than with them. Probably so more hens will set, but as the eggs will be good for two weeks after the separation, this may be made at once. The best of the young cockles should be selected for use next year, and the rest should be forced to market and disposed of at once. They will bring more now than at any time later. An excellent feed for them is corn meal, mixed with boiling hot sweet milk. This gives the flesh a fine flavor and a white and clean appearance, which adds to the market value. The feeding should not be continued over two weeks, and if the fowls have had all they will eat, they will be as fat as they can be made. Longer feeding will not add to their weight, as it is apt to produce disease.—Arkansas City Traveler.

MODIFYING THE PROPORTIONS OF A ROOM.

To make a room appear higher, the plane surface of the ceiling should be increased by the mouldings of the cornice by panels, or, in the absence of these, by bands of color performing the same office. A vertical system of line should be adopted in mural decoration, and the mantel should be lower.

To make a room appear lower, exactly the opposite treatment should be adopted; that is to increase the plane ceiling, adopt a horizontal system of mural decoration, with a dado and a high mantel.

To make a room appear wider is accomplished to a certain extent by making it appear lower;
but where this is insufficient, or where it is insufficient, the effect can be reached by adopting a mural decoration on a graduated scale of form, decreasing upward, so that two or more patterns the top like those at the foot are found to occupy the same space as one at the foot, and this effect can be much increased by a graduation of color upward from dark to light.

To make a room appear narrower is accomplished to a certain extent by making it appear higher; but where this is undesirable or insufficient, it can be obtained by adopting a strongly drawn large pattern in strong color for mural decoration.

To make a room appear longer is to an extent accomplished by making it appear lower and narrower; but where this is undesirable and inefficient the effect may be obtained by decreas-ing the scale and strength of color of the mural decoration adopted at the ends.

To make a room appear shorter is accomplished to an extent by making it appear wider and higher; but the effect can be achieved by increasing the scale and strength of color of the mural decoration adopted at the ends.

Any of these effects can be modified or increased by the treatment of the floor surface; whither by the carpets, the rugs or painted boards, or by parquet flooring; lines running across a room, or rugs laid down at intervals, having the effect of shortening, and consequently, to an extent, of heightening and widening a room. Lines running in the length increase this dimension, and to an extent reduce the height and width. A polished floor increases the apparent height of an apartment by reflecting all vertical lines and prolonging them.—Harper's Magazine.

We do not object to the consumers paying

FRIDAY, JUNE 26, 1885.

The Globe ridicules the idea that there was no suspicion that a rebellion would occur in the Northwest till it actually broke out. Interviews with four to five gentlemen from the locality of the rebellion, have shown us that there was no such suspicion except among the intending rebels and in the Globe office. But then the Globe had the advantage of having friends among the rebels, and so could obtain information in advance.

Mr. Blake objects strongly to the C. P. R. paying dividends out of capital. Mr. Blake can hardly fail to know that it is one of the commonest conditions that a company shall thus pay dividends while construction or other preliminaries are incomplete. Otherwise it is evident that none could take stock in a new company who could not afford to forego any income pending the commencement of profitable operations. Those who did buy stock under such circumstances would of course make their calculations accordingly, and the result would be the same.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

The political and commercial value of the Canadian Pacific railway, when completed, will be incalculable. Among its more preceptible political results will be the strengthening and hastening of the operations of the army and auxiliary forces in Canada, Australia, India and the eastern colonies, and of the navy on the Pacific, Australian, Indian and China stations. It will also facilitate the quelling of disturbances in the vast Dominion through which the line passes. The length of the railway is 2,870 miles. It runs through British territory, and will be in communication with the eastern provincial railway system of Canada. Ninety-five days were required to move the men from Toronto to Winnipeg, about the centre of the Dominion, in 1870, to suppress the Red River rebellion. In the spring 1886 the "Canadian Pacific Express" will run from Montreal to Vancouver or Burrard Inlet in ninety hours, and passengers and mails from England will be able to reach the Pacific by this route in thirteen or fourteen days. Troops, stores, boats and crews can also be conveyed from Halifax to that ocean in five days, without proceeding through foreign possessions. British Columbia and Vancouver Island, which have hitherto been in a very defenceless condition, will now have the advantage of speedy and material reinforcements for their protection, and in order to enable the navy to work on the Pacific station, the company contemplates a line to some port of Nova Scotia or of Cape Breton, whereby the passage between England and Vancouver will be reduced to about eleven days, except for troops and warlike stores, which will take a day more on account of the circuitous line of the international railway. Every facility will be granted for the carriage of troops, crews and war stores. These men will be provided with emigrant carriages, wherein comfortable seats will be available. The company propose to run steamers between Port Moody, the Pacific terminus of their railway, and Japan and China, and another branch between that port and New Zealand and Australia. Passengers will be able to arrive in Japan in thirty days and Hong Kong in thirty-six days. If reinforcements are urgently required by India, they will reach Calcutta or Madras more quickly from Halifax than from this country, if they could not proceed by the Suez canal. Again, as Halifax is much nearer England than New York, even if the steamers of the Canada Pacific Railway Company do not go a greater speed than those of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, passengers to New Zealand and Australia from United Kingdom ports will be able to reach the Antipodes, via Port Moody, sooner than by the San Francisco route. In many other respects this line will be of immeasurable advantage in war with a maritime nation, especially for the supply of provisions to the brave population, and will greatly enhance the prosperity of the Dominion.—Army and Navy Gazette.

THE ENNISMORE PICNIC FATHER KIELTY'S PARISH ENJOYS A DAY OF PLEASURE.

Tara Park, the New Picnic Ground—Splendid Scenery on the Table—Dancing—Programme of Athletic Sports.

An annual event, of yearly and increasing importance in the Township of Ennismore, was held on Thursday, June 25th. It was the Ennismore picnic, and like its predecessors it was a day of enjoyment for a large number of people.

The picnic was held this year in a new grove, on the opposite side of Chemong Lake from Bridgforth, which has been named

TARA PARK.

The grounds belong to Mr. Kelly, of Bridgforth. The large trees are very thick and cover a large space of ground. A picnic was new to these woods, as up to the Monday previous to the day of the picnic there was no ground cleared upon which such an event could be held. On that Monday, however, it having been decided to hold the day's outing there, many willing hands went to work, and by Thursday a large space was cleared of the logs and brush and a good picnic ground prepared. It fortunately happened that space for the dining hall and dancing platform was found without felling any of the kings of the forest that throw their shadows upon all who enter the grove. On Tuesday there was a lively scene at Tara Park. A fire was by some means ignited at the edge of the park near the road, and it quickly caught in the fallen leaves and threatened to overrun the whole woods. It was seen in time, fortunately, and a call was sent out for assistance, which soon came, and after a hard struggle the fire was extinguished.

The people of Ennismore deserve great credit for the manner in which they had the grounds prepared, considering the short time they had to do the work, and as it is their intention to hold their picnic in future in the park, it will soon be one of the best picnic grounds available, as the work begun will be carried on, and Tara Park will be heard of again and frequently. It is situated in the Township of Ennismore, a short distance from the bridge at Bridgforth, and is very little further from Peterborough than the grounds on which these picnics have been held for the past few years.

Early in the day the people began to gather in the park, and by eleven o'clock, when the music arrived from Peterborough, there was a large number enjoying the cool weather under the shade of the trees.

THE ATTENDANCE

was very good, between 600 and 700 persons having taken dinner on the grounds. There were a number of persons from Peterborough, as is usually the case, as those who once go to Father Kielty's picnic find it a pleasant place to go, and are sure to go again.

Besides the Rev. Father Kielty, the parish priest, the Rev. Father Conway, of Peterborough, the Rev. Father McEay, of Fenelon Falls, the Rev. Father Connolly, of Emily, and the Rev. Father O'Brien, of Peterborough, were present.

The press was represented by a representative of THE REVIEW, and by Mr. J. J. Sheehy, of the Examiner.

As is usual at picnics, one of the chief amusements of the day was DANCING. A large platform had been constructed, with raised seats for the orchestra. The music was furnished by Mr. J. Reynolds' orchestra, from Peterborough, and good music it was. The dancing platform was a good one, and the amusement was thoroughly enjoyed by a large number of the young people present. The boys had considerable sport with a FOOTBALL which had been procured by Father Kielty. It was given to the boys at about eleven o'clock, and from that time until late in the afternoon it had very little rest. At about one o'clock word came from the dining hall that the DINNER TABLES were ready, and the people began to move in that direction. The dining hall was enclosed and contained five tables, and at one end a kitchen had been roofed in. Of the manner in which the tables were supplied with edibles those who were present spoke as with one voice—there never was a better spread at a picnic anywhere. There were cakes, pies, fowl, spiced meats, &c., &c., of the best quality and in abundance. After ample justice had been done by all at the dinner tables—and, as the number was large, it took some time—the dancing again went on. A harper also made his appearance on the grounds with his harp, and a male glee club (organized on the spot), consisting of young men from the town, sang several songs. The harper also joined with the orchestra in playing several pieces.

THE ATHLETIC SPORTS.

During the afternoon a programme of athletic sports was carried out, and considerable interest was taken in each event. The following is the programme, with the names of the prize winners:

POTTYING HEAVY WEIGHT.—Five entries.—1st, M. C. Collins; 2nd, Theo. Flynn.

CLOU DANCE.—1st, P. Twomey.

IRISH JIG.—1st, R. Tierney and Miss Collins.

THE MANAGEMENT. The General Committee, which, as there was a large amount of work to do, was a large one, and the Committee of Management deserve great credit for the manner in which everything was carried out during the day. The Committee of Management was Messrs. W. Crough, John O'Donohue, C. O'Connor, P. Brick, W. Sullivan, and N. Travis, secretary.

The sports committee was Messrs. N. Travis, P. O'Shea and W. Sullivan, and the floor managers (dancing platform), Messrs. M. Collins and John K. Galvin. The Rev. Father Kielty was very busy during the day looking after everything and by his good humor keeping all whom he came near in a pleasant mood.

NOTES. When the prizes for dancing were being contested for, Mr. P. Galvin, an old gentleman of 83 years, entered the floor with a partner and danced a jig. The old gentleman went through the dance in such a manner that he received loud applause and cheers.

A Sylvester souffler was presented by the Sylvester Works, Lindsay, to Father Kielty.

and Mr. Ballantyne, with two lady assistants, took charge of disposing of it. A better man for the purpose than Mr. Ballantyne would be hard to find, and his assistants rendered him valuable assistance.

A very fine pair of gold bracelets were also disposed of by two young ladies, and Mr. J. F. Sullivan was the fortunate person into whose possession they came.

A young couple who had been married on the Tuesday previous were on the grounds, and receive the congratulations of hosts of friends. The bride looking charming.

Mr. David Booth, who had that day returned from St. Michael's College, Toronto, when he had passed a very successful examination, was also the recipient of many congratulations.

Tea was served in the dining hall at about 5 o'clock, and soon after the people began to move homewards. At about 7 o'clock Tara Grove was nearly empty.

The picnic was a very successful one throughout. The people were greatly pleased with having such a success and with being able to hold the picnic on grounds in their own township. Now that everyone knows where the grounds are, and the people on this side of the lake have found that it is no great trick to cross the bridge (that, in fact, it is worth going across to see the bridge itself), no doubt the future picnics in Tara Grove will be even more successful than this one.

THE CHEESE FAIR.

A Large Number in Stock, and no sales are

The regular fortnightly cheese fair was held in the Grand Chamber on Thursday afternoon. The Liverpool market stood at 37 shillings. There were in all about thirty cheese makers and salesmen present, and also the following named buyers:—Mr. W. C. Cook, for Messrs. Warrington, Boleville; Mr. O. E. Bastien, for Messrs. Kirkpatrick & Co., Montreal; Mr. W. H. Wrighton, Mr. J. W. Flavelle, and Mr. B. Green.

A short discussion arose as to where cheese should be shipped. The representatives of the factories near Norwood and Hastings considered delivering at Peterborough too far to drive heavy loads.

The following is the amount of cheese for the first half of June made by the different factories as given in by the salesmen:—

Part of the last half of May cheese was not disposed of by the following factories as follows:—Warminster, 150 boxes; Cherry Grove, 50 boxes; Palmdale, 50 boxes; and Westwood, 50 boxes.

Messrs. Drummond and Taylor, who conducted the fair, then asked for bids. It was not until buyers and sellers had met Quaker-like for nearly an hour before the first bid was made. Mr. Flavelle offered six cents for the lot. After some time Cook bid 6 1/2. Flavelle advanced to 6 3/4 and Cook bid 6 1/2. Flavelle then offered 6 1/2, with the right to name factories when buying, and after a time Cook bid 6 1/2 for the whole lot if they passed the usual examination.

This concluded the bidding, and on the factory being called off all of the salesmen declined to sell.

As the fair was about to adjourn, Mr. Cook asked what price the salesmen would take for the cheese?

Messrs. Blum and Davidson replied 7 1/2. "Will you take 7 1/2 for the whole June make?" asked the same buyer.

This proposition the salesmen did not seem inclined to accept.

Mr. Young, representing Normanbush, spoke in favor of a compromise. In his opinion 7 1/2 would be a fair price.

Mr. Edwards, representative of Warminster, was of opinion that the cheese should be forced on the market.

Mr. Tarnock, secretary, and Mr. Galvin, representing Lakeland, referred to the excellent state of the buildings in connection with cheese factories throughout the country. The produce from the factories could be kept for almost an indefinite length of time.

The discussion continued for some time longer, but no further bids were forthcoming. The Board therefore resolved to adjourn for one week.

ABOLISHING THE ALPHABET.

Scheme of a Pittsburgher to Supplement the Present Plan of Writing and Printing.

A reporter of the Pittsburgh Times tells of an interview he had with a young man now engaged in making a living by selling liquid blue, as follows:—

"By trade," he said, "I am a type setter, and I have been working about eight years on a system of shorthand type that I have about perfected. It is designed to take the place entirely of Roman letters now in use in printing and writing. By its use matters can be put in about one fourth the space it now occupies. Signs representing sounds are used instead of letters. It is a big scheme."

"Yes; but perfectly feasible—quite as feasible as the present system of letters and spelling was with its inventor. By this system every language can be written with the same signs—a universal written language. I have some 800 signs, all very simple and not one as complicated as the present letter case 'p.' As printed every type forms two signs—by being reversed—some four, and in type above the line it also will form eight and sixteen, as they can be made circles in shape in the body, and according as they are set in the form, represent different sounds. I studied three different systems of shorthand in search of one that would answer my purpose, but none did so fully. Several came nearer than others, but I was not to supply a great many of the signs in my own invention to hit the popular purpose."

"There are five sounds in the German language that differ from the English. I am familiar with German, French and Spanish, and know some little of Polish, and I think the same symbols as used in the English will supply written signs for them all, though that is really unimportant, as it will not be a century before the English will be the universal language. The Chinese is now, in point of territory covered, the most prevalent language, the Spanish next, and English third, but the progress of the last hundred years has been marked in favor of the latter."

"You have seriously the place here to carry on scientific studies," said the Times man with a glance about the room.

"A little crowded," said the inventor, "but when a man has in his mind the arrangements don't much matter. I haven't the money to buy the books I would like to have, but I frequent the Y. M. C. A. library and I have friends to loan me what they have. I have received much encouragement from several gentlemen to whom I have explained my ideas, and think I can secure all the financial assistance I may need."

Facts of History.

A mishap, which very nearly resulted in a drowning accident, occurred to a raft of timber this morning while making the descent of the LaSalle Rapids. About nine o'clock twelve large cribs of oak and pine, which comprised a raft belonging to Messrs. D. D. Galvin & Son, of Garden Island, were proceeding down the Rapids when, owing to the sudden veering of the wind, they were thrown close upon one another.

Five of the cribs broke up in the Rapids and two more struck pier No. 12 of the Victoria Bridge, loosening their fastenings.

On one of the latter cribs an Indian, whose name could not be ascertained, was thrown into the water, and for some minutes was in a perilous position. There was no piece of timber within twenty or thirty feet of him, and the waves were driving faster than he could swim. After buffeting the water, which was very rough, for a considerable period, he was picked up by Messrs. Joseph Vincent and James McGraw, who had just off from shore in a small sail boat, on witnessing the accident.

There were twenty-three men on the cribs, and some of the company were marvellous. Nine of the men got in the water in the Rapids break up. This is the first of the season's rafting casualties, and was due largely to a sudden change of wind which veered in a few minutes from the south to a strong north-easterly gale.

DEFECTIVE SAFETY-VALVES.

Having seen many defective safety-valves and had some experience with them, I have thought it worth while to give my ideas regarding them.

Some time ago, when I was but fourteen years old, and knew no more about an engine and boiler than the workmen did about me, it so happened that I was given charge of a portable threshing engine which had a very defective safety-valve. It was of the old ball and lever type, too well known to need any description.

The valve had to be keyed down when moving from place to place, and the ball had to be taken off or it would shake off; and when the engine was at work, the motion would shake the ball so that there was a continual wear of the spring, and as this increase of tension of steam, which was quite annoying to me, as I very often make steam enough to run the machine, so I used to key the valve down tight, so as to hold what steam I had, and when the engine had to be stopped, and the fire was strong, I would look sharp, and open the fire door and, perhaps, throw cold water in on the fire, taking good care to get out of the way of the steam which came rushing out of the door.

I ran that engine for two threshing seasons without any accident, which was owing probably more to good luck than good management.

I then ran another portable engine of another make, with about the same kind of safety-valve, but instead of the objectionable weight the lever was held down by a spring, which I think was also very objectionable, because when steam should have been blowing off freely, the spring was so far out on the lever that a very slight lift of valve would increase the tension of the spring, and as this increase of tension was not provided for in the valve, of course steam would not blow off much till it had raised some ten or fifteen pounds beyond point of blow-off, and as the valve was liable to stick fast at any time it was not only very dangerous, but a perfect nuisance.

I had so much trouble with this valve leaking and sticking that I persuaded my father, who owned the engine, to let me get a spring pop-valve, which I used for four years, and never got once into any trouble with it. That was when a small chip of iron got in the way when the valve was shutting down, and the chip got fastened, so that raising the valve would not let it shut, and I was obliged to let steam blow off, and take the valve apart. This valve would relieve the boiler under all circumstances, and I never knew it to leak or stick.

The next boiler I took charge of was a saw-mill boiler of the locomotive type, and it looked as if it might have been older than myself. It had just about such a safety-valve as I have described above, and I soon replaced it with one of Crosby's spring pop-valves, and since then I have used no other, though I think there are others as good as the Crosby.

It seems to me that engine-boiler makers are much too careless about providing their boilers with good safety-valves.

Two years ago I was occasionally at a new home-mill in which were an engine and boiler from one of the most prominent engine-building companies. The boiler was of about 100 H.P., fitted with one of the old style safety-valves, which I thought was of very little account.

One time in particular, when I happened to be in this mill, one of the main driving belts gave out, and so the engine had to be stopped. They generally carried steam at about 80 pounds, with the valve set to blow off at 90 pounds, which I think is seldom did. This time steam was close to 110 pounds and the valve still close to its seat. The engineer got a piece of board and went up a ladder at the side of the boiler wall and pried the lever up, when the steam came out with a terrible noise and still kept on blowing after the engine had been started and steam was down to 80 pounds.

The engineer then went up the ladder again and shut it down. I think such a valve not only very dangerous but a continual nuisance. It should be replaced by one that will relieve the boiler under all circumstances without the help of the engineer, and close promptly when the pressure has been lowered.

I could mention many other circumstances regarding defective safety-valves; but my article is already too long, I am afraid, so in conclusion I will simply say that owners of boilers cannot be too careful in avoiding the old-style lever valve, in which the lever comes so heavily to hang off things and sometimes on, so as to stop the valve from leaking so much steam.—W.T.S., in Saw Mill Gazette.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the hands off our C. Cable Co., and sell them the "Cable" cigars in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, palming them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the hands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (10c.) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumer paying (10c.) ten cents for our (10c.) "Cable" cigars, and (15c.) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c.) cigars, as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

Hill-Faced Services.

Two twin cows met their death at the hands of a lumber train engine near North Hastings junction, on the Grand Junction branch on Wednesday. They were standing in a meditative mood on the track when the train went through them and left their remains scattered behind.

Just received at Hamilton Hall, a fine lot of Men's Linen Coats, just the thing for hot weather. A. McNEIL.

Fast Shooting.

To-night will decide definitely which of the two fast skaters, W. Lech and W. Logan, is the swiftest on roller skates. There has been a number of races between the above-mentioned young men, and Lech has always won. Logan objects to the skates used by Lech, as they are the regular fast racing skates with large rollers, while he skates with the ordinary small roller skates. If Lech will consent to use the same skates as Logan, the race will be very close and exciting. It comes off in the Lansdowne rink this evening.

The Body Found.

As Mr. Edward Wright and some other river drifters on Rathburn's drive, which is now in the Little Lake, were searching this morning at half-past ten o'clock for cedar to construct a crib, they discovered the body of James Norley, the boy who was drowned on the evening of Saturday last. The body was taken to shore at McDonald's mill, and the Chief of Police was summoned. He, together with the father of the late boy, went to the place. The body presented the marks of very few bruises, but the top of the head had commenced to decompose. The body was taken to Mr. Norley's house, Ashburnham. The funeral takes place this evening.

Canada's National Day.

Domestic Day will be celebrated in Peterborough this year with great pomp. The Peterborough Driving Park Association have arranged a grand programme for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors who will be here on that day. At 1.30 o'clock sharp the Ontario and Great Military-Aboriginal-Spectacular Pageant will strike the trail at the post office, and, headed by bands of music, Indiana, and the Toronto and Peterborough Lancers Clubs, will march in procession to the Driving Park, where an afternoon's sport, the like of which has never before been witnessed in Peterborough, will come off. Watch the paper every day for future announcements, and write to your friends and tell them to come to Peterborough and visit the Driving Park on Dominion Day.

Whitburn's Lumbering Operations.

A drive of pine logs for Messrs. Rathburn and Sons, Deseronto, is now in the Little Lake.
These logs have been taken out during the winter from the vicinity of Jack's Lake, Township of Matheson. The drive down was very satisfactory, good time being made all along the route to the place where they now are.
It took only two days from the time they were let over the Lakeland slide until they were safely boomed in the Little Lake, a time that has rarely been made for so large a drive.
Another drive, consisting of 15,000 pieces of cedar, 1000 ties and 150 floats, is now passing down the Indian River. This timber has been taken out in the north part of the Township of Dumfries. The drive in the lake here will be let over the Lakeland slide to-day, and the two drives will amalgamate in Rice Lake. Mr. T.
C. Callaghan, chief foreman, is looking after all details regarding the running of the drive.

JUDGE DENNISTOUN ASSAULTED.

His Honor Knocked Down on a Street in Lakeland.

A session of the Division Court was held in Lakeland on Thursday. Amongst the cases was an action brought by William White against George Tanner, for the recovery of a buffalo robe.

It appeared that a daughter of Mr. Tanner had found a buffalo robe lying on the veranda one night last winter. Mr. Tanner advertised in the Review for the owner to prove property, pay costs and take the robe away. When Mr.
White went to get his buffalo, Mr. Tanner told him that there was $2.50 costs against it. This Mr. White refused to pay. He came to the Review office and paid the advertising, which amounted to 50 cents. The other two dollars
Mr. Tanner claimed for his expense in coming to town to insert the advertisement, and other trouble.

The case came up before His Honor, and a verdict was given in favor of the plaintiff. Mr.
Tanner asked to make some explanations, but His Honor would not hear them. With this Mr. Tanner began to abuse the Judge, making use of the phrase, "You are an unjust judge," and other similar ones. The Judge ordered the bailliff to remove Mr. Tanner from the court room, which was accordingly done. Business was resumed, but in a short time Mr. Tanner came loudly stamping up the stairs and into the court room. He walked around the court room for a few moments, and then went away.

After the court was over, Sheriff Hall, the Bailliff and Mr. Tanner walked up street together as far as Mr. Tanner's store. They stood talking for a few minutes when Judge Dennistoun, who was coming up on the opposite side, was seen coming up on the opposite side. Mr.
Tanner saw him and walked across the street to meet him. The Judge, supposing that he wished to say something, passed for a moment. But as soon as Mr. Tanner got near he raised his fist and struck the Judge on the temple, falling him to the sidewalk. Mr. Tanner walked across the street again to his store.

A number of people at once ran to the Judge's assistance and Mr. John Rodgers picked him up and took him into a neighbouring house.

Mr. John Hall, J. P., who saw the affair, ordered the arrest of Mr. Tanner. Officer McIlroy executed the order and Mr. Tanner was brought before Messrs. John Hall and John Sherin, Justices of the Peace. The evidence of several witnesses was taken and the prisoner was committed for trial. Officer McIlroy drove him down the street in the evening and to the residence of Mr. C. A. Waller, County Attorney, to see if he could not be given. Mr.
Waller replied that he was not power to accept him.

They next drove to the residence of Mr. Dumble, Police Magistrate, made the same request and received the same reply.

Officer McIlroy then took the prisoner to goal where he now is. The case will come up for trial on Thursday the 8th of October.

arrested the offender on Grange street and took him to safe quarters.

The Georgians.

The Georgia Minstrels gave a performance in Bradburn's Opera House on Thursday evening to a fairly large attendance. The performance was decidedly above the usual minstrel entertainment, the singing and dancing being very good and the jokes fresh and crisp.

Excursion and Picnic.

The annual excursion and picnic of the Good Templars of Peterborough will be held on Tuesday, July 7th. The excursionists will go to Campbellford over the Grand Junction Railway, and the picnic will be held in the Rev.
Mr. Beattie's grove. The grove is a good one,
the trip will be a short and pleasant one, and no doubt it will be largely attended. See poster.

Run Off.

At about half past seven o'clock on Thursday evening as the Grand Trunk engine No. 141 was hauling twenty cars of timber down through Ashburnham it ran partly off the track. The cause of the run off was an open switch. Only the four front trucks and the driving wheels left the track, the train being stopped before the engine got off further. The train hands succeeded in getting everything righted at shortly after eleven o'clock.

The finest stock of Summer Ties in Peterborough can be found at A. McNEIL's, George street.

The Canoe Parade.

The first canoe parade of the season will take place this evening, and everything points to its being a decided success. The members of the Boating Club and all others who desire to take part will meet at the boat house at half past seven o'clock and will sail down to the lake under command of Captain Edwards. Here a series of movements will be gone through, which will no doubt look very pretty from the shore.
All of the canoes will, of course, be handsomely decorated with Chinese lanterns.

The Influx.

This morning at twenty minutes after ten o'clock the excursion under the auspices of the Oddfellows of Stirling arrived at the Grand Trunk station. Not many of the Belleville brotherhood accompanied them but numbers from at Hastings, Madoc, North Hastings Junction, and Campbellford. When the train arrived here there were five coaches all fairly well filled. The Stirling brass band accompanied the excursionists. The visiting brethren were met at the station by members of the local lodges, a procession was formed and a march made to the Otanabee Lodge.

LOST AT SEA.

A Steamer Goes Down—Sixty-five People Reported Drowned.

MALLENDO, Peru, June 25.—The steamer Italia, the sinking of which was briefly announced yesterday, struck a steep point near Lomas, Peru, on Friday, and sank, in fifteen minutes, in deep water. Out of 134 passengers and crew 65 were drowned. On Sunday the Cachapal picked up a boat containing thirteen survivors thirteen miles south of Pisco. The same evening she searched the coast and found 54 more survivors in Salinas bay, two others having started on foot for Lomas. Boats were sent to bring off the party, but the captain of the Italia declined assistance. Among the saved are the captain, the first officer and about seven passengers, including one woman. About 25 children were drowned.

DIED OF HER WEDDING DAY.

A Twice-Postponed Marriage Prevented
by the Bride's Sudden Death.

WASHINGTON, June 25.—It has been known for some time past among the German residents of Washington that Dr. Emil Bessels, the singer, and Madame Ravenna, the singer, were contemplating marriage. Saturday last was the date fixed upon, but when the carriage containing a friend of the doctor arrived at the Smithsonian institution to take the prospective bridegroom to the wedding, it was found that instead of being arrayed in his wedding garments Dr. Bessels was confined to his bed by a sudden attack of sickness. The ceremony was then postponed until last Monday, but when, on that day, the bride couple reached the residence of the minister they met with another disappointment in the absence of the minister in Bald-more. Yesterday all the arrangements were made for the wedding, the minister was notified and the friends informed. The expectant bridegroom drove to the house of his bride to take her to the house of the minister, but was shocked to learn that she had been taken suddenly and seriously ill. The progress of the disease was so rapid that by evening Madame Ravenna was dead. She was to have been married at 12 o'clock.

GLADSTONE'S DEFEAT.

We observe that it is frequently, though erroneously, asserted that Mr. Gladstone was defeated because he was promoting temperance by placing additional taxation on intoxicating liquors, and that the Conservatives resented this policy. As to this branch of the resolution on which Mr. Gladstone was placed in minority, the objection was that it was inequitable to increase the duties on beer and spirits while not doing so on wine, the beverage of the wealthier classes. But there was a more important branch of the resolution, namely, that the Administration should not increase the taxation of the landed interests without relieving them of the burden of expenditure for national purposes, from which it had admitted they ought to be relieved.

An injustice (possibly through ignorance) is also done to the incoming Conservative Administration by representing them as occupying an ignominious position by asking that the Liberals shall not offer them factious opposition, especially on the budget. The position is somewhat singular, as, if the Redistribution Bill is passed, a dissolution cannot be held till November, and this would give the Opposition power to disrupt public business by refusing supplies. The Salisbury Administration is willing to go to the aid of its opponents, but if forced to do so they could allow it to be rejected, and could dissolve the House at once, with every prospect of obtaining a good majority. Thus they are by no means at the mercy of their opponents.

GENEROUS ACTION.

The Simcoe County Council, at its recent session, we learn from the Ontario Packet, passed a resolution expressing its admiration of the gallant and soldierly conduct of the Volunteers of the Dominion who went to the Northwest and its sympathy for the relatives of those who were slain, and recording its appreciation of the energy and ability displayed by the Department of Militia, in so promptly placing an efficient force in the field at such short notice. Several municipalities had given to the "Simcoe Foresters" undershirts, &c., and they were directed to hand in the accounts and they would be paid out of the county treasury. Finally, a committee was appointed to arrange for a demonstration on the return of the "Foresters," and it was decided to present each volunteer in the battalion with a medal and to present them with an address.

We have before us a New Zealand paper, The Southland News, published at Invercargill. In it we find, prefaced by some remarks of its own, an extract from the Pall Mall Gazette of London, England, of a report of an interview with Major Bell of the Col. Appelle River Farming Company. On this excellent authority it is shown that the National Policy, adopted by the people of Canada, has resulted in their obtaining implements at least as cheap and as good, while the profits of manufacturing them are retained at home. Canada's example may help to produce a good effect in other parts of the Empire.

SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS "MUST GO."

The superintendent of the Milwaukee schools in co-operation with progressive members of the School Board, has rendered a lasting service to the public educational interests of this city by taking the initial step toward an abolition of formal examinations as a test of scholarship. The Wisconsin city news columns of yesterday contained the following:

"At the close of the present school term promotions from the district schools to the high school will for the first time be made under the new system which provides for dispensing with examinations and advancing pupils upon their progress as indicated by the credit marks which they receive during the term."

This means that the work of every day in the year instead of the work on a single examination day at the close of the year, is hereafter to determine the scholar's standing in his class. It means that the work of the school room will be directed toward the making of scholars rather than toward a useless "examining" that shall permit a mere parrot-like answering of questions on examination day. It means that bug bear of examination day—sources of perpetual anxiety to teachers and pupils—is at last to be permanently laid low.

In its favorable effect upon public school work the reform is one of the most important ever inaugurated in Milwaukee. It is a reform that is bound to be generally adopted, and it is peculiarly creditable to this city that her school authorities are virtually the leaders of the movement, so far as public schools are concerned.

In this as in almost numberless other improvements in methods which the schools have tested and adopted during the past decade, is given undeniable proof that the movements of pupils educational work here and elsewhere, is steadily and rapidly forward.

The next important achievement undoubtedly, will be the general introduction of industrial training as an important and permanent instrumentality of free education.—Milwaukee Wisconsin

The Prince and the Party Leaders.
LONDON, June 25.—While the old and new ministers were awaiting the train to take them to Windsor castle yesterday the Prince of Wales entered the Windsor station and took a seat between Mr. Gladstone and Lord Randolph Churchill. He engaged both in animated conversation, which was frequently interrupted by laughter. The incident was greeted with cheers by the crowd.

THE FLORAL TRIBUTE.

THE ODDFELLOWS OF PETERBOROUGH DECORATE THE GRAVE.

The Visiting Brethren Assist in the Ceremony of the Day—A Large Number of People Visit the Cemetery.
Decoration Day this year has been anxiously looked forward to since its date was first announced, not only by the members of the Oddfellows fraternity, but by all those who have friends or relatives sleeping beneath the silent soil in the Little Lake Cemetery. This beautiful ordinance of Oddfellowship, that of paying a floral visit to the graves of deceased brethren once a year, was observed on the 26th of June with more than ordinary interest.

THE PROCESSION.
The 10.20 train on the Grand Junction Railway brought in about two hundred and fifty of the Belleville, Stirling, North Hastings Junction, Hastings and Campbellford brethren. At the Bethune street station they were met by the officers of the Peterborough and Otonabee lodges, and escorted, headed by the Stirling brass band, to the Otonabee lodge room. After the usual brotherly greetings had been given and received, the visiting brethren repaired to the various hotels for dinner.

THE PROCESSION.
The procession was formed in front of Otonabee Lodge at about half-past two o'clock for the visit to the cemetery. The floral headquarters, Mr. H. Long's lower confectionery store, was fairly filled with the beautiful bouquets and other floral devices. When the order was given the brethren procured each a bouquet and took their respective places in the procession. The order of march was as follows:—

Stirling Brass Band.
Visiting Brethren.
Fire Brigade Band.
Officers of the Stirling, Peterborough, and Otonabee Lodges.
Officers and Members of Mount Hebron Emancipation.
Carriage containing the Past Grand of the Local Lodge.

Bro. Galley, who acted as Marshal during the ceremonies, gave the signal, and the procession moved southward to the strains of the Stirling band. Going down the bands alternately played. The sidewalks on both sides of the street were packed, and as the procession moved along it was followed by the street full of carriages and vehicles of all descriptions. The sides of the streets all the way down had been lined with people, while a large number had preceded the Oddfellows and were already in the cemetery.

THE ENTRANCE.

Before the entrance to the cemetery a halt was made. Marshal Bro. Galley opened up the ranks, thus forming, to look from one of the ends of the procession, one long floral vista. The Past Grand alighted from the carriage, and together with the Noble Grand of the local lodge, those of the Stirling lodge, and the officers of the day, they walked up the centre path to the cemetery under an overgrown arch erected over the entrance. The brethren then fell in to reverse order from the procession and followed. The procession turned to the left and went around until coming in front of the chapel. Here a halt was made and an oblong ring was formed, enclosing the Stirling Band at one end and the Fire Brigade Band at the other. In the centre stood the officers of the day; Bro. G. B. Sprague, Noble Grand of Otonabee Lodge; Bro. T. W. Robinson, Noble Grand of Peterborough Lodge; Bro. J. Minors, Chaplain of Otonabee Lodge; and Bro. J. T. C. Lacey, Chaplain of Peterborough Lodge. Bro. Sprague called on Bro. Minors, before the duties of the day were commenced, to invoke the Divine blessing. Bro. Minors offered up a short prayer, and then "Nearer My God to Thee" was sung by all.

DECORATING THE GRAVES.

After this the officers of the local lodge proceeded to decorate the graves of the deceased brethren in the following order:—
Samuel W. Albright—Otonabee Lodge.
Sheriff James Hall, M. P.—Otonabee Lodge.
Col. Alex. McDonald, M. P.—Otonabee Lodge.
W. S. Conger, M. P.—Second N. G. of Otonabee Lodge.

James Foley, M. P.—Otonabee Lodge.
T. W. Rubidge—Peterborough Lodge.
John Haggart—Otonabee Lodge.
Capt. A. E. Fraser—Otonabee Lodge.

During the time that was occupied in decorating the graves the Fire Brigade Band took their stand at the east end of the chapel and played several sacred airs. A large number, other than Oddfellows, took advantage of the day and came with bouquets to decorate the graves of a late friend or relative. Many lots in the cemetery were very tastefully ornamented, but that of the Oddfellows' lot was particularly beautiful. At the head of the lot and at the foot were flower beds in the shape of three links, while the whole was arched over by flowers and evergreens.

COMMEMORATIVE.

A very handsome Rutland blue marble monument was placed in the Little Lake Cemetery this afternoon by Messrs Moore for Mr. Lucius Sherlock in memory of his late wife, his late son, John A. Sherlock and his second son Henry, deceased. The monument has a limestone base two feet square, a second base of Rutland blue marble 22x22 inches and a die of the same material 18x18 inches. On one side of the die there is the following inscription:—"In memory of John A. Sherlock, Canadian Voyageur, one of those who volunteered for prolonged service under Lord Wolseley. He died at Kalbar on the Nile, in the South, March 26th, 1885, aged 28 years and 4 months." Above the die is the plynth one foot and one inch in diameter and six inches high. On the plynth rests the spire, which is three feet in height. The spire is surmounted by a handsome urn. In the base of the spire is inscribed a piece of the petrified tree under which the noble talented and large hearted, John A. Sherlock now peacefully rests in the South. The lot is situated in the lower cemetery, and on Friday presented a very beautiful appearance. It had been decorated by the family, but unknown hands had laid their tribute of love and respect in the lot to the late voyageur, in the shape of many handsome bouquets. The following stanza is inscribed on the monument:—
There is not a name, there is not a stone,
And only the wind from the desert makes moan,
O'er the grave where ne'er a flower is strewn,
But he'll never be forgotten, no, never!

THE DEPARTURE.

A number of the members of the Peterborough Boating Club formed a little band and sailed across the lake to decorate the grave of one of the most valued members the club ever had, that of George C. Rogers. The grave is situated in the northeast end. It was very handsomely decorated with wreaths, bouquets, &c.
When the three bouquets had been placed in the little urns on each Oddfellow's grave, the time for departure had come, as the brethren dispensed with the usual concluding services, on account of visitors having to leave on the next train. The procession was reformed, headed by the Fire Brigade Band. The march was made to the Bethune street station, where the visiting brethren departed for their homes, after the customary departure ceremonies. The local lodge then adjourned to the Otonabee Hall, where addresses, read in the spirit of the proceedings of the day were delivered by Bros. Lacey, Clouston, Sprague and others.

George street was watered down to the south end. It was a convenience to have the dust kept from flying about.
A large turtle which was paddling around in the basin of the fountain attracted considerable attention. It was captured on the edge of the river by Mr. Kelly.
Evergreen trees stood out in front of the gate and also motes of a suitable kind were intertwined in the arches over the large and small gateways.

"I'm so Hot!"
During the present warm spell, when the thermometer reaches top figures in the shade, the above exclamation is heard on every hand. To those who are thus afflicted with the warmth, we would say

KEEP COOL!
Why do you persist in wearing heavy garments such weather as this? It is not in keeping with the laws of Nature, and you should not do it. What you should do is to discard anything in the form of heavy clothing (underclothing especially) and substitute therefor a nice light suit, such as the undersigned are now offering to the public.

CANADA'S NATAL DAY

The Eighteenth Anniversary of Confederation.

HOW IT WAS CELEBRATED.

DEMONSTRATIONS, SPORTING MATCHES AND FISHES.

Some of England celebrated—St. Peter's Cathedral, St. Peter's Church, and the various churches of the city.

The eighteenth anniversary of the confederation of the provinces of British North America and the birth of the Dominion of Canada was fittingly celebrated in Peterborough.

The weather was favorable for the celebration and early in the forenoon large numbers of visitors began to arrive. Beside the people who came into town from the surrounding country and on the regular trains, an excursion party came from Belleville on the Grand Junction and between 1,000 and 1,200 people came on the excursion from Toronto. Some of our citizens went to Port Hope and Lindsay, but the great majority remained in town to witness the events here.

AT THE DRIVING PARK.

The lacrosse match between Toronto and Peterborough was a draw.

About two o'clock the Indians from the different reservations in and around Peterborough, assembled at the Post Office corner, and, after holding a council of war and indulging in a "sun dance," formed in procession with the Toronto and Peterborough lacrosse clubs, and proceeded to the Driving Park, where a splendid programme was afterwards carried out. The first event to come off was a lacrosse match between the "Crotes," a junior team, and the second twelve of the Peterboroughs. The "Crotes" were to have crossed sticks with a junior team from Toronto, but owing to some misunderstanding the Toronto boys did not put in an appearance. It was decided, in order to give the "Crotes" a game, to put the second twelve in the field against them for a fixed time. The following is the names and positions of the players:

SECOND TWELVE. POSITIONS. CROTES.
R. Stevenson.....Goal.....R. Kincaid
R. Bagley.....Point.....R. Parnell
A. Mervin.....Cover Point.....G. Gibbs
J. Connel.....Defence Field.....J. Connel
J. Parnell.....".....W. Henderson
A. Mervin.....".....F. Laroche
R. M. Kelly.....Centre Field.....H. Dixon
P. Trainer.....First Home.....M. Laroche
T. O'Rourke.....Second Home.....H. Foot
H. Neil.....Third Home.....F. Metcalfe
D. Deyell.....Home.....J. King

Mr. M. Groux acted as field captain, Messrs. Hugh Ross and O'Brien, as umpires, and Mr. H. LeBrun filled the position of referee. Both sides did some fairly good playing, and at times it was hard to say which of the teams were really playing in the best form. Although the "Crotes" are a young club, composed principally of very young men, yet they made such a determined stand against the second twelve as to draw forth the admiration of the spectators. If they keep together and practice, it will not be long before they will be a first class team, and take their level with all comers. After forty-five minutes' hard play, in which "Dick" Kelly, a returned volunteer from the Northwest, Harry Neil, Gibbs, H. Dixon and others on both sides did in some good work, a drop short gave the first game to the second twelve.

As the time allowed them to play was up, and the spectators eagerly waiting for the senior match to come off, Mr. LeBrun, the Referee, declared the match a draw, and both clubs withdrew to make room for the seniors.

TORONTO VS. PETERBOROUGH.

From the time this match commenced until the finish, interest in it never flagged for an instant, the players on both sides wielding the sticks in such a dexterous manner as to hold one's undivided attention from the beginning of a game until the time came for one side or the other to hold up twelve lacrosse in the air, thus denoting that a goal had been made. The names and positions of the respective players were as follows:

POSITIONS. TORONTO.
J. Joyal.....Goal.....H. Davy
R. J. Hall.....Point.....T. Mills
M. Tigney.....Cover Point.....F. W. Garvin
M. Halpin.....Defence Field.....J. Henderson
A. Cameron.....".....R. Cassels
R. J. Hall.....Centre Field.....W. Gordon
J. Henderson.....First Home.....H. Davis
G. Groux.....Second Home.....P. Green
J. O'Rourke.....Field Captain.....F. W. Garvin
R. English.....Umpire.....Green
J. C. Hurd, Referee.

The first game was started at exactly eight minutes to four o'clock, and it at once became hot and intense in exciting. The rubber was not long in finding its way towards the Peterborough goal, and several well directed shots on it were cleverly stopped by Joyal and sent flying back to the other end of the field in quick time. In this game Tigney stopped some high balls in splendid style, by jumping up in the air and hitting them with his stick, thus relieving the anxiety of the spectators for the time being as to the safety of the goal. Scott, Henderson, Hall Cameron, Fortye, and Halpin, did some lively work in this game, but it was of no avail, as the first game was won by Toronto in nine minutes, by Mills putting the ball through the sticks.

THE SECOND GAME.

At 4.10 precisely, the second game was commenced, and the boys went to work in earnest. Fortye scored the ball and sent it towards the other end, when Garvin of the Toronto scored it, and made a good run up field, when he lost it to Halpin, who was in turn checked by a Toronto man again, and the rubber once more came in close quarters with the Peterborough's goal. Alternately the little missile trailed from one end of the field to the other, when a lucky shot from P. Scottfield, of Toronto, gave the second game to the visitors in three minutes from the time the ball was found.

THE THIRD GAME.

At 4.17 the rubber was again placed between the sticks of Fortye and Gordon, and the third game was commenced. This time, as it is usually the case when Peterborough boys lose two games to nothing, the members woke up to a sense of the hard job they had before them. They set to work with the determination that Toronto were not going to win, and they did not. It was not long, however, until a long throw from Toronto sent the ball in dangerous proximity to the Peterborough goal, but Joyal stopped it in fine shape, and with a bound and a throw sent it away, clean to the other end of the field again. Tigney, who played an excellent game throughout, at this point took the rubber from a Toronto man, and in doing so made a "fool," and he was the first to call it himself. On the face he got the ball again, and sent it flying through the air towards Toronto's goal. Joe Henderson, who played like a little man all day, got the rubber on his stick and made a run in front of goal and sent the ball through in such quick time that the visitors did not know it until he had it done. Loud cheering was the result, and Peterborough stood up one hundred per cent.

THE FOURTH GAME.

The home club by this time were getting well warmed up to their work, and encouraged by finishing the last game, played a better game than they did in the preceding games. Joyal, Hall, Tigney, Halpin, Fortye, Cameron, Henderson, Scott, and Rutherford worked well together, and the latter player completely outplayed some of the visitors with his clever dodging, and after a half hour's hard play he got the ball, and dodging through a whole "battalion of the enemy" sent it through the sticks, thus giving the fourth game to Peterborough.

THE FIFTH GAME.

The excitement was now at fever heat, and when at the commencement the rubber messenger travelled toward the Toronto goal, the crowd cheered excitedly. It was evident to all that the visitors in this game were playing a defence game, and the smiles as to who would win were all in favour of Peterborough. After play had been in progress for a few minutes, however, time was called, and to the disappointment of the large crowd of spectators, the match was declared a draw, each team having scored two goals. The members of both teams concentrated their forces in the centre of the field, where such a hard battle had been fought, and gave the usual cheers, after which they returned to town.

THE INDIAN RACES.

The above races were a novel sight, and took place during the progress of the match between the "Crotes" and the second twelve. The race was half mile heats, but two in three, and the prizes were $15, $7 and $3. There were six entries, viz: A. Peterson, "Red Arrow," J. Fanning, "Big Bear," J. Peterson, "Hole-in-the-Sky," R. Redmond, "Yellowstone," Montgomery, "Yellow Cat," and A. W. Vance, "Strike-him-on-the-Back." The result of the race gave A. Peterson first place, Montgomery second place and A. W. Vance third place.

ANOTHER EVENT.

After the lacrosse match a friendly trot came off between "Indian Billy" and a flyer owned by Mr. A. Serickland, of Lakeside. The first heat was for half a mile, and was won by the Lakeside horse. The second was a mile, and was won by "Indian Billy." Mr. Harry Wilson and the Lakeside roller rink proprietor, Mr. Ed. Brown, drove the horses, the former "Indian Billy" and the latter the Lakeside horse.

FARISH PICNIC.

The congregation of St. Peter's celebrated the day at Walker's Grove. The first event of the day was the picnic at Walker's grove, under the auspices of the congregation of St. Peter's Cathedral. At an early hour the buses commenced to run between the grove and the town, and by noon quite a large number of people were enjoying themselves in the cool shade.

The preparations made were ample. A large refreshment booth, presided over by two capable hands, was conveniently situated and was well patronized during the day. A long table was substantially spread by the ladies, and when dinner was called, it was soon laid all the way round and remained in that condition for about an hour and a half, the new comers taking up the places as fast as they were vacated. The following mentioned ladies took charge of the table and saw that everybody was made at home:—Mrs. J. O'Sullivan, Mrs. J. Hackett, Mrs. R. W. Munster, Mrs. T. Dolan, Mrs. J. Doherty, Mrs. M. McFadden, Mrs. N. Lepiste, Mrs. J. Lynch, Mrs. J. C. Sullivan, Mrs. D. Donoghue, Mrs. J. Coker, Mrs. T. Kelly and Miss McCarty. Two ice cream stands, presided over by Miss N. Tagney, Miss A. McArthur, Mrs. J. Dunn and Mrs. T. Henry, did a good business. A large quantity of luscious strawberries was rapidly disposed of by Misses Mahoney and Simons at the fruit stand under their care.

A dancing platform had been constructed, and also an orchestra gallery, and when Prof. Doucet and his orchestra took their positions in the latter there was no lack of pleasure who showed their desire to trip the light fantastic toe beneath the foliage of the adjacent broad spreading maples.

Meanwhile the sports, which were very satisfactorily managed throughout by Messrs. J. Molloy and H. McGuire, had commenced. Some of the events were highly contested, but the "wrepping" by between Messrs. Moore and Garrison. The following is the list:—

HOP, FRY AND JUMP.—Won by W. Garrison (39 ft. 6 in.). Prize—a pair of roller skates, presented by Mr. E. Brown. Three entries.

STANDING HOP OVER AND JUMP.—1st, W. Garrison (30 feet 2 in.); 2nd, A. Moore (28 feet 3 in.). Prize, 1st, a pair of pants valued at $5, presented by Messrs. T. Dolan & Co. 2nd, goods valued at $3 presented by Mr. James Dolan. Two entries.

TWO OR WAR.—Won by a team of ten boys captained by B. Corfery. D. Simons captained the opposing team. Prize, $3 in cash.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY YARD RACE.—Won by T. Kelly, Jr., Prize, a lacrosse stick. Eight entries.

While the sports were in progress, the platform for dancing was being liberally patronized. During a lull, Mr. "Johnny" Croin appeared on the scene with his worthy partner of last year's picnic, Miss Hyland, and together they danced several jigs and step dances. At the conclusion they were loudly applauded by the spectators.

At about half past five o'clock tea was served and in the course of an hour all of the picnickers had left the grounds after having spent a most enjoyable day in the favorite grove.

During the day the following clergy were present:—Father Conway, Parish Priest, Father Guay, Curate, St. Peter's Cathedral; Father Kelly, Farnham; Father O'Connell, D. W.; Father Lynch, St. Ann's; Que; and Father O'Brien.

NOTES.

Mr. C. Grant was engaged in his usual occupation at such affairs, viz, taking charge of the picnic. He was assisted by Messrs. Lynch and Halpin. Mr. Grant expressed his opinion to the effect that there was not much fun connected with his employment, whereas a bystander remarked that he thought the gate keeper always took in a good share of the fun (de).

The attendance was not large at the particular time but the people kept coming and going all day long.

"Just give us a few steps of that nine eight time meter" said Miss Hyland partner to the orchestra, after having tripped airily around in the Irish jig for some half an hour.

Mr. T. Hickey acted in the capacity of Master of Ceremonies during the day with his usual urbanity.

The weather was all that could have been desired and not a disagreeable event occurred to the enjoyment of the picnic.

The proceeds of the picnic amounted to about $371.00 made up approximately as follows:—Refreshment fees, $102; dinner and tea, $200; refreshment booth, $50; ice cream stands, $10.50; fruit stand, $8.50.

SONS OF ENGLAND.

The demonstration arranged by Lansdowne Lodge—Sports, Concert and Fireworks.

The members of Lansdowne Lodge of the Sons of England assembled at their lodge room at ten o'clock, and headed by the Fire Brigade Band, marched to the Grand Trunk station to meet the brethren of that society from Belleville. The Belleville train arrived at about 10.30, bringing a number of excursionists, including members of the Order. The Peterborough Lodge and Belleville representatives then proceeded to the Canadian Pacific station. At about 11 o'clock the first train from Toronto arrived, consisting of eight coaches, and carrying 540 passengers. In about fifteen minutes the second train steamed up to the station. It consisted of nine coaches and carried between 600 and 650 passengers. Immediately after the arrival of the second train,

THE PROCESSION.

The Fire Brigade Band headed the procession, discoursing excellent music, and the representatives of the following lodges of the Sons of England made up the procession:—York, Warwick, Manchester, Brighton, Stratford, London, St. George's, Somerset, Sussex, Kent, Aldon and Middlesex, of Toronto; Oxford, of Belleville, and Lansdowne, of Peterborough. The march of the procession was led by Ben. Samuel Hine, Toronto, and R. Tivy, Peterborough. The line of march was up George street to the drill shed, Murray street, The Peterborough brethren had received permission from the Separate School authorities to use the Separate School grounds, and in them a large number of the visitors picnicked. In the afternoon a programme of

was carried out in these grounds. This portion of the day's proceedings was under the management of the Toronto visitors, Bro. R. B. Popham being manager of the sports. The Toronto people did not extend the usual courtesies to the press, but we believe a programme of twenty events, all races of various kinds, was carried out, the competitors being visitors, principally from Toronto. A novel feature was a show, and Mrs. Charles Noyes, of Ashburham, received the second prize for a child between 9 and 13 months of age. May pole dance, in which twenty-one little girls of Peterborough took part, was very pretty. A dancing platform in the drill shed was utilized during the afternoon, the music being provided by the Fire Brigade Band orchestra.

EVENING IN THE DRILL SHED.

In the evening, at shortly before eight o'clock, the Fire Brigade band played up George street to the drill shed, where the promenade concert and crowning of the May Queen took place.

The place soon held several hundred citizens, and after they had listened to the music of the band for about an hour, Bro. Brunette, President of Lansdowne Lodge, called on Mr. Geo. A. Cox, Mayor, to address the assembly.

Mr. Cox said that he should not find fault with the Sons of England, for an Englishman, was the son of an Englishman. But he had reason to find fault with somebody. He came to distribute the prizes that had been won during the day, but he found that the prizes were not here to distribute, or that none had been won by Peterborough people. He hoped the people would not be disappointed at this. After congratulating the people on their having happily celebrated Dominion Day, he retired.

The May pole dance was next on the programme. A platform had been built at the north east end of the shed. In the centre was the tall May pole and around the walls hung evergreen and other decorations. In front of the band stand there was a motto hung which read "God Save the Queen," and immediately under it a portrait of Her Gracious Majesty. At a given signal the following little girls, all grandly dressed in red, white and blue, came tripping out:—B. Brunette, M. A. Hall, Irene Noble, A. Tivy, A. Kingston, A. Millar, F. Robinson, S. Hall, M. Deacon, L. Richardson, C. Kingston, E. Robinson, J. Brunette, B. Bolton, E. McFadden, C. N. McFadden, F. Madden, C. Gunn, Laura Morris. The Queen of the May then appeared (Miss Flora Tivy) attired in white and took her seat on the little purple throne provided.

The following song was sung with orchestra accompaniment, to the tune of God Save the Queen:—

Welcome the glorious day,
Welcome each bright morning,
Welcome to May.

Lead us our voices sing,
Make hill and valley ring,
Welcome to May Day.

Come—come from hill and glen,
Leave sheep and deer and pen,
Come to May Day.

On to the May-pole she,
Where streaming ribbons fly,
Dance around merrily,
To welcome May.

Twine we the garland fair,
Then to the throne repair,
To crown our Queen.

Gather we blossoms sweet,
Strew them around her feet,
Then with your voices greet
Our own sweet Queen.

There on her flowery throne
She reigns supreme alone,
Our exalted Queen.

We will her throne sustain,
Pray blessings on her reign;
Sing, sing the grand refrain,
God save our Queen.

The dance then commenced and was gone through without one mistake. The little girls, in their gay attire and each crowned with a garland of flowers, tripping around under the electric light, looked more like so many fairies than human beings. During the progress of the dance applause frequently broke from the assemblage.

In time the Queen was crowned. At the conclusion of the dance this song was sung:—
"Mid pleasures and palaces, though we may Be as ever so humble, there's no place like home."
A charm from the skies seems to follow us
There,
Which seek thro' the world, is not met with elsewhere.

The little merry ones then retired, to come back in a few minutes with the "village school boys" to play see-saw. This was nicely gone through, and all joined heartily in the song, while the band played the accompaniment.

The Misses Tivy, who trained the little girls for the event and who acted as directors at the ceremony, deserve great credit for the efficient way in which they performed their duties.

THE FIREWORKS.

The Mayor then addressed a few words to the audience and requested them to adjourn to the adjoining park, where the display of fireworks would take place. The fireworks were seen by thousands of people, the park being thickly lined on all sides. The display was very creditable.

NOTES.

The committee put forth every effort to make the demonstration a success, and especially did Bro. Brunette devote much time to seeing to every detail.

A refreshment stand at the north end of the drill shed seemed to be doing a brisk business during the evening.

The Sons of England intend to run an excursion to Sturgeon Point at an early date.

THE CRICKET MATCH.

The Sons of England Cricket Team Defeat the Peterboroughs by Seven.

The match game of cricket between the Sons of England Cricket Club of Toronto and the Peterboroughs, after three and a half hours' exciting play, resulted in favor of the visitors by 101 to 84. The visitors won the toss and sent Hoselton and Cowen to the bat. The first eight wickets quickly fell without double figures. They were followed by Smith and Abbey who made a "grand stand" for 11 and 39, respectively, giving a total score of 101.

The home team then went to the bat, Craven, Miles, Hamilton, Carter, Straton and Cooper getting double figures in good form. Price's bowling for the visitors was very good, he getting 4 wickets for 26 runs, and for the home team Max Hamilton got 4 wickets for 34 runs. The following is the score in full:—

AT PORT HOPE.

A big day's sport was successfully carried out at Port Hope. Among the big attractions was a half mile race between Hamley, of Port Hope, and Case, of Hamilton. Hamley ran in his usual good style, but Case proved the swifter of the two, and won by about four or five yards. In the horse race between Lady McDonald and Wild Deer, the latter won easily, Lady McDonald being distanced in the first heat. The sports were carried out in a highly creditable manner, and a very enjoyable day was spent by all who attended.

NOTES.

Hammond and Cooper made a good showing at the last, holding up their wickets for 30. The home team had hard luck, having five men caught out. Abbey was stumped out for 6 runs, but the umpire was not looking, so he kept his bat and ran his score up to 39. This won the game for the visitors.

The attendance was not very large, the majority being ladies.

Three of our best players, Norley, Max Hamilton, and R. D. Rogers, got out for a duck egg.

Is it not time that the grass around the edge was cut, so as not to allow the visitors to get three runs for lost balls?

BASEBALL AT LINDSAY.

The Home Team are Defeated by Four Runs.

When the volunteers decided to remain at home it was thought that there would be no one from Peterborough to join in Lindsay's celebration, but it turned out otherwise. At about eight o'clock correspondent Reeves received a telephone message from the Lindsay Baseball Club, asking if the Peterboroughs could give them a game. An affirmative was wired back, and at twenty minutes after eight o'clock the next morning a nine from the Peterboroughs were on their way over the "Link" for Lindsay.

In due time after their arrival the match was commenced, the players taking up their positions in the field as follows:

CHEESE MARKET.

The meeting of the members of the Peterborough Cheese Market, adjourned from June 25th, was held on Thursday.

Mr. Drummond presided and Mr. Galvin acted as Secretary. The Liverpool market stood at 37 shillings; that of Woodstock for June 24th stood at from 7½ to 7¾. The following buyers were present:—Messrs. Cook, for T. J. & J. C. Warrington; C. E. Bartlett, for Kirkpatrick & Cookson; W. J. Flavell and W. H. Wrightson.

Mr. Drummond asked for bids for the unsold cheese of the last market, namely the make for the first half of June. The bids were as follows:—Wrightson, 6½ cents per pound; Flavell, 6½; Bartlett, 6½; for seven selected factories; Wrightson, 6½, for the whole lot; Bartlett, 6 13-16 for seven selected factories; Wrightson, 6 13-16 for the whole lot.

Mr. Cook took objection to any bid lower than an eighth being offered and asked if such were not against the rules of the market.

Mr. Drummond replied that the buyers would prefer an eighth being bid, but they would not reject a sixteenth.

No more bids being forthcoming the factories were called off, but the offer was negated by all of the buyers.

Mr. Wrightson asked what the salesmen would take for the cheese?

The representative from Trewhin and others replied that they would take 7½.

Mr. Wrightson said that if all the colored cheese were put up at 7 cents he would see what he could do. Mr. Bartlett made a similar bid for the white cheese. After a good deal of consideration by both buyers and salesmen a sale of nearly all of the cheese was effected at this price.

The colored cheese was purchased by Mr. Wrightson and the white cheese by Mr. Bartlett. The factories sold:

WALLACE POINT BRIDGE

A Meeting of the Joint Committee—A New Swing to be Built.

A meeting of the joint committee of the United Counties Northumberland and Durham and of the County of Peterborough, was held at Wallace Point, Otonabee, on Tuesday, June 30, to consider the matter of a new swing bridge at that point. There were present: Mr. Geo. Campbell, Warden of Northumberland and Durham, Mr. R. C. Strickland, Warden of Peterborough, and Messrs. Ferguson, Reeve of Millbrook; Prover, Reeve of Bowmanville; Fowles, Reeve of Hastings; Riddell, Reeve of South Monaghan; Moloney, Reeve of Douro; Lang, Reeve of Otonabee; Foster, Reeve of North Monaghan, and Stewart, Deputy Reeve of Otonabee.

Mr. J. E. Belcher, C.E., County Engineer of Peterborough, was also present. Mr. Belcher was, on motion, elected Secretary of the meeting, and Mr. Ferguson Chairman.

Mr. STRICKLAND moved, seconded by Mr. CAMPBELL,—That a new iron structure swing bridge be built to take the place of the present decayed swing bridge at Wallace Point.—Carried.

Mr. STRICKLAND moved, seconded by Mr. FOWLES,—That Mr. J. E. Belcher, County Engineer of Peterborough, call for tenders and plans for the erection of a wrought iron swing bridge at Wallace Point, to be completed and fixed on the 15th of October next, in accordance with specifications applied by Mr. Belcher, tenders to be addressed to the Chairman, Mr. Ferguson, on or before the 25th of July next, the committee to meet at Peterborough to consider the same on the last Tuesday in July.—Carried.

Mr. STRICKLAND moved, seconded by Mr. RIDDELL,—That Messrs. Ferguson and Lang be an advisory committee to assist Mr. Belcher in the construction of the plan for the swing bridge, in accordance with his plans and specifications, the masonry thereof to be completed on or before the 1st of October next, and further, that this committee be empowered to close the old bridge when required for the construction of the new bridge, giving due notice thereof to the public.—Carried.

The action taken to supply a new swing was a proper one, as the present swing bridge has been in an unsatisfactory condition.

After a careful examination of the bridge built there six years ago by Mr. Chas. Wynne, and of its surroundings, the committee separated.

LINDSAY.

DECORATION DAY.—This summer the local lodge of Oddfellows will carry out a project long held in view of having a day set apart as decoration day. On Monday, July 20th, the brethren of Lindsay lodge, No. 100, will assemble at the residence of Mr. J. E. Belcher, where floral offerings will be deposited on the graves of those who have been members of the order.

THE STEAMER ESTUATION.—This week the Trent Valley Navigation Co. will have the steamer Estuacion placed on the stocks at Bay-Cayceon for the purpose of having the hull of the vessel widened. This will make the boat much steadier and add to its carrying capacity. The steamer Esauabogue will take the place of the Estuacion and make the regular trips in the meantime.

STUCK BY LIGHTNING.—During the storm of Sunday afternoon last the house of Rev. S. Weston-Jones was struck by lightning at the study chimney. The current ran down the side of the chimney and divided at the corner of the veranda following, apparently, the galvanized iron water pipe. The veranda over the front door was badly wrecked, the roof being torn off and fragments thrown in all directions. A part of the current followed the water pipes around to the back of the house and expended a part of its force in tearing a great hole in the brick of the kitchen wall. In the study at the time were Rev. Mr. Jones and Rev. J. Jones of Minden. On Sunday evening during the course of the trial at St. Paul's church, Rev. Mr. Jones returned thanks to God for a merciful deliverance.

BACK FROM THE NORTHWEST.—A letter from Mr. John A. Barron, dated at Saskatchewan Crossing, intimates that he expects to reach Lindsay shortly, returning about the end of this week, July 4th. Mr. Barron has had a varied experience in the Northwest, and has travelled over the backwoods, wagon and foot, about 1,700 miles in all, since his arrival at the happy hunting grounds of the Northwest. Mr. Barron reached Lindsay on Thursday of this week and looks in splendid health. He reports that all the Lindsay men are well from Col. Deacon down. Col. Deacon is much liked by his men, who call him "Col. Dynamite." Whatever disturbing factor may be about the importance of the part taken by the respective corps at Batoche no one denies the Midland being with the first and our own men present.

RECEPTION TO THE MIDLANDERS.—A large and well attended meeting was held at the council chamber on Thursday evening, June 28th, called together by Mayor Wallace for the purpose of discussing and arriving at some definite position with regard to the reception to be tendered the Midlanders on their arrival home.

Mr. John Dobson was appointed chairman; Mr. T. Walters, Treasurer; and Dr. Burrows, Secretary. Upon the suggestion of Mr. Forston it was decided in so far as the committee could determine, that the day of reception should be observed as a public holiday, and Mayor Wallace was requested to issue the customary proclamation to that effect.

The secretary was instructed to correspond with other towns, and with the gentlemen of the local committee of other places in this military district inviting their co-operation in securing a flag for presentation to the Forty-Fifth Battalion, the flag to be appropriately inscribed, commemorative of the duty of the Midland Battalion during the North-West campaign. A committee was appointed to ascertain the cost of a suitable flag. Messrs. Porteous, Winters, Connolly, Wray, Walker, Bradburn and Dr. McAlpine were appointed a committee to collect subscriptions towards making up a fund to defray expenses of a reception. By a further resolution the name of Adjut. S. Hughes, Lieut. Graham and Lieut. Becknell were added to the above committee. The committee, after discussing the details of the proposed reception in a general way, adjourned to meet at the call of the chairman.—Post.

Chief of the Ojibways.

LONDON, July 1.—The lord mayor gave a luncheon to-day in honor of Rev. Mr. Chase, chief of the Ojibways. Sir Chas. Tupper, the Canadian high commissioner, and Sir Leonard Tilley, the Canadian Minister of Finance, were present. Sir Charles Tupper, in the course of his speech, said he hoped that Canada in extending the franchise to the Indians would strengthen their loyalty. Already deep rooted, although a few recently had been led to rebel.

Second Act in the Proceedings.

RELLYVILLE, June 2.—The returns from the voting on the Scott Act in the county of Hastings to-day are very incomplete and the result is doubtful. So far as heard from, there is a majority of 100 against the Act.

Best Allegiance.

The returns from the Provincial election in East Algoma, so far as received, give Mr. Lyon, Reformers, a majority of 700.

BATTLE AT FRENCHMAN'S BUTTE

On May 28th the volunteer forces under Gen. Strange attacked the Indians under Big Bear at Frenchman's (or Big Bear's) Butte, but on account of the distance at which the engagement was fought from the channels of communication, the particulars of the battle have been a long time in reaching the east. The Winnipeg Free Press, however, publishes a long account of the engagement, and that report, as well as accounts from other sources, show that the same courage was displayed by the volunteers at Frenchman's Butte as was shown at Fish Creek, Out Knifed Hill and Batoche.

The forces engaged were four companies of the Winnipeg Light Infantry, two companies of the 65th Mount Royal Rifles, 40 mounted scouts and 30 Alberta volunteers, with a nine pounder gun under a squad of Mounted Police and men of the Light Infantry. On the 27th some Indians were seen at Frenchman's Butte and a shell dropped among them made them scatter. On the next morning the advance commenced at 9 o'clock and at 6 o'clock the hill (Big Bear's Butte) upon which the Indians had taken up their position, was reached. There was an open space of about half a mile between the forces and the Indians, and to get near Big Bear's position a creek running through an almost impassable muskeg had to be crossed. The men advanced with a dash and crossed the creek, and from a partial covering afforded by a slight rise in the ground on the opposite side, they opened fire. The enemy could plainly see the position of the volunteers in the valley, while the Indians fired from rifle pits and were sheltered by bushes. For three hours the fighting continued, when the scouts, who had been reconnoitering, came in and reported that for a mile and a half down the valley they had been fired on by Indians. Major Steele estimated the number of Indians at 800. Gen. Strange concluded that it would be an unwise course to attack the Indians in their strongly entrenched position, with his comparatively small force, about 250 men. He therefore withdrew his men to wait for reinforcements, but Big Bear's experience of fighting with the Canadian volunteers, even with so many advantages in his favor, was such that he did not wish to again engage with them, and he fled.

The men showed great coolness and courage during the engagement, and, as the other volunteers did at Fish Creek and Batoche, wished to charge upon the Indians, although for the small force to have ascended the hill in the face of the fire that would have been poured into them would have been disastrous, as they had not sufficient numbers to extend their line and advance on all sides, or to attempt a flank movement.

Of the French-Canadian regiment we have not heard a great deal, on account of their movements being entirely out of reach of the telegraph, but we now know that they have not only done some very hard work in marching through a difficult country, but that they also fended the fire of the foe and fought as bravely as their English speaking comrades in arms. Of the three volunteers mounted at Frenchman's Butte, two were members of the 65th Battalion, and the Times' correspondent, himself from Winnipeg, closes his account with the words, "Montreal and Winnipeg should feel proud of their boys."

Since that engagement, as well as before it, the 65th has had, in company with other Battalions, much difficult marching to do, and a correspondent of the Mail in a recent letter mentions that the volunteers were cheered on their weary way by the singing of the French comrades. They appeared to have marched without murmuring, fought without flinching and cheerfully complied with all commands. That is their record, according to the correspondents, and we refer to it because, while we naturally feel more interest in the Midland Battalion (the heroes of Batoche), and in other battalions in which are men known to us or from places much nearer to us, it is right that we should not forget the services rendered by other regiments. The accounts of the conduct of the volunteers, whether they come from Ontario, Quebec, Manitoba or Nova Scotia, tell the same story, and the tale does honor to the volunteers and to the Dominion.

MORWOOD

IN A TRANCE.—A man named Lapin, 77 years of age, who resides in Tweed, about 47 miles east of this place on the C.P.R., went in a canoe a few days ago, immediately after carrying a basket of chips into the house. He was laid out and everything arranged for his burial. While being "waked," the neighbors who were needed around the corpse, were startled at noticing one of the arms, which was folded across his breast, extended. A doctor was called in and the supposed dead man brought to life again.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.—Then the terrible thunderstorm which passed over here on Sunday afternoon, June 28th, was at its height, the house of Mr. A. McCoy, who resides about a mile east of this village, was struck by lightning and immediately afterwards the dwelling commenced to burn. The prompt arrival of some neighbors saved the building, although it was considerably damaged by water. Beyond this and a slight shock experienced by Mr. and Mrs. McCoy, no further damage was done. The storm was one of the most serious that has passed over this section for years.—Register.

MILITARY COLLEGE.
Mr. CARON, in answer to Sir R. Cartwright, said that 26 graduates of the Royal Military College had been attached to the forces in the Northwest.

MANITOBA TERRITORY.
Concurrence was voted in the Manitoba resolutions, and a bill founded on them was read a first time, after some of the Opposition had discussed swamp lands.

NORTHWEST COUNCIL.
Mr. CARON moved the House into committee to consider the resolutions for the appointment of an additional member of the Council for the Northwest Territories, and an additional stipendiary magistrate. He explained that in view of recent events and of the increasing duties of the magistrates, it was considered necessary to increase their number. At present there were three, one each at Battleford, Regina and Fort Macleod.

Mr. CARON moved the House into committee to consider the resolutions for the appointment of an additional member of the Council for the Northwest Territories, and an additional stipendiary magistrate. He explained that in view of recent events and of the increasing duties of the magistrates, it was considered necessary to increase their number. At present there were three, one each at Battleford, Regina and Fort Macleod.

Mr. CARON pointed out that the people had petitioned for this additional stipendiary magistrate, knowing that he would be a member of the Council, as provided by the legislature of the Mackenzie Administration. The law provided that as soon as there were 21 districts with a population of 1,000 each the legislature was to be wholly elective.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.
The bill for the administration of justice in the Northwest Provinces was read a second time. Some other measures were advanced a stage.

SUPPLY.
The House went into Committee of Supply and passed several items.

THREE RIVERS.
WEDNESDAY, July 1st.—The bill to authorize an advance for the Three Rivers harbour was read a third time and passed.

NORTHWEST COUNCIL.
Mr. CARON moved in concurrence with the resolution for the appointment of an additional stipendiary magistrate in the Northwest with a seat in the council.

Mr. BLAKE moved in amendment that the new magistrate should not have a seat in the Council.

The amendment was negatived by 67 to 37 and the resolutions were concurred in.

ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.
The bill respecting the administration of justice in the Northwest passed through committee after some discussion.

Mr. MILLA moved in amendment to concur in the bill for the election of a district of 1,000 should be 2,000 instead of 1,000 square miles. The amendment was negatived by 70 to 37.

INLAND REVENUE.

Mr. JOHN C. THOMAS, in committee on the bill to amend the consolidated Revenue Act, moved amendments to exempt methylated spirits from the two years' regulation, and also to allow a portion of the proceeds of new distilleries to be sold for a time when less than two years' old. Mr. PATTERSON (Brant) and Mr. EDGAR objected to restricting new distilleries. The bill was reported.

THE SHORT LINE.

Sir H. LAURIE moved the House into committee on the resolutions granting subsidies to the line to connect the C.P.R. with Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. It was proposed to aid a short line to the Maritime Provinces from the River Quebec, Q., to Edmonton, N.B., by a grant of $6,000 a mile for 83 miles, the previous vote of $3,200 a mile for 26 miles having proved insufficient. It was also proposed to aid a line to Salisbury by Maritime Provinces and New Brunswick. An arrangement was being made for the Grand Trunk to transfer the North Shore line to the C.P.R., so it would not be necessary to build a new line, and the previous vote might be applied to the purchase. He fully explained the details of these resolutions.

After considerable discussion the resolutions were adopted.

The House adjourned at 2 p.m.

WHEN THEY WERE YOUNG

Two Letters Written by Two Little Boys Who Afterwards Became Great.

Here are two letters that were written by two boys who became great and good men. Now, while we are about to commemorate the anniversary of our nation's birth, it is pleasant to look back to the days when those two great patriots were only boys like the rest of us. The first letter is from Richard Henry Lee, who spoke so bold and so bravely for our country in the time of her great peril and need:

"I have brought me two books full of pictures he got them in Alexandria they have pictures of dogs and cats and tigers and elephants and even so many pretty things cousin bids me send you one of them it has a picture of an elephant and a little Indian boy on his back like uncle Joe's man says if I learn my book good he will let me come to bring me to see you will you ask your ma to let you come to see me."

"RICHARD HENRY LEE."

To this letter Washington sent the following reply:

"DEAR DIETRY,—I thank you very much for the picture book you gave me. Sam asked me to show him the pictures, and I showed him the pictures in it; and I read to him how the tame elephant took care of the master's little son. I can read three or four pages sometimes without mislaid a word. Ma says I may go to see you, and stay all day with you next week if it be not rainy. She says I may ride my pony here. If Uncle Ben will go with me and lead him. I have a little piece of poetry about the picture book you gave me, but I mustn't tell you who wrote the poetry:

"G. W.'s compliments to R. H. L., And fills his book full of fun. Henceforth will count him his friend, And hopes many happy days he may end."

"Your good friend,
"GEO. WASHINGTON."

"I am going to get a whip-top soon, and you may see it and whip it."—St. Nicholas.

Two Persons Drowned.
The Mail gives the following particulars of a drowning accident in Toronto on July 1st:—About half past three o'clock in the afternoon a small sail boat containing four persons, two ladies and two gentlemen, having crossed the bay from Toronto, reached the eastern gap. The boat was struck by the wind, which at that time increased very suddenly, and the parties in the boat lost all control over it. They were blown out into the lake, where there was a heavy sea on. When about three-quarters of a mile east of the island, and a considerable distance from the shore, the wind struck the boat with redoubled force, completely capsizing it. The occupants of the boat were thrown into the water. Two of them named Misses Montelhi & Hilton, both of Riverside, sank from sight and were drowned. The other two managed to cling to the boat until they were rescued and taken to the island. No traces of the bodies could be found, and it is not thought probable that they will be recovered, as they will be washed out into the lake.

If you should be so unfortunate as to burn, scold, or wound yourself in any way, the proper thing to keep clean and heal it is McCreagh's Carbolle Ointment. It is on hand and is sure to get you out of your Carbolle Ointment. Price 25 cts, John McCreagh, druggist, has the genuine.

NEW WOOD PRESERVATIVES

Immersing the lower ends of fence posts in hot coal tar will preserve the outside for years, but it is very frequently happened that in using small trees from four to eight inches in diameter the heart wood is the first to decay. This often occurs with chestnut posts that are set before they are thoroughly seasoned. To prevent this decay at the centre, as well as of all that part of the post placed below ground, by the use of wood preserving solutions, my friend and neighbor, J. J. Suckart, Ph. D., suggests a system which strikes me as being not only novel, but exceedingly valuable as well. It is to have a hole in the centre of the post, from the bottom upward, to a point that shall be above the ground when the post is in position. Then bore another hole in the side of the post with a slight inclination downward, making an opening in the centre hole, which will allow free passage. A wooden plug, two or three inches long, should be driven snugly into the hole at the bottom of the post, and to prevent the escape of any liquid that may be used in the operation. Now when the posts are set in an upright position, a preservative solution may be introduced into the hole in the side and the centre one filled with it, after which a cork or plug of some kind should be inserted in the side hole to prevent evaporation, as well as to keep out dust and insects. The solution thus introduced will gradually be absorbed by the surrounding wood, until all parts along the entire length of the central cavity must become completely saturated. When the solutions used have been taken up by the surrounding wood, it will only be necessary to withdraw the cork, or plug, and apply more, if it is thought desirable. A common watering pot with a slender spout will be a handy vessel to use in distributing the solutions.

Petroleum, creosote, corrosive sublimate, or any other of the well known wood preservatives may be used in this way. The preservative might be prepared in the same way, and if the central reservoir were kept filled with petroleum, which would last for a hundred years or more. Where a large number of posts and poles are to be prepared, it would be cheaper to have the holes bored by steam or horse power than by hand. With very open and porous wood it is quite probable that a hole bored in the side of the post and above the ground, and deep enough to hold a pint or more of creosote or some similar solution, would answer, but I think a central cavity reaching to the bottom would be best.—American Agriculturist.

ROW FAST?

An Experienced Boatswain Who Says
Three Miles in Two Minutes.

"It is easy enough to run a locomotive a mile a minute," said a railway superintendent of motive power to the Herald reporter. "An accommodation train on our road, scheduled at about thirty miles an hour, frequently runs at the rate of 60 for short distances between stations. It's the stops that break up speed, and that is one reason why they can make such speed over in England. Their crossings there are rarely at grade. The new road must get over or under the old one. The result is they have very few stops to make. Now, take the Lake Shore limited between here and New York. It is scheduled to run through—970 miles in twenty-five hours. That is almost thirty-nine miles an hour. Fifty-five minutes are lost at Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland, Toledo and Elkhart. Besides these division stations, where engines are changed, some time is lost in getting through all cities, and over some bridges, like the long trestle at Sandusky. But this is not all. There are twenty-two grade crossings between New York and Chicago, and for every one of them must come to a standstill. Engineers agree that no stop can be made without losing at least four minutes. On the run we are speaking of that means about ninety minutes lost by grade crossings. Taking all the stops and stops the actual running time is about 22 hours, or at the rate of 40 miles an hour. The engineers tell me that not one of our passengers they do not run one or two miles faster than a mile a minute. But for the grade crossings and the law requiring all trains to come to a full stop before they run from New York to Chicago in 25 hours there are not less than 5,000 grade crossings in this country, at each of which one man, and at many of them two men are employed.

"A locomotive can easily travel at the rate of a mile a minute on a straight, level track if not overloaded and if a good steamer. I myself have driven an engine as fast as 67 miles an hour for five or ten minutes, and then a well authenticated case of a locomotive moving at the rate of 73 miles an hour for a short time, the fastest record ever made with a locomotive. That was 1,185 feet a minute, or 690 revolutions a minute for a five and a half foot driver. That is faster than you can count and faster than any steam engine of that type should run. The English are ahead of us on all locomotives. The build their engines and the driver on a side, and thus avoid the danger of the parallel rods connecting geared drivers. Set a locomotive going as fast as she can hum and there is great danger of accident—that the parallel rods will break. Think of those four wheels on two axles, all geared tight, and moving at that pace. A slight jump, a spring or a tilt to one side is likely to alter the adjustment, bring the rods in unequal strain and snap one of the rods as if they were pipe-stems.

"Do I believe locomotives will be built to run 60 miles an hour, schedule? I certainly do. What is there to hinder? It is simply a question of power and economy. Build a two driver locomotive with ten foot wheels and sufficient steam capacity for the loads she is intended to draw, and there is no reason why she should not run three miles in two minutes. On a first class track there is no more danger of derailment at 60 miles an hour than at 30. Cost a small fortune to build a locomotive? That indeed, not now. A few years ago a good engine was worth from $14,000 to $17,000, now they can be built for $7,000 to $9,000, some switch engines do not cost more than $4,000. The usual type of locomotive has about 200 separate parts, and the life of the machine is set at ten years, though there are engines in Chicago to day that have run the year without overhauling, and are good for several years more. The lives of locomotive boilers need constant attention. The first locomotive that was ever seen in Chicago is still on her legs and able to work, though no work is done with it. She stands in a shed out at the Northwestern shops."—Chicago Herald.

HEART OR LIVER?

An Interesting Question that Doctors
Little Which Way It is Settled.

The London Athenaeum raises a question of doubt as to whether the poet Shelley's heart really survived the cremation to which the body was subjected. It suggests in support of its position that Byron, Leigh Hunt and Trelawney, who identified the charred substance as the heart, were mistaken, and argues that in cremation the heart, being hollow, is easily destroyed, while the liver, which is the most solid of internal organs, remains the most intact bone. The paper quotes a correspondent who says he has witnessed many cremations of the human body. He declares that he has seen cremations completely effected in five minutes in the Milan crematory by means of Venetian reversing furnaces, and in all these cases the liver endured for a considerable time that concentrated whirling of fire, remaining intact after the heart had totally disappeared. Proceeding from such data the writer in the Athenaeum points out that Shelley's liver was estimated with sea water, and was on that account more than normally incombustible, and maintaining that Byron and Hunt, not being anatomists, easily mistook the shrunken remains of Shelley's liver for the heart, and that the former and not the latter was what which Hunt returned to Mrs. Shelley, and which now lies encased in silver in Bonaparte Hall, the family vault. The Athenaeum concludes by suggesting that an expert anatomist be permitted to examine the supposed heart for the purpose of determining scientifically whether the charred remains be really the poet's heart or his liver, both of which were equally near to him while he lived and both of which should be regarded as equally valuable still.

HUNTING GRIZZLY BEARFOOT.

The Grizzly Bear in Oregon, for Whose Skins a Reward of $100 is Offered.

A Portland, Ore., correspondent writes:—Four years since a monster grizzly bear commenced depredating the stock ranches, twenty miles south of Ashland. He would descend from the fastnesses of the Rogue River mountains whenever his appetite might prompt him to do so, and perpetrate wholesale slaughter on the horses, sheep and hogs of the ranchmen. During these years the ranchmen have planted half a dozen Winchester balls in his carcass, but still he refused to succumb.

About a year since, the grizzly walked off, leaving a good piece of his foot in a huge trap, cautiously prepared for him in that spot. Since then he has been a gait peculiarly his own, and the way hunters who have occasionally caught sight of him but could not bring him down, have given him the name of Grizzly Redfoot.

Last week he ambled down to Howard's station on the Oregon, Idaho and California stage line, and, breaking the back of a 2 year old steer, set upon him and ate him for lunch. This unexpected meal then over the ranchman who had on divers occasions been forced to beat heavy retreats when coming unexpectedly upon him. They raised a posse of $100 for the Nimrod who would bring in the grizzly's scalp. Some noted bear hunters, including Jim Wilson, Harry Woodburn, Charley Taylor, and others, with trained dogs, are now in search of him in his mountain haunts. His tracks measure 14 inches each, and when he descends the hills through the underbrush he is said to thrash the ground like a cyclone. His bulk is gigantic. Many say that he does not weigh an ounce less than a thousand pounds. He is an ugly, vicious brute, and unless the hunters get him, the chances are even that he will get them.

DOMESTIC AND USEFUL.

Donor crumpets and Boston favorites, and are easily made. A pound of ordinary bread dough, white or brown, needs a half-cupful of white sugar, three ounces of butter, and three eggs, to be beaten hard into it. Bake in muffin-rings well buttered.

GOOSEBERRY FOOL.—Cut the tops and tails of green gooseberries, place them in a jar, with a little water and sugar; put the jar in a saucepan of boiling water, and boil until the fruit is soft enough to mash; then beat it to a pulp, work through a colander, and to every pint of pulp add a pint of milk, or half that quantity of cream. Put in plenty of sugar to taste. The mixing of the milk and gooseberries should be done gradually. Serve in small glasses, or in a glass dish.

BOILED MILK AND FLOUR.—Knead any quantity of wheat flour with water, lard, lard and tie the whole firmly in a cloth; put it into a pan with water, and boil it slowly for twelve hours. Place it before the fire to dry, and afterwards, on removing the cloth, separate a thick skin or rind, which has formed, and again dry the ball. A tablespoonful or more of this gruel and boiled with a pint of milk forms an excellent article of food in convalescence from diarrhoea or from dysentery, etc.

VEAL CUTLETS A LA LYONNAISE.—Stir together in a saucepan a small lump of butter and a dessertspoonful of flour, add slowly a tablespoonful of milk; to this put one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, one very finely chopped shallot, and twelve chopped butter mushrooms, the yolk of an egg, a little cayenne pepper and some salt; stir over a gentle fire until quite thick, then turn on a plate to cool. Take one plate of very thin veal cutlets, divide into small nicely shaped pieces. When the mixture is cold spread some of it on the top of each cutlet, brush them over with egg, dip them in bread crumbs, and fry in a basket, letting them be well covered with fat.

TO RENOVATE A CLOTH COAT.—Tweed and light cloth coats often become very dirty and greasy about the collar and cuffs. A good way to clean them up is to lay them flat on a deal table, and brush them with warm soda, not forgetting a piece of borax in the latter. The latter must be renewed as it becomes dirty, and the brush used should only be a good one, and used with a hot iron. For dark cloth-blue, brown or black—proceed as follows:—After brushing first with a clothes brush to remove the dust, treat with soda, then add to the clean water for rinsing a few table-spoonfuls of pure alcohol. Take care, in the case of coats that require cleaning all over, to get all into shape while damp, all parts, not forgetting the pockets. By this process a coat may be converted into quite a respectable-looking garment.

FARM AND GARDEN.

Give your horses a full hour at noon for taking food and rest.

SALT the walks and driveways regularly to keep down the weeds.

To prevent grape mildew, plant varieties that are not liable to it.

The prospects are that the wheat crop of Illinois will be about 250,000,000 bushels.

The seed of beets, carrots and parsnips should go in early, but not until the ground is fairly warm.

In hot weather grass will grow less rapidly, and the lawn should be mowed less frequently. Leave the clippings to serve as a mulch.

The wheat crop of Illinois for this year is estimated at 10,000,000 bushels, as against 32,000,000 last year. Winter wheat is up to the average.

WHATEVER fertilizer is applied should be spread evenly over the whole land, in an orchard large enough to bear fruit. Never heap up fresh manure around the trunk of a large or small tree; nothing but fresh earth should be pressed against the tree.

To destroy vermin on fowls, take a sponge of soft soap, moisten with kerosene, and rub a few drops of carbolic acid added, and rub it gently over the back of the neck and the throat, and a little under the wings, and that fowl will be rid of them. Then rub the inside of the beak, the perch, and the feet with once a week, and they will never take possession of the chicken house.

SMITH.

SCHOOL REPORT.—The following in the standing of the pupils in the different classes of S. S. No. 11, Smith, for June, 1885, E. L. McDonald, teacher:—

Second class—Eugene Roseborough, Laura Allen, Mildred Fitzgerald.
First class—Lillian Heard, Lillian Clarkston, Arthur Fitzgerald.
First class—Clarence Fitzgerald, Clara Allen, Alice Fitzgerald.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the bands off our 5c. Cable Co., and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, painting them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for such evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the bands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (10c.) fifty cent imported cigar and replace our brand on cheap and inferior domestic cigars, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c.) ten cents for our "Cable" or "El Padre" (10c.) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c.) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are as artistically favored, will be sold as cheap as imported. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

Turning the Stone on the Army.

The Pictou Times reports that last Thursday evening the Salvation Army, taking their daily march, halted in front of the Royal Hotel where they went through their usual exercises, accompanied by their own peculiar instrumental music. A youth, said to be an employee of the hotel, after arranging the Army performance, or perhaps suddenly possessed with a mischievous desire to have a little amusement, snatching up a hose that lay in the hotel hall, and pointing it in the direction of the Army, turned a stream of water upon them. Some of them got out of the way, while others received a considerable wetting. One young lady belonging to the Army, Miss Alice Wilson, on being so drenched, was struck by the water, and was carried into Mr. Gilbert's law office, where medical aid was summoned and restoratives applied. Not, however, recovering from her swoon, she was carried across the street to the parlors of Mr. English, where she lay in an unconscious state until next morning, when recovering in some degree she was conveyed to the house of her father, Mr. John Welsh, near the Pictou Cannery Factory, where she now lies in a somewhat precarious condition. It is said that the young lady has been subject to thinking fits and that she greatly regrets her misdeed. The affair made quite a sensation.

will be reminder of personal liberty for ages to come. On just as sure a foundation has Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" been placed, and it will stand through the cycles of time as a monument to the physical emancipation of thousands, who by its use have been relieved from consumption, consumptive night sweats, bronchitis, coughs, spitting of blood, weak lungs, and other throat and lung affections.

Our mother gave us "Pain" David's Pain-Killer then and strange to say, no other remedy has been discovered to this day to equal it.

THE SALISBURY ADMINISTRATION.

BECAUSE the new administration of the Three Kingdoms in Conservatism it is in the eyes of a section of our Reformers a fair mark for misrepresentation. In order to excite prejudice against it, and by analogy against Conservatism everywhere, some Reformers have invented, and others are repeating the falsehood, that the Salisbury Administration has 16 cabinet ministers of whom 13 are peers and only 3 commoners. A complete list of the cabinet has not yet reached us, but at least 7 of the principle offices, the Home, the Colonial, and the Indian, the Exchequer, the Army and the Navy and the Post Office have been placed in the hands of non-peers but members of the House of Commons. Many of the minor cabinet positions are also filled by commoners. The statement to the contrary is simply a specimen of the Reform practice of deliberate misrepresentation to the prejudice of Conservatism.

The Lord Mayor of London had better resign. He has actually been entertaining at his house a reverend gentleman who is a chief of the (Ojibway). The Toronto Globe and the London (Ojibway) will be after the scalp of the chief magistrate of the chief city of the Empire, if indeed he is not, but red, guest has left him one. Or possibly these outraged journalists will stir up the Common Council to refuse to transact any business till the Lord Mayor blinds himself never again to treat a red man as a civilized human being.

The very venacious correspondent of the Globe at Ottawa publishes the falsehood that Mr. Thos. White, M. P. for Cardwell, was badly snubbed because, when he was to make a speech which he had prepared in reply to Sir R. Cartwright on our finances, he had to sit down because Sir John had substituted Mr. McLean. The truth is, that Mr. White did not rise and had not prepared to speak in reply to Sir R. Cartwright, it having been arranged that Mr. McLean should do so in the absence of the Finance Minister, and he did it most thoroughly.

THE HYDRANT QUESTION

IS DISCUSSED, BUT NOTHING IS DEFINITELY DONE.

Another Consultation to be held—The Council and the Water Company to discuss the advisability of putting down Sixty Hydrants—The Spaulding's Bay Question Again.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Friday evening for the purpose of dealing with the hydrant by-law.

There were present: His Worship the Mayor and Councillors Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, McClelland, Yelland, Douglas, Rutherford, Green and Menzies.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

THE HYDRANT QUESTION.

Councillor McNAUGHTON asked if there was not a by-law providing that $100 be deposited before any by-law be submitted for the assent of the ratepayers. He did not believe in spending this $100 as he was sure the by-law would not carry.

The clerk read the by-law which dealt only with by-laws for houses.

The Council then went into a Committee of Whole on the second reading of the fire protection and streetwatering by-law, the by-law having passed its first reading at a previous meeting. Councillor Kendry took the chair.

Councillor YELLAND, in reference to the system being within Charlotte, Brock, Water and Rutledge streets, said that he thought it would be better to have the hydrants extended farther.

The Mayor said that the company was anxious to extend the system all over the town, but the limits mentioned had been agreed to by the company. If the Council wished to have more hydrants a meeting of the Committee and Water Company would have to be held to change the present basis of agreement. In reference to what Councillor McNaughton had said, he stated that if the by-law did not pass he did not want any more property in Peterborough. The laborers should have more interest in having factories protected than to have their own dwellings protected. The factories, where they receive their means of livelihood, were in more danger of fire than were the dwelling houses, which were usually in isolated positions. He had made an effort to establish a store factory here, but if he thought the ratepayers did not approve of the fire protection scheme he would stop the building of the works at once. He was sure that Messrs. Powell & Jones, the only stockholders besides himself, would prefer to locate the factory where they would be properly protected from fire.

Councillor McNAUGHTON said that whatever bargain was made with the Water Works it should be in black and white.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said that he did not think the Water Company cared a row of beans whether the by-law was passed or not. If the town took the hydrants the company would receive $2,000 a year. Out of this they would have to pay $1,700 in salaries for extra engineers and wheelmen's services. Under the present agreement they received $800 for street watering, so that really they would be $300 in pocket if the by-law was not passed. It had been said that the tax on the average ratepayer was six cents, but the Clerk had informed him that it was only five cents. He pointed out that in September the contract with the Water Co. expired, then would the town slip backward into a third rate town, so far as fire protection was concerned. He was not here to represent the Water Co., but to advocate the passage of the by-law as a councillor, ratepayer and citizen.

Councillor DOUGLAS thought that hydrants could be spread over more ground, say 500 or 600 feet apart. As it was now the hydrants were only 300 feet apart in the centre of the town.

Councillor McNAUGHTON endorsed Councillor Douglas's view. If the town was to have hydrants the poor man should be benefited as well as anybody. He was in favor of spreading the hydrants over a larger area, even if more hydrants had to be taken. The poor man's home was just as dear to him as the property of the rich man.

The Mayor concurred with the last two speakers. The Committee had thought that 40 hydrants was all that the people would like to take at present, but if it was the feeling that more should be taken he had no doubt that the Company would be agreeable. Councillor McNaughton had misunderstood him as to the poor man's home. No doubt every man held his home dear to him, but there was not that danger of houses catching fire as there was in factories.

LONDON STREET.

Mr. W. H. MOORE was heard in reference to the difficulty between the London street ratepayers and the Water Company. A petition was sent in to the Council last week signed, asking that the mains be extended along London street. The Water Company had promised from time to time to proceed with the work, but now they repudiated the project altogether. He came here simply to ask the Council to compel the Water Company to perform their part of the contract with the town.

Councillor MENZIES agreed with Mr. Moore. The Water Company should have extended the mains along London street. They had expressly promised to extend their pipes along any street adjoining the system, provided services were properly petitioned for.

Councillor RUTHERFORD pointed out that several of the ratepayers on the street had signed the petition under a false impression. Some of them had told him that they would take the service if the mains were laid along the street.

The Mayor called attention to the numerous difficulties which the company had experienced during the last year. If assistance were given them he thought all complaint on this score would be removed and that the company would extend the mains when they were required.

THE HYDRANT BY-LAW.

A discussion then took place as to whether sixty or forty hydrants be specified in the by-law. Nearly all of the Councillors spoke in favor of sixty, and the committee rose with leave to sit again.

SPAULDING'S BAY.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor Davidson—That the Council grant to Mr. George A. Cox, Esq., all the property owned by this corporation in Spaulding's Bay, together with the sum of five thousand dollars, on condition that he should fill the said Bay above the high water level within a period of five years. Also that the said property, for whatever purpose used, be exempted for a period of ten years. Payments to be made at the rate of one thousand dollars a year commencing from the 1st January, 1886. Also that the Town Clerk be instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the commissioners of the Town Trust requesting them to approve of, and give effect to, the same, and to request them to provide the money for this said payment. Should the commissioners fail to provide the money for the above purposes then the amount to be placed on the roll year by year until the whole shall be paid.

Councillor CAHILL said that he thought this proposal would be looked on with favor by every ratepayer. The town was going ahead in all directions, but matters of health should be first looked to.

The Mayor said that Councillor Cahill's motion was the result of just a casual conversation. He was strongly of opinion that by cribbing the creek or confining it to a small compass the rest of the bay could be made completely dry. A furniture factory might be established, and in the course of a few years the whole place would be filled in with the refuse from it. He would not, however, entertain the proposition while occupying his present position, though next year he might give it his serious consideration.

Councillor CAHILL hoped that his position as Mayor would not deter him taking the scheme in hand. "Why," said the representative from the South Ward, "every man, woman or child in the whole town will bless you for doing it."

The Mayor said that he would consider the matter, and Councillor Cahill allowed the matter to stand as a notice of motion.

MEETING THE WATER COMPANY.

Councillor KELLY moved, seconded by Councillor McClelland—That a committee be requested to meet the Water Works Co. in regard to the proposed by-law, for the purpose of entering into an agreement with the said company for acquiring a certain number of hydrants for fire protection and other purposes.—Carried.

STREET REPAIRS.

Councillor RUTHERFORD asked the Chairman of the Street and Bridge Committee where the Street Inspector was.

Councillor CAHILL said that he was walking on George street to-day.

Councillor RUTHERFORD said that the ratepayers on Harvey street had complained to the Street Inspector as to the dangerous state in which the sidewalks were on Harvey street. No attention had been paid to these complaints.

A motion for adjournment, which had been previously made, was passed, and before the discussion ended the Council had adjourned.

ONRIVER.

A SEVERE STORM.—On Sunday afternoon, June 28th, a storm of rain and hail passed over this section of country, doing considerable damage in its course. The hurricane, or whatever you call it, covered a tract about a quarter of a mile wide and went in an easterly direction, upturning everything in its wake. The following are a few of the persons who suffered. Mr. Thos. Powers had a log barn blown down; a large portion of Mr. John Henderson's beautiful grove was totally levelled to the ground, trees, that were not uprooted, were stripped and snapped off like pipe stems. Mr. Thos. Dewane's large barn and Mr. Geo. Young's was a total wreck. Mr. W. Crowley and Mr. Timothy Crowley lost heavily by having their sheds and fences destroyed. Mr. John Wilkinson's barn and stable were also upturned. A number of other farmers had more or less damage done, but we have not learned their names. It is a long time since the farmers of Emily were visited by such disaster. We are informed that several head of cattle were killed by lightning. No damage was done in houses, although the rain fell in torrents and the lightning was most vivid.—Herald.

A Strange Discovery.

While excavating the bed for a new and larger gasometer at Dumfries (Scotland) gasworks, the contractor came upon a bed of peat in which were imbedded the trunk of a Scotch fir, six feet in height, with the bark upon it; pieces of elm, oak, and hazel, with nuts and cones, broken articles, and various coleopterous remains. In a quantity of the moss placed under glass the cranberry and other plants began to germinate after a sleep of centuries. The spot, which is now in the heart of the town, is supposed to have formed part of the bed of a lake in prehistoric times, and three centuries ago a mill-dam was constructed at the place, which was then a morass. The bed of conglomerate on which the gasometer is to be built has been found to contain large fragments of red granite, a rock which is not known to exist in the immediate vicinity.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says: "I read the testimonial of a lady who writes that she had found that I had not gone to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find living with hydrants had to be taken. The poor man's home was just as dear to him as the property of the rich man."

The Mayor concurred with the last two speakers. The Committee had thought that 40 hydrants was all that the people would like to take at present, but if it was the feeling that more should be taken he had no doubt that the Company would be agreeable. Councillor McNaughton had misunderstood him as to the poor man's home. No doubt every man held his home dear to him, but there was not that danger of houses catching fire as there was in factories.

FORGIVENESS AND MERCY.

By the Editor of the Review.

Most people know what forgiveness and mercy mean, but few practice them. They are easy to talk about, but hard to do. Human passions are too strong and human anger too great to permit people to look with compassion upon the faults of others. They don't stop to think of their own mistakes, but it is a gratification to punish the errors of others. They make no allowance for accidents or unintentional injury, but punish because it is a gratification to punish, and the more helpless the offender is the quicker comes the blow. It is so pleasant to play the tyrant, and when encouragement is most needed, and gentle words would do the most good, there is nothing but punishment or blame. People are so dependent upon one another, and the poor and helpless are particularly so, that it is easy to oppress and easier still to do wrong, especially upon the poor and humble. In the family circle and in domestic life generally we often hear of hardships and oppressions of the young and dependent which are hard to believe, and which are a disgrace to our boasted civilization and to the age in which we live. Men, and women too, often rule without mercy, and those whom they ought to love are deprived of encouragement and comfort and are made to feel oftentimes the discomforts and hardships of their home life and to long for the time to come when they may seek and find happiness elsewhere. If a petty offense against the law is committed, how few find mercy and how few forgive. If a son does wrong he is not reasoned with, but is punished. If a daughter has been deceived and is humiliated and grieved, she receives no mercy and is often driven from the door. People rarely consider their own faults, and those who do the most wrong are often the hardest to punish. A man is out of work; he has a family of children at home without food, and he takes a loaf of bread just to still their cries and keep them from starving, and oh, what a crime. The poor man is arrested, the law has no mercy, the owner of the bread has no mercy, and the poor, heartbroken father is taken from his home and imprisoned and punished, and his wife and little helpless children are left to starve and die.

"That mercy I to others show, that mercy show to me." No doubt when the proper time comes, when this hard hearted man appears before the bar of Heaven, this will be done, and then when too late, he will wish he had showed mercy to this poor man. But it will then be too late, and all his cries and pleadings will not avail him then, and the dread sentence will be pronounced, "Depart ye, depart ye."

I remember the case, some years ago, of a young woman, who took a small trinket belonging to another, of the probable value of twenty-five cents. For this trifling offense she was arrested and brought before a magistrate for punishment, but owing to the intercession of a kind man, who happened to be present, the charge was withdrawn and she was discharged. It was a narrow escape, but it was a happy and a merciful one as well. There once stood, in a pleasant part of the country, a house whose exterior and surroundings denoted wealth and comfort. It was inhabited by a man and his only daughter. She married against her father's will and he turned her out of his house and ordered her never to appear there again. He was a cold, haughty and proud man, and she was mild and gentle. She went away and the father was left to his lonely meditations. A few years passed by, and one dark, cold, stormy night in winter, this woman, now destitute and helpless, came to her father's door and asked for shelter. The hard hearted father refused her admission. She cried and begged, but all in vain. She was literally driven from his door. She was poorly clad and it took all her outward clothing to cover the baby which she carried in her arms. The following lines will tell of her sorrows, and let others read them and have forgiveness and mercy.

One night when the wind it blew cold,
Blow bitter came the wild moor,
Wandering home to her own father's door,
O' Father, take me in,
Take pity on me, I implore;
Or the child at my bosom will die
From the winds that blow 'cross the wild moor.

Oh, why did I leave this fair cot,
Where once I was happy and free,
Doomed to roam without friends or a home,
O' Father, take me in,
Take pity on me, I implore;
Or the child at my bosom will die
From the winds that blow 'cross the wild moor.

O, how must her father have felt
When he came to the door in the morn,
There he found Mary dead, and the child
Fondly clasped in his dead mother's arms.
While in dream he pondered the scene,
As on Mary he gazed at the door,
For that night she had perished and died
From the winds that blow 'cross the wild moor.

And poor Mary perished and died
From the winds that blow 'cross the wild moor,
The father in grief pined away,
And no one lived there to his day,
For the cottage to ruin has gone,
The villagers point out the spot,
Where a widow daughter was dead,
Saying, there Mary perished and died
From the winds that blow 'cross the wild moor.

It is altogether likely that the father, after his death, had shown to him that mercy which he showed to his poor daughter Mary. I might go on giving similar cases of the one above, but my space will not permit it. But I will give some instances of an opposite character, showing that all people are not hard hearted and unforgiving, and it will be a pleasant task to do so. An old lady and her daughter once occupied a humble residence on the road near the city, and part of the country. The mother was greatly attached to her daughter, who was her only solace and company. But one morning when the mother arose she found her daughter missing and all search for her was in vain. The mother, it is needless to say, was almost heart-broken, but still she had no harsh word to say of the daughter, who she would fain think would come home again, and she resolved that until that time came, she would always keep a lamp burning in her window and never pull in the string of the latch on the door. One green-rolled by, and one dark, stormy night the mother was awakened by some one opening the door and entering her room. The lamp was burning and she discovered that her visitor was a woman, a poor, miserable, half-died woman. She immediately set about providing for her wants and soon she began telling her visitor that she remembered her of her long lost daughter. The stranger was so overcome by the mother's kindness and love that she broke completely down and revealed herself to the mother as her long lost daughter. The mother was overjoyed and told the daughter how long she had been waiting for her, and that now she would remove the lamp and pull in the latch string. And great was the joy in that house over the daughter's return. Another case and I have done. Many of my readers will remember the story of the prodigal son, who left his father's home and went into a distant land and spent his all in riotous living. The hard time soon came and he found himself destitute and starving. Then he thought of the home and comforts he had left behind, and in his sore need he resolved to return again and ask to be forgiven. And when he came back, his father went to meet him and brought him back and forgave him, and made a feast in token of his joy over his son's return. There is sometimes mercy for the errors of others, and the blessing of forgiveness is to him that gives it and him that receives. We are all hasty and uncharitable and unkind, but time and reflection bring us back again to a sense of our duty, and we at length feel the comfort and peace and happiness arising from the overcoming of our hard nature and the doing of acts of kindness and mercy. How often we speak harshly and act harshly, and cause much sorrow and misery, and then repeat of our conduct and wish we had done better. A rough father once drove his little boy from his door because he would not do wrong. The little fellow put his little bundle of clothes under his arm, bid his mother farewell, and then went on his way. He was going among strangers, but he often thought of home. When trading on, many miles from home, he heard his father's voice kindly bidding him to stop. He had repeated of his harshness, and asked his forgiveness, and now took him home again, and truth and justice and mercy all rejoiced, and home was made happier than before.

UNDER AGREEMENT between Lord Salisbury and Prince Bismarck the German naval demonstration against Zanzibar has been countermanded.

THE CHOLERA.—Possibly the Cholera may not reach our locality this season. Nevertheless, we should take every precaution against it. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a sure cure for Cholera, Malaria, Colic, Cramp, Diarrhoea and Dysentery.

A STRANGE DISEASE.—There is scarcely a symptom belonging to chronic complaints but that is common to the poor dyspeptic, and he often feels as if he had every disease in the catalogue. Burdock Blood Bitters cures the worst form of Chronic Dyspepsia.

THE settlements on the Dolores and Mancos rivers, in Western Colorado, are threatened by the Ute Indians, and the settlers are deserting their homes in fear of a massacre.

MR. WALLACE, Druggist, of Hastings, Ontario, says:—I recommend Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters far ahead of all other stomach medicines. It is just the thing for Biliousness, Stomach, Headache, and Dyspepsia. Large Bottle 50 cents.

KEEP YOUR HOUSE GUARDED.—Keep your house guarded against sudden attacks of Colic, Cramps, Diarrhoea, Dysentery and Cholera infantum. They are liable to come when least expected. The safest, best and reliable remedy is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

A TORONTO gentleman says of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters:—"It cured my wife of Chronic Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint after Doctor upon Doctor had failed to even temporarily relieve her. Every family should use the Doctor's Bitters."

STOMACH ACHES.—We all know what it is; we acquire a perfect knowledge of "Pain-Expeller" in our youth, after a raid on the green apples we were expressly forbidden to touch. Our mother gave us Perry Davis' Pain-Killer then and strange to say, no other remedy has been discovered to this day to equal it.

GENERAL GOUKO, in his report to the Czar on the condition of Poland, says all classes of society are animated with hatred of Russia. He says the abolition of the Polish nobles and the closing of the Polish theatre at Warsaw.

TWO HUNDRED Dollars Reward.—We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the "Cable" off our Cable Co., and sell them the "Cable" cigars in other boxes, for a two cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, palming them off as genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigars, and place them on the genuine "Cable" cigars in imported boxes, and sell them for a (15c) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a nasty dry, imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c) ten cents for our (5c) "Cable" cigars, and (15c) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c) cigars; as we are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars, who do not belong to it.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them. Four first prize medals in competition with the world; Paris, 1867, Centennial, 1876; Montreal, 1868-1868.

A Verdict of Wilful Murder.—Coroner Johnston and a jury considered the inquest touching the death of Maurice Murphy at the morgue on Thursday night. Deceased was found with a bullet in his brain in a ravine back of Rosedale on the morning of June 26. The contents of his pockets were unharmed, but foul play was suspected. Dr. Spencer and Philbrick made a post-mortem examination of the body and told the jury that death, which must have been instantaneous, was caused by a bullet found lodged in the brain. Mr. Burdette of No 7 Berryman street, sister of deceased testified that her brother was a wood chopper. He came to her house on May 20 last. He had $250, which he wished to deposit in a bank. They both went out together but met disappointment and the money was not deposited. She had the money now. On June 24 she found a note written on an envelope in her brother's room which stated that he had gone to the country and would be absent for a few days. Deceased appeared very dull on that day. She never saw him alive again. The writing and spelling resembled some scribbling on a couple of pieces of birch bark which were found near the body of deceased. The jury acquitted the theory of suicide and returned a verdict of wilful murder against unknown parties.—Toronto World.

SLAUGHTERED BY INDIANS.

Four Hundred Mexicans Killed in a Single Battle.

TUCSON, Ariz., July 2.—A correspondent who has just returned from Sonora confirms the death of Gen. Garcia, commander of the Mexican forces, in a recent battle with the Yagui Indians, and the killing of four hundred Mexicans. No details are given. The Yaguis repeatedly defeat the soldiers, but the Mexican officials suppress the facts. The Sonora hospitals are full of wounded soldiers. The Yaguis bring one or two volleys charge the troops and use short clubs. The majority of the people of Sonora are said to be in sympathy with the Indians. The last victory sustained by the Mexicans at a battle previous to the one in which General Garcia was killed, are attributed to treachery on the part of Gen. Carbo. Gen. Carbo commanded the left wing of the army, Tepic, the centre, and Gen. Carbo the right. Gen. Carbo had arranged for a simultaneous attack at a certain time agreed upon. Gen. Garcia commanded, but Gen. Carbo ordered the troops to join him and held them back. The consequence was that Gen. Tepic's division was almost annihilated. When Tepic returned to camp he attempted to kill Carbo, but was prevented by the soldiers.

Business Rivalry

It is unquestionably a good thing for the general buyer. It is not only keeps prices where they belong, but leads to greater care in the selection of goods. It is a fact, however, that a business house must be constantly on the lookout for what others are doing in order to keep its place in the public esteem.

A much safer plan is to do the very best for the customers at the first. Keep to this rule, and do not depart from it in a single instance.

We speak from experience, since this is the rule in the case of T. DOLAN & COY. As we are not likely to depart from a rule that has proven so successful, you can rest assured that when we ask your attention to the Summer Goods Stock, it is a stock of excellent value.

Floods in Kansas.
NEOSHO FALLS, Kan., July 4.—The river has risen steadily for the past twenty-four hours and is still rising. It now flows in a steady current through the main street. All the east part of the city is under water. In the bottom the crops are all gone and most of the stock drowned. So far as known, no lives are lost, though many families have been driven to the second stories of their dwellings and the floors of the business houses situated on the main street are covered from one to five inches. The water is about twenty inches in the main street in front of the postoffice. All dwellings in the northeast corner of the city moved out during the night. The rising of guns, ringing of bells, etc., have been heard up the river, and are entertained for the safety of some families. All available boats are out rescuing them, but the rise was so sudden that nearly all the boats drifted away on the morning of the 4th. A Leroy, Kansas, special says all harvest wheat has been swept away. Much live stock was drowned, and the loss will be very heavy.

The Washington Treaty.
WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a circular to collectors of customs in regard to the termination of certain articles of the treaty of Washington, through which Article 844 of the customs regulations of 1884 will cease to be in force from and after this date. Collectors are notified that shipments of merchandise in transit from one port or place within the territory of the United States to another by a route a part of which is by land carriage through the Dominion of Canada, and part by the great lakes and rivers connecting the same, or by the River St. Lawrence, in either British or American vessels, from ports on the southern frontier of the United States to ports on the Canadian frontier for transshipment to railway cars, and from points on the Canadian frontier at the terminal of railway transportation to ports on the southern frontier of the United States, will hereafter be treated in all respects as ordinary importations from foreign contiguous territory.

Struck by Lightning.
STOOFVILLE, July 4.—About four o'clock this afternoon Henry Hangle and George Cline were hoeing corn at D. B. Hoker's farm on the 6th concession of Markham. Mr. Hoker seeing a thunder storm approaching left his men and went to the stable some 60 rods distant, taking his horse. About five minutes later there was a flash of lightning, and Mr. Hoker saw the two men fall motionless. On going to them Hangle presented a terrible sight. His hair was completely burned off his head, his clothes and boots torn to shreds and burning. The horse which he had been riding was broken and thrown some distance. Death must have been instantaneous. Cline lay about six feet from Hangle considerably stunned, but in about five minutes was able to get up and walk to the house. Dr. Sangster was summoned, and pronounced Cline in a critical condition. Hangle was in the prime of life, and leaves a wife and three children.

A Badly Wounded Burglar.
OTTAWA, July 4.—A mysterious robbery occurred at the Geological Museum last night. In one of the cases containing models, etc., was an immensely large nugget, labelled "Austrian gold, value, $15,000." This formed one of the chief attractions in the eyes of the crowd who visited the museum on Dominion Day. This morning it was discovered that the nugget was missing. The locks had been carefully cut out of the case, and some of the precious contents of the case gained thereby. It now turns out that the enterprising burglar had his labour for his pains, as the supposed nugget was merely a junk of plaster of Paris neatly gilded over, and was got up as a facsimile of a celebrated nugget found some years ago in Australia.

THE LATE COL. A. T. H. WILLIAMS

THIS news of the death of Col. Williams, from brain fever, near Fort Pitt, was received with general regret at Peterborough, where he is so well known, and highly esteemed. This interest had been increased by the fact that Col. Williams, as colonel of the Midland Battalion, which has covered itself with glory by its part in the Northwest operations, was in command of the volunteers from Peterborough.

Being in the prime of life, it might have been hoped that he would have been spared for many more years of usefulness. Col. Arthur Trefusius Hangle Williams was born at Penryn Park, Port Hope, in 1837, being the son of John T. Williams, a Commander in the Royal Navy, who served on the lakes in 1812-15 and subsequently represented Durham in the Canadian Legislature. Col. Williams was an enthusiastic volunteer and was in command of the 46th Regiment, in which position he was ever ready for service. He volunteered to raise a corps to serve in the Sudan, but this offer not being accepted on the outbreak of the rebellion in the Northwest, he solicited and obtained permission to form a battalion from the volunteers of this district. How he did so, and how bravely he led these brave men in the foremost ranks of the operations against the rebels is known to all our readers. The death of their commander will throw a gloom over the projected reception of the gallant Midland.

Col. Williams did not confine his service to the country to the sword. For many years he has represented East Durham, at first in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, and subsequently in the House of Commons of Canada, and though a constant supporter of the Conservative policy, he was able to gain the esteem and friendship even of his political opponents.

In many other ways Col. Williams will be greatly missed, especially in Port Hope, where he was always ready to aid in any good object. Col. Williams married a daughter of the Hon. B. Seymour, but she died several years ago. If, as we believe, report speaks truly that he was intending to be married shortly after his return from duty, there is another element to intensify the melancholy of his loss.

If you want a remnant of Cashmere or Fine Dress Goods, you can buy it cheap at Turnbull's during his clearing sale.

PETERBOROUGH BUSINESS COLLEGE.

A New Institution in Our Town—Arrival of the Principal—His Appreciation in Ottawa.

Professor Bannell Sawyer has now arrived in town and is preparing to open the Peterborough Business College on Hunter street, next Monday, July 13th, at 9 o'clock, a.m. All the necessary operations are being pushed forward, the spacious rooms are being re-arranged and newly furnished with the requisite furniture, apparatus and machinery for a first class commercial college. Mr. Sawyer seems to be determined to make it the best business college in the Dominion, and is entering on the work with great zeal and enthusiasm. On leaving Ottawa, where he was long connected with the Normal School, Mr. Sawyer was presented with a picture containing the photos of 93 out of the 95 student teachers, framed in an elegant massive gilt frame. The staff of the Normal and Model Schools presented him with a very handsome silver pitcher and tray, with the following inscription:—

"A parting gift from the Normal and Model School staff to Mr. Bannell Sawyer, Ottawa, June 24th, 1885."

Mr. McCabe, the principal of the Normal School, delivered an address.

Mr. Sawyer responded in a felicitous manner. It is evident that Professor Bannell Sawyer is an acquisition to our town, and we may look to see the Peterborough Business College one of our most flourishing institutions.

WESTWOOD.

THE W. C. T. U. of this place was organized in April, 1885. Our meetings are opened by reading the scriptures, singing and prayer. Our last spiritual exercise was "Christian Love," our next will be "Trust in the Lord." Twelve became members at the first meeting, and since then our membership has increased to nineteen, with an average attendance of eight at our regular meetings. We have received and distributed a number of temperance leaflets and tracts. Although our efforts seem weak, by the help of our Heavenly Father we will persevere and do what we can to uphold this good and noble cause. Our time is so precious we must not delay; for swiftly the moments are passing away. This life is soon over, it is but a span; then let us determine to do what we can.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.

As length the Franchise Bill has passed the House of Commons. It is a most liberal measure, adding largely to the electorate, while carrying out the arrangement at Confederation that the Dominion should regulate its own franchise, as is only proper and reasonable.

That the measure should thus have been passed in the popular House by the votes of the great majority of the constitutional representatives of the people, shows how utterly unjustifiable was the obstruction by which, though it could not be defeated, the bill, with the other public business of the country, was so long delayed. It has been said that the fact that the bill, as introduced, has been amended is a sufficient justification of the obstruction, but this pretence is groundless. There have been amendments, but no more than is usually the case with measures of the same length and amount of detail, and none of them affected the principles of the bill, though rendering it more liberal and more easy to work. The amendments, too, come from the Conservatives, being either such as were suggested by Conservative journals, the REVIEW among the number, or such as were adopted at meetings of the Conservative members, and were announced by the Ministers.

The bill would undoubtedly have been simplified, and might have been preferable, if it had gone a little further and had provided for manhood suffrage. But apparently the Dominion as a whole was not ripe for this. In our own Province, the most popular and foremost, we know that the Reformers fully refused to allow manhood suffrage, when proposed by Mr. Meredith and his Conservative supporters. In the Province of Quebec, the almost universal feeling is against manhood suffrage, and it may be pointed out that two Quebec Conservatives voted even against the present bill as extending the franchise too widely in their opinion. It is no true statesmanship to push on reforms faster than public opinion will support them.

As to the two points at which criticism of the bill was chiefly aimed, they did not prove to be vulnerable. That the grant of the franchise to the civilized, industrious Indians of the older provinces was not fairly assailable, was proved by the fact that those who feared the majority of them would vote Conservative, were driven to the false assertion that it was intended to enfranchise the wild Indians of the plains.

As to the appointment of revising officers to deal with the lists prepared by the municipal assessors, we believe that in most cases the county judges will continue to act as they do now. And where they do not accept the office we have sufficient confidence from experience in the present administration and their judicial appointments, to feel assured that sitting elections will be made. For Dominion elections we will have no Apjohns appointed to decide who shall vote or not, in spite of Mr. Mowat's bad example in Alberta.

The Franchise Bill is in fact an excellent measure that will be well appreciated by the country, and especially by the multitudes of new voters who will receive the franchise through its provision. Sir John Macdonald has by this wide Dominion franchise, taken another step for the consolidation of this great country, which owes its union to him more than to any other man. He has at the same time given fresh proofs that he and his supporters are the real Reformers, the true Liberals of Canada.

SPENDING'S BAY AGAIN.
To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR.—No one will be surprised that the above subject should come up again, as it has many years before. That Spending's Bay is a nuisance to some living in the vicinity, no one will question for a moment, but such lota around there have been bought cheap by parties on that account. But this I will not forward as a plea that such a nuisance should be tolerated any longer, having referred to it some time ago in letters to the Peterborough REVIEW as a pest hole effecting the health of the town. The giving away of Spending's Bay to anyone willing to undertake to fill it in, I do not think anyone will have any objection to, but the granting of $5,000, with an exemption from taxes for ten years, according to Mr. Cahill's idea in promoting health, is rather novel to my mind, and I must seriously ask him, since when has he become a convert in promoting health, if he does not in this case want to appear as a sectional councillor? A year ago, when I presented to the Council a very numerous signed petition, setting forth the necessity for the construction of a sewer system, the answer, without any consideration, Mr. Cahill made was, "Where is the money to come from?" Now, Mr. Cahill, where is the money to come from now for the filling in of Spending's Bay? If Mr. Cahill is a representative for the town, and not a sectional councillor, then he should have shown more consideration for that petition referred to, as it represented ratepayers who yearly pay heavy taxes, and have their just claims as well as the South Ward. I think this system of doing the town's business has gone on long enough, to the injury of many, and if this plan of business is adopted in a sectional way, let it be known and properly acted on, each ward paying for its own improvements, and I have no doubt the Second Ward will have all that is desired to be ratepayers now, and all the wrangling about electric light, gas, sewer, water for fire protection, and constabulary, all of which has given no end of trouble, will be done away with.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor,
Yours,
WM. LECH.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

CIVIL SERVICE VOLUNTEERS.
FRIDAY, July 3.—Sir John Macdonald, in reply to Mr. Edgar, said the whole question of recompensing civil servants who were serving with the Northwest force, was under consideration.

THE MILITIA ACT.
Mr. CARON moved the second reading of the Bill to increase the standing force from 750 to 1,000 men.

Mr. BLAKE objected and preferred volunteer corps in the Northwest.

The second reading was carried and the Bill was referred to Committee.

THE MANITOBA ARRANGEMENT.
The bill to carry out the arrangement with Manitoba was read a second time and adopted in committee after a long discussion by the Reformers on the nature of swamp lands.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION.
Mr. CHAPLEAU moved the second reading of the Bill to restrict Chinese immigration, and in committee he proposed an amendment for the Bill to come into force in one month from passing as regards Chinese immigrants from the United States and in six months for immigrants from China.

THE FRANCHISE BILL.
Sir J. MACDONALD moved further consideration of the Franchise Bill and proposed some minor amendments the chief being that assessment of $300 in cities and $200 in towns should be prime facie evidence of the right to vote.

Mr. MURPHY moved an amendment inflicting penalties on an Indian agent who should induce an Indian fraudulently to register himself as a voter, and the amendment was accepted.

Mr. CHARLTON moved for each Province to regulate the franchise.

The amendment was negatived by 96 to 57.

Mr. JARVIS moved that in Prince Edward Island and British Columbia manhood suffrage should prevail for those now voters.

Sir JOHN MACDONALD said he would accept the amendment, as it would make very little difference, nearly all being already enfranchised.

Several amendments were moved to adopt local franchises in the other Provinces, but they were all negatived.

The main amendment was then carried by 14 to 17.

The amendment was passed through committee.

On concurrence a number of Opposition amendments were moved, but they only covered the old ground, and they were all negatived by more than two to one.

Sir JOHN MACDONALD moved the third reading.

Mr. MILLIS moved the six months' hiatus, which was negatived by 58 to 37, two Quebec Conservatives voting with the Opposition.

The Bill was read a third time and passed amid loud applause.

LORD AND LADY SALISBURY.

The Courtship and Marriage of the Present Premier of England.

One gray morning in the mid-afternoon of 28 years ago there was a wedding in the little chapel at Ald-Hill, Berke. All London knew the bride. For three years the beautiful belle of Westminster, for three years the beautiful belle of society, Georgina Alderson was the brightest and fairest of the ladies of the court. But she was a coquette, and had drawn many lovers by the siren charm so well discovered by wit and blue eyes and sunny hair. Many a woe had been wrought in vain, for the daughter of Sir Edward Hall Alderson was an heiress as well as a beauty and estate of land in the finest setting that estate of beauty could demand. Of some of the most noble and illustrious of the nobles of the most coveted honors of royalty, and not once or twice the lady might have married well had she not had an adviser who knew men as men deserve to be known. Miss Opie, the celebrated niece of society of ten or fifteen years before, was Georgina Alderson's aunt or chaperone, and Miss Opie knew better than most other women of the time how to distinguish between heart and pretence. She had kept the mother from her niece, but while she was seeking an ideally eligible man her charge had given her hand to Robert Cecil.

Miss Opie was dismayed. Cecil was not a man after her liking. Though the son of an earl he was a younger son, and anything but popular with his family. There had been a quarrel and a estrangement, and to the lady's mind the family at Hatfield house, he had to earn his own living. Beginning as a journalist, he had shown marked ability till he was a regular contributor to the Quarterly. For three years he had been in parliament for Stamford, where he continued to sit for fifteen years to come, but where he made no consequential mark, it was no wonder that Miss Opie was displeased with the match. With but few redeeming qualities socially, the young man was at best a bookworm and so serious and quiet that he was esteemed dull. But the niece had felt the brain of the girl, and though nine or ten thought, as did the aunt, the nine and the aunt came to witness the ceremony.

It was a matter of fact wedding, as English country side weddings are apt to be. There was the gay company filling the chapel, and the white ribbon that kept the common herd of acquaintance from the chosen many of the family. There was at 10 the soft tones of the wedding march from Lohengrin, the quarters of able bodied ushers paving the central aisle and parting the sitting barrier. There were two little girls standing with white flowers from their aprons, and four bridesmaids behind them. There was the bride on her father's arm with the Queen's coronet on her hand. There were the groom meeting them at the church door. There was the ceremony and the blessing and the congratulations.—London Letter.

CHICAGO DRIVERS STRIKE.

Attempts to Run the Street Cars—Brutal Attack on the Police.

CHICAGO, July 3.—At six o'clock this morning the West Division Street Railway Company started a few cars from their barns. About a block from the starting point their progress was prevented by lumber and gas pipes lying on the track. The police cleared the barricade away and unhesitatingly guarded the line in strong force. At eight o'clock the cars reached Second Avenue. At Morris avenue the drivers or their sympathizers had gained access to a lot of shovels used by the Gas Company, and piled a huge bank of dirt on the track. The police captain asked the gas men for their shovels, and on their replying that the foreman had locked them up, it is stated the police commenced using their clubs on the car works' employees. Several men were terribly beaten, some of their heads split open. At 1.30 the street cars made a third trip without molestation. The crowds were so dense and the excitement appeared to have in measure subsided. Nobody but policemen, however, were riding on the cars. Many arrests have been made of leading strikers who were inciting others to acts of violence. Quite a number of persons have been injured by the strikers and the police.

This evening the West Division Street Gas Company has taken all its cars from the track, and it is announced will make no further effort to run them before Monday. The company has taken this action, it is understood, in view of the fact to-morrow being a holiday the streets will be crowded with people, making the consequences of a possible riot so much more serious, and the greatly augmented number of idle sympathizers tending to a likelihood of a disturbance. The cars having been withdrawn all is quiet and no further disturbance is anticipated for to-night.

AN IRONCLAD OF TO-DAY.

The Terribly Fugacious Appearance of the Katigue Craft.

The London News gives this interesting description of a modern war vessel: "Perhaps the most remarkable of all the ships reported to be about to take part in these naval exercises is the Polphemus. She has lately been lying in dock at Portsmouth, and a better view of her has been obtainable than in the case when she is at sea. Afloat all but a small part of the ship is under water, and some of the most interesting features of the vessel cannot be seen. She is after the fashion of the notorious 'cigar ship,' and her lines, as seen in dry-dock, are graceful and even beautiful. The most important feature of the unique craft is a terribly pugacious looking sort of beak or spur projecting twelve feet out in front of the main body of the vessel. This lies low down, and is so placed that when rammed against an enemy it will rip into the unlucky craft several feet below the armor line. It is of enormous strength. Strong as it is, however, this steel spur can be unshipped and taken off the stem if desired, and beneath it is a torpedo port from which Whiteheads can be ejected right ahead of the ship, and there are also ports from which those destructive messengers may be also dispatched on the broadside. These and the ram are indeed substantially the whole of the offensive armament of the vessel. It has a few machine guns on the hurricane deck for the special reception of any torpedo boat that may presume to approach, but these are minor features. No opportunity has yet been had of trying the power of this singular vessel; but she would, no doubt, be a very ugly antagonist indeed, though not much to look at at sea. When afloat she is little more than a huge steel cylinder, lying on its side, and presenting to view about four feet six inches of the actual hull. The cylinder is tapered at the ends and flattened at the top, and on this flattened top there are a hurricane deck, a signal mast, a funnel and a few other objects of not vital importance to the safety of the craft. All that can be seen is not a bit of the world like any sort of ship, and if it were all shot away, everything in the way of engine, boiler, torpedoes and ram would still remain, and there would be nothing to fire at but a convex lump of steel armor, off which the most tremendous trail of shot and shell would glance with very little power of mischief. Should the Polphemus be attacked underneath, she is a perfect honeycomb of watertight compartments. Every boiler has a compartment to itself, and so has each pair of engines driving the twin screws. The ship has two bottoms, and many of the compartments are ordinarily so packed with coal that there would not be much room for water even if they were broken into. But should any accident occur by which the buoyancy of the ship was seriously diminished, the Polphemus possesses a remarkable power of expelling her load, so to speak. She has, in fact, two keels with a space of a foot and a half or two feet between them, and in this space huge masses of iron are held suspended by a simple and ingenious mechanical device. Although the ship carries 300 tons of this ballast, and it is in sections, so that, should any one compartment of the hold need to be instantly dropped, it can be so done. If the whole center of the keel may thus be let go, and the ship lightened to an extent representing a weight of a foot or fourteen inches out of water. The ballast represents a ninth of the entire weight of the ship.

Daily Evening Review

TUESDAY, JULY 7, 1885.

A LITTLE TRICE.

SOME of the Reform journals, following the lead of the Globe, have stated that the Dominion Parliament adjourned "in honor of the fourth of July," which is a willful misrepresentation. If the Dominion House of Commons did adjourn on that day in order to celebrate the anniversary of the declaration of independence by the United States, it would be an insult to Great Britain and to our own country, and the Reformers in the House would be as guilty as the Conservatives. The fact is, that the fourth of July was Saturday, and the House does not usually assemble on Saturday. During a part of this long session the House did meet on some Saturdays, but as the business was getting well forward, on account of the Opposition having ceased to be so obstructive, and the House having sat until nearly 2 o'clock on Saturday morning, it did not meet again that day. The misrepresentation is a contemptible one that can do nothing to the Conservative party, as a party, but if these silly statements, intended to mislead, are believed outside of Canada, what an opinion people in England and elsewhere would have of us and our loyalty. Perhaps those papers expected that their statements would do Canada harm in England, and published them in pursuance of the same policy which led them to falsely attack the credit of the Dominion while a loan was being negotiated.

A FRAUDULENT ELECTION.

A SHORT time ago we called attention to the disgraceful way that Mr. Mowat had rewarded Agents for their lawlessness and fraudulent conduct by giving him as an office. We learn from the Fort Arthur Sentinel that there is even worse than this. This fraud who has fallen under the lash of the law for swindling qualified voters out of their franchise, was actually appointed a deputy returning officer at the recent election in Algoma, and again repeated his outrages by the return to select a number of Conservative electors to vote. And he will probably escape punishment this time, for it will be remembered that Mr. Mowat and his followers legislated last session to shield their base tools from the consequences of such crimes, giving them power to refuse or accept votes at their own good pleasure. According to the devoted servants of these made unscrupulous use of this power to serve their party by disfranchising Conservatives. And these are the people who pretend to be indignant at the Dominion Franchise Bill.

In order if possible to convey a false impression as to the sympathies with the North-west rebels, the Globe falsely asserts that Jackson has always been a Conservative. This is a most unjustifiable invention. It appears, according to the most authentic information, that not only the rebel Jackson, but the other members of the family, have not only in the Northwest, but also as residents of this Province, always been noted as Reformers and as very strong partisans. The further statement made by the Globe that the other local sympathizers with the rebels were chiefly Conservatives is equally mendacious. We have the personal assurances of residents on the spot that the very contrary is the fact—that the insurrection was fomented by the local Reformers, who only deserted their dupes when there was danger ahead.

A SIX-YEAR OLD MURDERER.

He Plays Funeral and Kills an Infant Brother to Make It Heir.

WINSON, N. C., July 4.—Willie Sims, a six-year-old son of a farmer living near here, yesterday murdered his infant brother, of whom he had been given charge. Some time ago he was taken to a child's burial and manifested great interest in its burial, which he did not seem to understand. He was frequently prattled about it and asked many questions as to how the child got into the coffin and when it would come out. To-day he took his little brother to the cemetery which was near his father's home, and after scooping out a grave in the mud by a small brook, he placed the little infant in a box, which he had previously carried there, nailed down the top and buried it going through the form of delivering a prayer and singing a hymn. After he had filled the tiny grave, he stamped on it and slowly went back home and told his mother of his deed, of which he seemed very proud. He said it "was just like Mrs. Arthur's little baby's funeral." The terrified mother hastened to the spot, the grave was reopened and the infant found dead, with its right arm broken and skull crushed.

DISTRESSING FIRE.

Many Lives Lost in Steam—Heavy Six Teams and Houses Burned in Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 6.—Bangkok, Siam, and other property was burned on May 12, involving a loss of $300,000. A number of lives were lost. Nine bodies have been recovered, and more are believed to be buried in the debris. A conflagration which occurred on the 20th May at Bangkok, Japan, was of exceptional magnitude, destroying 5,917 houses. No estimate of the loss is given.

Fast Railway Time.

New York, July 4.—The experimental newspaper train that left Hunter's Point, Long Island, this morning ran to Greenport, L.I., a distance of 94 miles, in one hour forty-three minutes, or at an average speed of a mile in about a minute and five seconds. The train made no stop between the starting point and its destination. As Greenport the newspapers were transferred to a steamer and conveyed to Newport, R.I. The same train will be run every Sunday.

Sixteen Thousand Dollars Burned By.

LITTLE, Ont., July 5.—J. Strachan's grain and saw mills and about 7000 or 8000 bushels wheat and 200,000 feet of lumber and 300 cords of pine wood and slabs were destroyed by the fire last night. The total loss is estimated to be about $175,000 insurance on buildings and lumber $4000.

Ferdinand de Lesseps.

Some Anecdotes of the Great French Engineer.

A few typical anecdotes that have reached me relative to M. Ferdinand de Lesseps may, I fancy, be appropriately given in your pages now that the celebrated engineer has just been received into the French Academy. It is recorded of him that he is as active and lively as a man of forty years, although he has reached the almost patriarchal age of eighty. It is only some six months ago that I saw him in the Rue Royal, Paris, quite close to his residence in the Rue St. Florentin. He was walking briskly along the asphalt—a bevy of seven or eight children pattering around him. The children, boys and girls, varying from six to fourteen years of age, were all his own and bore a remarkable resemblance to each other. They were a very interesting group, and had the bright eyes and slightly olive tinted features of the half European, half Arab. The father was chatting away merrily with the youngsters as he passed along. Ever and anon the bystanders would gather in knots and inform inquisitive provincials that "Le Grand Français," as he is affectionately called, "Ferdinand de Lesseps," and his children were walking by." Every Parisian is as familiar with the Lesseps features as with Hugo's, and never fails to greet both with the profound respect on every possible occasion. One of the frequent sights to be met with in a promenade through the Bois de Boulogne is that of the casual man-impulsor in chief and his numerous progeny riding on ponies along the beautiful avenues of that fashionable retreat. When I saw him on the occasion already referred to I could detect the elasticity of youth in his step, as well as gestures. His features, nevertheless, bore the unmistakable marks and ravages of time. In fact, I must state that I have rarely met a face and more particularly a brow, with which the phyllography of age and death so rudely. The wrinkles were deep and rugged though they appear, were not, however, in the eyes of any latent observer, signs of decrepitude or decay; he is rather like the old and grizzled oak tree, that has stood and vigour, defying alike the blasts of winter and the snows of age. On one occasion, not very long ago, when one of his admirers was alluding to his presence to his extraordinary career as an engineer, De Lesseps exclaimed: "Ah, bah! don't talk of it—it's nothing to my career as a gourmet, an after dinner orator, or a lover. I'm fond of figures and facts," he added, and I'll prove to you that I have come to fame in that respect. I have up to the present assisted at—approximately speaking—three thousand banquets, have returned twenty-five hundred votes of thanks, and have seen altogether upward of half a million champagne bottles uncorked in my greater honour and glory."

On the eve of the day when the Suez canal was to be officially inaugurated the emperor gave a magnificent ball to fête the occasion. The Lesseps led the first dance with the Empress, and as he was waiting around the room with the sovereign a pale featured and apparently horror-stricken individual presented himself at the door flanking a telegram in his hand, and looking anxious at the great engineer in the most plausible fashion. De Lesseps saw the man, and knew by his attitude that he must have some important and alarming news to tell him. He would not, however, even in such a crisis, be disturbed enough to interrupt the dance. His features remained as impassive as ever, and gently whispering the Empress along on the light fantastic toe, he had come within a yard of the door, he whispered: "The arrival: 'What has happened?'" "Oh, a terrible misfortune," was the reply. "A ship has just sunk in the mouth of the canal, and is losing the passage." "Butler has just informed me," he observed De Lesseps, as he slipped, recounted his partner over the polished mosaic continuing the waltz to the end, just as if nothing had happened.

PACIFIC COAST SEA LIONS.

How They are Captured—The Harm They Do to Man.

Ten or twelve years ago an act was passed by the legislature making it a misdemeanor to kill sea lions anywhere within a one-mile radius of Seal rock, and ever since that time the sea lion has been regarded as a privileged character. Five or six years ago the fish industry began to assume important dimensions; it was then that canneries began to loom up, and in the course of three years following grew to really gigantic proportions. Firms in this city engaged in furnishing supplies of all descriptions to fishing outfits did an immense business, and the outlook became as promising as that of any industry on the coast. Soon, however, the sea lion nuisance manifested itself, and at the present time the fish industry in and around San Francisco bay is nearly paralyzed.

The sea lion is a lover of luxury, which doubtless tends to eat species of animal life a place to lounge on the sunny side of some ragged cliff and plenty to eat provided by somebody else. During the day the animals are always seen in great numbers floundering about the rocks near the Cliff house, but toward night they disappear and in immense bands flock into the bay through the entrance at the Golden Gate. The fishermen usually start out about 4 o'clock in the afternoon to set their nets, and do the greater part of their work between that hour and midnight. The sea lions seem to have understood the processes of the fishermen and evidently wait for their approach. When a net is laid these intelligent creatures crawl into the presence known by a low grunt and blowing noise along the surface of the water, and in an incredibly short space of time dozens and hundreds of companions appear. They rush at the nets, seize the fish, tear them loose from the meshes, and devour them with the rapidity of machines. If the band happens to be few in numbers, they are equal to the consumption of all the fish in the nets which they attack, they will tear the fish out and play with them, throwing them, sometimes, many feet in the air and otherwise destroy the game of the fisherman, so that it is not an uncommon occurrence for the hungry tollers of the bay to lift 150 fathoms of net without securing a single fish. The lions can be seen almost at any time chasing up and down before the nets in great numbers, tearing the meshes, breaking the cords, and doing a vast deal of damage aside from destroying the fish, and are as lawless in this riotous work that they will approach within a few feet of the fisherman's boat.

Trade in the merchandise of fishing outfits has been reduced to considerably less than one third of what it was two years ago, and the Italian, Portuguese, and others engaged in supplying the local fish markets, instead of making it a paying enterprise, are reduced in many instances to actual want. A man was informed on the fishing industry stated that the various canneries here and elsewhere are not doing a business of $1000 now, where two years ago $500 would not cover it.

The ravages of the sea lion are not confined to any one branch of destruction, but to all kinds of fishing done with nets, and they display a remarkable intelligence in hunting up the hearts of the fisherman and being on hand when the nets are set. Along the wharves and sheds monopolized by the fishermen may be seen great piles of unused nets and other equipments, and the principal demand at the houses dealing in supplies is for occasional small quantities of twine or rope for repairing. —San Francisco Chronicle.

Boiler Explosion at East Boston.

A boiler used for a hoisting engine was blown into the air at the wharf of the national Dock and Warehouse Company, East Boston, Tuesday. The boiler was close by the ship Agenor, where it had been placed to unload a lot of sugar consigned to K. Williams, of State street. The engineer said after the explosion that he had only 120 pounds of steam pressure at the time of the explosion, which was twenty pounds less than the boiler usually carried. When the explosion occurred, the boiler was seen shooting into the main rigging of the Agenor, and then striking the main rigging on the port side, it fell on the wharf again about four feet from the edge and twenty feet from its original position. When the boiler exploded it sent large pieces of iron flying in all directions. Several persons were injured.

Leather Belt Cement.

An ordinary cement for this purpose is wheat flour boiled in oil of turpentine; but the ends must be secured by rivets or it is not reliable. A better cement is made by soaking six ounces best glue in one pint of ale, then boil, add one and a half ounces of boiled linseed oil and stir well. Another prescription is to take dissolved glue in the form of the cabinetmakers use it, and add tannic acid till creamy and rosy. Make the leather surfaces to be united rough, apply the cement hot, let it cool and dry under pressure, and it will not need riveting. For rubber belting take pure rubber in thin slices, two ounces, dissolve in one pound of bisulphide of carbon. This is a good cement, but it kept thickens very soon. In order to prevent this add a solution of pure rubber, resin, and turpentine.

Brownness in the Day-time.

unless caused by lack of sleep or from over-eating, is a symptom of disease. If it be accompanied by general debility, headache, loss of appetite, constipated tongue, and sallow complexion, you may be sure that you are suffering from biliousness and consequent derangement of the stomach and bowels. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pills" are a sure cure for all ailments of this nature. They cleanse and purify the blood and relieve the digestive organs.

GENERAL GORDON.

At the annual convocation of the University of Trinity College, Mr. W. J. Rogers, B. A., son of Col. H. C. Rogers, read the following admirable paper, his effort being received with much applause:

"And I heard sounds of insult, shame and war."
And trumpet blown for war.—Thou hast set on the page of fate, to earth bequeathed thy men of mighty deeds, whose time began, a standard now the story of a life who breathed but for his fellow-man.

Of him, on whom throughout a breathless year,
Turned in a fierce suspense, a race's eyes beheld the setting of that fair career
Of restless courage, of a heart that never came,
When after lurid scenes of shifting light,
Deeds wrought for men that in man's heart
A bright and wandering star was lost in night,
The warrior's eye came.

As black the loudest cloud of Arab lay
Around, and compassed with a seething strife
The city of the desert far away,
Which set upon his life the strife.

When he, the hero of his time—the great Shut up alone to meet undreaded doom,
Had cried for help, and grasped with the fate
Which set upon his life the strife.

Had passed in hope across the Libyan sands,
And waited for the help which never came;
Where, 'neath the Libyan sun, the land exposed like a gulf of flame;

The land which, in the sand of ages past,
Whole armies had engaged, not left a trace;
Till waving trust turned from him at last,
Trembling look his life the strife.

By trenchery he fell, who ever led
The lowly steps and heard the agonized
Wail; yet moving to the larger tread
Of human destiny.

Who, warping often, under many climes,
Bore, in the lines of trench, or labour mine,
Or screaming front of fight, a hundred times,
A spirit led the strife.

Where the shell dashes on the rocky square,
Or into fight the surging ranks come
In crimson-splashed pomp, with trumpet's blast
And roll of warlike drum.

Or in the fire-zone of beleaguered towers,
Who first had heard a hostile cannon roll
Where, grey across the black sea waters, flows Iron-bound Hellespont.

Or where the hall of Tel-ping bullets sped
Across the floor of battle, as he came;
The armed army of the East had led To constant victory.

Or where, in fiery-headed, lone Soudan,
He strove the nomad swarms' last to tame,
And slight-headed checked the sale of man
Which formed a whole world of shame.

The furnace glow of central Africa
Furnished to terror, self-concern no claim,
For him who held the hand of man
In singleness of aim.

The mystic who saw dreams, yet with no lack
Of saving power of action, prompt and free,
The art of war—defence, and bold attack,
And brilliant strategy.

Who, through betrayal frequent having known,
By constant treachery still unshaken,
Breathed into men the spirit of their own
Of knightly enterprise.

The loyal, the brave, the patient soul of high Honour, the frank of speech and pure of Unconscious of distinction rendered by
A name he never sought.

Who saved an empire from rebellion's clutch,
Restored to dynasties the shaken reign
Of centuries, in other words of truth
Which would have professed gain.

Who ever against wrong and error strove
In fully tested purpose, by the sea,
Where, all in vain, ambitious nations wave
Of ocean's scourge.

No minister over him slowly shadow throw,
Where martial grief and pomp would lay his
For whom a nation's funeral music rose
In diapason tones.

But where at evening, seen among the old
Dead beauty of the Nile, in dying light,
The slender palm stands against the gold
Of an Egyptian night.

There by the river—home of languid day
And grave of vaulting thought found high Stung by the asp of Egypt's latter day
In unknown grave he lies.

Who here undaunted to that fastening den
The spirit which possesses heroes high—
The race and lineage of mighty men Whose deeds do never die.

And in neglect, or shifting impotence
To play the raven of oppression's hand,
The cautious eye beneath the darkness dense Gloating upon the land.

DIPLOMATIC SCANDAL.

The Foreign Minister to Italy who cheated at cards.

A terrible social scandal has just occurred here, that is probably without precedent in the annals of diplomacy.

For the past three years the Emperor of Brazil has been represented at the court of the King of Italy by his extraordinary minister, M. de Callado, a young and beautiful woman, who had been received in the best society. His finely appointed carriage was admired by the King, and his pleasure party with his intimate friends, M. Wilson—President of the Chamber of Deputies—attended the attention of the "lost Paris" on the boulevards. At Rome he occupied a very large and luxurious "apartment" in the palace of the Minister of the Interior, and at official receptions the Italian Minister appeared with the grand cordon of the grand double dragon.

Like all the heads of diplomatic missions, M. de Callado became an official member of the club De la Caccia, the Italian jockey club. He was very fond of card playing and he seemed generally to be very lucky.

At last a member of the club began to suspect that something was wrong and informed the commissaire des jeux of his suspicions. A few days ago M. de Callado was caught in the very act of cheating at cards. He practiced the pique, that is to say, he increased his stake by actually advancing a chip whenever he won and diminished them by withdrawing a chip whenever he lost. Treachery was the name of the game when this startling discovery was made. M. de Callado turned pale as death, and faintly stammered out a denial, but the twelve gentlemen had all been witnesses of the act. The Minister was told that he must leave the club at once, that he must resign his position as Brazilian Minister at the Italian court, and that forty days would be given him to quit Rome. The twelve gentlemen who had been present at the cheating signed a process verbal, and promised out of sympathy for Madame de Callado, a young and beautiful woman, who had been the charm of Roman society, not to breathe a suspicion of the terrible scandal that had just been discovered.

Unfortunately the King was about to attend the fete at Naples, and a usual the corps diplomatique had been invited to place themselves in the king's suite. One of the twelve gentlemen who had been present at the card cheating was the Count (Gianotti), the king's master of ceremonies, who is married to an American lady. Count Gianotti was unwilling to take the responsibility of allowing his sovereign to be approached by a man guilty of cheating at cards; so after consulting with his eleven colleagues of the De la Caccia Club, it was decided to lay the whole matter before the King. King Humbert was furious, and immediately ordered that the Minister of Brazil should not be invited to the fete. His Majesty also telegraphed all the facts to the Emperor of Brazil, and concluded his despatch by asking that M. de Callado be forthwith replaced.

Don Pedro replied at once by cable to King Humbert's despatch, and also asked M. de Callado to pack up his trunk and leave Italy. King Humbert has already accepted M. Lopes Neto as Brazilian Minister. The master of ceremonies notified M. de Callado that he could not be received by King Humbert, and he could not present his letters of recall nor audience to the King.

The ex-Minister's name has been erased from the list of members of the club, and all the ladies of Roman society have declared their great regret that they can neither receive nor return the visit of his charming young wife.—Rome Cor., New York Telegram.

GOOD ADVICE.

It has been noticed, says a contemporary, that boiler explosions are especially frequent in the morning. Take, for example, an engine which works during the day with steam at six atmospheres. The workmen leave the factory at 7 P. M.; about six o'clock the fireman reduces his fires and leaves the boiler with the gauge at four atmospheres. On returning the next morning at 5.30, he generally finds the gauge at 1.5 or two atmospheres, with a fine water level. He profits by the reserved heat, which represents a certain expenditure of fuel, as an economist he utilizes it and drives his engine to be ready for the return of the workmen, without suspecting the dangers concealed in the water which has been boiling all night. He does not touch his boiler, because there is a good level. In other words, he prepares, unconsciously, the conditions which are most favorable to superheating and a consequent sudden and terrible explosion, which will be attributed to some mysterious and unknown cause. Treves recommends that, before starting the fire in the morning, the fireman should reduce to the water the air which it needs, by injecting it, with the aid of pumps and suitable tubes, into the lower portions of the boiler. As the pressure of the pump indicates a pressure which is superior to that of the remaining steam, all danger is removed; the fire can be driven, ebullition goes on nominally, and explosions become naturally impossible.

STOMACH ACID.—We all know what it is; we acquired a perfect knowledge of the "Pat" in our youth, after a raid on the green grocer's store was expressly forbidden to touch. Our mother gave us Perry Davis' Pain-Killer then and strange to say, no other remedy has been discovered to this day to equal it.

The House of Cecil.

In Lord Salisbury the house of Cecil has achieved the unique distinction of giving three prime ministers to England. Bursleigh, indeed, may fairly be considered as the first layman who ever attained to a position at all comparable to that of a modern premier; and he remained in office for forty consecutive years, during the last twenty six of which he was Lord Treasurer.

The second Cecil held the white staff for four years, having been previously twelve years secretary of state and four years sole secretary. Almost as splendid a fortune was vouchsafed in the eighteenth century to the Pelhams, of whom Henry was First Lord of the Treasury from 1743 till his death in 1754, when his brother Newcastle succeeded him and retained the post (with a break of a few months) for the next eight years. The Duke was also secretary of state for nearly thirty years. But no third Pelham was destined to equal success, though a Duke of Newcastle of our own time, who was no mean political figure, could claim descent from the daughter of Henry. The only other family which has furnished two First Lords of the Treasury since the office acquired its present importance is that of the Grenvilles.

Captain Rimoult.

The unusual spectacle of a third capturing himself has to be recorded. During Thursday night last thieves broke into G. A. Rimoult's hardware store, stole a number of revolvers, cartridges, knives, some loose change, &c. On Sunday morning a young man named Hopman playing with some other boys at Mr. W. Jarvis', Midcoke junction, with revolver, when one of the weapons was accidentally discharged, the ball entering the above named lad's leg below the knee. He was brought to this village to have the wound treated, and after pressure had been brought to bear on him he confessed to the stealing. We understand the wound is not dangerous.—Madoc Review.

Terrible Railroad Accident.

Fort Scott, Kas., July 4.—A terrible railroad accident occurred on the Kansas City, Springfield & Memphis Railway, between Grand and Liberal, about 25 miles south of this city. The heavy rains of the last few days had caused all the streams to swell to an unusual extent, and as a freight train in charge of Conductor Ed. Thompson over a small stream at that point a bridge gave way, and the engine and sixteen cars were precipitated into the water. The conductor was in the engine at the time, and he with the engineer Ross and fireman Reynolds went down with the engine, and all three were drowned.

Water with Lead in it.

Paralysis, colic, gout, rheumatism, kidney disease, blindness and insanity may all come, it seems, from drinking water with lead in it. Under these circumstances, a simple test for discovering the presence of lead in water may well be useful. It consists of adding a little tincture of cochineal, which, if there be the least trace of lead in the water, will color it blue instead of red.

The dear friends of Zion, not willing to be surpassed by any in their generosity towards their retiring minister, but who, from lack of time and opportunity, could not have a public meeting for a formal presentation of an address and purse, nevertheless, through James Gillespie, Esq., their representative, presented me with the handsome sum of $40.00 just before my departure.

For such enlarged Christian liberality I feel most devoutly thankful to God and to the kind friends who so cheerfully gave. May the Divine blessing abundantly rest upon them all. With thanks to you, Mr. Editor, for the privilege of publishing the above,

THE SCOTT ACT.

The Senate Adheres to its Chief Amendment.

On Monday the Senate resolved by a majority of 30 to 15, a non-party vote, to adhere to their amendment as to the Scott Act striking out the penalty clause because penalties were in favour of liquor, wine, &c., on the ground that it was in favour of temperance.

They abandoned some other amendments that had been rejected by the House of Commons.

THANKS.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—Will you kindly allow me the privilege of expressing through your valuable paper my most sincere and hearty thanks to those friends on the Keene circuit who so liberally contributed towards the valuable presents given me on the eve of my departure from among them.

The presents are as follows:—By the kind friends of Villiers the following beautiful address and purse of $30.35, which, together with a special collection as a Christmas present makes $36 donated to me by them, besides their ordinary quarterly contributions to the Circuit Fund.

We separate, but though we may not see your face again in this school room yet we will ever treasure the many sacred truths and words of warning, encouragement and comfort that have fallen from your lips from time to time in this place.

The sincere wish of those who have enjoyed the benefit of your labors here, is that He Who has blessed you with so many excellent gifts of head and heart, and who has so abundantly blessed you in the past may continue to prosper you in the field to which you are about to remove, and that Mrs. Toze and yourself may be long spared to lives of usefulness in your chosen calling.

Signed on behalf of the inhabitants of Villiers,

THE TROOPS RETURNING.

The Winnipeg Cavalry Troop—The Troops held to be at Prince Albert.

WINNIPEG, July 7.—The Winnipeg troop of cavalry under command of Capt. Knight arrived home at an early hour this morning from the Touchwood hills, where they have been stationed since the troubles began. They have gone into camp awaiting the arrival of other troops on Monday, when they expect to be relieved from active service.

THE MIDLAND AT PRINCE ALBERT.

The troops are reported to have reached Prince Albert this evening from Battleford. They will then push on to Grand Rapids where they transfer to steamers now gone from Winnipeg across Lake Winnipeg to meet them. They are expected to arrive at Selkirk on Sunday. The Royal Grenadiers, Queen's Own, Midland and 82nd battalions will take train at that point for Port Arthur, thence direct to Toronto. The 90th will enter Winnipeg on Monday, which is to be proclaimed a public holiday.

THE PRINCE'S COUNSEL.

MONTREAL, July 7.—F. X. Lemieux, M.P.P., was in the city to-day with Jules Tasse, secretary of the Riot defence committee, who has asked J. N. Greenfield of this city to go to the Northwest to act as Mr. Lemieux's counsel, as Mr. Fitzpatrick is unable to go. Mr. Lemieux goes to Regina at his own expense, as Mr. Greenfield will also have to do if he accepts the offer made. The necessary expenses, however, will be amply provided for at a future date. Mr. Lemieux says that he has the fullest confidence that his client will be acquitted, but until he sees the indictment he cannot say what defence will be set up. He understands that there are seven indictments. He will start for Regina from Ottawa to-morrow.

Meeting of Old Fellows.

At Leicester, England, there met last month 2,000 septuagenarians, whose combined ages amounted to about 150,000 years, and each received as a birthday gift a half crown of 1884 coinage. There were about 200 persons over 80 years of age, one centenarian, and one 90 years and 10 months old, who described herself as a "young old girl yet." All septuagenarians 11 or over were visited by the ladies, and received similar gifts.

HOW COL. WILLIAMS DIED.

The Men Express their Grief—The General's Tributes to his Good Qualities.

BATTLEFORD, July 4, via Qu'Appelle, N. W. T., July 7.—There were two deaths on board the steamer this morning almost simultaneously, Col. Williams and Sergt. Valliquet, No. six company, Sixty-Fifth Battalion. The former complained of illness on Sunday at church parade, and imagined he had been the victim of a slight sun stroke. The camping ground at Pitt being damp, he removed on Tuesday to the steamer, where he received attention. He rapidly became worse, and on Thursday became unconscious. Typhoid fever and, one of the physicians supra, inflammation of the brain set in. He never recovered consciousness and at 2.30 this morning passed peacefully away, although death was unexpected. The sudden falling of the man gave way to open expressions of grief, and the sincerest sorrow was manifested on all hands at the loss of the most popular officer of the whole column, not only with his own battalion, but with the whole command. There was the deepest regret felt at the loss of such an officer, who had passed safely through the whole campaign. All the steamers are flying flags at half mast. From Battleford the remains will be sent home via Swift Current and Winnipeg in charge of Capt. Ross and his escort. Sergt. Valliquet died from peritonitis. He was a young man from Montreal, and very popular with his comrades.

GEN. MIDDLETON ON HIS DEATH.

In order to-night appears the following:—The Major General commanding is certain the troops under his command all feel equally with himself the irreparable and heavy loss that has befallen them in the death of Lieut. Colonel Williams, commanding the Midland Regiment, who expired this morning, having succumbed after a short illness, doubtless brought on by the hard work of the late campaign. The gallantry and zeal of the late Colonel Williams in the field was as conspicuous as his kindness of heart and amenity of manner out of it. If living he would have received his rewards; dead his memory will receive all loving honors from the country which he had lived and died for.

COL. WILLIAMS' FUNERAL.

BATTLEFORD, July 5.—The steamer arrived this morning. Col. Williams was buried with military honors, Gen. Middleton, Gen. Strang, Col. Strachan, Col. Middleton, Col. Strang, and others being pall bearers. The body will be exhumed and sent forward to-morrow.—Mid Co.

COL. WILLIAMS AT BATOCHIE.

OTAWA, July 7.—Captain Kirwan, of the North West Transport Service, who was the battle of Batoche, thus speaks of the late Col. Williams' heroic action on that memorable day: "I was detailed to accompany the Colonel in charge, having had some experience in the Franco-Prussian War. At two o'clock we were in, and Col. Williams, after speaking a few encouraging words to the men, led the way with a revolver in one hand and his cap in the other. After ascending through the underbrush, the first rifle was fired and the men gained as only brave hearted men can shoot. 'God save the Queen' and 'Canada our home.' Under a dropping fire from rebel pits, Col. Williams kept pressing on, carrying pit after pit, and exclaiming as he went, 'I am not a coward, I am the opposite side of the river. At one time he, perhaps imprudently, exposed himself, and several rebel bullets came whizzing about his ears. Turning to those around him, he said, 'Without the least evidence of excitement, 'hops, there's devilish bad shots.' He was a lion in the charge, but after the fight I will never forget how kind and gentlemanly he was to the unfortunate women of the village."

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

DECK CASE OF CRIME IN IRELAND.
LONDON, July 7.—In the House of Lords last night, Lord Carnarvon, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, gave statistics of crime in Ireland in recent years, showing and enormous decrease since the passage of the Crimes Act. They trusted that a firm administration of the ordinary law would maintain tranquility.

ENCROACHING ON PERSIA.

TEHRAN, July 7.—The Persian complaint of a continual Russian violation of Persian territory and meddling with Persian affairs. Ten thousand Russians are massed at Akabad. A detachment leaves daily for Sarakhs and is replaced by fresh troops from the Caspian. The movement creates the impression that war is meant.

BRITISH POLITICS.

LONDON, July 7.—The first formal indication of Radical unity towards the present Government was shown last evening in the House of Commons by Sir Wilfrid Lawson. He was giving notice that he would move on Wednesday to refuse to grant to the Government the entire command of the time of the House. When the estimates for diplomatic services come before the House Mr. Labouchere and others will question the Government in regard to the mission of Sir Henry Drummond Wolff. The Government has promised to give an opportunity to discuss the morning papers generally approved Lord Salisbury's statements in the House of Lords last evening. The Times especially praises the statement relating to the Egyptian policy of the Government, which it declares is sound and sagacious.

A LONDON BANK FAILURE.

LONDON, July 7.—Grant & Co., bankers, have suspended. Baron Grant states that the stoppage was caused by lack of capital in a white lead enterprise, which has been at a standstill through parliament's interference in enforcing the use of steam instead of hand labor, to avoid loss of potential saving employees, the change entailing a heavy outlay. They are now unable to realize on the securities to meet the demand, but after a reasonable time to realize assets they expect to show a surplus of £119,082.

THE RUSSIAN PRESS.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 7.—The Russian press comments at considerable length upon the conferring of the decoration of the order of the Bath upon Sir Peter Lushington, and the reported intention of the British Government to send Sir Austin Layard as Ambassador to Turkey, which are considered direct demonstrations against Russia. The Government is urged to demand the strongest guarantees from England with regard to Afghanistan. In well informed circles, however, it is stated that the frontier negotiations continue smoothly on their former basis.

THE CHOLERA IN SPAIN.

MADRID, July 7.—1,700 new cases of cholera and 797 deaths were reported in Spain yesterday.

DILLON IN DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, July 7.—John Dillon arrived here yesterday. A large crowd dragged his carriage to the hotel. A reception was tendered him by the Mayor and prominent Nationalists. Mr. Dillon afterwards addressed the people, promising the full support of the Irish in America. He congratulated the Irish people on having, by the votes of their Home Rulers, struck down a corrupt by the Government. Throughout the speech Mr. Gladstone was strongly alluded to. Earl Spencer's name greeted with groans. Mr. Dillon said he had come from America with the mere intention of transacting private business and not as a candidate for Parliament. Nevertheless as regards that latter contingency he would remain in hands of his friends.

FIGHTING IN ANNAM.

PARIS, July 7.—Latter despatches from Gen. Courcy, the French commander at Hue, says the French lost 60 and the Annamesites 1,600. After the engagement De Courcy occupied the dead, with contained 1,000 guns. He has ordered reinforcements to sent him from Hanoi. The press of Paris, speaking of the attack, insists that a severe and striking punishment be administered to the Annamesites. They also express the belief that the attack was the result of a conspiracy fomented by China. M. DeFreycinet has ordered Gen. Courcy to exact from the Government at Hue immediate reparation. In the Chamber of Deputies to-day telegrams from Gen. Courcy were read by DeFreycinet. It is stated that 30,000 Annamesites attacked the French troops at Hue and burned the straw huts in which the French were quartered. There are 35,000 available French troops in Tonquin. The Annamesites at latest accounts were preparing for another attack on the French. The general expresses his ability to hold out until reinforced. The Chamber of Deputies ratified the Chinese treaty by a large majority. Whether the vote was taken M. DeFreycinet said it completely solved the questions of suzerainty over Annam. The tribute hitherto payable to China would be paid no longer.

THREATENING TROUBLE.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 7.—Advices from the Russian front on the Murghab states that the Afghans are massing on the frontier. This movement leads the Russians to believe that it is the intention of the Afghans to attempt an attack on the Russian forces in order to revenge the defeat of his troops in the battle of Fushid. Sakie advises say that the Sarakhs are also excited as the movements will end in Russian interference should the Afghans go to the length of justifying the Russian in regarding this action as an imminent challenge.

Princess Beatrice's Wedding.

BELLEVILLE, July 6.—The Grand Duke and hereditary Grand Duke of Hesse, Prince Iron, and Alice, Princess Alexandra of Hesse, the Princess of Battenberg and Prince Francis Joseph of Battenberg, will leave Darmstadt on the 15th inst. with Prince Henry of Battenberg to be present at the marriage of the latter to the Princess Beatrice. The Crown Prince Frederick William and his family will also attend the ceremony.

Two Young Men Drowned.

DOVERVILLE, Ont., July 7.—About noon to-day a drowning accident occurred in the Grand river, about a mile above this place. George Robinson, aged 19, and Albert Kasmbe, aged 20, towed a small sail boat down to town and were rowing back when the boat ran upon a stump as in pushing it is upset. Both were drowned. The bodies were recovered three hours afterwards.

SHILOH'S CURE will immediately relieve Croup, Whooping cough and Bronchitis. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, druggists, Peterborough.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

POLITICS CONTRASTED.

The summary: The Liberals increased the public debt $9,000,000 annually; the Conservatives increased it $10,400,000 annually. The Liberals paid 4.95 per cent interest on the debt when they left office; the Conservatives have reduced the rate to 4 per cent. The Liberals were unable to obtain more than 91 for Canadian 4 per cent bonds; the Conservatives have realized that price for a 91 per cent bond and par for 4 per cent. The Liberals increased the debt $3,000,000 above the expenditure on capital account; the Conservatives spent $23,750,000 more upon public works than the Liberals in the debt. And that is a condition of things which the Globe describes as "truly alarming."—Montreal Gazette.

CONSCIENCE MONEY.

The Ontario department has received from the old country a letter enclosing $20 with the memorandum: "Owing to reversal it is possible that the proprietor of the Toronto Globe has concluded to settle for those smuggled books on the instalment plan."—Hamilton Spectator.

IMMIGRATION.

The Buffalo Times copies from the London Advertiser one of Mr. MUI's little romances to the effect that "the Minister of Agriculture informs the House that he continues to continue to aid in bringing out articles to this country, matter what the trades unions might say; and it proceeds to make some excellent reflections thereupon. There is only one shadow upon text and sermon; and that is that the fact is false, and the action consequently mischievous. The Minister of Agriculture informed the House that he should not continue to aid in bringing out articles to this country. The arrangement to aid in bringing out articles to this country was made by Mr. Laidlaw, and was faithfully continued by the Mackenzie government so long as it remained in power. It has been abandoned several years."—Hamilton Spectator.

THE NORTHWEST EDEN.

Every northwestern state and territory appears to have suffered a loss of crops. The garden spot of the world, Manitoba, has alone escaped. Here the crops are fully three weeks in advance of last year, and their appearance cannot be described in too glowing terms.—Winning Times.

A PRONOUNCED SUCCESS.

The Government are to be congratulated on the success of the new loan which appears to be pronounced.—Montreal Witness (Reform).

THE MORMON MONARCHY.

The children of Mormonism do not know that they live in the United States, and believe that the head of the Mormon church is the ruler of the country.—Chicago News.

WHERE LIFE IS CHEAP.

Say what you will there has been no time in this country when human life has been cheaper in the South than at the present, and when there were more vandals, bloody feuds, and murders than within the last three or four years. Kentucky is still entitled to wear the fearful descriptive name of the "dark and bloody ground." A desire to kill really appears to be the controlling force with many, and the Kentuckians evidently regard it as a badge of families or factions as the greatest achievement of life.—Winning Times (N.C. Star).

AIDING RIEL.

When at the beginning of the rebellion the Hamilton Spectator charged that Riel had received not only encouragement from the white Grits, actual aid, Mr. Blake rose in his place in the house and in the Advertiser announced the statement as devoid of truth. All the evidence which has since come to hand on this point shows that Mr. Blake was wrong and the Spectator was right.—Winning Times.

REFRESHING.

It is very refreshing to see the London Advertiser taking Mr. Chaplain to task for the calumnies of his reply to these French Canadians who demand sympathy for the captive "provida." Had Mr. Chaplain replied in kind and given back eight for eight, the Advertiser would have set up an anti-French howl fit to raise the hair on a bald head.—Toronto World (Indep.).

STEAM ENGINEERING.

TRAMP NOTES.

Have just finished five years of "tramping." In that time have come in contact with thousands of stationary engineers. A few of them are capable of filling far better positions than they have. Some, if they could have had the advantages of education, would have engraved their names on the portals of engineering fame. As it is, they are ornaments to their profession. The majority of the men who have charge of the immense steam power of this country, we are sorry to say, are mere machines, laborers, hewers of wood and drawers of water; men who cannot calculate the safe pressure of boilers, or correctly adjust a safety valve,—one of them once told us that a safety valve raised two inches from its seat—they know nothing of the laws of combustion, expansion of steam, in fact nothing regarding their business; they scoff at an engineer who reads, estimating him as a "book engineer," "theorist" and "pavior engineer." With such, it is like casting pearls before swine to argue, but with the "book engineer" it is pleasure; he knows something besides "what he learned in a shop." We often wonder if those "practical engineers" carry into other walks of life their hatred of men who read and call them "book lawyers," "book doctors," "book druggists," "book ministers," etc. We contend that if reading and by reading we mean earnest research, will prepare the lawyer, the doctor, the druggist or the minister for their respective callings, then it will be the engineer, for in our opinion he is called to most grave responsibilities than they. The lawyer may neglect his client, the doctor his patient, the druggist make a mistake in a prescription, the minister neglect the proper word at the proper time, and what is the result? In none of these cases can more than one suffer, one life be lost. How is it with the engineer? He ought to realize his position; he must never neglect, never forget, never mistake; if he does, death and destruction comes not only to himself, but to hundreds of his fellow men. He is in a broken keeper; he ought to prepare himself by all honorable means to perfect the knowledge of steam, its use and abuse. Let him never be ashamed to ask for information, or have a work on engineering be seen sticking out of his pocket; for the time will come among engineers when education will triumph over ignorance, when the stoppers and starters will be placed where they belong, and the man who knows will take the reins. We could fill whole papers of incidents and conversations with these so-called "engineers" that many of your readers would be inclined to doubt. If manufacturers of engines would insist that competent men be engaged to handle their works, half the trouble would be won, their goods would give better satisfaction, and all be benefited.—Tromp.

RIEL'S TRIAL.

The First Step Taken—The Trial to Commence on July 28th.

On the afternoon of July 6th Louis Riel was taken before Magistrate Richardson at Regina. The indictment was read to him and he was served with it, and was informed that he would be tried at 11 a. m. on July 28th. The following is the full text of the indictment:

On the 6th day of July, in the year of our Lord, 1885, in the town of Regina, in the Northwest Territories, before Hugh Richardson, Esq., one of the stipendiary magistrates in the Northwest Territories, exercising criminal jurisdiction under the provisions of the Northwest Territories Act of the year 1880, Louis Riel, you stand charged on oath before me as follows:

The information and complaint of Alexander David Stewart, of the City of Hamilton, in the Province of Ontario, in the Dominion of Canada, Chief of Police, taken on the sixth day of July, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith, DUCK LAKE.

First, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, not regarding the duty of his allegiance, not having the fear of God in his heart, but being moved and seduced by the instigation of the devil as a false traitor against the said Lady the Queen, and wholly without drawing the allegiance, fidelity and obedience which every true and faithful subject of our said Lady the Queen, should and of right ought to bear towards our said Lady the Queen, did, on the twenty-seventh day of March, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Second, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Third, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Fourth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Fifth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Sixth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Seventh, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Eighth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Ninth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Tenth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Eleventh, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Twelfth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

Thirteenth, That Louis Riel, being a subject of his Majesty the Queen, did, on the twenty-fourth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, before the undersigned, one of her Majesty's stipendiary magistrates in and for the said Northwest Territories of Canada, who saith,

FROM ALL OVER.

The Atlantic cable companies propose to lower the tariff to eight cents a word in order to fight the Beantek McKay cables.

EVERYBODY'S BITTER should be strengthened and their blood purified, for we may have Dr. Carson's Bitters before the summer is over. Dr. Carson's Bitters in the preparation to use. Large Bottle 50 cents.

Mr. WALLACE, Druggist, of Hastings, Ontario, says:—I recommend Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters far ahead of all other stomach medicines. It is just the right thing for Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Headache, and Dyspepsia. Large Bottle 50 cents.

A TORONTO gentleman says of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters: "It cured my wife of Chronic Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint after Doctor upon Doctor had failed to even temporarily relieve her." Every family should use the Doctor's Bitters.

THE FURNISHING OF AN HEMISPHERE.—Through out an area covered by more than one hundred millions of civilized beings Murray & Leaman's Florida Water is to-day the standard perfume in society.

CHARLES WILLIAMS, London war correspondent of the Central News applied for a summons against Bertram Hope for libel for an article alleged to be published in the Standard Review.

STOMACH ACID.—We all know what it is; we acquired a perfect knowledge of the "Pat" in our youth, after a raid on the green apples we were expressly forbidden to touch. Our mother gave us Perry Davis Pain-Killer, and then strange to say no other remedy has been discovered to this day to equal it.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward. We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of a guilty party or parties who take the brand of our "Cable" cigar, and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, palming them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brand of our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (10¢) cigar, or imported cigars, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10¢) ten cents for our "El Padre" cigars, and (15¢) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10¢) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

Popular Fallacious. It would add many years to the average longevity of our species if we would free the next generation from the curse of the following fallacies, which are obstacles to permanent disease or add an unnecessary burden to domestic life: The idea that cold baths are healthy in winter and dangerous in midsummer; that rain water is more wholesome than "hard" water; that bed-room must be heated in cold weather; that the misery of overeating, overdrinking and overexposure is compensated by the comfort of the vapors; that a sick room must be kept hermetically closed; that it pays to save food on account of its waste; that "bright" are morbid agencies; that catarrhs are due to low temperature; that even in midsummer children must be sent to bed at sunset when the air begins to grow pleasant; that an afternoon nap can do any harm; that a healthy condition of the atmosphere can be improved by the use of carbolic acid; that there is any benefit in swallowing jugs of nauseous sulphur water; that rest after dinner can be shortened with impunity; that athletic sports besides the character; that a normal being requires any other stimulant than exercise and fresh air; that any mechanical contrivance can compensate for mental strength; that any plan of study can justify the custom of slitting children in sleep; that the torpor of narcosis is preferable to insomnia; that the suppression of harmless recreation will fail to begot vice and hypochondria; that stimulation is identical with invigoration; that fashion has a right to enforce the wearing of woollen clothes in the dog days.

Of either sex, however inclined, speedily, thoroughly and permanently cured, of all diseases, and obstructions of blood, taints, ulcers, obstructions, unnatural discharges, exhausted vitality, nervous debility, (female) catarrhs, and organic debility, varicose veins, hydrocele, diseases of prostate gland, kidneys and bladder, piles, female and ruptured hernia, and all other ailments. Half of twelve expert specialists in constant attendance, constituting the most complete organization of medical and surgical skill in America. Send history of case and address for illustrated pamphlet of particulars. Medical Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo N. Y.

Cruelly Murdered. In the Province of Ontario every year thousands are being cruelly murdered by taking unwholesome, untried nostrums for such complaints as Constipation, Indigestion, Liver Complaint, Headache, etc., who might easily be cured by using McGregor & Parker's Carbolic Cerate. To convince them that such is the case we will give them a free trial bottle of McGregor & Parker's Carbolic Cerate, and if not cured, we will give them a free trial bottle of McGregor & Parker's Carbolic Cerate. A GALA DAY AT FROG LAKE.

The Midlanders Receive Their Presents From Friends in Ontario and Enjoy Themselves.

We take the following from the letter of the Montreal Star's special correspondent with the Midland Battalion:—

FROG LAKE CAMP, June 12.—There was a gala day in camp here to-day on the occasion of the arrival of the remaining two companies of the Midlanders from Fort Pitt, and bringing in the supplies of presents and extra merry friends of the Battalion in Ontario. This letter was sufficient of itself to create a jubilant feeling amongst the men who almost gave up in despair in waiting for something from home. Has the surprise party that came yesterday was a genuine one. The two companies that rejoined the Battalion after being detached for two months were "G" and "H" companies, under Lieut.-Col. Deacon, who had been at Clarke's Crossing for some time previous. The boys, as they marched in from the Midland Landing to our camp, were loudly cheered by their comrades who were glad to meet the old faces left in Swift Current at the beginning of the campaign. Over twenty-five loads of delicacies, etc., were hauled from the steamer to the camp of the Midlanders, and were distributed to the different companies by the captain. The Queen's Own, 90th and Grenadiers also received a large amount of goods from eastern friends by the steamer North-West. The supplies all came via Clarke's Crossing, being beamed over to the elbow of the North Saskatchewan, thence to Fort Pitt by river route. Among the various articles sent by the friends in the east was a coffin, which contained a rope, with the injunction from some one asking the members of the 40th company of the Midland to use it for Heli if there was an opportunity of doing so. A good many of the "boys" took a good square meal for the first time since leaving home. Presents of all sorts, cakes, fruits, underclothing, etc., were scattered in great profusion around the different companies. Several boxes of goods were missing on arrival at Frog Lake, and while there were many who got what they knew had been sent to them, there was unhappily a few who depended on others to get the little which would make them as comfortable as the rest, as the goods sent were marked for particular companies or individuals.

The prominent feature of the "great blow out," as the boys called it, was the banquet given by the staff N.C. Officers of the Midland Battalion. An excellent bill of fare was got up by Mr. George Morrison, chef de cuisine, late of the Clark House, Brighton, the following being the menu:—

The following programme was gone through:—

Sgt.-Major Springle gave "A Soldier's Welcome," which elicited hearty applause; Pay Sergeant Stewart sang "Oh, Daffney, Don't You Love Me Yet," and an encore danced the Red River Jig; Staff Sergeant Hooper sang "La Pille du Tambour Major," and being encored sang "La Marseillaise" by special request; Sergeant Mercer recited the blood-curdling "charging on the Rifle Pit," Hospital Sergeant Carson fairly brought down the house in his rendition of "Riel's Lament, or the Midlanders on the War Path." He quoted the boisterous feelings of the audience by the rendition of "Home, Sweet Home." The proceedings were enlivened by the play of the Frog Lake picnic plate (the band, which rendered several new pieces of music, the "March to Batocche" being particularly well executed, especially the representation given of the Indian war whoops and rebel volleys.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

THE NORTHWEST.

TUESDAY, July 7.—Mr. Laurier resumed the debate on Mr. Blake's amendment as to the Northwest troubles. He made a long speech, his principle contentions being that the halfbreeds had a right to share in the consideration for the extinguishing of the Indian title, and that the Administration had neglected the halfbreeds.

Mr. GIRDWOOD first showed that the Reformers' policy when in office was to treat the halfbreeds as white men. With full detail he showed that the late Administration had undoubtedly neglected to make arrangements with the halfbreeds, but that the present Administration had been very diligent in doing so, and had years ago surveyed the farms and satisfied the claims of the great majority of them. He blamed the Reform press and speakers for stirring up the excitement.

Mr. CAMERON (Huron) supported the amendment. He moved the adjournment of the debate, and this was agreed to on condition that the division be taken next day.

The House adjourned at 1.30.

This week, at Turnbull's, a Clearing Sale of Remnants. Look out for Bargains.

FORESTERS EXCURSION.—The steamer Fairy and Cruiser towing a covered sloop with about 300 passengers was locked through here last Wednesday forenoon, being the annual excursion of the Lakefield order of Foresters. Nearly all picked on Jean Island, Stony Lake, except your correspondent and a few others steamed in the Fairy as far as Julian Landing, where our old friend Jas. Bertrand keeps hotel, and were supplied with an excellent dinner. James evidently keeps everything in his hotel that is good to eat and drink, and his good wife spares no pains in spreading a good table for those who may favor them with a call for a meal. After dinner the Fairy started for Beechink Narrows, where a party from Lakefield are camped, one of the number being a fine, jolly gentleman from Rochester, U.S. Dead Eye complained to us about one of their party who is with them, being so lazy that they have to use a block and tackle to turn him around (pre-ten). He eats, drinks and sleeps well, and may get around by and by like the rest. We had a bottle of Labast's ale, which went down first class. The time we were there the steamer towed a sloop laden with cord wood from the opposite shore to Julian's Landing, which we left there and joined the excursionists about 5 p.m. for our return trip. I understand some growing went on in our absence. Of course there are always people in a crowd like that who are given to growing, and will die growing because we did not ask leave to go our own way. The day was all that could be desired, the passengers expressing themselves as delighted with the trip. Lakefield was reached about 7 o'clock in the evening. I may add that the captain of both steamers were courteous and kind to all. A good working committee was also in attendance.

WAGON SHOP.—Mr. Heard, our blacksmith, has built a large wagon shop in connection with his blacksmith shop, and is doing well. He has four or five buggies building for customers. We wish him success in this new enterprise which was very much required. Farmers and others had to go all the way to Lakefield and Peterborough for their repairs—now they are saved that trouble.

THE DRIVERS.—The saw log drivers are numerous this season, and from what I can learn some of the drivers will be late in getting to their respective mills.

THE LOCK GATES.—Mr. Young, the Lock Master, has a tough job every time he opens and (tries to shut) the lower gates. New ones are being built and ready to put in, but nobody sent from anywhere yet to hang them. Where is Ross? Has he been in Algoma working for the Hardy, Parsons, &c., &c.

THE ROADS.—The respective pathmasters have been working at the roads, which are from muddling to fair. The Duro road from here to Lakefield is much improved.

THE PASS.—Mr. W. J. Young has entered a suit against Jas. Kearney, ex-10c trespass on his lands, which the courts will decide who is in the right.

DANCING.—Prof. Thomas has started another class, to meet next Monday evening.

CHURCH OF ENGLAND.—A service will be held in the Town Hall, Keene, at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon by the Rev. Mr. Solley.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.—The union Sunday School of Allendale held their annual picnic on Wednesday last in Dindale's Grove, adjoining the Keene station. A very pleasant time was spent by all.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY EXCURSION.—One hundred and thirty persons left for Belleville on Thursday last to attend the annual picnic of the above society. All seemed delighted to enjoy themselves.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

FRANCE EXERCISED.

LONDON, July 8.—The majority of the European papers express favorable comments on the statement of Lord Salisbury regarding the policy of the Government. The Republique Francaise considers that the binding together of England and Germany is a serious event, and France will shortly learn what to expect therefrom. The Standard says its pleasing duty is to acknowledge the admirable tone in which Mr. Gladstone dealt with the Government plans in his speech in the House of Commons last night. The speech was a statesmanlike response to a statesmanlike appeal.

THE NEW ATTACK.

The rising in the Northwest having been suppressed by the courage and ability of the volunteers, officers and men, and the energy and skill of the Government, the armed conflict goes on no longer, but a contest of a different character takes its place. In the courts of law the leaders of the rebellion will be called upon to show why they should not suffer punishment as traitors and rebels, and the attack upon the Government is being carried on in Parliament by the Opposition. The rebel prisoners may safely be left to the courts to be dealt with, but the people of the Dominion are the jury who will decide whether the Reformers are deserving of punishment for taking up the cry of the rebels and charging that the Dominion authorities have wronged and oppressed the halfbreeds and Indians.

Mr. Laurier and other Reform members have stated that the Government were responsible for the rising and its consequences. Now, the question arises, can the Opposition charge that the Government is responsible for the rising without also claiming that the rebellion was justifiable? If the halfbreeds and Indians were not treated by the Government in such a manner as to justify them in taking up arms, then the Government is not responsible, and to place the responsibility upon the Administration the Reformers must justify the action of Riel, Dumont, Poundmaker and Big Bear, but none of them have dared to say that such was their intention. The Government cannot be responsible for the rebellion unless it did something which gave the halfbreeds and their allies sufficient cause for resorting to arms, and to say that they had sufficient cause for attacking the settlers and resisting authority is equivalent to saying that Riel and his associates are prisoners held at Regina should be released. In the face of the facts that is what the Reformers have not said and dare not say, and they consequently are wrong in attempting to make the people believe that the Government should be held responsible.

The rebels have, of course, certain claims which they put forward as an excuse for their acts. These claims the Reformers take up and found an attack on the Government upon them. The principal rebel excuse is that the halfbreeds of the Northwest should have been granted land in the same manner as were the halfbreeds of Manitoba. In the first place, the Reformers cannot attack the present Government on that ground without condemning themselves, as the Mackenzie administration refused to treat the halfbreeds in any manner different from white men, and the halfbreeds could at any time take up land on the same terms as white settlers. If the present Government did wrong in not granting the halfbreeds of the Northwest as much land as the Mackenzie Government did the same wrong. In the second place, if the halfbreeds were entitled to the scrip, it was no as a task to discriminate between rightful and fraudulent claims. Of the seventeen men who signed one petition it has been discovered that fourteen had received scrip in Manitoba and had not the least shadow of a claim upon the Government. They were attempting to defraud the country, and when they could not do so, urged on by others they took up arms. Of the complaint regarding the surveys, the bill of rights, the halfbreeds stated their claims, made no mention, and if it had been a serious grievance it would scarcely have been forgotten when utterly absurd claims and rights were demanded. Besides, the surveys were carried on under the Mackenzie Government.

The origin of the trouble has been pointed out and was owing to several causes. Speculators were desirous of having scrip granted to the halfbreeds that they might purchase it and profit by the transactions. The halfbreeds were discontented under the rule of the civilized laws of the Dominion ever since the territory was obtained from the Hudson Bay Company. The speculators and political agitators stirred up the halfbreeds, and sent for Louis Riel to assist them, paying the expenses of the delegates. With the assistance of Riel they succeeded, and the warlike instincts of the Indians were also aroused, in order to increase the trouble and further embarrass the Government. A portion of the Reform press and party were also instrumental in stirring those who created the trouble by asserting that the halfbreeds had grievances. In order to attack the Government they then did that which encouraged the rebel leaders, and in order to attack the Government they now make statements, the logical conclusion of which would be that the rebels were right in resorting to arms. The attempt to excuse the rebellion and to furnish a defense for the rebels, for the purpose of making political capital and gaining a party advantage, should be severely rebuked by the people of the Dominion, who desire above all to advance the interest of our country, and the part the Reformers took in according encouragement to the agitators who were the cause of the rebellion should add severity to the rebuke.

DISTRICT INTELLIGENCE

HARVEY.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE PULIT.—On Sunday last, Mr. J. E. Ducloux, B.A., and divinity student at Queen's College, Kingston, delivered a sermon bearing reference to the amusements appropriate for Sunday School excursions and picnics. Some people limit the amusements that should be enjoyed on such occasions to such a degree as to render the event one of an extremely dull nature. The gentleman chose for his text the eleventh chapter of Ecclesiastes, and the 9th verse. In commenting on the amusements, he said:—
“The programme of entertainments in the summer season is chiefly made up of excursions and picnics, which are carried on in different ways, varying according to the organizations under whose auspices they are held. Each season has its pleasures. The spirit of youth is the same in the present age as it was in the antiquity of man, and though it has in time been moulded under the influence of different training and of a wide experience of many ages, yet that spirit is as buoyant and merry as the present day as ever it has been. In dividing the human race into two classes, the godly and the ungodly, it will be found that though the spirit of mirth exists in each class, still that spirit cannot be exercised in both in the same way, for while in the one it is of a worldly nature in the other it must be consistent with Christian faith. Ministers of the gospel differ as to the best amusements becoming young people. Some will make sweeping assertions, condemning all amusements as sinful, as if young people could be transmitted from youth to old age in a moment. Some again will draw a line of demarcation between the various entertainments indulged in, without discriminating between motive and form, whereas others lay down religious precepts whereby Christian people may be guided. But, in spite of all these arguments and rules, unfortunately too many young people of Christian parents yield to pleasures of an irreligious nature, generally because the most suitable amusements are not afforded them. Sabbath school picnics are often desecrated for want of appropriate programmes, which, if properly executed, would give innocent diversion to both children and parents. Soda water shops and platforms are often erected, and drinking and dancing become the theme of the day; whereas an occasion which should be made subservient in moulding the character of the youth by a sound and healthy pastime, is frequently monopolized by the dance and other indulgences congenial with it, and thereby depriving the children of their entertainment, and placing before them an undutiful example. At a Sabbath school picnic children should be entertained by their parents and older brothers and sisters, so that there may be infused in the hearts of both parent and child a social and reciprocal feeling, and that worldly pleasures, such as dancing, singing, and gambling, which Christians can enjoy themselves, and yet do so with compatibility to Christian religion. If we do not entertain our young people, we do not give them proper amusements, they will resort to the dance, to the saloon, and to gambling. A programme consisting of a short address, of singing, in which the children may take part, of sports such as running, jumping, hoop, and ball playing, lawn tennis, and of other such amusements, if properly carried out, cannot but prove a healthy and profitable pastime to parents and children. It is difficult to set a limit to the different games that should be practised by our young people, as almost every game can be abused and reduced to mere gambling; but I will lay down three precepts which may be subservient to you in choosing your society and suitable amusements. 1st, Never go where you would not have death find you; 2nd, Never do anything in which you can not have God with you; 3rd, As Paul says: ‘Abstain from all appearance of evil,’ and I feel confident that if you are conscientiously guided by these precepts you will not share in any amusement that will discredit your Christian profession. Christian religion is a fruitful one. The Bible does not tell us to wear a sad and dejected countenance, but to be happy and gay. We can praise the Lord on the playground, in our recreation, in our dealing with one another, in our homes, yes we can praise Him every day of the week, every hour, and every moment of our life. We continued in more lengthy way, commenting on the dance, showing himself not in favour of this amusement, although in the mere action he saw no harm; still the results were harmful, as the character of the dance was so fascinating as to lead young people from a quiet home dance to a public ball, where vicious young ladies will mingle with ungodly men.

PARTIAL DUTY.—Religious service is being conducted this summer by Mr. Ducloux in the following manner:—At the Presbyterian Church, South Huron street, every Sunday morning, 10:30; each alternate Sunday at Scott's Mills, 8 o'clock in the afternoon; and Taylor's School House in the evening; the following Sunday at Buckhorn and Stockdale's School House. Last Sabbath service was held at Buckhorn and Stockdale's School House.

OPPORTUNITY.—On Sunday, July 12th, by the request of the Minister of the I. O. O. F., No. 433, Mr. Ducloux will deliver a sermon on Unbelief to that order. The members of the order will march in procession to the church. A large audience is expected.

KING KENNEDY.—On Saturday, July 10th, this noted ventriloquist and practitioner of magic art entertained the people of Section 3 in the Town Hall, Lakeside. All were well pleased with the programme and the humorous manner in which the King expressed his ventriloquism. The old Scotch lily was well personated, as was also Jonathan Jonathan. Mr. Kennedy reserves special credit for the efficient way he conducted his entertainments.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

A SMUGGLER.

Mr. Nelson claims to be a highly respectable man, the head of a highly respectable firm, but he differs from a common smuggler only as a sneak thief differs from a highwayman. It is to be hoped that he will have the benefit of all the penalties which the law allows; and the only secret the public will feel will be that these penalties are together inadequate.—Canadian Manufacturer.

SOUTH GRENVILLE.

The honor could not have been conferred on a more worthy candidate, and the electors of South Grenville are to be congratulated upon having secured the services of a citizen who is favourably known to the country at large, and who has been largely identified with its material growth and prosperity.—Montreal Post (Indep.).

MR. GIBSON'S MOT.

The utterance of the final vote of the recent election has been reserved for Mr. Gibson. That ingenious politician has gladdened many of his colleagues with a definition of the difference between the two great parties during the last couple of weeks, which is just now the popular saying in senatorial circles. “The Liberals,” says Mr. Gibson, “were for fortnight in a condition of suspended animation; the Conservatives in a condition of animated suspense.”—Whitehall Review.

THEIR DILEMMA.

The Grits are in a dilemma. If they say that the Franchise Bill, as passed, is most objectionable, they admit that the vast quantity of wind blown by their orators in obscuring it was wasted. If they say that the Bill has been deprived of its objectionable features, they admit that it is a good Bill.—Hamilton Spectator.

VERY THIN.

Riel appears to think himself entitled to acquittal because he surrendered when he had no alternative. His story about being inveigled into the trap is very thin. There is plenty of evidence that he was at work for months stirring up the halfbreeds, and that he was only carrying out views which he is known to have held for many years. His ambition has long been notorious, and there will probably be no difficulty in proving that he was the head and front of the insurrection, and that it would not have occurred except for his efforts.—New York Tribune.

A Sudden Rise in Values.

“Where are you going with the puppies, my little man?” asked a gentleman of a small boy whom he met with three pups in a basket. “Goin’ to drown them,” was the reply. “I want a pup for my little boy to play with. What do you say to letting me take one?” “I’ll sell you one,” spoke up the kid, with a naive enterprise. “I’ll sell you this yaller one for 50 cents, the black one for 75 cents, and the spotted one is worth $1 of any man’s money.” “I think my little boy would like the spotted one best, but you ask too much for it. You had intended drowning all of them, but I’ll give you 25 cents and save you the trouble of drowning the spotted one.” “Twenty-five cents for the spotted pup?” exclaimed the boy. “I can’t stand it; I take it high; rent is high. It costs more money to go into the roller skating rink. Oh, no; I can’t take less than $1.” “But the black one at 75 cents.” “My little boy wouldn’t like the black one.” “Take the yaller one at half a dollar. He’s dirt cheap.” “My little boy wouldn’t like his color.” “Well, then, you better tell your little boy to play with his toes,” and he continued toward the river. “No party can dead-head his way on me these hard times.”—Baltimore Times.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the brands off our 5c. Cable 50s, and sell them (the “Cable” cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, passing them off as the genuine “Cable.” We will pay the other hundred dollars for the conviction of the party or parties who take the brands off our celebrated “El Padre” cigar, and place them (the “El Padre” cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for (the “Cable” cigars) fifteen cent imported cigars, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine. We do not object to the consumers paying (10c.) ten cents for our (5c.) “Cable” cigars, and (15c.) fifteen cents for our “El Padre” (10c.) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don’t be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated “Cable,” “El Padre” and “Modera” brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

A SPY SHOT.

He went forth in the pride and joy of life; Marching in front of his men, a flock of dimes and the life; Honoured of all in the land, eye! The who strangled the strife!

He who was honoured, led, leading the field, Ordering the men to charge, dead, dead, and dead!

He of the iron heart never would, could not yield.

He who was loved to the full by his soldiers brave, Counting the rebel balls and a soldier's grave, Lining what man may dare, yet what man may save.

He has been taken away when the strife is done, Braver there never was, braver there now is none. Spent like a cannon shot, spent when the field is high.

Though through the years the dew on his grave will weep; Mourn upon the stones at his head and feet will weep; WILLIAM WILL still be graven on the heart of a nation deep.

WOMAN'S WIT.

A Telegraph Man's Adventure with Train Robbers.

"You can talk all you please about a woman not having wit for affairs outside of her own sphere in life," remarked an old telegraph operator, as he put his feet upon the table and puffed lazily at his pipe. "But I've got a little story to tell which may change your opinion. Several years ago I had a station on a railroad way out on the plains. There had never been any train robberies near us, though there was much talk about 'em. One time the engineer of a passenger train stopped at my station in a hurry at the 461 mile-post and then backed up. He declared train robbers had placed obstructions on the track and were lying in ambush. Investigations showed that what he had thought obstructions was nothing but some of the big rolling weeds which had blown across the prairie and gathered on the track. Of course the engineer was laughed at for his error, and after that whenever train robbers were mentioned somebody would acquire if they were the same kind that Wm. Roberts saw at the 461 mile-post."

"One night I was alone in my office, waiting for No. 3. She was an hour or more late, was dazing over my pipe when, on looking up, I saw revolvers pointed at me from both sides of the window of course I threw up my hands. They were train robbers sure enough. There were only three of them, but such desperate fellows I never saw. They told me what they wanted me to do, I was to write a dispatch for the conductor of No. 3, signing the superintendent's name to it, ordering him to leave his train at my station, in my care, and take the engine and several armed men and go on toward Plum Creek, moving cautiously and preparing to attack train robbers. This dispatch I was to hand the conductor through my window on my case up for orders as usual, two of the men hiding in the office ready to shoot me if I attempted to give the alarm. The scoundrels expected by this means to have the train left at their mercy. I told them No. 3 was late, and tried to scare them out that way. Then I tried to delay matters so that No. 3 would come before I got the telegram ready but they meant business, and in ten minutes the dispatch was written as they dictated. I called my brain for some means to defeat the robbers, but I could not think of anything for a long time. Suddenly I remembered my wife and the telephone I had put up connecting our residence with the station. I made the telephone myself and though crude, it answered very well. I told the robbers that I wanted to telephone my wife that the train was late, and that she should get ready. I said, 'If I don't let her know, I added, 'she will be down here—you know how queer women are and you'll have trouble.'"

"Then I was given permission to talk to her, but was cautioned that any attempt on my part to give the alarm would end a bullet through my head. So I simply called to my wife and said: 'Number three late (trouble at 461 mile post) go to bed, as I can't be home till late. Good-night.'"

"That was all, but I was satisfied it was enough. I felt that my wife would detect in my tone that there was trouble, and, as she was married to retire until she had sent down to see. Besides I had mentioned the 461 mile post, to which my captors had no objections, as they knew nothing of the scare that R-b-b-b-b had had there, and I hoped this would alarm her. The minutes that followed seemed like hours. The robbers were becoming impatient and vicious, and they more than once threatened to kill me if I tickled them. In about fifteen minutes we heard the tramp of feet upon the platform, and in walked my wife with four men, all armed, whom she had roused in the village. The two robbers were captured, but they afterwards escaped. My wife said she knew I was in trouble, and it was her duty to come to my assistance as I had told her so in plain words. I tell you, I've had pretty high respect for woman's intuition and sense since that night."—Chicago Herald.

THE OPIUM HABIT.

An Heredity Cure for a Practice that is Destructive to Health.

A pathetic story has lately come to my knowledge of a young man, an undergraduate in an eastern college, who had become a victim of the hyperemic use of morphia. He went with his father, who was engaged in the lumbering interest, into the primal forests of Maine, hoping that during a stay of months with the woodchoppers he would be able to fight out the battle of gradual abandonment successfully. Through a strange fatality, when the party had just arrived at their camping place, and were transporting their goods across a stream, the case of morphia was broken by an apparent accident, and its contents scattered into the water. None but the haggard young man comprehended the appalling magnitude of the calamity—there, as he was 200 miles from the nearest settlement. He survived the terrible ordeal, but no words could express, he has said, the tortures and agony through which he passed during the succeeding weeks. He was closely watched, day and night, by his father, who was almost beside himself with grief. He was almost driven to the point of suicide. Not least significant in this terrible account is the fact that the young man had always believed that his father had purposely brought about the catastrophe for the sake of bringing matters to a speedy end! Has the usual treatment of the disease by physicians at this day anything to offer that is much better than this man's summary method?—Exchange.

INGENUOUS WOOD CARVERS.

Over the doorway of a building on the west side of New York city is a sign which reads "Artistic Eric a-brac." In a small square room up one flight of stairs were several tables laden with many curious and interesting productions of German and Swiss artists. "The Swiss peasantry are the greatest wood carvers in the world," the proprietor said. "Carving seems to be as natural with them as eating. They carve out of wood with wonderful ingenuity, anything from a simple paper knife to an elaborate piece of architecture in miniature. Aside from wood carving and some other mechanical occupations they are not good for anything, being very simple, ignorant people but they have a genius for carving, and have a natural skill for copying from nature. Their floral pieces are regarded as masterpieces, and serve as models for young sculptors. It is only necessary to furnish them with a photographic design of what is wanted. Most dealers who import Swiss carvings do this, although the Swiss peasantry produce numberless things themselves without the aid of any suggestions. They carve out of wood almost every kind of fancy articles, such as nutcrackers, inkstands, jewelry cases, cuckoo clocks, ladies' work boxes, and a large number of other things too numerous to mention. The tools they use are very simple, the carving being done by hand. The articles they carve are ingeniously ornamented with leaves and flowers, and some of their designs are extremely odd; they are always artistic. Here is a piece of carving in the shape of a nutcracker. It is a lifelike representation of a boy in his hauberk. Of course it is not a nutcracker for ornament than use, but its artistic merit is worthy of careful study. The Swiss have a knack of turning the most simple article into a work of art. Take this book rack, for instance, and the dealer produced a very simple form of book holder for the library table, having two side pieces on a sliding base, 'see how artistically the side pieces are carved, showing in bold relief a double rose surrounded with a mass of leaves and vines.'"

"One advantage the Swiss have is the wood which they use. This is remarkably fine, and free from knots, and a tool cuts it as easily across as with the grain. The kind mostly used is known to the trade as peach wood, which it closely resembles in every respect. Another kind of wood which is largely used is called ash wood. This has a pure white color, and, like the other variety of groups of Swiss carvings, and peculiarly even in respect to hardness."

"The art of the Swiss in carving wood first attracted attention about fifty years ago. It was not, however, until years afterwards that it was turned to account in a commercial point of view, and even then the sale of Swiss carvings were restricted to tourists in the summer season, who made their purchases through the intermediary of hotel porters. Hence the trade was for a long time very small and unremunerative. But in the course of time local capitalists took the matter in hand, opened workshops and began an export trade. The business of wood carving now finds employment for several hundred persons. In fact, in one establishment three hundred persons of both sexes are employed. The women have great delicacy of touch, and their work in certain branches is preferred to that of men. Each artisan employed in the workshops has his or her specialty, the choice of which is left to individual taste. Some have an aptitude for and are made to indicate the famous Swiss chalets, others prefer to carve various fancy articles with floral patterns, and some build miniature chalets. The latter is one of the most popular articles of Swiss handicraft. As a specialty, it is composed of different colored woods. The chalets with the ropes and stones to hold them on, and the deep roof are prominent features. The lower story shows a stable, while the upper story is made to indicate the famous Swiss dwelling. The surroundings, including the fence, courtyard, pump and spring are also given. The roof is so constructed that it can be raised like a lid, and the part which represents the upper stories is lined with plush, and is intended as the receptacle for jewels. A movable partition divides this also from the first story, which contains a music box, which is set going by lifting the top cover. The price of these articles range from $10 to $25."

"Few people make a specialty of Swiss carvings, for the reason that the production is very limited, owing to inability to turn out the goods fast enough by hand. Besides, all the rare bits of carving are made by the peasants at their homes in the Alps, who work only during the winter season. In the summer they are occupied in tilling the soil and tending their herds of goats on the hillsides, a pursuit which they love so much that no amount of money could induce them from it."

Playing With Snails.

On Monday afternoon, while some workmen were engaged excavating in Dufferin square (formerly the English Protestant Cemetery) for the purpose of laying gas pipes they came upon about thirteen coffins, containing the remains of children. The coffins were thrown upon the ground and left exposed there when the men stopped work at six o'clock. During the evening the coffins were broken open by some looters, and the remains made their sport; skulls, etc., being tossed from hand to hand. A report of the occurrence coming to the St. George street police station, Sergeant Reeves sent an officer to the spot, who stopped the proceedings. The clerk of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, becoming aware of the exposure of the remains had a coffin procured, into which the bones were placed, and conveyed to the Mount Royal cemetery.—Montreal Witness.

A STRANGE DREAM.—There is scarcely a symptom belonging to chronic complaints but that is common to the poor dyspeptic, and he often feels as if he had every disease in the catalogue. Burdock Blood Bitters cures the worst form of Chronic Dyspepsia.

On Tuesday morning the convention of Canadian societies of North America opened its sessions at Newark, N. J. President Hodge of Toronto, made the opening address.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

To-night.

A meeting of the Lacrosse Club will be held at the Little Windsor Hotel this evening at 7.30 o'clock. The President wishes to impress upon every member of the club the necessity of their being present. Important business is before the chair.

Mill Street.

Owing to a leak having sprung in a conduit from the Dixon Estate water power, and a trench having been dug along to ascertain the locality of the break, the street from Hunter street will temporarily be closed to traffic. A roadway on the east side, however, leads to the mill on this property.

Open to the Public.

The Directors of the Driving Park Association wish to announce that the Park will be open to the public to-morrow evening, if the weather be fine. The members of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club will play a scratch match, and everyone is invited to see it. Carriages will be allowed in the park, and the grand stand will be free to all.

Good Time.

Since the town clock was furnished with new hands, it has done its work in a very creditable manner. During the last few months the surtaker has certainly had many difficulties to contend with, but it is to be hoped that the last obstacle to good time has now disappeared, and that the citizens will be rid of the inconvenience heretofore existing.

New Trunk Line.

It is expected that work will shortly be commenced by the Bell Telephone Company in constructing the extension of the trunk line northward from Peterborough as far as Lakefield. The establishing of such communication will no doubt be found of great convenience to the people of Lakefield and a good part of Peterborough's citizens, and will, in a measure, further commercial interests.

We keep the largest stock of Gent's White and Colored Shirts in Peterborough at prices that defy competition. A. McNair.

Remodelling.

Afterwards of workmen, under the superintendence of Mr. J. McLennan have commenced the remodelling of the Darcy House block. The first part will be considerably overhauled. A plate glass front will be put in and the place will be used as an office by Messrs. Rathbun & Son, of Deseronto, who contemplate opening out a branch of their business in Peterborough shortly. The upper floor will be used by Mr. J. Bannell Sawyer for a business college. A large lecture room will be constructed and numerous class rooms will also be divided off.

Retained.

Mr. Wm. M. Hamilton, wheel and broom manufacturer, decided some months ago to remove the plant of his factory to Orillia. He opened out his factory in that place and carried on business for about two months when he began to see the error of his way. He has returned to Peterborough confident that as a distributing point it is unequalled and that the advantages it possesses as a manufacturing centre are unsurpassed. Mr. Hamilton is now making arrangements for re-opening his factory in the old place in Ashburnham. He will manufacture for the wholesale trade.

Clever.

While the Peterborough Baseball Club were practising in the Riverside Park on Wednesday evening, the batsman knocked the ball quite a distance out into the river. Pitcher Cameron whistled on his spauld and sent him in after it. The animal splashed the little object floating down and gave a spring into the water. The river at this point flows quite rapidly, but the sagacious canine, after swimming about a hundred and fifty yards, nabbed the ball and brought it safely to shore. Dealers in sporting goods should object to this dog being allowed on the grounds.

If you want a remnant of Cashmere or Fine Brown Goods, you can buy it cheap at Turnbull's during his clearing sale.

Sports.

The fortnightly sports which have been postponed so often, will take place in the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association to-morrow evening at 6.30 o'clock. Admission 10 cents.

The Officers to Wear Mourning. Colonel Villiers has requested the officers of the third military district to wear mourning badges for one month for the late Colonel Williams.

Midsummer Specialties at the Golden Lion in every department. Fair, Van Every & Co. are giving decided bargains in all Remnants. A large consignment of Harvest Mitts in Sheep, Calf and Buck, at wholesale prices.

The Unbridge Baseball club came down with the excursion, and are giving the Silver Stars a match in the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association this afternoon.

Just received at Habillment Hall, a fine lot of Men's Linen Coats, just the thing for hot weather. A. McNair.

Progressing. The work of beautifying the Horticultural Gardens proceeds with unabated vigor, and the fence along the Water street side has been pulled down and a new one, consisting of handsome turned posts connected by an iron bar will shortly take its place. The walks are now being covered with gas lime, a substance that will readily pack and harden. The example set by Mr. F. Mason is one worthy of being followed. He has placed a fine waning vine crate, or banana plant, on each side of the main entrance, and has also given two hanging baskets set in rustic tripods. If Mr. Mason's example be followed by the citizens generally the gardens will soon assume an appearance approaching those of the tropics.

By express at Turnbull's, a handsome range of Wool Wraps, in all Shades. See them.

Something Worth Seeing. All those who purpose accompanying the Foresters on their excursion to Ottawa should not fail to pay a visit to the Geological Museum. It is a handsome stone structure, three stories high, and a visit through the interior must prove interesting. In section one are contained specimens of minerals and rocks, also a multifarious collection of models of nuggets, gold bearing quartz, silver ore, silver glance, gales (galenite), from Galway, County of Peterborough. Specimens of iron ore, copper, pyrites, various kinds of coal, arbores and paleozoic rocks, roofing slate, pyroxene, hornblende, apatite, galena and biotite. A beautiful specimen of amethyst, associated with fluor, coated with pyrite, from Thunder Bay, Lake Superior, all kinds of bricks, mica from all sections, mineral waters from all springs, bones and handles of the Ahts Indians, E.C., a beautiful piece of stalagmite, from a cave on the island of Mona, West Indies; it stands 12 feet high. On the third story can be found specimens of the Canadian wild animals, such as the black bear, racoon, black wolf, prairie wolf, wolverine, devil's head cap, arctic fox, wild cat and many others. In the birds section stands a huge wild turkey, weighing 35 pounds, a white egret, trumpeter swan (adult female), weighing 714 pounds, a buff head wilgeon, grouse, and almost every small bird that entered the ark; a species of almost every shell, egg and fly. The white Polar Bear, weighing 600 pounds, with his two small cubs, testify to the ability of the taxidermist; a sea porcupine, presented by the Princess Louise, and a great seal, measuring 9 feet, must prove objects of interest to all those who accompany the excursion to Ottawa, July 21st. Tickets, $2.25, good to return on any regular train for three days.

Remnants of Prints, remnants of Muslins, remnants of Cottons, selling this week for Remnant prices at Turnbull's.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

A shaft of Electricity strikes a Young Man With Fatal Results.

This morning between the hours of eight and nine o'clock a terribly sudden death occurred in the south east part of the township of Ennismore.

A young man named John Haggart, aged about seventeen years, was at work digging in a cellar on the property of Mr. Wm. Hivington, about a mile east of the Ennismore cross. Mr. Hivington and a mason were also in the cellar. Suddenly a shaft of lightning darted down and struck young Haggart, instantly killing him.

The effect of the shock was felt by the others in the cellar, both being stunned for some time, but no serious result is apprehended. The deceased is a native of Ennismore, and has been employed as a farm labourer. He has several relatives in the township.

Dr. O'Shea was summoned and has gone out to attend to the injuries, which the other two received since.

Since the above was in type the following particulars have been received:—A thunder storm was coming on and one of the men went to put up a place for shelter. The bolt struck the chimney, and scattering the bricks in all directions, ran down to the cellar, where it struck the young man on the head. His clothes were partly torn off and set on fire. It seemed as if the flash must have ascended again, for one of the inmates of the house, Miss Hivington, was struck on the foot and another girl in the same room fell down into the cellar, but fortunately escaped serious injury. Mr. James Haggart was wounded in the head by falling bricks.

Annual Picnic.

The annual picnic under the auspices of the St. John's Church Sunday School was held on Wednesday. The children of the school, parents and teachers went down over the Ontario and Quebec Railway to Norwood, where they spent a very pleasant day. They appreciated heartily the interest which was taken in them by the Norwood people.

The Volunteers' Return. The return of the volunteers from the North-west where they have covered themselves with glory by their gallant charges and soldierly conduct throughout the campaign, is now measured by days. The question "what is being done toward a proper reception?" is now asked. The question, so far as Peterborough is concerned, is easily answered. Nothing is being done; no movement whatever is on foot to receive home again, those who have faithfully served their country. The officers of the Battalion naturally feel that they are not the ones to take the initiative in the matter; it is the people who should take the matter in hand. A meeting of the Town Council will be held to-morrow night when it is to be hoped that some action will be taken.

Turnbull's Boys' ready-made clothing department is now well assorted in all the leading styles.

The Best in the World. The attraction at the Lansdowne Roller Rink on Friday and Saturday evenings will be the champion double trick bicyclists of the world, Messrs. Westbrook and Hacker. The daring and thrilling feats performed by these two celebrities, are said to be simply marvellous, and they are justly entitled to the proud title they hold, that of the champion double trick and acrobatic bicyclists of the world. They have travelled all through the United States, and are now on a tour through the principal cities in Canada. Mr. Brown, the indefatigable manager of the Lansdowne Rink, has made arrangements to bring them here at a very large expense, and the public should turn out en masse and attend the rink on Friday and Saturday evenings. Watch for the pretty parade from the Post Office corner to-morrow evening. Don't miss seeing this rare treat.

LADIES high-cut pebble Button and Laced Boots at $1.00 per pair at JOHNSTON CAREY'S.

In Trouble. John Smith, better known as the "big pants" man, seems to have been getting into trouble. At about eight o'clock on Wednesday evening he entered a butcher shop in the north end and asked for a piece of beef. The meat was produced and John proceeded to examine it with the critical eye of a connoisseur. When he came to pay for it he made some remarks about the price, which the butcher did not seem to like. An argument ensued, during the heat of which John removed his huge coat and showed signs of backing up his arguments by force. By a dexterous flank movement, however, the coat was secured and carried out. When the owner found this out he followed it and left the premises. Others, though, took up the butcher's side of the question and followed Mr. Smith as far as the first corner. Here another debate ensued, during which many emphatic adjectives were used. Several local speculators were just commencing to bet on the result of what seemed to be an impending pugilistic contest, when the verbal difficulties ceased and all meandered off in different directions.

JULY 1st 1885.

GEORGE STREET, PETERBOROUGH.

An Ayah's Terrible Revenge.

The steamship Valenta, which arrived at Plymouth last evening, was, on the voyage, the scene of a deplorable murder and suicide. Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Abbott, with two children, one a Japanese ayah, who became much excited, and in consequence of a remark she let fall, the children and nurse were closely watched. In the evening, however, while Mr. Abbott was sitting in the saloon, he turned away for a minute, when the woman seized the eldest child, a beautiful, fair haired girl, 6 years old, and thrust her through one of the ports, then jumping out herself. Both fell into the sea, and although the steamer was stopped and boats got out, nothing could be seen of the child, how doleful had been mused down in the vortex caused by the screw. The poor child was a favorite on board.—London Daily Telegraph.

OUR LITTLE DARLINGS. In memory of Ida, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Miller, who died July 7, 1885, aged 15 months.

"For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." Hark, I hear a soft voice calling Through the stillness of the night, Saying, come ye little children To the land where all is bright.

In My Father's house are mansions Well prepared, by His own hand; He is calling for His loved ones; Come and join their happy band.

By a suffering infant's cradle, Where the grieving parents wept, Hark the summons, through the stillness As they their lovely vigils kept.

Tis the voice of Christ that speaketh; Hark the sweet child to come; In My arms I'll safely bear it To a bright eternal home.

Then upon the wings of Angels, Soared the little soul away, To ascend into the radiance Of the shining land above.

There, the crimson hand of fever Never shall paint that lily brow, And no cry of pain or anguish Mar her rest, so peaceful now.

Lo, I see the Heaven-gates open— See a band of children fair; Oh, the smiling little Angels, All in bright robes standing there.

How their tones with gladness tremble, As they tread the paths of light, Singing fondly, in their gladness, Little sister comes to-night.

Then unto the brink they hasten, Where the blood-washed souls arise, And they welcome home their sister To a mansion in the skies.

Now their Angel feet together, Range the plains of glory fair, And her voice doth sweetly mingle In their choir celestial there.

Where, forever and forever, Waileh the canopy of love, Wait and watch those priceless darlings In their blessed home above.

TEOPOES ON THE WAY HOME

Col. Williams' Body on Route—Narrow Escape of Two Militiamen.

PRINCE ALBERT, N. W. T., July 8.—The steamer Northwest has left here for the Elbow, to help off the steamer Baroness, which is hard aground with the Fifty-Fifth on board.

COMING HOME.

The Militiamen, Tenth Royals, Queen's Own, Foot Guards and Ninetieth Battalions, which arrived this morning by the steamer Northwest and Marquis, leave at once for home.

INDIAN PRISONERS.

Big Bear and all the captured chiefs of his band leave here tomorrow for Regina, where they will be imprisoned, pending their trial. Thirty witnesses also go down with the prisoners.

SWEET OVERBOARD.

The steamer which brought the troops to this point were very much crowded, causing great inconvenience to the men. Two men belonging to the Midland Battalion were swept overboard, owing to the crowding, but were rescued.

THE DEAD HERO.

WINNIPEG, July 9.—Captain Reid, paymaster of the Midland Battalion, is en route here with the body of Col. Williams and is expected to arrive to-morrow night.

WATCHING FOR LITTLE POPULAR.

The police are on the look-out for Little Poplar, and expect to capture him before long. They are reported to be on the road south, making for American territory.

LEFT PRINCE ALBERT.

The troops left Prince Albert at noon yesterday, getting off sooner than they expected, and will reach Grand Rapids on Friday night.

MIDLANDS ANXIOUS TO FURNISH.

General Middleton telegraphed Acting-Major Carruthers to-day that the troops would probably arrive at Winnipeg Monday afternoon. He also expressed a wish to meet the views of the citizens regarding all the troops passing through Winnipeg; but the Militiamen are anxious to press forward to attend their lamented colonel's funeral, and the Toronto and Montreal regiments are anxious to get back as soon as possible. He had directed all the other regiments to be kept at Winnipeg until he arrived, and if it will please the people of Winnipeg he will have a review of the whole of them before they start.

LEFT HUMBOLDT.

HUMBOLDT, N. W. T., July 9.—The Governor-General's Body Guard and the York and Simcoe Battalions left here this morning for home. They take trail to Troy, train thence to Winnipeg, and will probably go by boat from Port Arthur.

Just received at Habillment Hall, a fine lot of Men's Lisle Coats, just the thing for hot weather. A. McNEIL.

A New Comet.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 9.—Prof. Barnard of Vanderbilt university observatory, Nashville, Tenn., discovered on the evening of July 7th a pretty large but very faint comet in Ophiuchus. Its position was in right ascension, 17 hours, 21 minutes, 24 seconds; declination south, 4 hours, 57 minutes, 18 seconds; daily motion, 35 minutes southwest. With the telescope of the Warner observatory Prof. Barnard observed last evening that the surface of the comet was sprinkled over with very minute bright points like a resolved nebula. This discovery will clearly entitle the discoverer to the Warner prize of $300 for the first discovery of a new comet during the year 1885.

A Fatal Explosion.

The West Flamboro' paper mill was partially wrecked on Wednesday afternoon by the explosion of the boiler. Mr. Still, a member of the firm, and E. Maloney, the fireman, were instantly killed, and another employee was seriously injured.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

FOUR PERSONS INJURED AND ONE MAN KILLED BY THE TATAL BOLT.

Full Particulars Regarding the Sad Death of John Haggart—Those Injured in a Fair Way to Recovery.

Dr. O'Shea, who went out to Ennismore on Thursday afternoon to attend those who suffered from the effects of the lightning bolt that killed John Haggart, has returned, and in conversation with our reporter to day furnished additional particulars.

It seems that Mr. Wm. Rivington was having the cellar under his house deepened, and in order to allow the men engaged sufficient light to work and a means of disposing of the earth, the house had been raised on posts from its foundation. Mr. A. Davidson, of Otonabee, a stone mason, and John Haggart, the adopted son of Mr. Rivington, were at work in the cellar. Mr. Paul Costello, a neighbour living about a quarter of a mile distant, came over to see Mr. Rivington, but the latter being out in the fields, Mr. Costello went down into the cellar and commenced chatting to the two while they were engaged at work. A thunder-storm came on, and James Haggart went to put boards over the cellar wing, so that the water would not get into the cellar. While doing so,

A BOLT OF LIGHTNING

struck the chimney of the house and demolished it in an instant, sending the bricks flying in all directions. It ran down the chimney into the stove throwing the lid off and smashing them into atoms. Escaping from the stove it fell on the floor and burrowed a ragged hole about two inches in diameter through it. Immediately under the floor where the hole was bored there was a thick cedar beam. This seemed to break the flow as it ran along it each way and a part left it altogether, striking the young man John Haggart on the back of the skull about midway between the ears and

INSTANTLY KILLING HIM.

His skull was crushed into a pulpy mass, though the hair and skin appeared to be uninjured. The other two men were knocked down also. The field came in contact with Mr. Davidson just above the right ear, singeing his hair and whiskers. It ran down his neck and then across his breast leaving a track about two inches broad. Mr. Davidson happened to be bending forward at the time, and after passing over the abdomen it left the body for an instant and jumped across to the left leg about half way between the knee and the hip. His garter drawers and his pants were torn into fragments. It ran down the leg a little way and then left the body. Mr. Davidson was INJURED FOR TWO HOURS.

and Mr. Costello felt the shock so severely that he lay for half an hour before he was brought back to consciousness.

When the lightning struck the cedar beam, as was before stated, it ran along each way. During its progress long sticks were torn out six feet long and several inches thick, and small splinters flew around by the hundred. The current ran southward along the beam for a few yards until it reached the spot under a trap door of the kitchen. Miss Rivington was sitting on a chair with her foot on the trap door. It was burst open and shattered to pieces. Miss Rivington's foot was struck and an ugly cut in the under part of it was inflicted. No bones were, however, broken. A little girl, a sister of the deceased, also living with the family, was standing near when the door flew upward. Some agency seemed to draw her into the opening and she fell to the cellar below. She fortunately escaped injury beyond a few trivial bruises and a rather severe shock to the system. The current, when running northward along the beam, also took an upward tendency when it had gone a few yards. It entered the pantry through the floor, and threw dishes to the floor, SMASHING THEM IN PIECES.

and doing much damage to the furniture. The force of the bolt then appeared to be expended, for no further injury was done.

When Dr. O'Shea arrived he found in the body of the young man, John Haggart, and Mr. Davidson in a very critical condition. The latter had had quite freely from the right ear, and the shock he had received was very severe. His wounds were dressed, and when the doctor left last evening he showed signs of being on the mend. Mr. Costello was removed to his house and was able to walk around by evening. Miss Rivington's wound was found to be very painful. The bottom of the foot was more torn than that, the wound being of a ragged character. The top of the foot was not touched in the slightest, but the sole of the shoe was

LIFE QUITE EXTINGUISHED

GOVERNMENT PRINTING.

Mr. Somerville, M.P., has made a scurrilous attack on the Macdonald Administration, and upon certain printers, by uttering statements which he, as a printer himself, knows to be false. His charge is that Government printing, which ought to have been done by the contractors, and would have been done much cheaper by them, has been given to other offices at excessive prices for corrupt motives. Mr. Somerville's statements are deliberate falsehoods in every particular. The work has been done at the regular prices, fixed by the Macdonald Administration. It is not departmental work included in the printing contract, but is work of such a nature as has always been given to outside offices, even by the Macdonald Administration. Some of the work is not even under the control of the Government, but is ordered as usual by the bodies requiring it. As to the charge of corruption it is absurd, and indeed the only instance particularized by Mr. Somerville was that the Government had attempted to corrupt the independent Montreal Star by a printing bill for $60, a charge more disgraceful to Mr. Somerville than to the Star or the Administration.

And this false accusation is supported by Reform journals, which are as well aware that it is false, among others by the Globe. Yet the Globe could see no wrong when the Macdonald Administration, to award the Speaker for political services, gave him a large amount of departmental job printing, though not having a job office he did not perform it, could not perform it, and never intended to perform it, the arrangement being simply made to put a large sum in his pocket which he had not earned. And so clearly was this contract work that the people of Canada had to pay the contractors as well as Mr. Anglin.

This was an outrage, but its defenders dealt with a legitimate and economical business arrangement because they must attack the Government and the Conservative journals in some manner, and cannot successfully assail their policy.

The exposure of Mr. Blake's little tactics by the reading in the House of his letter to a man of the name of Brown, offering to put himself in secret communication with him for the purpose of gaining information, and to facilitate his obtaining public work that he might be the better able to set the spy, fall like a thunder clap upon the leader of the Opposition. It is a small business for the head of a party.

MANITOBA'S CHEATING BILL.

Protests Against it from Manitoba itself, Toronto and Montreal.

OTTAWA, July 8.—A deputation representing boards of trade of Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton and Winnipeg had an interview to-day, first with Sir John and afterwards with Sir Alex. Campbell. A petition from Manitoba with nearly 5,000 signatures of farmers and other residents against the cheating bill was presented. Both honorable gentlemen are strongly opposed to this "cheating" bill, and it is confidently believed that they will find some way of frustrating the intended outrage.

Criminal Negligence.

In a singular particular Mr. Blake was precise. He says that the halfbrothers of the Northwest pretended to be placed on the same footing with their brethren of Manitoba. It is true, they did so; and we ask the careful attention of our readers to the criminal negligence in which Sir John Macdonald dealt with that matter. It is true that the halfbrothers of the territories asked for the land scrip their brethren in Manitoba had received, but it was the Macdonald Government which was so negligent, and it was the Macdonald Government which refused the request. And because the Government of which he himself was a member refused this request, Mr. Blake had the unblushing effrontery to charge the present Government with "criminal negligence" of a plain duty.—Hamilton Spectator.

Wine Out of a Limestone Bottle.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, July 8.—At a family dinner in Scott county on Wednesday which was attended by a dozen relatives of the Baker family, wine was served from a bottle which had recently contained limestone. All partook of the wine, and in a few minutes the entire party were seized with terrible illness. Their eyeballs swelled to an abnormal degree. Great drops of froth issued from their mouths, and the sick persons bit at themselves and nearly tore off their clothing. In their agony they screamed and rolled on the floor. Physicians were summoned, but one of the victims died before aid could be rendered. Another will die. Five others were rescued by heroic treatment.

A Moral Compass.

The Fall Mill Gazette is busy stirring up the moral, or rather immoral, waters of London. But the Gazette is telling nothing new. London is only a modern Babylon, and the same sins flourish now that did when there were emperors in Rome. Every now and then a newspaper or a social reformer stirs up the pool, but the waters soon subside and become less noxious—after a post spot is less disagreeable when left alone than when agitated, even by a sponge.—Toronto World.

ON THE DIAMOND FIELD.

THE HOME TEAM BADLY WORSTED BY THE UXBIDGE BASEBALLERS.

The Visitors Run up a Score of Twenty-One Runs in Four Innings to Their Opponents' Four—A "Rainy" Day for Baseball.

The first baseball match of the season in Peterborough, as was expected, resulted in a decisive defeat for the home team. A day or two ago the Uxbridge club communicated to a member of the Silver Stars club, stating that they would like to arrange a match for Thursday. But the Silver Stars have practically ceased to exist as an organized club for some time. The communication, however, was handed over to the Athletic Association, and it was decided to give the Uxbridge team a match.

The visiting team arrived on the noon train on Thursday, and at shortly before three o'clock went over to the grounds. The teams took up their position as follows:—

Uxbridge. Pitcher.....Geo. Hutton
Geo. Hutton.....Catcher.....J. Lynch
Ed. Weeks.....1st Base.....W. Sabine
D. Gladstone.....2nd Base.....C. A. Lawford
R. Vickers.....Short Stop.....E. W. Carter
W. Wingfield.....3rd Base.....J. H. Long
A. Ooms.....Centre Field.....W. Logan
R. Crosby.....Right Field.....T. Kindred
W. Richards.....Left Field.....B. J. Salisbury

As will be seen by the names of the home team, only one or two of the old Silver Stars played in the match, the players being composed exclusively of members of the association, mostly cricketers. Considering that some of the team never played a game of baseball before, the play was not creditable. The Stars went first to the bat and retired at the end of the innings, to give place to the visitors, without having succeeded in getting one man around the diamond. The Uxbridge men went in and at the end of the innings their score tallied up twelve in all, Ried, Braser, Weeks, Crosby and Vickers having each made doubles. The next innings the Silver Stars succeeded in getting in three runs, the third was another "whitewash," and the fourth and last, another run was added to the score. Of the home team there was not a great amount of brilliant individual play. Hutton, however, brought his cricket specialty into good use by cleverly catching out several of the visitors. The catching of the rest of the team consisted of "muffs." The visitors played well together and are a fairly good amateur team. The following is the score:—

Uxbridge.....12 4 3 2—31
Silver Stars.....0 0 0 1—4

The four innings were not finished until nearly five o'clock, the rain having interfered with the players of the match at the commencement.

CHEESE MARKET.

The regular fortnightly cheese market was held on Thursday afternoon.

The quotations stood as follows: Liverpool, 40s shillings; Woodstock, from 7½ to 8½ cents; Little Falls, from 7½ to 7½. The buyers present were: Mr. C. E. Bartlett, for Messrs. Kirkpatrick and Cookson, Montreal; Mr. C. W. Cook, for Messrs. Warrington, Belleville; Mr. W. H. Wrighton, for Messrs. Ayres & Co., Montreal; Mr. J. W. Flavelle.

Messrs. Drummond and Taylor conducted the market.

The amount of cheese offered was as follows: The cheese was chiefly that of the last half of June make.

On bids being invited, Mr. W. H. Wrighton offered 7½ for the whole lot.

Mr. Bartlett called attention to the fact that more care should be taken in preparing the cheese for shipment. Especially should they be properly greased.

Mr. Flavelle agreed with Mr. Bartlett.

A short discussion ensued as to the factory having made a sale at the market and afterwards accepted a private bid.

The President stated that this was against the rules of the market.

Mr. Wrighton bid 7½, and Mr. Cook offered 7½. Mr. Flavelle followed with 7½, and Mr. Bartlett with 7½. Mr. Flavelle then offered 7½ for the whole lot, or 7½ for the three small lots of the first half of June. On the factories being called all the salesmen, with the exception of the representative of Lilly Lake, who held out for 8 cents, withdrew.

A FATAL QUARREL.

Man's Skull Fractured with a Pistol on the Head—Searching for the Murderer.

MONTREAL, Ont., July 9.—A horrible murder was committed here about seven o'clock last night. John O'Donnell and Joseph Murphy began quarrelling on their way from work. Words led to blows, when O'Donnell struck Murphy several times on the head with a pistol. Murphy's head, fracturing the skull. Medical aid was called in, but was of no avail, as the man died within three hours. The murderer made his escape in the confusion, and although search parties are out in all directions he has not been found yet.

LAKEFIELD.

Correspondence of the Review.

REPORTED DROWNED.—There was a rumour in the village that a man in a punt had been carried over the dam and drowned, but upon enquiry was found to be a mistake. It seems that some boys out of mischief let a punt loose, which was carried over the dam, and then, to shield themselves, started the above report.

THE SEWER.—Mr. Isaac Watson, contractor for the sewer, is busily at work, and is making good progress.

OUR ANNUARY.—A meeting was held on July 7th for the purpose of organizing a grand celebration of the Decenary of the Incorporation of this Village, on August the 4th, and it was resolved to have a cricket match in the afternoon, regatta in the afternoon, and illuminations in the evening. The following committees were chosen:—Cricket and Train Committee, Regatta Committee, Illumination Committee, Committee to wait on the Council, and a Committee to obtain subscriptions.

ATTACKED BY A BOAR.—Mr. W. Trade had his leg badly ripped by a boar last Monday. He luckily had a heavy hammer in his hand, and was able to knock the animal over and escape. It is a nasty wound, but is healing as quickly as can be expected.

Exchange of Mails.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The Postmaster-General has issued the following order:—"Ordered, the Canada Office having concurred therein, that a daily exchange of mails be established between the United States post offices at St. Albans and Hoose Junction, and the Canadian post offices at Montreal and St. Armand, the mails from Canada to comprise correspondence (except book packets) for the Middle and Southern States, and for post offices in Massachusetts, Vermont, and Connecticut, named in the list furnished by the General Superintendent of the United States railway mail service, under date of the 28th of March, 1886. This order to take effect at once."

Real sympathizers.

QUEBEC, July 8.—The adjourned meeting of Riel's sympathizers took place to-night at Jacques Cartier's hall square, about 5,000 persons being present. The meeting was addressed by L. E. Pellerin, secretary of the committee, and by other French Canadian gentlemen. Owen Murphy, ex-mayor of Quebec, also addressed the meeting, and assimilated the present cause to that of the Irish, who, he said, if a proper appeal was made, would readily give their support.

The following resolutions were adopted:

"That in the interest of justice, which orders that all British subjects who are accused of a criminal offence shall be entitled to a complete and impartial trial, and that to attain that end considerable sums must be forthcoming to obtain that result."

"It is resolved that a public subscription be taken, seeing that halfbreeds have not the means necessary to obtain that end."

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the hands off our 60 Cable box, and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, palming them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the hands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (15c) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c) ten cents for our (6c) "Cable" cigars, and (15c) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

THE COURT HOUSE PARK.

The gentlemen who have charge of the improvements made in the Court House Park have done a good work. In addition to the money placed in their hands, several of them have gone to personal expense in connection with it. Their services deserved to be recognized, and we believe that the acknowledgment could be made in a way that would be appreciated more than formal or public thanks, namely by the citizens generally becoming members of the Horticultural Society, and thus placing more funds at their disposal for beautifying the grounds. This would be a practical way of signifying public approval of their efforts, it would be appreciated by them and would assist them to carry on the good work which has had such a good beginning.

The Reformers would have the people believe that they took a great interest in the welfare of the settlers in the Northwest, and some of them do take considerable interest in settlers' affairs. For instance, Mr. Cameron, Reform representative of Haron, wrote to the Department of the Interior requesting that a patent be granted to a settler until $4,000 owing to him was secured. His interest was represented by per cent, and many others who talked loudly were similarly situated, while a number of agitators expected that money would be made by buying up scrip, and in other ways. Riel's deep interest in the affairs of the half breeds amounted to $40 a month, paid to him, and he generously offered (for their sake, no doubt, and not his own) to abandon them and the agitation for $5,000. The half breeds would have been happy if they had not had interested friends.

The opponents of the Government profess to believe that the appointment of the Commission to enquire into the claims of the halfbreeds shows that the Government had neglected the claims of the halfbreeds, and are therefore responsible for the trouble consequent upon the rising. It might as well be argued that additional presents given to Indian chiefs, to keep them quiet until the trouble was over, showed that the Indians had been deprived of rights. The halfbreeds who joined the rebellion had been told that the commission would be appointed, and it has been said that this statement hastened the rising, as the leaders feared that they would lose the ground in which they had built their hopes of causing the halfbreeds to rise. Besides, none of the halfbreeds had been ejected from their lands or otherwise disturbed, and even if their claim was a valid one it would not justify a rebellion.

It is the sympathy of the whole country, and the knowledge that throughout the Dominion the loss of the late Col. A. T. H. Williams is keenly felt, and in any degree alleviate the sorrow of his friends, they have that knowledge and sympathy. The press, from one end of the Dominion to the other, has voiced public opinion, and sentences like the following from the Montreal Post have found a place in the editorial columns of all our exchanges:—

"The intelligence of the sad event will be received everywhere with feelings of the deepest regret, for the deceased gentleman was universally esteemed and respected as a citizen, a soldier, and as a representative of his country. He was in command of the Midland Battalion, which rendered effective and gallant service at critical moments on the battlefield."

The Reform papers have been insisting that a recent United States Treasury circular did away with the transmission of goods in bond through Canada. As they were told at the time, as is now explained by the U. S. official, the order simply requires that goods shipped from one port in the States to another, partly by water and partly by Canadian railway, would require a foreign clearance, but would be allowed free entry. This is a much smaller matter.

The Bradford Knights of Labor have been condemning Chinese immigration, the Chinese Commission, and the disallowance of the British Columbia Act. They do not seem to know at Bradford that on the report of that Commission the Macdonald Administration has introduced and passed through the House of Commons a bill suppressing Chinese immigration.

FIRE, WATER AND LIGHT.

Councillor RUTHERFORD read the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee as follows:—

To the Mayor and Town Council:—

GEORGE RUTHERFORD, Chairman of Fire, and Light, beg leave to report that they have ordered 20 feet of Maltese Cream hose at the price of $1.10 per foot, couplings included.

We recommend that your Committee have the power to procure proper couplings for what said hose we have on hand.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. RUTHERFORD, Chairman.

The report was received and adopted.

FIRE PROTECTION.

The by-law to provide for the supply of water for fire purposes and other public uses was read for the first time. The Council went into a Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the by-law, Councillor Davidson in the chair.

The first and second clauses passed and a discussion arose on the third.

Councillor McNAUGHTON thought that the time for the completion of the system should be shortened.

Councillors RUTHERFORD, HARTLEY and the Mayor supported the leaving the date 1st, 1887. It was the interest of the Company to have the system completed as soon as possible, as no hydrant rental would be paid until the hydrants were down.

The third clause passed. The fourth clause passed also.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor McCLELLAND, that the vote be an open one.

Councillor McNAUGHTON moved to amend, seconded by Councillor McNAUGHTON—that the vote be taken by ballot.

Councillor McNAUGHTON vigorously objected to an open vote being taken. Manufacturers have a large influence over their employees and in justice to all, he supported a vote by ballot.

Councillors HARTLEY and McCLELLAND thought that a free open vote should be taken. Councillor DOUGLAS did not care a copper what vote was taken; he thought however, that a vote by ballot was the fairer.

Councillor KELLY pointed out that $60 on thereabout would be saved if an open vote be taken. No ballot should have to be obtained. He thought the vote should be taken in one place.

Councillor MENZIES did not look on this matter in a light manner as some of the Councillors seemed disposed. It involved the expenditure of $3,000 a year; and a fair, legal vote should be taken.

After some further discussion the amendment was put and lost and Councillor Rutherford's motion was carried.

The additional clause then passed and the committee rose.

NEW TOWN BUILDINGS.

The by-law to provide funds for a new Town Hall, lock up and so forth, was read for the first time. The Council went into a Committee of the Whole on the second reading, Councillor HARTLEY in the chair.

Councillor CAHILL asked if the money for the remodeling of the buildings might be obtained from the Town Commissioners?

Councillor RUTHERFORD replied that he had waited on the commissioners, but did not think it could be procured from that source.

Councillor DAVIDSON objected to the clause, and looked on the remodeling of the town buildings as a useless expenditure. Six thousand dollars might be spent, and in a few years, if the town continued to progress as it has done heretofore, another building would be required.

Councillor RUTHERFORD stated that the estimated improvements would cost only $4,500. He strongly advocated having the new offices constructed.

streets. If the fund for remodeling the Town Buildings was to be raised by the issue of debentures, he did not see why this money should not be obtained in the same way by simply including the amount required in the debentures.

Councillor McCLELLAND agreed with Councillor Cahill.

Councillor DAVIDSON took a different view. He did not support the raising money by debentures for local improvements. The town debt was one of the lightest of any in the Province, and he did not support this piling up of any debt.

The Mayor spoke in accord with Councillors Cahill and McClelland. The remodeling of the town buildings for office and the constructing of bridges would be permanent improvements.

Councillor KELLY also agreed with the last speakers in raising money by debentures for permanent improvements. But there was another thing he thought to be of equal importance with town offices or bridges—it was the constructing of a proper system of sewerage.

Councillor MENZIES included that, too, Mr. Kelly.

Councillor KELLY—I'll come to that after a while. He then went on to say that a proper system of sewerage was urgently needed here and the money for its construction might be raised by the issue of debentures also.

Councillor MENZIES favored selling the town buildings and renting the present chamber for another year, so that more information might be obtained for the erection of a new city hall.

The Mayor said that the immediate remodeling of the town buildings would actually save the town $150 a year. The buildings cost $4,000, the improvements would cost $6,000, making in all $10,000. The annual rental paid for the present chamber was $600 and the interest on $10,000 at 5 per cent was only $500.

The first clause then passed.

Councillor MENZIES moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS, that the vote taken be an open one. The motion was lost. The other clauses were read, the by-law passed its second reading, and the Committee rose.

BACK INTO COMMITTEE.

Councillor DAVIDSON moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS, that the By-law re Waterworks be amended, so that the elections be held on the same day as the town buildings be laid on.—Carried.

The Council went back into Committee of the Whole to fix the date named in Councillor Davidson's motion. After doing this the Committee rose.

THE GRANT.

Councillor KELLY moved, in accordance with the notice of the motion, to amend the resolution, seconded by Councillor McCLELLAND. That this Council grant the sum of $300 to the Central Exhibition, and that the Clerk have a by-law prepared for that purpose.

The motion was carried on the following division:—

YEAS.—Councillors Cahill, Davidson, McNaughton, Kelly, Green, McClelland and Yelland.

NAYS.—Councillors Douglas, Rutherford, Menzies, Kennedy and Hartley.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

Councillor KENNEY moved, seconded by Councillor HARTLEY, that the sidewalk be laid along the street running to the cemetery in the North Ward.—Street and Bridge Committee.

Councillor MENZIES moved, seconded by Councillor HARTLEY, that the street north from Water street, especially a hill in front of Mr. Dunoon McDonald's house, be graded, and that it be made possible, and that the street inspector be allowed to have the said street put in good repair.—Street and Bridge Committee.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved, seconded by Councillor DOUGLAS, that the Street Inspector be instructed to at once have the said street water-tabled, and the large spaces taken off, and a new walk laid from the railway to Mr. house.—Street and Bridge Committee.

CHARITY.

Mr. BURROWS verbally addressed the Council in reference to his indigent state and asked that he be kept at the corporation expense. The matter was referred to the Charity Committee.

EXEMPTIONS.

Councillor CAHILL moved, seconded by Councillor McCLELLAND, that Councillors Davidson, Douglas, Menzies and Rutherford be a special committee to take into consideration the exempting from taxation of several new industries.—Carried.

Councillor RUTHERFORD moved the following resolution to be laid before the committee for their consideration:—

That whereas several applications have been made to this Council for the encouraging of certain industries by granting exemption, or partial exemption, from taxation, and that the wisdom of granting such to industries that employ labor largely has been offered and acted upon by this Council heretofore, it is desirable that such industries as have been so aided, and also as may be aided in the future, should be placed upon the same footing, and the capitalists shall be informed that this Council is prepared to grant such aid to new industries as they may approve of from time to time.

Be it therefore resolved that exemption from taxation at present existing be extended for ten years from the first of January next, and that all such new exemptions, whether total or partial, as it may be decided wise by this Council to place, shall run from the said first day of January for a like period of ten years, whereby all exemptions will expire at the same time and leave all industries as aided in the same position, and the Council free to deal with the whole question as their existing circumstances may require.

The Council then adjourned to meet at the call of the Mayor after a four hours' session.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain and cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, no mother can afford to be without it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind, colic, soothes the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for children teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the purest and most efficacious in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the hands off our 5c Cable 5c, and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brand on cheap, trashy cigars, passing them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brands of our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (15c.) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c.) ten cents for our (5c.) "Cable" cigars, and (15c.) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c.) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE GOOD TIMBER.

It may be interesting to your readers, says D. G. LONDON, to the Journal of Progress, to know that the microscope is of great value in testing the quality of wood. It is stated that if the microscope condenses the sample further delay in testing is not necessary. The larger the specimens to be tested the greater will be the gain the microscope will effect in avoiding the cost of further proof. Samples and microphotographs of bridge timbers which have proved faulty, but which a preliminary examination with the microscope would have thrown out, have been exhibited in America. The timber from which these specimens were taken was a fragment from a railway bridge wrecked in 1878. The timber was so excessively poor, that on mounting a specimen on the plate of the microscope, its weak and porous nature was at once apparent. The annual rings appeared about three times as far apart as they would be in good wood of a similar kind. The medullary rays were few in number and short in length, whilst in good wood they are of considerable length, and so numerous that tangential sections present the appearance of a series of tubes seen endwise on a number of parallel chains. After one seeing and comparing samples of good and bad wood, it is easy to recognize the difference with a pocket magnifying glass. The trunks and limbs of exogenous trees, as it is well known, are built up of concentric rings or layers of woody fibre which are held together by radial plates acting like tree-nails on the inside. The rings, representing successive years' growth, are composed of tubes, the interstices of which are filled with cellulose. The slower the growth of the tree, the thinner these yearly rings and the denser and harder the wood, other things being equal. Not only is the closeness of texture and indication of the hardness and strength of the timber, but the size, frequency, and distribution of the radial plates which bind the annual layers together may be taken as a very close illustration or sign of the character of the wood and its ability to resist strains, especially a breaking strain. The microphotographs of good and bad timber show that in the strong kinds the concentric layers are close in texture, narrow in width and the radial plates numerous, wide, long, and stout, while in poor stuff the opposite characteristics prevail. The practical application consists in having such enlarged photographic sections longitudinal and transverse of standard pieces of timber bearing a certain known maximum or minimum strain, and rejecting any piece which the assisted eye detects to have fewer rings per inch of diameter, fewer fibres, or fewer radial plates per square inch of section, or to use such pieces with a greater factor of safety. The advantage of the method is that it allows the timber to be tested before being used.

THE ORANGEMEN AT MILLBROOK.

A Large Demonstration - Thirty-Four

Lodges Met to Celebrate the Day.

By Telephone to the Review.

MILLBROOK, July 13, 3 p.m.—The orangemen from the Peterborough district reached here at a half hour's run. Two lodges were taken up at Fraserville. At the Millbrook station a procession was formed, in which the districts of

East and West Peterborough, Cobourg, Port

Hope, Manvers and Cavan were represented.

The procession, in which were several bands, proceeded through the principal streets and then dispersed for dinner. The whole village was literally covered with flags. There are altogether thirty-four lodges taking part in the demonstration.

Married vs. Single.

A one innings game of cricket between the married and single men of the Peterborough

Cricket Club was played on the grounds of the three A's, Ashburnham, Saturday afternoon, which resulted in a "walk over" for the single men by a majority of 22 and one wicket. The benefits went first to St. Mary's Strickland,

Grundy and Logan, and then to the willow for double figures in good style.

For the single men, Strickland, Hamilton

Mar, Craves and Hamilton Miles got double figures.

The match all through was played in good form, the batting and bowling being exceptionally good. The following is the score in full:—

INDIAN VOTERS.

Because we pointed out the hospitality offered by the Lord Mayor of London to an Indian chief, and suggested that it would now be in order for the Common Council to obstruct the chief business, the London Advertiser comments on us as follows:—

"This is a fair sample of Tory argument. Does anybody pretend that all Indians have reached the elevation of the reverend gentleman referred to—Rev. Mr. Chace, we believe. The Advertiser has from the beginning taken the ground that when the Indians are willing to assume the responsibilities of the white man, he should have the white man's privileges. We do not believe that even Dr. Oronohyukhe will contend that all Indians—Chippewas, for instance—are fit for self-government. In his letters he speaks merely of the Six Nations, and had in view principally the Mohawks and Oneidas, mainly the Mohawks. But the Tory goes on to talk round as issues they dare not meet squarely."

Before this, in reply to our remarks as to Dr. Oronohyukhe, the Advertiser admitted that he might have a vote. It now contends to be as liberal to this Indian chief, the Rev. Mr. Chace. Why not other educated Indians? And where would it draw the line, except as defined by the bill, that they should possess the same qualifications as white voters? It is beside the mark to say that all Indians have not reached the elevation of the reverend gentleman; all white men have not reached the elevation of the editor of the Advertiser, yet they are not deprived of votes. Neither would it be fair to forbid the ballot to an educated or industrious Indian, because he does not care to give up his tribal relations. We do not suppose that Dr. Oronohyukhe, or any other man, red or white, contends that all Indians are fit for self-government, neither are all white men. It is these very Six Nations Indians that Messrs. Mills, Patterson and the other obstructionists really object to, to obstruct the ballot. Those of them who are duly qualified will have votes, and those who are not duly qualified will not have votes. This is the only feasible, and the only just distinction.

ARMY RANK.

The London Worker is somewhat mistaken in the following remarks. It says:—

"The untimely death of Col. Williams gives effect to a point rarely experienced in military law. Major H. Smith, of the 7th Battalion, has been acting senior major of the Midland regiment. He, of course, becomes acting Lieut.-Col. commanding. Lieut.-Col. Deacon has been acting junior major, and will thus become acting senior major. Yet in reviews, field days, fighting or in anything except purely regimental duties, Col. Deacon will command Major Smith and the Midland regiment. The explanation is, for anything beyond simple regimental duties, Col. Deacon has been a Lieut.-Col. since 12th March, 1874; while Major Smith is simply major since the 21st May, 1877."

If Major Smith succeeds Col. Williams in the command of the Midland Battalion, he would command the regiment for reviews, fighting or any other duty. If the Midland were brigaded with any other corps, Col. Deacon, if the senior officer in army rank, would command the unit, but as soon as it was separated he would resume position in his own battalion. Far from a point rarely experienced in military law it is one of very common occurrences in the regular army of Great Britain, on account of the prevalence of brevet rank, which gives precedence in the army, but not in the regiment. Officers of foreign armies sometimes fail to understand this system, but in Canada, where there is the same rule in our militia, it might be supposed that there would be no difficulty in comprehending it. Our contemporary does not discriminate between army and regimental rank.

There can be no doubt that Col. Deacon would command either a regiment or a brigade in a most efficient manner, but the fact is as we have stated.

THE DAILY EVENING REVIEW is delivered to subscribers at ten cents per week.

GEN MIDDLETON AS A SPRINTER.

"I Didn't Know I Could Run so Fast as I—"

Among the unpublished incidents of the rebellion was one which at the time created more sensation and amusement than any other during its course. It happened on the last morning of the Balaklava fight, and is well known among the men as "The General's Run." That morning General Middleton had, for some reason known only to himself, wanted to see either a priest or some one else who was in the priest's house, which stood between the loyal and rebel lines, 400 yards from the former and but 200 from the latter. Accordingly he started out without a word to anyone, dressed in civilian's clothes, except that he wore a helmet. Capt. Young, brigade major, saw him start out with much apprehension, and was on the point of ordering a guard to attend to him, but feared that doing so would be much more likely to attract the attention of the enemy. The General reached the house in safety and was met at the door by the man with whom he had to converse. The interview ended, he started back but had hardly got twenty yards from the door when pop-pop-pop went the rebel rifles and bullets after him sped hurriedly by the General's person. This was the more remarkable, as the stout corporal body of the General looked a good round target to the enemy. The Commander-in-Chief thought it was time to get out of the way but he was no longer an athlete and his fat little legs were hardly capable of carrying their load at any great pace. He, however, did his best, and with a motion more like a waddle than a run increased his speed. His wind was no longer good, and soon began to give out, and as he waddled along the puff puff puff which came from his panting face was audible in the lines of his men. The rebels still kept pouring leaden hail after him, but whether the aim was bad or whether the waddle disconcerted it will perhaps never be known. At any rate they missed him every time. Captain Young, as soon as he saw the predicament of his chief, called for volunteers to go on and draw the fire of the rebels away from him, and accompanied by Major Kirwan, Lieut. Halliwell (who was three hours afterwards badly wounded), and two others, started out. They succeeded in their design, and probably saved the General's life. He kept on his way, panting, puffing and blowing until, with a face as red as a beet, and completely pumped out, he eventually reached the lines in safety. His musty bowler, having acquired much additional respect for his powers and pedestrianism, for as he fell exhausted on his camp bed he was heard to mutter: "I didn't know I could run so fast before."—Exchange.

Destroying Lawn Pests.

At this season, many lawns of lawns are troubled with plantains and dandelion plants taking possession and disfiguring "the velvet turf" that catches the eye of the beholder. The level rays of the setting sun." Of the various methods of exterminating recommended, the most efficient is that of cutting off the roots of the weeds below the surface, with a goose-shaped wadding-iron. Another vexatious lawn pest is the white grub or larva of the may beetle or June bug, which devours the roots, causing the grass above to wither. A remedy for these two lawn destroyers without removing the grass above them, was recently presented to the Western New York Horticultural Society, by Daniel Babcock, in these words: "My lawn has been to pieces the last year with a steel bar to the depth of about six inches, and to make the perforations about the same distance apart. Into these I poured caustic lime, washed from the spots of a watering pot, and the pulpy fellow is soon done for. After the lapse of a few days the denuded surface is thoroughly raked, and some mixed lawn seed sown upon it." And colonies are often another very serious pest of lawn owners, especially when the hills are made near the house. For these, crude carbolic acid, diluted with water, is recommended. Add one pound of the acid to two quarts of water, and pour a half pint or so into a hole made in the mound with a stick.

And Drowning Accident.

A despatch from Manitowish gives particulars of a sad drowning accident reported from that place some days ago.—On 26th June, six men named Baptiste Morin, Godfroi Morin, Thos. Thibault, Joseph Foubert, Napoleon Labell, and Louis Lator, employed by Messrs. Gilmour & Co., were working on the drive on the Ignace River. They were in a boat laden with beams, chains, and a barrel of pork. Their craft is supposed to have capsized in some of the rapid rapids; as no trace of it has been found, it is thought it must have sunk at once. The locality of the accident was a little below the farm of Messrs. Hamilton Bros., near this village. The bodies were discovered floating on the 28th. Two of them were interred here and the remainder were buried near the place where they were found. Lator was a married man and leaves a wife and seven children in an almost destitute condition.

Shading Cherry Plants.

A writer in the economist, in allusion to the common practice of setting out the plants of cherry during the heat of mid-summer when shading from the sun's rays will prevent them becoming badly wilted, states that he applies protection by first placing a few small sticks and then placing a board lengthwise on these sticks. The plants are hardened by removing the board in the cooler part of the day, and in the evening, increasing the time until it is left off altogether. To this statement we may add, that when cherry plants are set on the level surface and not in trenches (a practice now becoming common) the covering may be easily applied by placing a few bricks on edge across the row to support the board.

Why Fruits Should be Thinned.

No highly profitable tree has sufficient vigor to grow the fruit large; the demand is simply too great, and the strain is too great to the tree, causing many of the tree's effort to grow, and mature its seed. This it will do or fail. And this concentration upon the seed is at the expense of the remainder of the fruit, affecting its size and quality. The tree will remain much the same. If the demand here is lessened, which it will be by the reduction of the number of oases or specimens of fruit, the liberated force of the tree will be employed, among other things, in showing the seed and improving its flavor and quality of the fruit, leaving the tree at the same time in a healthy condition.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the brand off our "Cable" cigars, and sell them in imported boxes, or in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, passing them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brand off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the El Padre cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (10c.) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported cigar, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c.) ten cents for our "Cable" cigars, and (15c.) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c.) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when imported from Havana, and we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported cigar.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modera" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

DANIEL WITH TREACHERY.

AGAIN Mr. Blake finds that he has placed himself in a position that would be very galling to a man of honor. He is convicted on his own evidence, the production of which he challenged, of having endeavored to induce a spy to give information, and of having undertaken to facilitate his obtaining an appointment for a Government survey that he might use his position in this treacherous manner, even expressing regret that he could not procure him the employment.

Now as to the first lapse, the trafficking with a base spy, it may be alleged in excuse that such practices are common, but it certainly is striking very low for Mr. Blake to deal with such a person for such a war. That Mr. Blake knew he was doing something to be rebuked of, may be seen from his circuitous course. Mr. Blake's own account, as reported by the Globe, is as follows:—

"I requested a friend of mine to communicate with a friend in Toronto asking him to seek an interview with Mr. Brown, and my friend received from his friend in Toronto this letter:—

"That the friend of the friend of Mr. Blake, having had Brown 'looked up,' thinks that Mr. Blake's new friend is a 'tough citizen,' a 'dead beat' and 'looks hard,' and that the Globe thinks that Mr. Blake's spy has been found as an illicit whiskey seller, are hardly to be deemed mitigating circumstances. They only show, indeed, the kind of associations into which Mr. Blake brings himself by his unscrupulous efforts to injure his political opponents, and the sort of evidence he procures to bolster up his assertions upon the Administration.

But whatever may be thought of such tactics by an Opposition leader there can be no palliation for Mr. Blake's still graver offense. That he should connive at a spy laying his plans to obtain an appointment on a government survey; that far from scouting such treachery he undertook to keep his secret that he might have an opportunity to secure the appointment; that he even expressed the gladness with which he would have facilitated such a treacherous course; all this is so disgraceful that it is a humiliation to Canada that one of its party leaders has laid himself open to such obloquy.

If it had been an isolated case it might have been looked upon as a sad lapse from honor, the result perhaps of want of consideration and of a mind disturbed by the vindictive malice entertained against more successful and better trusted political rivals. But this paltering with base treachery on Mr. Blake's part cannot but call to mind his previous affair of a similar nature, when he connived with a cabinet minister to betray his colleagues and while still sitting in council with them to be plotting their betrayal to the Opposition led by Mr. Blake.

It is not surprising that some of the Reform party are endeavoring to effect a change of leadership.

Church of England Rubbed.

The Hon. and Rev. R. V. Bligh, of West Mallory, Kent, a member of the Church Association, has withdrawn from that body, avowedly on the ground that the chief position of "the enemy," by which he means the ritualists, namely, the ornate robes, the eastward and the confessional, "cannot be taken, or even turned," without some alteration in the rubric and paraphrasing of the Prayer Book. He has recently availed to the fact that it supports ritualism, it is not very consistent to remain a member of the Church Association, which takes action against ritualism on the ground that they are violating the Church of England's rules and laws, as set forth in the Prayer Book as it is.

Drowned in a Farm Pond.

MOORETON, Ont., July 9.—A sad and drowning accident occurred on the farm of Michael Nease, second concession of Poulton. Mr. Nease's son, a lad of 8 years, was watering the cows at a pond on the farm. Tempted by the warm weather, he went in for a wash. He got beyond his depth, and being unable to swim he was drowned before assistance arrived.

Orangemen from several Districts Present.
—An Impassioned Procession—Addresses by Clergymen and Others—The Late Col. Williams.

The twelfth of July having fallen on Sunday this year, the Orangemen held their annual celebration on the following day, the 13th. The members of the Order in West Peterborough were invited to take part in the celebration held at Millbrook, and they accepted it. Accordingly they went to Millbrook on that day.

Early in the morning a special train went to Lakeside for the Lakeside and other lodges, and the Five Brigade Band went north on it. At about ten o'clock the town lodges assembled and proceeded to the Murray street railway crossing, where they met the Lakeside, Douro and Dumfries lodges, and they then formed a procession and, headed by the band, marched to the Grand Trunk station. At about eleven o'clock the train departed for Millbrook. At Fraserville the lodge of that place and the Springville Lodge were taken on, and the well filled coaches reached Millbrook at about half past eleven.

THE PROCESSION.

Soon after the arrival of the Peterborough brethren a procession was formed west of the station, and proceeded through the main street. The following was the order of the procession:—Geo. Thorndyke, District Master of Cavan, and Robert Vance, Grand Marshal.

The Marshals of the day, besides the Grand Marshal, were David Falls and Walter Fisher. The procession traversed the full length of the main street, and when the lodge (thirty-two in all) got into order, the procession was a mile long. Besides the four brass bands mentioned, there were a number of file and drum bands, and each lodge carried a banner or flag. Four fine arches had been erected on the street, bearing appropriate mottoes, and flags were flying from almost every building.

As the procession moved down the street the sidewalks on each side were crowded with people, and it is probably a long time since Millbrook had such a large population within her borders before.

After marching for some distance, the Orangemen dispersed for dinner. The people of Millbrook had evidently expected a large number of visitors and had prepared for them. Besides the hotels, there were numerous dining halls running during the day, and the ladies of the Church of England and the Methodist Church had prepared to supply a large number. The Peterborough lodges and a large number of those who had accompanied them were directed to the Church of England, where they had the privilege of sitting down to a fine spread.

After dinner the bands played several tunes in front of their headquarters, after which, at about 2.30 o'clock, the procession was reformed and proceeded to the grove southeast of the village, where were to be delivered. In this large grove a platform had been constructed for the speakers and it was admirably situated, as the hill rose above it, so that the people could all see those who were addressing them. Bro. George Thorndyke, W.M. of Cavan District Lodge, was chairman, and among those on the platform were Bro. T. B. Collins, Millbrook, D.G.M.O. E. Bro. A. J. VanLagen, Cobourg, G.S.O.E.; Bro. John McCaughey, Cobourg, G.D. of O.O. E.; Bro. J. B. McWilliams, W.M. Peterborough county; Bro. E. J. W. Burton, W.M. Port Hope district; Bro. Jas. Evans, W.M. East Durham county; the Rev. Rural Dean Allen, Millbrook; the Rev. John Shaw, Toronto; the Rev. Wm. Armstrong, Ottawa, and Bro. G. W. Hall, Peterborough.

Bro. JAR. EVANS, County Master East Durham, was the first speaker. After a few congratulatory remarks as to the success of the demonstration, he said that in looking around he could see much that should please, yet he saw sadly a smile, because they stood beside an open grave. A friend, Col. Williams, was gone. He had not been a member of their Order—his ideas were opposed to joining a secret society—but his sympathies were with the Orange Association, and he had given them no small aid when they were endeavoring to obtain incorporation. They exceedingly regretted that Col. Williams was not returning home to receive the laurels he had gained, but Providence had decreed otherwise. They did not understand why a man around whom centred so much, and upon whom depended so much, who did not fall by the bullets of the enemy, should die of illness. He then referred to the flourishing condition of the Orange Order, and the reasons why it should be upheld. He said that their incorporation bill was defeated by Protestant members of Parliament, and that they should not only demand incorporation, but other things also, and among them the establishment of a general holiday on July 12th. The spirit of liberty wherever exhibited was the spirit of Orangemen, and they should celebrate one day in the year in honor of freedom.

The Rev. Wm. ARMSTRONG, of Ottawa, whom the Chairman introduced as an old Cavan boy, said he did not envy the man who was not stirred when he thought of the acts of his forefathers, who had obtained freedom for them. He referred to his visit to Ireland two years ago, and to the historic scenes he had visited. He said that the influence of the Roman Catholic Church was increasing, and they should oppose its encroachments. He advised them to keep themselves well informed.

Bro. E. J. W. BURTON, of Port Hope, contended that Orangemen was not on the wane. He referred to the lamentable death of Col. Williams, and moved, seconded by Bro. T. B. Collins, the following resolution:—

"Whereas, it has pleased the Great Grand Master above to take unto Himself the late honored commander of the Midland Provisional Regiment, and representative of this riding in the House of Commons, Col. A. T. H. Williams, R.E., be it therefore resolved,

"1. That we, the Orangemen and their friends here assembled, desire to express the great depth of the sorrow we all experienced when the sad news of his untimely death reached us, and at the same time attest our most profound regret over the lamentable occurrence.

"2. That we read with pride and genuine satisfaction the continuous accounts that reached us testifying to his unflinching and untiring exertions, and heroic bravery throughout the whole campaign, which culminated in the charge he so gallantly led at Ratoche, thereby obtaining the last hope of the rebels.

"3. That we feel his death is an irreparable loss, not only to his regiment and to this constituency, but to the nation.

"4. That we take this early opportunity of extending to his mother and family generally, our warmest sympathies and deepest regrets, and trust and believe that strength will be given them from above that will enable them to withstand the terrible calamity that has befallen them."

The resolution was put to the assembly and carried unanimously.

The Rev. Rural Dean ALLEN made a very humorous speech, especially in his opening remarks. He read a statement which had been made by Archbishop Croke on his return from Rome, regarding what he thought necessary for Ireland, and criticized it. Concluding, he said that the cure for Ireland's woes was the religion of Jesus Christ, pure and simple.

The Rev. JOHN SHAW, of Toronto and formerly of Peterborough, did not believe that the institution represented there that afternoon had outlived its usefulness. Those who said it had thereby acknowledged that it was useful at one time at least. He quoted Macaulay as to the sources of liberty in England, when he bore testimony to the importance of the part taken by the Prince of Orange. He proceeded to argue that the Orange Association was still necessary. At this point rain began to fall heavily, but the assembly urged that the speaker proceed. A gentleman on the platform covered the speaker with an umbrella, and another kindly did the same for the reporters, and Mr. Shaw went on to refer to the liberty of personal opinion possessed by Protestants. He advised them to read and think for themselves, to keep themselves informed and to be ready for every occasion. He abbreviated his remarks on account of the rain, but a very large number remained quietly to the conclusion.

Cheers were then given for the Queen, the officers of Cavan District and the speakers, and the assembly dispersed.

While the speaking was progressing the Young Briton and True Blue Lodges, with the Peterborough and other bands, had a procession and marched through the principal streets.

The Peterborough train left the station at about 5.30 o'clock. After its arrival at Peterborough the Orange Lodges marched to their hall, headed by the band, and the True Blues marched along Simcoe street, Water street, Brock street, and George street back to their hall on Simcoe street. That ended the proceedings of the day.

We believe it is the intention of the Peterborough Orangemen to have a great celebration here next year, when the lodges that were at Millbrook and many others will be invited.

The Orangemen of Millbrook and Cavan must feel much satisfaction on account of the successful celebration this year. There were a large number of Orangemen present, a vast number of people not members, and the day passed off quietly and the best of order was maintained, the only drawback being the shower of rain in the afternoon.

WILLIAM GEDDES, Eden Mills, writes:—I have used Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters for dyspepsia and prefer it to all other medicines I have tried, as no one has failed to produce the desired effect, and I can cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers from dyspepsia.

Yours truly, WM. GEDDES.

BATTLE OF RATOCH.

Justice Done to Col. Williams and the Midland Provisional.

In his official report of the fighting at Ratoche, Gen. Middleton says of the famous charge on that day:—

"After the men had had their dinners they were moved down to take up the old positions and press on. Two companies of the Midland, 60 men in all, under Lieut.-Col. Williams, were extended on the left and moved up to the cemetery, and the Grenadiers, 200 strong, under Lieut.-Col. Grassett, prolonged the line to the right beyond the church, the 90th being in support. The Midland and Grenadiers led by Lieut.-Col. Williams and Grassett, the whole led by Lieut.-Col. Strathcona in command of the brigade, then dashed forward with a cheer and drove the enemy out of the pits in front of the cemetery and the ravine to the right of it, thus clearing the angle at the turn of the river. During all this time a heavy fire was kept up from the other side of the river which annoyed our advance. This was kept down as we best could by a few of the Midland Regiment in pits on the bank of the river, and one company of the 90th Regiment was sent to support Lieut.-Col. Williams on the extreme left. The Midland Regiment and Grenadiers kept pushing on gallantly, led by Lieut.-Col. Strathcona, Williams and Grassett, until they held the edge of the bluff, surrounding the left part of the plain, where the houses were. Just before this a most promising young officer, Lt. Fitch, of the Grenadiers, was killed. At this period one of the Winnipeg Battery guns was sent into position where it could shell the houses on the plain, but after two or three rounds it was disabled, and a gun from "A" Battery took its place and fired a few rounds, but not much damage was done, as the houses were not brick or stone. During this time I advanced the 30th as to prolong the line of attack, and eventually brought down the Surveyor Scouts, Boulton's Mounted Infantry and French's Scouts, and dismounting still further prolonged the line on the right. The Gatling was now ordered up in front of the 90th to take the houses in flank, which was gallantly done by Lt. Rivers, "A" Battery, and Capt. Howard and after a few volleys a general advance was made, with rattling cheers, and the whole of the houses were taken, the whole of the prisoners released, and the position virtually captured."

Later on, writing of the conduct of the officers engaged in the charge, the General says: "The conduct of Lieut.-Col. Montanambert, commanding artillery; Williams, commanding Midland Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Grassett, commanding Grenadiers, and Major McKean, command 90th Regiment, was everything. I could wish Lieut.-Col. Williams and Lieut.-Col. Grassett came prominently to my notice from the gallant way in which they led and cheered their men on the left rush by rush, until they gained the houses on the plain, the former having commenced the rush."

A French Pam.

An amusing incident in the French Chamber many years ago is brought to mind by the recent case about Heret. The Minister for Foreign Affairs made an announcement in the following words: "Messieurs—Nous venons d'apprendre que Dom Mohammed a pris l'Heret (le rat)." Upon which M. Thiers exclaimed: "Que dira le Shan (le chat)?" When this was repeated with laughter he added demurely: "Je suppose, messieurs, que nos calculs militaires involontairement provoquent le cours de la chambre."—London Truth.

The Orillia's Champions.

The match for the lacrosse championship for Central Ontario took place at Beaverton on Tuesday between the Orillia's and the Checkers. It resulted in a win for the former. The Checkers won first game, the Orillia's the second, the Checkers the third, the Orillia's the fourth and fifth. The field was not in very good condition, but the play on both sides was excellent. The fifth game was disputed, but the Checkers gave in to the decision of the umpire. Mr. H. LeBourcree refereed the match, and several members of the home team and a few lovers of the sport from Peterborough were also present. There were three members of the Orillia team that the Checkers objected to. Messrs. McCall, Armstrong and Edmonson. The match was, therefore, played under protest.

USING REVOLVERS

Two Young Men of Monaghan Arrested for the Dangerous Use of Fire Arms.

On Saturday night Mr. John Hooton and his wife were driving along the road in the Township of Monaghan, near the Town Hall, when from the side of the road the reports of several shots from a revolver were suddenly heard.

The horse plunged forward and ran into a ditch, but the buggy was not upset. Mrs. Hooton was very much alarmed and her husband went to try to find out by whom the shots were fired.

He pursued two young men for about a mile along the road, and overtaking them, found them to be Messrs. Joseph Thompson and Samuel Mann, both young men. Mr. Hooton came to town and laid information against them and P. C. Adams went out to the country and arrested them on Tuesday. At five o'clock they were brought before the Police Court. Ball was given for their appearance at ten o'clock the next morning.

Mr. Hooton alleges that he heard the bullets whistle close beside him on the night in question, while on the other hand, Messrs. Mann and Thompson assert that it was merely for fun that they were firing off the revolver and that it was fired in an opposite direction altogether.

This morning the parties appeared at the Police Court, but through the advice and persuasion of Mr. Wm. Walsh, druggist, who is well known to the families of each, the matter was settled and the charge was withdrawn.

The Magistrate admonished the young men in a kindly manner not to get into the habit of using firearms in this way, pointed out that it was no sign of a gentleman to be found making such use of revolvers and that the practice might result seriously. They were liable to a fine of $20 even now for having carried the revolvers.

Messrs. C. W. Savers and E. A. Peck appeared for Messrs. Thompson and Mann, respectively.

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

QUEBEC HARBOUR.
SATURDAY, JULY 11.—Mr. McLELLAN introduced a bill to facilitate the navigation of the St. Lawrence at Quebec by extending the power of the harbour commissioners.

THE SIBIRIAN.
SIR J. MACDONALD, in reply to Mr. Blake, said the Inland Revenue Bill, the bill respecting real property in the Northwest and that respecting summary proceedings before justices would be dropped. So would the ocean mail service bill, to which Mr. Allan had gone to England to provide for the improved steamers. Measures would be introduced to grant lands to the forces serving in the Northwest, who would also be thanked by Parliament. The Temperance Bill was not a Government measure. He could not say when the House would be prorogued.

C.P.R. LOAN.
The bill to provide further aid for the C.P.R. was read a third time and passed by 77 to 25.

SUPPLY.
The House went into Committee of Supply and passed a number of items.
The House adjourned a few minutes before midnight.

THE NORTHWEST OUTBREAK.
MONDAY, JULY 13.—SIR J. MACDONALD, in reply to Mr. Roy, said no inspection had been appointed to investigate the Northwest outbreak. The Government had done something for the immediate relief of the families left destitute, and were taking steps for further and more general aid.

THE BOUNDARY QUESTION.
SIR JOHN MACDONALD, in reply to Mr. Mills, said the question of inviting Imperial legislation as to the boundaries was engaging the attention of the Government. There could be no difficulty as to the boundary between Ontario and Manitoba, but there still remained the question as to the northern boundary of Quebec. The Canadian Government proposed to open communications with the Province of Ontario, Manitoba and Quebec to settle all these questions, and to get the approval of the Legislature, and to procure Imperial legislation at their next session.

THE FISHERIES.
MR. WILSON, on the motion to go into Committee of Supply, raised the question of the fisheries. He entered into a history of the negotiations, complained that the Government had agreed to let the fishery be closed, and that they had not obtained sufficient returns for the free fishing that was granted. He also complained of the dealings with Newfoundland. He concluded without any motion.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD maintained that it would have been useless to open negotiations with the late Government of the United States, but as soon as there was a change they had taken action. Their consent had paved the way for the admission of their fish free, and possibly for a measure of reciprocity. He also justified the dealings with Newfoundland.
MR. MILLS denied that the Government would obtain any return for the concessions they had made.
MR. MITCHELL thought the Government should have reserved their fisheries.
MR. VANZ spoke in favour of reciprocity.

SUPPLY.
The House went into Committee of Supply, and passed a number of items.
SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES.
MR. BOWELL presented the supplementary estimates.
The House adjourned at 1 o'clock.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

A SICKLY APOLOGY.

An election took place for the Dominion Parliament in South Gloucester on Saturday last, when Walter Stanley, Esq., C. E., was returned by acclamation. The fact that the majority of all the voters were not bringing out a reformer in Opposition, viz: because the Government kept back the writ till after the reformer announced for a convention. What silly nonsense: why was not the convention called during the time the Government kept back the writ? The real truth is, the Reform party are so much in the habit of forming party to suit the actual fact, and in a thousand times better than a sickly apology.—Westminster Star (Reform).

NOT FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD.

We believe Mr. Blake's impeachment of the Government in connection with the North-West matters was honestly and honestly; that it betrayed a partisan motive and could not be credited to an overruling desire to promote the public good; that the hope within him was strong that he would catch political support from those who sympathized with the disloyal element in the North-West.—Montreal Herald (Indep.).

MR. BLAKE'S VERBOSITY.

Any one who shall succeed in persuading Mr. Blake that his long speeches are too long, will render that politician a great service. His late speech on the Pacific railway resolutions is for the general reader simply unmanageable. There is no getting through it; the wonder is how Mr. Blake ever got through it himself. All the essential facts in connection with the history of the railway could be stated in two or three columns of an ordinary newspaper; why then discourse at such length that whole pages have to be given to the report?—Montreal Star (Indep.).

MR. MILLS AND WHISKEY.

The Hon. David Mills, if truly reported, will have to be added to the list of persons unfit to represent a Canadian constituency. Although he voted on the Scott Act question against permitting the sale of beer and wine, he must have done that, as Mr. Goldwin Smith would say, under pressure from the fanaticism of his constituency, or else, differing from Mr. Smith, he thinks whiskey a more wholesome beverage than these, and one that ought to be encouraged. He actually complained of the increased burden. The spirit tax would lay upon the people. Poor people! stated of their whiskey. We have heard incessantly of late of the intemperance of temperance reformers. According to Mr. Mills even Sir John Macdonald is an intemperate reformer, going altogether too far when he adds to the taxation of the poor people's whiskey. We welcome Sir John into the ranks of the intemperate.—Montreal Witness (Ref.).

BLAKE AND RIEL.

Mr. Blake will find out before very long that his speech last night in the House of Commons in apology for and defence of Riel was even a greater blunder than was his vindication of that same scoundrel delivered at the breaking out of the rebellion. Mr. Blake calls himself a loyal man, and he has several occasions lately taken some pains to vindicate the loyalty of the party that he leads. But if his protestations are to be accepted he must make up his mind to change his own action, and to produce a very radical reform in the conduct of the party generally. For certainly he and his friends have a most unfortunate faculty of getting in the same boat with rebels, traitors, and enemies of the country of the day, and of doing so at the most inopportune time. Thus Mr. Blake never had a word to say about the alleged half-breed grievances in the Northwest until he found those half-breeds and their Indian allies with arms in their hands shooting down loyal men and murdering defenceless settlers and their wives and children. In the same way Sir Richard Cartwright always discovers fresh reasons to draw the most doleful picture of Canadian financial affairs, just at the moment when there is a Canadian loan being tendered for in London. And now Mr. Blake has selected the date immediately preceding the trial of Riel for delivering a speech, which, if accepted as in any appreciable measure correct, would make it impossible to convict Riel or any other man of wrongdoing in taking up arms against the Government.—Halifax Herald.

LAKEFIELD.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW WOOLLEN MILL.—This fine new mill erected on the bank of the mill race, by the Strickland firm, and leased by Messrs. Gemmill & McKee, formerly of the Blythe Mills, Peterborough, are getting along splendidly in their new premises. It certainly is a great boon to the farmers in the adjacent townships, to bring their wool here when they do their other business, instead of going to Peterborough. They can rely on having their carding, blanketing, &c., done in a workmanlike manner, being both practical men, and employ first class assistants. These machinery is of the newest description and all their customers go away highly pleased, each one telling their neighbors to take their wool to the Lakefield Mills. The number of the firm showed their correspondence through their large premises. They are manufacturing blankets of a superior make for the Dominion Government for the use of the Mounted Police and the troops who are remaining in the Northwest Territory. We wish the firm every success.

PLANNING AND FURNITURE FACTORY.—The Messrs. Chapin are getting more to do in their mill than they are able to get along with comfortably. Such as they are both managers and have first class assistance, they get through a great amount of work, since they commenced business in the manufacturing line by machinery, making all kinds of furniture. They are astonished themselves, at the business they are doing (long may it continue). They are only sorry they did not start this business here some years ago.

MARKET AND COUNCIL CHAMBER.—The three corner lots, together with the building between known as Wait's boarding house, I understand can be purchased cheap from the Messrs. Strickland, if purchased by the village for municipal purposes and market square. The Messrs. Strickland should see to this without delay. It was proposed by someone to build a large hotel on the lot, but the project has fallen through.

BLACKSMITHS, &c., &c.—All our village blacksmiths are doing well and getting all they can do. John Leblond, you will always find him either at some forge or at the mill. He is considered the crack horse shoer in this section of the country. The other crack crack lives at Selwyn; he is a daisy. J. H. McWilliam and H. Davies have both made a big business in the buggy and wagon line this spring and summer, and are busy booking orders for next winter's business; more than has been for some years past at this season. This sounds well.

NEW STORE.—Our old friend, J. C. Carveth, intends opening out in his old liquor premises, next to the post office, in a few days, with a large stock of groceries and boots and shoes purchased for cash in the Montreal market. His motto will be to sell cheaper than others, and any other man. Look out for his advertisement in WEEKLY REVIEW, and the posters on every outbuilding and stray fence in the country.

TWENTY BORDERS.—We have now two tinware and store stores in this village. I called in the other day and asked my old friend D'Arcott how things were getting along. Of course this is a dull time of the year for such business, but, no doubt, he said, that two who in the same business and keeping good stocks to choose from, that it would be the means of more people buying here instead of elsewhere. Opponents, certainly the life of trade, more especially when we have a large farming community around, and they certainly ought to encourage home trade, and help to make the village what it should and ought to be. Another good thing would be good—lots of room—and would bring more trade to the village.

HOTEL.—There is some talk of erecting a large first class hotel near the railway station, and I only hope they will put it into practice. A hotel built close to the lake would do the John Collins, if properly kept. I hope our worthy Reeve and other citizens will make a move in this matter. Twenty years ago we had a picking and more or less of the village than we have now. Why should this blunder way be allowed to go on any longer?

IS IT SUICIDE?

The Body of an Unknown Man Discovered at Walkerville.

WINDSOR, July 12.—Shortly before noon yesterday a man, possibly living at Walkerville, discovered the dead body of a man in a lake which leads from the upper end of Sandwich street to the Tecumseh road. Chief of Police Baines was notified of the ghastly find, and at once proceeded to the spot indicated by the informant, where he found the remains of a man about 50 years of age, with grey hair, and dressed in a suit of dark tweed, lying in a fence corner. In the centre of the man's forehead was a ragged wound, from which the blood had oozed and congealed on the side of the face. In the right hand of the corpse was clutched a heavy 38 calibre revolver, one chamber of which was empty, indicating that the man had taken his own life. Chief Baines took charge of the body, which was conveyed to Windsor and placed in an undertaking establishment where it now lies. County Coroner Coughlin impelled a jury, which viewed the remains and adjourned until to-day. There was nothing in the man's pocket to indicate his identity, but in the crown of a hat, which was lying a short distance from the body, were the initials "A. L. R." The body was in good state of preservation, and judging from the absence of money or valuables of any kind in the pockets of the clothing it is supposed that the suicide first got rid of everything which would reveal his identity, and then went to the secluded spot where the body was found and deliberately took his life.

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the brands off of our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the El Padre cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (15c) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a muddy, dry imported one, as the genuine Cable.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c) ten cents for our "Cable" cigars, and (15c) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c) cigars; as they are well worth that money, especially when we import them from the States, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Prominent among the greatest medical discoveries, by the many cures it has effected, Dr. Carr's Pepsin Cure leads the van. Subjected to the minutest chemical analysis, it has been found to contain none of those injurious ingredients characterizing the worthless specialties daily offered to the public. Every ingredient possesses a peculiar adaptability to the various complaints to which it has been compounded, and its efficacy is being established by testimonials received hourly. We are therefore confident that we have a preparation which we can offer to the public with the assurance that it will be found not only a relief, but an absolute cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Constipation and all impure blood. Daily Evening Review

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1886.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Fine Weather.
Is promised for the Foresters excursion to Hastings tomorrow. Train leaves the G. T. R. station at 7.30, in the morning sharp. The committee visited Hastings on Tuesday and completed all the preparations for the occasion. A large turnout of Foresters and their friends is expected.

Camp Installation.
The elective officers of Mount Hebron Encampment were installed on Tuesday evening. Bro. W. H. Moore, P. C. P. and D. D. G. P., being the installing officer. The following is a list of the names of the newly installed officers:
Bro. T. Workman.....O. P.
" J. O. T. Lacey.....H. P.
" S. Clegg.....S. W.
" R. W. Errett.....Scribe.
" J. D. Tully.....Treasurer.
" W. A. Sullivan.....J. W.

Tuesday, July 15th.
Make a note of the above date, and remember that it is the day of the grand excursion to the city of Ottawa, under the auspices of Court Peterborough, No. 20, C. O. F. The arrangements are all complete, and the enjoyment and comfort of all who attend is assured. The 57th Battalion Band, the Lacrosse Club, and the Peterborough Cricket Club will accompany the excursionists. Train leaves G. T. R. station at 7 o'clock sharp on the morning of Tuesday next, July 21st.

Logan Wins.
The matched two mile race on rollers between Messrs. W. Logan and W. Thompson came off at the Lansdowne Rink on Tuesday evening. There was a large number of people present. On the word "go" being given, Logan took the lead which position he maintained for some time, when one of his skates became loose. He stopped to tighten the screw and the positions were reversed. Logan, however, overhauled his opponent and won the race by a little more than a lap. A handsome silver cup was up for competition.

A New Lot of Artistic Stationery just received at SAINSBURY'S.

The Volunteers Going.
A meeting of the members of numbers 1, 2 and 3 companies of the 57th Battalion was held in the drill shed on Tuesday evening for the purpose of deciding as to what was to be done in reference to attending the funeral of the late Col. A. T. H. Williams. After talking the matter over for some time about fifty of the volunteers signified their intention of going to take part in the last rites. These do not include the members of the right division of the Durham F. B. Battery, of which a considerable number will, it is probable, also go to Port Hope on the day of the funeral. Lieut. Col. Harry Rogers, Lieut. Col. J. Z. Rogers, Major Bell, Capt. Edwards, Capt. Langford and Capt. Rogers will also go.

Turnbull's is the right house for Corsets, he has received this week a full assortment in all the leading makes.

Organized.
A meeting of the baseballers of Peterborough was held in one of the parlors of the Grand Central Hotel on Tuesday evening for the purpose of forming a club. At half past eight o'clock nearly all of the prominent local baseball men were present. The club was duly organized, the following named being elected to fill the offices:

PRESIDENT.—H. Calcutt.
VICE-PRESIDENT.—R. J. Salisbury.
MANAGER.—Richard Reeves.
SECRETARY.—A. P. Choate.
TREASURER.—T. Spencer.
COMMITTEE OF GROUND AND SUPPLIES.—A. Cameron, W. Logan and A. P. Choate.
COMMITTEE ON PRINTING.—R. J. Salisbury, W. Metherall and T. Spencer.

After other business having been transacted the meeting adjourned. The Club has secured the Riverside Park for holding matches and for practice. The Park is now being put into first class condition, and will be ready for use in about a week.

If you are in want of anything in the Gent's Furnishing Line, try A. McNair.

Plane Tuning.
Geo. Campbell is now in town. Parties wishing their planes properly tuned will please leave their orders at T. Menzies' book store or Messrs. Taylor or McDonald's drug store.

Norwood.
The St. Andrew's Sunday School Excursion to Norwood takes place on Thursday next, July 16th, special trains both ways. Trains will leave the O. and Q. Station at 10.30 a.m. sharp, returning leaves Norwood at 6.45 p.m. Ticket's adults 50 cents, children 25 cents. For sale at A. Mercer & Co's, J. D. Tully's and John McClelland's stores, or at the station.

The Tournament.
Mr. H. LeBrun, President of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, has been successful in arranging for the appearance of the Orillia team on the civic holiday. The Orillias are going to put forth an effort to have the civic holiday in their town fall on the same day and to run an excursion here. It is altogether likely that the Beavers will be present.

Remnants of Fruits, remnants of Hosiery, remnants of Cottons, selling this week for Remnant prices at Turnbull's.

It is the Best, the Very Best excursion of the season. We mean the Firemen's to Niagara on the civic holiday. A special train of first class coaches, direct to Toronto, will not stop at every cross-road, and then for a sail over the beautiful lake on the steamer Chloera, the largest, fastest and safest boat on the lake. Keep the trip in mind and make your calculations to go, and you won't be sorry.—Adv.

Personal.
Among those who have passed the examinations and been approved as cadets to the Royal Military College of Canada are Henry Schofield Rogers, of Peterborough, John Chester Howard, of Hastings, and D'Arcy Edward Strickland, of Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Lech, of New York, are in town on a short visit.

Mr. W. D. Hughes, travelling passenger agent for the Canadian Pacific railway, enroute to Mr. A. S. Macphar, was in town on Tuesday looking after the interests of the company. Mr. Hughes is a brother of the present clerk in the uptown office here.

Turnbull's Boys' ready-made clothing department is now well assorted in all the leading styles.

The Best and Cheapest.
The excursion to Ottawa, the Garden City of Canada, which leaves Peterborough via the G. T. R. on Tuesday morning, July 21st, will doubtless be the best and cheapest trip of the season. The tickets are good for three days, and very many business men and the public generally will attend. The energetic committee who have the matter in hand will guarantee all who participate in the days outing a most enjoyable and comfortable trip. Don't miss this rare chance to visit the capital of our Dominion. Return tickets, good for three days, only $2.25. Just fancy.

A. C. A.
The canoeists of Peterborough will not forget that the annual meeting of the American Canoe Association will open on Friday, July 24th, at Grindstone Island, one of the Thousand Islands, a most suitable spot and very easy of access. Favorable rates have been granted by the railway companies and arrangements are being made for the special transfer of canoes to Gananoque. Members from this neighborhood who purpose attending should send in their names to Mr. E. E. Wood, one of the members of the Executive Committee of the Association. We learn that some of the ladies of Peterborough, Ashburnham and Lakefield are making flags for prizes, and would venture to remind others that they might follow this good example.

Testing the New Hose.
The firemen, under Chief Rutherford, turned out at about eight o'clock on Tuesday evening to test the recently received 200 feet of Maltese Cross hose. Mr. Humphrey, the agent for this brand, was present. A couple of lines were attached to two of the George street hydrants, while the 200 feet of Maltese Cross led to the engine, which was placed on the Charlotte street bridge. One hundred and eighty pounds pressure to the square inch was put on. This is only about a third of the pressure which the agent for the hose claims it will stand. The Maltese Cross showed no signs of bursting, while one branch of the old Eureka, with only about one hundred pounds on, broke. After a wet drill of about an hour the firemen returned to the fire station.

Just received at Turnbull's, a fresh lot of low priced Tapestry Carpets in good patterns. See them.

The Town Council Will Attend.
On Tuesday evening, after the meeting of the citizens which had assembled to do honor to Mr. E. H. Smith had adjourned, the Mayor called the Councilors who were present together, and read the following letter:

PORT HOPE, July 10, 1886.
SIR,—On behalf of the Citizens' Committee of the town of Port Hope, I am requested to ask you if it is the desire of your corporation to take part in the last and funeral rites of our late most lamented citizen, Col. A. T. H. Williams, M.P. An early reply to this, so as to enable us to inform you of the day and hour of the funeral, is respectfully solicited. The burial will be a military one. All civic bodies and citizens will follow on foot. No carriages will be allowed in the procession.

J. G. KING, Secretary.
A. V. HUGEL, Chairman.
The Councilors present were of opinion that the Peterborough Town Council should attend the funeral in a body, and the matter was left in the hands of the Mayor to make all necessary arrangements.

For a Nobby Summer Suit, try ANDREW McNair.

On Exhibition.
The beautiful silver tea service presented to Mr. E. H. Smith by the citizens of Peterborough is now on exhibition in the window of Mr. R. W. Munro's jewellery store, Goldsmith's Hall.

The weather.
The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:

Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock.....67	29.00
1 o'clock.....79	29.10
5 o'clock.....78	29.10

The Probabilities.
The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Light to moderate variable winds, fair warm weather, with thunder storms in a few places.

Turnbull's Remnant tables are now piled with ends of all classes of goods to be sold cheap.

The Late Col. Williams' Funeral.
A telephone message from Port Hope to the Review this afternoon says that the body of the late Col. A. T. H. Williams will arrive in Port Hope this evening. The day upon which the funeral will take place is not definitely decided, as it depends upon the arrival of the Midland Battalion from the Northwest. It will, it is expected, not be later than Sunday or Monday next.

Hook and Ladder Truck.
The hook and ladder truck, built for the corporation of Brockton, came over the Canadian Pacific Railway to-day. It was inspected by Chief Rutherford, Captain Craig, and a practical carriage maker, and found to be in first class condition. It is a light vehicle, well equipped with extension hooks and ladders, four pikes and four pike axes. It was built for the corporation of Brockton, but that place being now within the corporation of Toronto, it is not needed. It is offered to the Fire Department for the very reasonable sum of $185.

Nicholls' Hospital.
A meeting of the Nicholls Hospital Committee was held on Tuesday afternoon in the office of Mr. A. P. Ponsette. There were present, Messrs. Richard Hall, chairman, A. P. Ponsette, secretary, Geo. A. Cox, Michael Sanderson, Wm. Manson and J. McClelland. The business of the meeting was the selection of a matron. Several applications were read and considered, but no selection was made. The janitor, recently appointed by the Chairman, is now at work in trimming up the grounds, and in making little repairs about the place. The work of furnishing the hospital will be commenced shortly.

Two cheapest boot-store in town at the Bon Marche. A very choice selection to choose from.

Excursion.
The annual excursion in connection with the George Street Methodist Sunday School was held on Tuesday. Eight coaches, containing about five hundred people, teachers, parents and friends, went over the Ontario and Quebec Railway to Norwood. The village was reached in good time, and the large company repaired to Grover's grove, which had been kindly provided for the excursionists. There games, baseball, football and lacrosse, were being indulged in when rain came on, driving the pleasure seekers indoors. Dinner and tea were partaken, and the train, carrying the excursionists, again drew up to the George street station at shortly after seven o'clock.

TONTINE OUTDONE.

JOHN L. DAVIDSON, Florence, at age 22, took out a 10 pay, 20 year endowment, for $1,000. At the end of the 10th year he had a paid up Policy for $1,000, the whole cost being $400. He could then have sold it for $77.74 more than he paid. THE BICYCLE.

To the Editor of the Review.

DEAR SIR,—I observe a letter in the REVIEW of Tuesday signed "R.N.S." referring to bicyclists in an uncompromising manner. In this case the abuse is entirely undeserved. I was with the party of bicyclists who met the man who I believe wrote the letter, and can positively assert that no such expression as is set forth in the letter was used. We gave the horse the whole of the road, and it did not appear to be much frightened. I cannot account for the statements in the letter referred to, as they were not used by us. Neither can I account for the writer's ill temper, as we gave him every opportunity to pass without any trouble, as I believe the Peterborough bicyclists always do when they meet horses on the road. Yours truly, BICYCLIST.

BURLING FALLS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

THE HOTEL—Burling Falls hotel is getting a large share of tourists this year, the house being full for days with Americans from all parts. Mr. and Mrs. Holmes have all the can do and are very attentive to their guests. They are looking forward to doing a large summer business. Every mail brings communications from people wishing to spend a week or two at the hotel. The fishing is all that could be wished, and Mr. Holmes has all sorts of canoes, boats, fishing tackle, etc., for the use of his guests.

CAROL URBET—A young gallant in the employ of the T. V. C. survey, wishing to show his dexterity in getting into a very small canoe the other day at the landing, and jolly Jack was in the act of handing him a paddle, when, before you could say Jack, the canoe went under him and the occupant was sprawling in the lake to the amusement of the lookers on. Harry, the cook, belonging to a saw log drive, picked him out. If he had been near the corner he would have been dried off in a short time. He will no doubt be a little more careful in jumping into a small canoe next time.

The night before some six sheep were worried to death back of the hill.—Star.

A Young Man Drowned.

BARRIE, July 14.—A young man, about 25 years of age, named Dobson, marble cutter, was drowned in the bay here yesterday while bathing. He was under the influence of liquor at the time. An inquest is being held to ascertain who supplied him the liquor.

ON THE WAY HOME.

The Midlanders and Mount Royal Riders Coming Home Street.

WINNIPEG, Man., July 15.—The entire city is dressed in holiday attire. Arches span Main Street at intervals, and look splendid with appropriate mottoes. Main street resembles an old English avenue with trees and evergreens, and is one blaze of flags, banners and other insignia of welcome and rejoicing. The troops under General Middleton, the 65th Battalion Montreal Midlanders, of Port Hope, 90th and 92nd, of Winnipeg, reached Selkirk at 10 a. m. to-day, and were met at the wharf by Major Colclough, who presented Gen. Middleton with an address of welcome, to which he responded, passing a high eulogium upon the troops under his command. Lieut. Governor Alkana and Mrs. Alkana, Mrs. Middleton, Miss Alkana, Hon. Messrs. Norquay and Brown, of the Manitoba Government, and other leading citizens of Winnipeg met the troops at Selkirk. A splendid celebration was then served to the troops under the trees on the river bank, the Selkirk ladies officiating. The Selkirk citizens proved themselves generous and warm hearted. A special train with Gen. Middleton and staff and others left for Winnipeg at 1.45 p. m. and arrived here at 3 p. m.

The General was escorted to the Government House by the 1st Battalion, headed by the bugle band, the Montreal Garrison Artillery, and the 9th Battalion, of Quebec. The troops are embarking at 5.30 for Winnipeg, and will reach the city at 7.30 p. m.

The Midlanders and 65th Battalion have gone home from Selkirk via Port Arthur. All the officers came to Winnipeg.

The York Rangers and Simcoe Foresters and the Governor-General's Body Guard, under Col. Denison, reached the city by rail from the west just as Gen. Middleton arrived from Selkirk.

There are at least 15,000 people now on Main street, awaiting the arrival of the troops. The demonstration promises to be most enthusiastic ever held in Winnipeg. The city is to be illuminated this evening, and the civic holiday to-morrow, when there will be a review of all the troops by Gen. Middleton at 10 a. m. There will be a torchlight procession, civic and military, in the evening, with bonfires, fireworks and general rejoicing by the citizens.

NIAGARA FALLS PARK.

The Inaugural Ceremony on Mathematical Ascent.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., July 15.—To-day the formal surrender of the Niagara Falls reservation by the board of commissioners to the governor of the State of New York took place in the presence of an immense assemblage of distinguished visitors. Promptly on time the commissioners and prominent citizens took their positions on the platform. Hon. Erasmus Brooks, chairman of the board of Commissioners, presided. On his right were Hon. David B. Hill, governor of New York, and Hon. J. B. Robinson, lieutenant-governor of Ontario.

Readers Lieut. Governor Robinson there were several prominent Canadian present. These were Hon. O. Mowat and Hon. A. S. Hardy, of the Provincial Government; Col. C. S. Gzowski, A.D.C. to the Queen; J. W. Langmuir and G. R. Pettillo, the park commissioners appointed by the Ontario Government; Capt. G. D. C. Gzowski, A.D.C. to Lieut. Governor Robinson; C. R. Bessinger, M.P.P., and Col. Morin, M.P.P.

The entire programme was carried out as laid down, and the speeches were listened to with attentive interest. A pleasing feature was the enthusiasm with which every mention of the name of Lord Dufferin was received, showing that our former Governor has a warm place in the hearts of Americans. Lieut. Governor Robinson and Mr. Mowat were warmly received by the assemblage, and listened to with attention.

The proceedings were opened by prayer by Bishop Cox, a special form prepared by the Bishop for the occasion being used. The National Anthem, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," was then sung by a chorus of 400 voices, composed of selected singers from the Orpheus society and Schubert society, Niagara Falls, and the Orpheus Bessinger and Liedertail societies of Buffalo, accompanied by a large orchestra consisting of the International and the 65th and 74th regimental bands, the whole being under the direction of Herr Galke, of Buffalo.

The speakers selected for the occasion addressed the assemblage, after which there was a grand military review, which wound up the proceedings.

A Second Lynam Case.

MONTREAL, July 15.—Application has been made here to Mr. Justice Jette to release Mrs. Mary Power, a widow who has been confined in Longue Pointe Lunatic Asylum for five years, at the instance of her son. Three physicians, two being connected with the asylum as medical superintendents, and the third an eminent practitioner here, have certified that the woman is quite sane and not a fit subject to be in a lunatic asylum. This is a similar case to that of Mrs. Lynam, who was confined three years at the request of her husband in the same institution, and was proved to be sane, with the exception that Mrs. Power is possessed of large wealth, whilst Mrs. Lynam was poor. On hearing of her incarceration, a sister of Mrs. Power came out from Ireland and instituted legal proceedings for her release. The provincial laws are so antiquated that it takes a long time to get anyone out of an asylum here. It took a lawsuit lasting for months and costing a large sum, which the public paid, to release Mrs. Lynam, who is now living here in the best of mental health.

A Lightning-proof Skull.

Dr. Ried tells of a very strange freak of electricity on the person of Robert Bardet, colored, Sunday afternoon. He and the family were seated in the house when a bolt descended the chimney, struck him fair in the forehead, then glancing down his arm and running down his pantaloons into stripes, and after demolishing these passed out of the bottom of his coat, leaving a hole as if made by a bullet, a portion of it passing through the floor splitting it, the rest taking effect upon a large dog near by and laying him out forever. A negro in the same house was knocked senseless. The boy remained as if dead for a while, but recovered, and when the doctor called to see him he was able to go about, though complaining some of weakness. It is one of the most wonderful cases ever known, and gives additional proof to the already well-formed belief that if you want to kill a negro never strike him on the head.—Waterloo Telescope.

GENERAL CABLE NEWS.

DYNAMITERS IN COUNCIL.

PARIS, July 15.—A conference of Irish revolutionists is reported to have been held at Mons, in Belgium, a few days ago. A person who represents himself to have been present at the meeting, states that Mr. James Stephens had declined an invitation to attend. The change of military in England was discussed, and one of the speakers urged that the new government should be warred by a series of explosions. Another speaker, who only obtained a hearing by an appeal to his revolver, declared that the cause was ruined by nearly mouthed Irishmen, and that the Third Section was yearning to carry out a programme of insatiable vengeance. A good deal of heated altercation took place respecting the funds. It was resolved to hold another conference shortly at Antwerp, and to postpone the use of dynamite until the intention of Parliament in regard to the Crimes Act had been made known.

THE WATERFORD MURDER.

WATERFORD, Ireland, July 15.—The soldier who bayoneted a man to death during the conflict between citizens and soldiers last Sunday has been committed for trial on a charge of murder.

EGYPTIAN FINANCES.

LONDON, July 15.—The Telegraph believes that the Government has received sufficient assurance from Germany and other powers, and will in a few days issue an Egyptian loan of $500,000.

BELIEVED TO BE DEAD.

CAIRO, July 15.—The Arabs of the upper class believe that El Mahdi is dead. The famine in Kordofan has become terrible, and has extended to Khartoum. The hostile Arabs will not advance to Dongola for several months.

THE AFGHANS WILL RESIST.

LONDON, July 15.—Reinforcements are arriving at Akabab. The advance of the Russians has made the Afghans anxious, but they are determined to resolutely resist any attempt to seize the territory. They are pained at the warlike preparations of the Russians under cover of pacific assurances. It is believed Gen. Alkanof, the commander of the Russian advance, is determined to force on the Afghans that he is deceiving the Omar in regard to his real intentions.

RUSSIAN MOVEMENTS.

LONDON, July 15.—The news was received today of further Russian movements towards Zulfikar pass, and has caused a fall of the price of consols.

A RUSSIAN ADVANCE.

LONDON, July 15.—The Times has received a despatch from Urganchabad via Moscow, dated July 11th, which says, "It is rumored that the Russians have advanced in force to Zulfikar Pass, and that they are occupying Persian territory as though it were Russian." The despatch also says that the British frontier commission is moving towards here.

THE FRONTIER COMMISSION.

LONDON, July 15.—The remaining members of the British Afghan frontier commission, with their military escort, have suddenly struck their tents and are marching rapidly towards Herat. The reason for their hasty retirement is unknown. The news has caused much uneasiness. It is thought the commission must have reason for leaving the cool hills for the heated valley.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

LONDON, July 15.—In the Commons this evening Lord Randolph Churchill, replying to a question in regard to the Russian advance in Afghanistan, stated the Government had been informed of the movement. Speeches of retirement of the members of the British Afghan Frontier Commission in the direction of Herat, Lord Randolph said that the Herat, fearing that the Russians contemplated a descent on Herat, had invited Colonel Vokes and Peacock to enter the city, and the request had been complied with.

CHOLERA IN SPAIN.

St. Paul's S. & P. Picnic.
St. Paul's Sabbath school picnic takes place Thursday, July 23rd. The excursion will be to Robinson's Island, via the Golden Eye and buses, leaving the wharf at one o'clock.

A Challenge.
Mr. G. H. Giroux, Secretary of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, has received a challenge from the Uxbridge Lacrosse Club for a match to be played here on the 23rd of July between the second twelves of each club. It will, in all probability, be accepted.

Remember the grand excursion to Ottawa, the Capital of the Dominion, on Tuesday next, via the C.P.R.

The Weather.
The following weather notes are supplied by Mr. G. W. Morgan, druggist:

	Thermometer.	Barometer.
9 o'clock.....	70	29.30
1 o'clock.....	80	29.31
5 o'clock.....	70	29.30

Remodelled.
The bridge on Mill street, near Hunter, which has so long been in an unsatisfactory condition, has been effectively repaired. A few days ago traffic was suspended, and since that time the whole place has been filled in with gravel, and the street is now open for traffic.

A. C. A. Camp.
Mr. Rathbun, Vice Commodore of the American Canoe Association, has informed Mr. R. E. Wood of the Executive Committee, that he has the necessary papers to entitle members to the reduced railway fares. As he wishes to know how many are required, all who intend to join the camp should at once send in their names to Mr. R. E. Wood.

THE SMALL FAIR and the long and enjoyable trip in what makes the Foresters' excursion to Ottawa on Tuesday, July 21st, the most popular one of any. Return tickets, good for three days, only $2.25.

Acknowledgements.
The committee of the Peterborough Protestant Home gratefully acknowledge the following donations for June:—Mrs. Tom Rubidge, bag of potatoes; Mrs. Tom Hay, dress; F. & McWhinnie, pair of shoes; Mr. F. Mason, flowers; Sons of England, 22 loaves of bread. The Committee also beg to return their sincere thanks to the Orangemen and McWilliams' True Blues, for the sum of $41, the proceeds of last Sunday's collection.

Next Act.
A meeting of the Scott Act workers throughout the county was held at the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association on Wednesday afternoon. It was at first intended to ask for a day on which to take the vote on the question, but, after some conversation, it was decided to await the action of the Government on the proposed amendments. There were about twenty-five from different parts of the county present.

SPECIAL line of English Antique Note and Envelopes just received at Salisbury's.

Saili Suffering.
On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Bingham and O'Shea went to Otonabee to see Mr. Andrew Davidson, who was struck with lightning a short time ago in the Township of Ennismore. They found that Mr. Davidson was suffering intensely from the effects of the stroke; the livid belt left by the lightning across his body had considerably widened, and the skin had raised upon it. He was very nervous, but no doubt entertained as to his ultimate recovery. When asked as to the sensation he felt at the time he was struck with the electric shaft, he replied that he felt nothing whatever, and did not realize his situation until after he had recovered from unconsciousness.

Don't Miss THE CHANCE of seeing the thousand and one beautiful sights offered to those who accompany the Foresters on their annual excursion to Ottawa on Tuesday, July 21st, any one of which is well worthy the small outlay of buying a return ticket.

If you are in want of anything in the Gen's Sarsaparilla Line, try A. McNair.

Bible Class.
The Ladies' Bible Class conducted by the Rev. Mr. Munro will meet to-morrow afternoon at 4.15, in the hall of the Y. M. C. A.

Boats' Circus.
We learn that Doris' celebrated circus has made arrangements to exhibit here on the 13th. They have engaged the Riverside Park for holding their exhibition.

HUNDREDS OF OUR CITIZENS are making preparation to go to Ottawa on Tuesday next. The public will please remember that the train leaves the C. P. R. station at 7 o'clock in the morning sharp.

The Probabilities.
The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Winds mostly south and east; fine warm weather.

The Winner of the Scuffer.
Many persons who attended the Ennismore picnic will be interested in knowing the number which won the scuffer, presented by the Sylvester Works for the benefit of the picnic. The lucky number was 43, and it was held by Mr. Wm. Crough, Reeve of Ennismore.

Those Who Wish may return with the Foresters on the regular excursion train, which leaves Ottawa at six o'clock, or wait for the 11.50 train, which reaches here the next morning at 5 o'clock. The tickets are good for three days, and all who wish may remain until the full length of time is up, and return on any regular train. Band, Lacrosse Club, Cricket Club—everybody is going.

Niagara Falls.
Yesterday the various persons who had control of every point of vantage at the Falls to annoy and tax the pockets of visitors, had to surrender their claims, and now everything on the American side is free, so that by taking advantage of the Foresters' cheap trip on the civic holiday it will put it within the reach of every person to see one of the most beautiful and stupendous scenes which the forces of nature have ever constructed.

Personal.
Mr. Jacques, well known throughout Canada as the "Old Man," is in town to day, as agent of Doris' circus.

Mr. A. R. Clarke, the head of the firm of Messrs. A. R. Clarke & Co., leather merchants, formerly of Peterborough, and brother of Dr. Clarke, here, left on Wednesday evening on a trip to England, France, Germany and Holland. Mr. Bonstead, President of the Toronto Philharmonic Society, accompanied Mr. Clarke, and while in England they will be present at the Birmingham Musical Festival.

From the House of Commons.
The following communication re the entertainment of those who accompany the Foresters' excursion to the city of Ottawa, on Tuesday, July 21st, has been received by Mr. A. McNair, Secretary of the Committee, from the Speaker of the House of Commons:—

16TH JULY, 1885.
SIR,—Sir John A. Macdonald has headed me your note of the 13th inst. respecting the admission of the excursionists from Peterborough to the House of Commons. I will make arrangements to meet your wishes.

Yours truly,
Geo. A. Kirkpatrick,
Speaker.

ANDREW MCNEIL, Esq., Peterborough.

The 13th.
The 13th of August, Peterborough's civic holiday, promises to be a big day in town. A monster excursion will be run from Brampton under the auspices of the lacrosse club of that town. Fifteen coaches have been chartered and it is guaranteed that over a thousand people will come. Excursions will also be run from Montreal, Toronto and Orillia, under the auspices of the Shamrock, Toronto and Orillia lacrosse clubs respectively. Mr. LeBrun, the pioneer lacrosse player of Peterborough, says that it will be one of the grandest days Peterborough ever witnessed.

Another larger lot of Fine Boots and Shoes received at the Bon Marche, at ridiculously low prices.

New Suite of Offices.
A handsome new suite of offices are now being fitted up in the Bank of Commerce block, George street. The store recently vacated by Mrs. Brown is being remodelled and will be the head office of the Central Canada Loan Company. The one next door, now occupied by Messrs. Philip & Reid, clothiers, will also be remodelled and elegantly fitted up for the Toronto Real Estate and Investment Company. These two places and Telegraph and Insurance Agency block will all be connected by entrances. The plans are now in the hands of Mr. J. E. Belcher, and are nearly completed. When the block is completed it will be one of the handsomest places of business in Peterborough.

A Pleasant Picnic.
The annual Sunday school picnic, under the auspices of the Baptist Church, was held at Crawford's Grove on Wednesday. Twelve bus loads of pupils, teachers and friends left the Murray Street Church, and after a pleasant drive, reached the grove. Here, during the afternoon, an exceedingly enjoyable time was spent. The weather was exceptionally fine. A large field adjoining the grove afforded ample room for the little ones to run and scamper to their heart's content; while in the cool shade of the grove numbers enjoyed themselves with swinging. Messrs. Duff and Rosier took charge of the sports and carried them out to the satisfaction of all. The events were well conducted, and prizes to the amount of $11 were distributed. Much merriment was caused by the scrambling match for candles and nuts, of which a goodly amount was dispensed to the children. After spending a pleasant afternoon and evening the picnickers returned to town.

ECHOES FROM ASHBURNHAM.

A Villager Falls From a Two-Storey Window—A Horse is a Cellar.

On the morning of the 13th of July, Mr. Andrew Fawcett, of this village, went to Millbrook to join in the celebration. He stayed there all night in one of the hotels. During the night he got up to go outside. He walked to a door on the second storey, and, on opening it and stepping outward, fell to the ground. He was badly hurt. The blood flowed freely from the right ear, and several severe bruises were inflicted. He was brought up on the noon train on Tuesday and taken to his home here. Dr. Bingham was called in to attend, and under his treatment the patient is recovering.

IN A PECULIAR PLACE.
On Monday evening Mr. John Westlake threw a new set of harness over the back of his horse, buckled it on and hitched the horse to a buggy. Just then the sound of an approaching train was heard. Mr. Westlake took the horse out of the shafts and tried to hold him. But the animal was not to be held. It backed up and in doing so backed down the cellarway of Mr. Bigley's house. It fell backwards down to the bottom and there lay in a heap. A crowd soon collected and various plans were proposed for getting the animal out of its uncomfortable place. Finally it was decided to drag it into the cellar. After a good deal of difficulty this was done, but when the animal stood upright it was too tall to get out of the cellar door. The earth at the bottom of the doorway had to be removed to lengthen the space. The horse then went quietly through and up the steps of the cellarway. Mr. Westlake had just purchased the set of harness the day before. It was badly cut up during the exploit.

SPORTS IN PETERBOROUGH.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Had the correspondent of the Examiner of yesterday, who signed himself "Peterboro," signed himself "Freemist," I think he would not have been far astray.

Listen to him: "First and worst we have cricket." Now, hear what W. W. Jones, of the Toronto Cricket Club, says: "You have one of the best cricket clubs in Canada to-day."

Which knows best, our own pessimist, or one of the best cricket players in Canada? True, they have been beaten three times this year, but only against extra good clubs, and once against a picked team from all Toronto. With the recent addition of Messrs. Ray and Logan, I think they can hold their own against all comers.

2nd, Baseball. Baseball was never in a more prosperous condition than at present. The new club, the Peterboroughs, have some of the best amateur talent in Canada. As they only organized Tuesday evening, Freemist should not expect too much from them yet.

3rd, Lacrosse is not by any means dead, for although our boys were "downed" once this season, nearly half of the first twelve were away from the game, and the rest played with very little practice. Now that they have got down to work, I think everybody is of the opinion that they will have but little trouble bringing the championship back.

4th, Tennis is booming, there being no less than a score of private lawns and two public clubs in town. No other town in Canada can say as much.

5th, Lacrosse is not by any means dead, for although our boys were "downed" once this season, nearly half of the first twelve were away from the game, and the rest played with very little practice. Now that they have got down to work, I think everybody is of the opinion that they will have but little trouble bringing the championship back.

DEPUTY RETURNING OFFICERS

ONE Wigmore, for illegal and unjust conduct as a deputy returning officer in a municipal election, was very righteously sent to prison. As his health had suffered severely, and his life might have been endangered, he was liberated a month before the expiration of his sentence. Mr. Mowat's leading organ thereupon accuses the Dominion authorities with legalizing his misconduct. But Mr. Mowat's leading organ has no cause for Mr. Mowat, who really legislated in favour of Apjohn, who had been found guilty of similar conduct in an election for the Legislative Assembly, and also legislated to facilitate such outrages in the future. Nor has it a word of blame for Mr. Mowat's effrontery in rewarding his dishonest tool with a Government appointment. Nor does it blame Mr. Mowat for procuring the appointment of the same Apjohn again as a deputy returning officer in the recent Algoma election, in order that he might once more evade Conservative electors out of their votes, as he did. It seems, according to the leading Reform journal, that a Conservative who is guilty of such crimes should be left to die in prison, but that a Reformer who is guilty should be rewarded, encouraged and re-appointed.

ROOM ENOUGH.

THE opponents of the Dominion Government are resolved not to be pleased whatever is done, and cannot be induced to desist from efforts to injure the country. Because the C.P.R. has been pushed forward with most beneficial results, we have been told continually that the rapid extension of the railway and the consequent scattered settlement was the cause of the recent troubles, though as a fact they did not occur near the line. And now the leading journal of the Kiel party making a great onslaught upon the Macdonald administration because the land near the Rocky Mountains has been leased for ranching, and is not reserved especially for agricultural settlers. To hear these complaints a stranger would imagine that Canada had no good land awaiting settlement, or that it was a difficult thing for an immigrant to find unoccupied space for a farm. There is room enough and to spare for many settlers yet.

THE Kingston Whig some time ago said that Sir John Macdonald was being worn out by the session because he could not leave the business in the hands of his colleagues, whom the Whig would have its readers believe were incompetent. Now, however, it says that "no man has wearied himself less than Sir John Macdonald," and that "as much as possible he left the long discussion to the direction of his colleagues." The Whig is not very consistent in this matter. The truth is that all the Ministers in the Commons were wearied by the business of the long session and harassed by a factious Opposition, but the strain was naturally greatest upon the able and venerable First Minister.

Webster's Audience of Two.

Here is a new anecdote of Webster. It was told by the late Col. Munford, who was at one time secretary of the Virginia Commonwealth, and it has never been published. Col. Munford was in his office at the State House one day when a distinguished looking man, accompanied by a young lady, came in, and asked if they could see the legislative chambers. Col. Munford at once recognized, from portraits that he had seen, Webster, and wishing to see as much of the great statesman as possible, offered to accompany him through the State House. The young lady seemed to be a relative of Webster, and was very bright and pleasant in her conversation. There was a constant fire of pleasant remarks between the two, and when the party reached the Senate Chamber the young lady, turning to him exclaimed: "Now, make a speech without any preparation. I want you to prove it." And as she said this she moved to the rear and took possession of the President's chair. "The House will please come to order," Webster, said Col. Munford, relating the incident, "look, as if by instinct, the most favorable position in the room, so that his voice could best be heard, and for ten or fifteen minutes he spoke with an eloquence that I have never heard equalled. He referred to Virginia's past, and alluding especially to her distinguished sons, he pointed out their portraits that hung on the walls, and described their traits in the most beautiful language imaginable. Col. Munford frequently told his friends that it was the best speech he ever listened to.—Baltimore American.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

CLOSE FABRICATIONS.

WEDNESDAY, July 15.—Mr. GIBBARD called attention to some fabrications introduced by the Globe into a report of a recent speech by him.

THE SHORT LINE.

The bill to grant aid to railways between Montreal and the Maritime Provinces was reported from Committee.

Mr. KIRK moved in amendment in concurrence that the work on the line between Harvey, Fredericton and Salisbury proceed simultaneously with that of the line west of the boundary between New Brunswick and Maine.

After some discussion the amendment was negatived by 83 to 40.

Mr. BLAKE moved in amendment that the accounts of the subsidized companies be subject to inspection and report of the Auditor-General.

The amendment was negatived by 79 to 43 and the third reading was carried.

TERRITORIAL REPRESENTATION.

Mr. BOWELL moved the House into Committee of Supply.

Mr. CAMERON (Huron) moved in amendment that the Queen be petitioned to move the Imperial Parliament to legislate to remove doubts as to the power of the Canadian Parliament to give representation to the Territories.

Sir H. LAMONT said a census was to be taken, and when a territory had sufficient population it would be erected into a Province. He found, however, that the people of the Northwest were not in a hurry for Provinces, but desired representation. Before the next general election this would be granted, fuller powers being obtained if requisite.

Mr. BLAKE supported territorial representation.

Mr. ROYAL said Mr. Cameron had introduced a bill early in the session for territorial representation. He now said the Canadian Parliament had not the power to grant it, so confessedly he should not have introduced his bill.

After some further discussion the amendment was negatived by 77 to 35.

SUPPLY.

The House went into Committee of Supply and passed a number of items.

SUPPLEMENTARY ESTIMATES.

Mr. BOWELL brought down the supplementary estimates for the financial year to June 1886. The House adjourned at 1.20.

KEENE.

From Our Own Correspondents.

THE LATE MRS. ANDREWS.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Andrews, wife of the Rev. F. Andrews, of this village, took place on Sunday, the 12th inst., at 3 p.m. A large number from the surrounding locality united with the villagers in paying their last tribute of respect to the departed by accompanying the remains from the Presbyterian Church to the Keene cemetery. Rev. E. F. Torrance, Peterborough, conducted the religious services and preached a most impressive sermon from xl. chapter of St. John, 35 verse. The whole community sympathizes deeply with the rev. gentleman in his affliction in being left alone with his five little motherless children.

PERSONAL.—We are glad to hear that Mrs. Jas. H. Fife, who has been very sick, is improving in health.

CROPS.—The farmers are busy in getting in their hay and report a fair yield; grain also promises well.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.—Religious services were held in the Roman Catholic Church in this village on Sunday, July 12th, and also on Monday forenoon, July 13th. A large congregation attended each service.

IMPROVEMENT.—Owing to a large increase of business, the Messrs. Campbell & McNeil find it necessary to enlarge their store to accommodate their numerous customers. They have begun operations, and when completed will be a great improvement to the village. In the meantime they are carrying on their business in the store house just east of the old store.

TENDERS.—Tenders are asked for the purchase of the old Presbyterian Church and will be received by Mr. McNell until the 15th prox.

EXCURSION.—A party of about fifteen spent Wednesday last at Munford on the occasion of laying the corner stone of a new Masonic Hall.

OTTAWA EXCURSION.—A large number expect to go from here to the excursion to Ottawa on Tuesday next.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.—The Union S. S. picnic is expected to be held on Friday next, 24th.

CAMPBELLFORD.

REPAIRS AT THE SLIDE.—New stop logs are being put in the slide, and a heavy plank flooring laid on the rock at the bottom, to prevent the escape of water with the old material soaked with water and worn with age was unable to do. The job is being done by Mr. W. H. McKel with the assistance of nine men; and the cost of the same will be borne by the Rathbun and Gilmour companies, and the millmen, Messrs. C. Smith, E. Senior, and C. Owens, the latter representing the Trent Valley Woolen Company. Mr. McKel has a difficult task in hand.

A DEER PREY.—One day recently while Mr. W. W. Smith, of this village, was strolling through the woods in Anson township, a few miles north of Minden, he came across a young fawn sleeping. Approaching it cautiously he managed to lay his hands on it and deprive it of its freedom. Mr. Smith brought it home with him, and last week he stepped into this office with his pet, to enable us to testify by sight that he had it in his possession. The little creature is about four weeks old, and takes very kindly to its new home. It is very pretty, being mottled resembling a leopard. Mr. Smith feeds it grass and milk.—Herald.

THE "GLORIOUS TWELFTH."—The anniversary of the battle of the Boyne was celebrated in Campbellford on Monday in grand style. Fifteen lodges took part in the procession, which was a very long one, and was headed by the Norwood and Campbellford brass bands. After parading the principal streets, the various lodges marched to a grove in the vicinity of the village, where stirring addresses were delivered by several prominent members of the order.—Register.

WILLIAM GRUBBS, Eden Mills, writes:—I have used Dr. Cassell's Stomach Bitters for Dyspepsia and prefer it to all other remedies I have ever tried, in fact, it has failed to produce the desired effect, and I can cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers from Dyspepsia. Yours truly, WM. GRUBBS.

STOLEN BY GYPSIES

A Father Finds His Son and Daughter After a Year's Search.

A Columbus, O., despatch says.—George Carson has returned home after a year's absence in search of his little son and daughter, who were kidnapped by gypsies. No clue could be got until a farmer remembered seeing a boy and girl in the gypsy encampment just outside the city. Mr. Carson began the pursuit of the band in company with a detective. On June 27th of this year, while at Nashville, he learned that a portion of the band were at Covington, Tenn. He at once went to that place, and on July 1st he entered their camp, and almost the first person he saw was his son, engaged in gathering firewood. The little fellow, when he saw his father, dropped everything and ran into his arms. His captors were inclined to offer resistance to the intruder, but emphatic words and the display of a revolver quieted them, and chagrined at having lost their captive, told the father where he could find the other band and his daughter, who were then camped near La Grange, Tenn. On July 4th he found his little girl, but she was sadly changed. The gypsies had darkened her skin and dyed her hair, letting it hang long and straight. A scar had also been branded on her neck; in fact, everything was done to destroy her identity. Here Mr. Carson met with resistance, being driven out of the camp, but he returned with aid from La Grange and the little girl was given up. Mr. Carson went on to Memphis, where he telegraphed the news home and took passage on the steamer.

SORE.

Upon my lips she laid her touch divine,
And merry speech and careless laughter died,
She fixed her melancholy eyes on mine
And would not be denied.

I saw the west wind lose its cloudless white,
In flocks scattering through the April sky;
I could not stave, though joy was at its height,
And she stood silent by.

I watched the lovely evening fade away;
A mist was lightly drawn across the stars;
She broke my quiet dream. I heard her say,
"Behold your prison bars."

"Earth's gladness shall not satisfy your soul,
This beauty of the world in which you live,
The crowning grace that sanctifies the whole,
That is mine own give."

I heard, and shrank away from her afraid;
But still she held me and would still abide;
Youth's bounding pulses slackened and obeyed,
With slowly ebbing tide.

"Look you beyond the evening sky," she said,
"Beyond the changing splendours of the day;
Accept the pain, the loneliness, the dread,
Accept and bid me stay."

I turned and clasped her close with sudden strength,
And slowly, sweetly, I became aware,
Within my arms God's angel stood at length,
White-robed, calm, and fair.

And now I look beyond the evening star,
Beyond the evening splendours of the day,
Knowing the pain, the loneliness, the dread,
More beautiful than they.

WINDING UP TIME.

A wee, brown maid on the doorstep sat,
Her small face hid beneath a wide-brimmed hat.

A broken clock on her baby knee
She wound with an ancient, rusty key.

"What are you doing, my pretty one?
Playing with time?" asked in fun,
Large and wise were the soot, dark eyes,
Lined to mine in grave surprise.

"The winding time up to make him go,
For he's so dreadful poky and slow."
Winding up time? Ah, baby mine,
How crawl these lengthened moments of time!

How sadly slow goes the staid old man!
But he has not changed since the world began.
He does not change; but in after years,
When he mingles our cup of joy with tears,

And duties are many and pleasures few,
And the way grows rougher with each footstep;
When the day is too short for its crowd of Cares.

And eight surprises are unwarmed,
We do not wish to hurry his feet,
And find him going all too fast,
Ah, baby mine, some future day,
You will throw that rusty key away,
And to Enoch's car will gladly cling,
As it whistles along, like a winged thing.

And wonder how, years ago, you said,
You could ever the thought that Time was slow.

AN ENORMOUS RAFT.

Experiments are what develop all practicable possibilities, and experiments are from day to day developing the fact that the saw mills on the Saginaw river are not to be dependent entirely on the availability of the log supply of the streams tributary to the Saginaw river, or even on the log supply of the lower peninsula itself.

The problem has long been discussed as to whether saw logs could not be transported to the mills on the Saginaw river direct, where they can be converted into lumber better than at any place on earth and to the best market in the world—cheaper than to cut them at other points, and transport the lumber.

All sorts of devices have been resorted to for towing logs, and patent log cribs have been invented with this special object in view. But it has just been demonstrated that logs may be towed in the ordinary boat, and that the enormous size devoid of the cross pieces, and the entire raft bunched in one solid body of logs, with a considerable degree of safety.

A raft of 3,000 feet of logs covering about six acres of water surface, has just reached the Saginaw river, from the Lake Superior, and the logs deposited in the boom at the mouth of the river, without the loss of a single log, notwithstanding the fact that the enormous raft encountered one of the worst blows of the season during its run of 60 miles on Lake Superior.

The logs were cut on Huron and Big Two Huron rivers and are fine as fine a lot of logs as was ever towed into the Saginaw river. They were owned by R. K. Hawley, and H. C. Thurber, and were towed through the lakes by the tug Winslow, being nine days in the passage from the rivers where cut to Bay City, having made the passage of the rapids of Sault Ste. Marie in the meantime. It will take about four days to return the boom sticks, consuming therefore about 13 days for the round trip, at $125 per day, or $1,625. Add to this, the harbor towing at the "Soo," and we have a total expense of $2,025, or less than 70 cents per thousand.

We furnish the above figures for the purpose of showing the apparent pecuniary feasibility of the undertaking.

The description of the raft which has thus raised the hopes and anticipations of our mill men is as follows: It is surrounded by boom sticks as in an ordinary raft, but they are much larger than those in ordinary use, being three or four feet in diameter and securely bound together by chains. The logs are floated in, all in one compact mass but only one deep, and they are said to become so firmly bound together by being in one solid body, that the heavy seas have no other effect on them than to give them an undulating motion, so slight that the bark on nose of the logs ten or twelve feet from the edges of the raft is even chafed. The logs are so arranged that the boom sticks joined together form a pointed prow for the raft, which reduces the resistance and makes the towing comparatively easy.

Whistling and Singing Snake.

A Washington dispatch says:—A snake of a very rare kind in now at the Smithsonian Institute. It came there on Friday, having been captured near the famous Back Horn wall, on the line of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway, near Dear Park, Md. The peculiarity of the snake is that it can and does whistle and sing like a young mocking bird. In general appearance it is like the ordinary snake, except its head is shaped something like a pug dog. Its length is four feet long, and the largest part of its body is four and a quarter inches in circumference. When it whistles or sings it makes a series of jumps like a frog.

The head snake professor of the Smithsonian Institute is now at Wood's Hall, Mass., and it will probably be sent there for its examination and classification. It is in shape and color altogether different from any of the African singing snakes, and besides issues a louder and more harmonic sound while it is recorded of any of the classes of snakes that are found in the East Indies. A similar character of a snake is said in the books to be frequently seen on the island of Sumatra. But this is the first singing or whistling snake that has been found in this country. The man who caught it supposed he was chasing a young mocking bird.

FROM ALL OVER.

It is expected that the Imperial Parliament will be prorogued on the 7th August.

To REMOVE DANDREFF.—Cleanse the scalp with Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap. A delightful medicated soap for the toilet.

A CATINIO EVIL.—Children are often fretful and ill when Worms is the cause. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup safely expels all worms.

NATIONAL PILLS is the favorite purgative and anti-bilious medicine, they are mild and thorough.

The Queen has raised to the peerage Sir Robert Lindsay and Mr. Reginald Brett, members of Parliament.

WORMS often destroy children, but Freeman's Worm Powders destroy Worms, and expel them from the system.

MACULAY used to read twenty pages of Schiller before getting out of bed in the morning.

THE PERFUME OF AN HEMISPHERE.—Through out an area occupied by more than one hundred millions of civilized beings, Murray & Leaman's Florida Water is today the standard perfume in society.

Through the efforts of Ouida, the practice of skinning frays alive has been stopped in the markets of Florence.

BILLIUMUSCA, Constipation, and Indigestion are speedily cured by Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters. All druggists, 50 cents.

KINGSTON corporation will give a public reception to Company "F," of the Midland Battalion, on their return from the Northwest.

THE CHOLERA.—Possibly the Cholera may not reach our locality this season. Nevertheless, we should take every precaution against it. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus, Colic, Cramp, Diarrhoea and Dysentery.

The Marquis of Salisbury, in sympathy with the depression of farming industry, has reduced his tenants' rents ten per cent. for three years.

A STRANGE DISEASE.—There is scarcely a symptom belonging to chronic complaints but that is common to the poor dyspeptic, and he often feels as if he had every disease in the catalogue. Burdock Blood Bitters cures the worst form of Chronic Dyspepsia.

This bulk of the Panellites are prepared to accept the Government's land purchase scheme, notwithstanding Mr. Michael Davitt's arguments against it.

KEEP YOUR HOUSE GUARDED.—Keep your house guarded against sudden attacks of Colic, Cramp, Diarrhoea, Dysentery and Cholera Infantum. They are liable to come when least expected. The safest, best and reliable remedy is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

WHILE a picnic party was returning by water to Halifax from the suburbs, on Tuesday evening, their boats came within range of a party of Royal Artillery engaged in firing, and several shots being within a few feet of striking the boats. Great consternation prevailed among those on board, who had a narrow escape from an appalling catastrophe.

STOMACH ACID.—We all know what it is: we acquire perfect knowledge of the "Pit" in our youth, after a raid on the green apple we were expressly forbidden to touch. Our mother gave us Perry Davis' Pain-Killer then and strange to say, no other remedy has been discovered to this day to equal it.

A WANT OF ACTIVITY.—Much of the ill condition of chronic invalids is due to want of activity in a sluggish liver. Burdock Blood Bitters arouses a healthy action of the liver to secrete pure bile, and thus make pure blood which gives perfect health.

SHOULD BE ATTENDED TO.—Much suffering is the result of neglected constipation there is no better regulator of the bowels than Burdock Blood Bitters by its prompt action on the liver all tendency to irregularity is removed and one chief source of ill-health prevented.

FAR superior to Pills, contains no Calomel, perfectly safe, Dr. Carson's Bitters. All Druggists, 50 cents.

THIS way to keep the Blood pure and cool through the hot summer months is to take an occasional dose of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters the Best Stomach and Liver Medicine made. In large bottles, 50 cents.

The Lynchings Since Jan. 1.

Since January 1, the number of criminals lynched in various parts of the country is 99, of whom 96 were males and 3 females, 58 white and 41 colored. The south takes more than three-fourths of the lot, having 73, against 24 credited to the north. In detail the states are represented as follows:—

Alabama, 3. Arkansas, 1. Florida, 2. Georgia, 2. Iowa, 5. Kansas, 3. Kentucky, 3. Maryland, 1. Mississippi, 6. Missouri, 6. North Carolina, 2. Nebraska, 2. Ohio, 3. Oregon, 2. Tennessee, 7. Texas, 31. Virginia, 2. West Territory, 7. Dakota, 1. Montana, 2. Washington, 1. It may also be of interest to know that of these 99 departed citizens, 44 were lynched for murder, 31 for horse and other stealing, 14 for rape, 3 for incendiarism, 2 for train wrecking, 2 for murderous assault, 2 for unknown reasons, and 1 for burglary.

These returns, it will be observed, are for six months, and their significance will be apparent when it is stated that the number of lynchings last year was 103, which was an increase of nearly 100 over 1883. The number of lynchings thus far in this year has steadily increased, month by month, so that at this rate the total for this year will considerably exceed 200. Hearing does not keep anything like an even pace with lynching, through the volume of crime for the first six months of this year is far in excess of what it was last year during the same period. Last year there were 222 criminals hanged, but this year thus far there have been but 42. At this rate the number of executions will be much smaller than in any year since 1875.

Texas takes the lead in lynchings, as it does in crime. Take it all around it is an unhealthy year for criminals. The legal hangman may not keep pace with them, owing to the obstacles which stand in his way, but Judge Lynch is doing well in his efforts to keep up something like a due relation between crime and its punishment.—Chicago Tribune.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

We will pay one hundred dollars to any party or parties who will furnish sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the guilty party or parties who take the bands off our 50 Cable Se, and sell them (the "Cable" cigars) in other boxes, for a ten cent cigar, and who also put our brands on cheap, trashy cigars, palming them off as the genuine "Cable."

We will pay the other hundred dollars for sufficient evidence that will lead to the conviction of the party or parties who take the bands off our celebrated "El Padre" cigar, and place them (the "El Padre" cigars) in imported cigar boxes, and sell them for a (10c) fifteen cent imported cigar, and replace our brand on a cheap and inferior domestic cigar, or a musty, dry imported, and sell them for the genuine.

We do not object to the consumers paying (10c) ten cents for our (5c) "Cable" cigars, and (15c) fifteen cents for our "El Padre" (10c) cigars as they are well worth that money, especially when in imported Havana boxes, but we most decidedly protest against foreigners obtaining the credit for making a fine class of cigars when it belongs to us.

Don't be prejudiced, domestic cigars that are not artificially flavored, will not poison you. Many smokers have enjoyed a fragrant (domestic) Havana while imagining they were smoking an imported.

The celebrated "Cable," "El Padre" and "Modern" brands of cigars are the most reliable in the market. Try them.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Challenge Accepted.

Levi Barnes, Club swinger, says the Toronto Mail, accepted the challenge from Mr. Reeves, of Peterborough and says he will enter a match, for $200 a side, in September next. His present address will be London, Eng.

Still Another.

We understand that Otanabee Lodge I. O. O. F. No. 3, leave in contemplation the so running of grand excursion to the Flower City (Rochester) at an early date. The matter is in hands of an energetic committee.

To Lindsay.

The Oddfellows fraternity of this town intend running an excursion to Lindsay on July 28th, the date of Lindsay's decoration day. The railway fare will be very cheap and a large number are expected to go.

Good Time.

On Thursday evening some members of the Bicycle Club had a five mile race in the Athletic Association Grounds, Mr. A. Gibson taking first place and Mr. J. McNamara second. When the last lap was finished Mack thought he had not had enough, so he started on another five, bringing up the ten miles in good style in 44 minutes from the start.

If you are in want of anything in the Gent's Frocking Line, try A. McNEIL.

Feet Taken Off.

While Mr. "Joe" Kaye, a fireman on the Canadian Pacific Railway, was stepping on his engine at Toronto Junction on Wednesday evening, he slipped and fell, and the engine which was in motion passed over one of his ankles, severing the foot. Mr. Kaye was wiped at the Canadian Pacific Railway here last summer and is well known on the road.

The Fire Department.

The agent of the company furnishing the new hose for the Fire Department desired a second demonstration of its strength, and on Wednesday evening Chief Rutherford and some of the brigade attached the hose to the hydrant near the Review office. A powerful stream was thrown on the Opera House block, the water being thrown over the town clock tower. It would have quenched a blaze in a short time.

A Tongue Felled Out.

The pulling out of a tongue is a rare occurrence, but such was actually the case this morning. Mr. Walwright's large ice delivery wagon was drawing up in front of Messrs Long Bros' confectionary store at about eight o'clock. A hole at the side of the street let down one of the front wheels and the wagon suddenly stood still. The horses continued to draw and twisted the tongue from the wagon gearing. It was taken to one of the shops to be repaired.

The First Match.

The first nine of the newly organized Peterborough Baseball Club play their first match in the Riverside Park to-morrow afternoon. The visiting team are the Bethany. They will arrive at noon, and the match will commence at half-past two o'clock. The first nine of the Peterboroughs comprise the strongest baseballers of the town and Ashburnham. A good exhibition of the ball game may be expected.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, are as follows:—Fresh to strong south westerly wind, fair warm weather, with local showers and thunderstorms, more especially in Northern Ontario.

New Manager.

On Monday morning Mr. Edward Brown, manager of the Lansdowne roller rink, goes to the seaside to spend two months. In his absence the rink will be under the charge of Mr. George Stevenson, well and popularly known through town. No doubt the rink will lose none of its extensive patronage under the new management.

A FRESH supply of Summer Underclothing just received at HAMILTON HALL.

At the Lansdowne.

The regular fortnightly races come off at the Lansdowne rink this evening. Lech, Shevlin, Logan and three unknowns have entered for the free for all, and the best race of the season is confidently expected. Quite a number of entries have been received for the boys' race, and no doubt the rink will be packed as it has been on all such former occasions.

A. C. A. Camp.

The following letter has been handed to us for publication to the members of the A. C. A. GENTLEMEN,—There will be two mails daily between Gananoque and the A. C. A. camp. All mail matter should be addressed, "American Canoe Ass'n's Camp, Gananoque, Ont." It is for the benefit of the Canadian members of the Association, and is in addition to the regular mail service via Clayton, N. Y.

Coming to Peterborough.

Mr. Joseph McClelland, Recorder of Peterborough Lodge A. O. U. W., has received a letter from Mr. F. Mason, Recorder of the Perth Lodge of the same Order, stating that his lodge is making arrangements for an excursion from Brockville, Smith's Falls and Perth to Peterborough in the middle of August, and asking the co-operation of the members here and the people of Peterborough in making the excursion attractive and interesting. The tickets will be good for three days, and a sail on the river is one of the proposed attractions.

A. C. A.

The canoeists of Peterborough will not forget that the annual meeting of the American Canoe Association will open on Friday, July 24th, at Grindstone Island, one of the Thousand Islands, a most suitable spot and very easy of access. Favorable rates have been granted by the railway companies and arrangements are being made for the special transfer of canoes to Gananoque. Members from this neighborhood who purpose attending should send in their names to Mr. R. E. Wood, one of the members of the Executive Committee of the Association. We learn that some of the ladies of Peterborough Ashburnham and Lakefield are making flags for prizes, and would venture to remind others that they might follow this good example.

We keep the largest stock of Gent's White and Colored Shirts in Peterborough at prices that defy competition. A. McNEIL.

Almost a Runaway.

While Mrs. D. Ulyott was driving up George street at about half past four o'clock on Thursday afternoon, the horse took fright at something on the street and shied. The wheels of the buggy struck a passing hack, and Mrs. Ulyott and a lady and child who were also in the buggy, narrowly escaped being thrown out. The horse had commenced to run at a lively pace, but a passer by ran out and caught it, preventing further injury.

Tour of Inspection.

Dr. Clarke, Medical Health Officer, and P. C. Adams, Sanitary Inspector, in response to several complaints, made a tour of inspection through the west end on Thursday afternoon. Among other places inspected were the Peterborough creek, near Park street, and the Park street drain. The latter place was found to be in a somewhat better condition, but the lower end needs to be looked after. Several nuisances on private property were inspected, and satisfactory steps were taken for their abatement.

Annual Outing.

The St. Andrew's Church Sunday school took their annual outing on Thursday by going down to Norwood over the Canadian Pacific railway and spending the day. Quite a number of church members and adherents of the church accompanied the pupils and teachers. The excursion train contained about three hundred pleasure seekers. Arriving at Norwood they went up to Grover's woods, where they found hot and cold water provided for them by the kind people of Norwood. A refreshment booth was also erected, and all of the baskets were conveyed to the picnic grounds from the station free of charge. Spreading the dinner table was soon in order and right heartily was the meal relished under the broad umbrellas of the branches of the trees. The management of the sports was taken in hand by Messrs. John McClelland, J. D. Tully and A. Brodie. A whole basketful of promiscuous prizes were given among the children, and the afternoon passed off most enjoyably. At the right hour tea was served and the day's proceedings ended without a casualty, excepting that one of the little ones who attempted to climb up an ice water can, upset it and got a rather cool bath. The excursion train reached town at about eight o'clock in the evening.

"It was really the best picnic we have ever had," remarked a church member this morning.

A Wise Bird.

A day or two ago while Brakeman Sprague, on Conductor Way's way freight, was passing through Campbellford, he caught a little bird, to all appearance one of the common sparrows or grey birds. He took the little thing to the caboose and kept it until Campbellford was left behind. He brought it here and took it to the Bethune street station, but when let go it flew direct to the caboose. Several times the boys tried to persuade it to come out, but the rara avis seemed determined to stick to the car. Going down it was allowed to fly out at Hastings, but it soon returned. On reaching Campbellford again, however, it flew out like a shot and was seen no more.

Thompson's boot-store in town at the Bon Marche. A very choice selection to choose from.

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Chamberlain arrived home this morning after a two months' trip through England, Ireland and France. He stopped one week in New York on the way home.

Among the arrivals at the Oriental Hotel on Thursday was Miss Daly (Sister Hannah) for several years matron of the Portland, Oregon, hospital.

Messrs. J. H. and G. M. Laurie, sons of Major-General Laurie, have graduated and received commissions at the recent examinations of the Royal Military College, Kingston. They were both old pupils of Dr. Tassie, the present Principal of the Collegiate Institute, when in Galt.

The annual exodus to Europe seems to have reached the townships. During the week Messrs. Hugh Leary, John Leary, and Miss Leary, of the Township of Emily, and Mr. J. Gibson, of Harvey, have started to cross the briny deep. The tickets per White Star Line were purchased from Mr. T. Menzies. Mr. Gibson goes to Leeds, and the others visit friends in Northumberland County.

The Ottawa Excursion.

As the day approaches for the above grand excursion to the beautiful and picturesque city of Ottawa, under the auspices of Court Peterborough, No. 29, C. O. F., the excitement of those who intend going—and there are a very large number—is becoming more and more apparent. The Lacrosse Club are putting in a lot of good practice, preparing for the match with the Mets, and the Cricket Club are also practicing steadily. The enjoyment of every soul who patronizes this excursion is almost a certainty, and the committee, who are pushing things with vigor, are willing to stake their reputation that there will be no cause for complaint from anyone. The public are again reminded that the fast excursion train leaves the C. P. R. station on Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock sharp, and will reach Ottawa at 12 o'clock noon. Returning, the excursion train leaves Ottawa at 6 o'clock, and will reach Peterborough at 11 p.m. the same day. As the tickets are limited those who contemplate going will purchase immediately. As before stated the tickets are good to return on any regular train for three days, and are sold at the very low price of $2.25. Don't miss this chance of seeing the garden city of Canada.

The return one innings cricket match between the married and single members of the cricket club was played on the grounds of the Amateur Athletic Association on Thursday afternoon.

A Sinkhole Causes Delay.

SHARBOT LAKE, Ont., July 16.—A delay of several hours in the shipment of passengers from No. 6 Toronto Express for Montreal, to No. 1 Montreal to Toronto, three miles west of Sharbot Lake, was caused by a sinkhole of about eighty feet long. As soon as it was known that the earth began to recede the section men were set to work, and the portion of the track which disappeared will soon be repaired. No interruption or delays will be caused to the passengers, except, perhaps, in passing from one train to the other.

Cricket at Lakeside.

A team from the Norwood Cricket Club arrived in town on Friday evening, on their way home from Lakeside, where they had gone that day to play a match with the Lakeside Club. The Lakeside team went to the bat first and made a score of 36. Norwood followed and rolled up 45. Lakeside again went to the bat, but when 35 runs had been made an unfortunate dispute arose. R. Watson hit the ball, and it was caught by Robinson, and the subject of the dispute was whether the ball had touched the ground before Robinson secured it. The Lakeside umpire, with whom the decision rested, said it was not out. The Norwood players said that the ball struck Robinson's knee, and not the ground, and was held by him before reaching the earth. The result of the dispute was that the match was not finished. Geo. Calder and A. Robertson did some fine batting for the Norwoods, and in the second innings Cooper and Hammond made double figures for Lakeside. The score of the match as far as played was as follows:—

THE CORPS ORGANIZED

IN CONNECTION WITH THE SALVATION ARMY IN PETERBOROUGH.

A Mass Meeting Held in Bradburn's Opera House—Capt. Prof. Wiggins Relates His Remarkable Experience.

On Friday Staff Capt. Eddie, A. D. C., of the Salvation Army, arrived in town for the purpose of establishing a corps here.

In the evening the soldiers turned out in full force, among the rank and file being several officers and soldiers from other places. After marching through the principal streets they went to Bradburn's Opera House where most of the soldiers took seats on the platform.

Among those on the platform were: Staff Capt. Eddie, his assistant, Capt. Robinson, Brantford, Capt. Prof. Wiggins, Cobourg, Capt. Scott, Lindsay, Capt. Little Willis, in command here, and Cadet Hart. There was quite a large attendance.

The meeting opened with a chorus "We'll Fight the Battle Through," by the officers, after which an experience meeting was held.

Capt. Eddie and others then led in prayer and a quartette was sung by four soldiers from Lindsay.

Capt. Prof. Wiggins then sang a solo; one of the soldiers sang a solo with violin accompaniment, and Capt. Scott gave a short address.

Capt. Prof. Wiggins, of Cobourg, then addressed the meeting. The persecution, he said, down in the town where he was stationed was very hard, but the army always won the victory. Their enemies had gone around with petitions to prevent the holding of their glorious banquet, but they had found that the army had more friends than they were aware of. He found that he was getting nearer and nearer to Jesus all the time, notwithstanding the persecution. When he commenced to think what he was only a few short months ago he could not believe he was the same man; he was a miracle to himself. If ever there was a deep dyed sinner, it was him. For twenty-five years before the time he had received salvation he did not believe that he was more than two days sober. He had lived the life of a drunkard in every country in the world. A few months ago he was engaged in the church in the town of W—, as organist. He would actually be drunk when he went to church, but if he could get there he could always play the organ. He was so much a slave to drink that when the minister gave out his text he (the organist), would slip out of a back door, go to a tavern, have three or four horns of whisky, return, and be ready to play at the end of the sermon. He had taught music when he had nowhere to sleep at nights but in a shed. When the army visited the place he thought he would have to go and see these "fools." He went one night to see them, for six weeks after he seemed to be possessed of devil. He stoned the Army and got the band to play them down. One day he strayed into a photograph gallery to have a photograph taken. The photographer said yes, and brought him to a back room where to his surprise he fell down on his knees and dragged him down also. After praying for some time the photographer got up and asked him if he felt better. "Yes," he replied, "But I must go and have a drink." The photographer followed him to the tavern door and again fell on his knees and prayed, and as was going to go in I felt something unseen pull me back and I could not enter. "Wiggins," says I, its come at last, you have to go."

He then related how afterward pupils came flocking to him but he could not teach, because he felt that he must work for God. He went to the barracks alone and prayed, saying if it was the will of God that he should go out and work, and averred that the answer came audibly, "Go out and work for me." No case, he said, was in the room at the time. He wrote to the Major and got a commission and has been since in the service of the Army.

Captain Robinson said a few words and another quartette was given by the Lindsay soldiers.

Staff Capt. Eddie read from the 4th chapter of Philippians and made comments, after which Captain Scott led in prayer. Another chorus was sung by the soldiers and officers, during which most of those assembled left the hall.

Staff Capt. Eddie then called the soldiers together and proceeded to form the "Peterborough Army Corps." He stated what would be expected of the officers and defined their duties. The officers have not yet been sworn in, but the appointments have been practically made.

THE ZULFIKAR PASS.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 17.—The Journal de St. Petersburg comments on the erroneous view held by the British press on the Zulfiakar pass question. It says that Russia understood that England had pledged to the Amers the Zulfiakar valley between the Herard and the mountains, and agreed in principle to leave this position to him. It is not supposed, says the Journal, that England has also promised to the Amers the eastern mountain passes which are now the question of negotiation.

REFORM HUMOUR.

The following specimen of Reform humour is being copied by many papers supporting that party:—

"The Ottawa Free Press sums up the correspondence between the Canadian and United States governments on the fisheries question as follows:— 'We will allow you to fish in our waters,' said Sir John, 'till the end of the year, if you will admit our fish duty free.' 'We cannot admit your fish duty free,' replied Mr. Bayard, 'but we will fish in your waters without giving compensation, if you like.' 'All right,' replied Sir John, and so the matter was settled."

Fastidious people have sometimes complained to admirers of the American humorist, Mark Twain, that many of his sketches were absurdly untrue, and they have received the reply that therein lay the secret of the humour of the sketches, his admirers believing that the more gigantic the falsehood was the more intensely funny it became. The Reform humorists have evidently adopted the standard used by Twain in the sketches referred to, for, although the Free Press "summary" may be witty, it is untrue. It would have been nearer the truth if it had made Mr. Bayard's reply read:—"We cannot admit your fish duty free, because that is a matter beyond the control of the Executive and must be dealt with by Congress." "I regret that," replied Sir John, "because your fishermen will get into trouble through the clause expiring in the middle of the season."

"I perceive the force of that," was Mr. Bayard's answer, "and as we cannot admit your fish duty free, if you will not trouble our fishermen this season we will open the whole question and appoint a commission to consider it." "And our whole trade relations will be considered at the same time," suggested Sir John. "We will agree to that," replied the United States Secretary. "All right," said the wily Sir John, and so the question of our trade relations was opened.

The Reformers have professed to be so anxious for a reciprocity treaty with the United States that if they were honourable opponents, they would be pleased with the action of the Canadian Government in taking steps which will pave the way for negotiations regarding reciprocal trade relations, but anyone who expects honourable treatment of the acts of the Government from the present Opposition will be greatly disappointed. The Government, while suggesting to the United States the probability of the fishermen getting into trouble, had in view the interests of Canada, and took the most effective way of showing our neighbors that it was necessary in the interest of their people, as well as ourselves, that some arrangements should be made. The result will be watched with interest, and the people of Canada will feel confident that, in the hands of our present able rulers, the interests of Canada are safe.

LAKEFIELD.

Correspondence of the Review.

SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.—The English Church Sunday School children left the village this morning for their annual picnic in Stony Lake, on board the steamer Oriole and palace scow. It is to be hoped they will enjoy the holiday.

COUNCIL HALL.—A petition is now in circulation in the village requesting the Council to rent what is known as the V property and house thereon as market square and Council Hall. The whole property will be rented for the sum of $80 per year, and the owners will make the necessary alterations. This is an opportunity that should not be let pass, and is not likely to be offered to the village again.

FISHING.—The Lakefield correspondent of your morning contemporary tells some very good fishing stories in this week's issue, but I think that I can do nearly as well. On Wednesday three gentlemen from this village went to Rele Creek, and in half an hour landed 35 fine bass; and the morning before two young gentlemen camped at Stony Lake caught seven muskellunge before breakfast. From all accounts the fishing in Stony Lake seems to be unusually good this year.

DANGEROUS.—I would like to ask with all humility why the old pier at the entrance to the lake at Young's Point is not removed. It is a source of danger and annoyance to the steamboats, and will probably cause an accident.

ONKKEE.

HEAVY WEIGHT.—Last week three gentlemen of fair size met in omnibus and the question of "how much would the three weigh" arose, when they walked to a pair of scales and settled the important question.—Here are the weights.—Mr. John Young, (in his shirt sleeves and slippers on his feet) 283½ pounds; Mr. Jas. Bryant, fully attired, 247½ pounds; Dr. Monck, 229½ pounds; the total weight of whom was 743½ pounds, and with the weight of the editor of the Herald thrown in would make 853½ pounds.—Herald.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

HALF-BRED GRIEVANCES.

THURSDAY, July 16.—MR. McLELLAN, in answer to Mr. Blake, said that no letters except those brought down had been received from Bishop Grandin on the half-breed grievances. Many non-official letters had been received, and those that could be collected would be brought down next session. All papers as to half-breed claims in the disturbed districts had been brought down.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD said Michael Dumais had been appointed from instructor, J. Tablier had declined such an appointment, Gabriel Dumais had not been granted a ferry license by the Department.

SIR H. LAROCHE said he had reported to his colleagues as to his interview with half-breeds.

CALUMNIES REFUTED.

MR. ROYAL asked as to the newspaper reports of ill-treatment of wounded half-breeds by volunteers. MR. CANON read the following telegram which had been received from Gen. Middleton:—"The answer to yours of the 10th, I have to say that Donald Ross, after shooting Captain French, as it was supposed, was shot dead, and a few minutes afterwards I saw the body, with his daughter sitting by it. I heard since that the priest afterwards buried it. As regards Damas, Carriere, and Vandal, I never heard their names. I was riding all over the field till late, backwards and forwards, and if any such disgraceful acts had taken place I must have seen them. I found one wounded man myself, and sent for a stretcher, which was brought by some men and the half-breed taken to our hospital. The whole statement is a vile calumny. I repeat that the conduct of the men has been wonderfully good. We had five wounded men of the enemy brought into our hospital, carried in by the soldiers themselves."

END OF THE SESSION.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD, in reply to Mr. Blake, said the Government did not propose to bring any new measures before the House. The prorogation would probably take place on Saturday or Monday.

DISARMAMENT.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD resumed the debate on Mr. Mill's amendment as to the possession of fire arms in the Northwest, and declined to accept it. The restriction would only come into force in districts proclaimed dangerous by the Lieut.-Governor, and then permits would be granted to the loyal inhabitants. It would not do to have one law for half-breeds and Indians and another for whites, as some half-breeds and Indians were loyal and some whites disloyal.

SIR R. CARTWRIGHT, Mr. BURRIS, and Mr. CANBY opposed the bill.

MR. CURRIE pointed out that the Blake Act was equally strict as to pocket fire arms in the other provinces.

MR. ROYAL was opposed to a general disarmament, but would support it in proclaimed districts.

MR. OATON supported the bill, and Mr. Watson the amendment.

The amendment was negatived by 88 to 35, and the bill was read a third time.

MR. MILLA CRITICAL.

MR. MILLA, on motion to go into Committee of Supply, denounced the appointment of the acting minister as illegal. He also complained of delay in making Imperial legislation on the boundary question and seemed to think the Quebec northern boundary of no moment.

THE REBEL PRISONERS.

MR. LAURIER called attention to the prisoners at Regina. He thought only the leaders should be tried, and quoted the United States precedent in favour of a general amnesty. He thought many of these men might be sent back to their families.

MR. BURNBORN advocated trial by 12 jurors, half English and half French.

SIR R. LANGEVIN said it was not for the executive, but for the courts to determine the degree of guilt. The general had allowed numbers to go who did not seem to be leaders. These now prisoners would have to be tried according to the existing law, and would have a fair trial. It would be time enough afterwards to talk of the pardoning power in some cases.

MR. BLAKE not being able to find fault with the executive action, grumbled at measures being brought down late, and especially at the railway aid resolutions being introduced at the end of the session.

SIR J. MACDONALD had no doubt that Gen. Middleton had exercised a wise discretion as to the prisoners to be retained. These would have to stand their trial according to law, and then there might be a question of the pardoning power. As to the proper time for introducing railway aid resolutions, Mr. Blake seemed to have completely changed his views, as when Mr. Blake was Premier of Ontario in 1872, he had brought down his railway aid resolutions on Feb. 28. They were passed on Feb. 29 and the Legislature was prorogued the following day.

SIR R. CARTWRIGHT condemned such a late introduction of railway aid resolutions.

SUFFICIENCY.

The House went into Committee of Supply, and passed the remaining items.

SESSIONAL ALLOWANCE.

MR. McLELLAN opposed the $500 additional allowance on account of the length of the session.

MR. BOWELL moved to extend the increase to members serving in the Northwest.

MR. MILLA objected to including the members who were serving their country in the field.

SIR J. MACDONALD thought this was very small.

MR. BLAKE said the increase was promised to keep the Conservative members during the Franchise Bill debate. It should only be given to the minority.

SIR J. MACDONALD said he would leave that to the majority to decide. If Mr. Blake had not deserted his post, he might have prevented his followers from wasting the time of the House and the money of the country.

SIR R. CARTWRIGHT said if Sir John would bring down his measures early, they would not be factiously opposed. But for the Franchise Bill they might have adjourned three months earlier.

SIR J. MACDONALD ridiculed the idea that if the Bill had been introduced earlier they would have been spared the long speeches about Indians and reviving officers.

MR. BLAKE threatened further obstruction if measures were not brought down earlier.

SIR J. MACDONALD said they would then have to adopt the English remedy of the closure.

MR. BLAKE said in England measures were introduced and pushed earlier.

SIR J. MACDONALD said seventeen measures of the Gladstone administration were now being brought over.

The items were passed, as were those remaining.

A VOTE FOR GEN. MIDDLETON.

SIR J. MACDONALD stated that he proposed to ask the House to vote Gen. Middleton, as a recognition of his services, the sum of $20,000. The House adjourned at 12.20 a.m.

THE WAY to keep the Blood pure and cool through the hot summer months is to take an occasional dose of Dr. Carson's Stomach Bitters the Best Stomach and Liver Medicine made. In large bottles, 50 cents.

SINKING INTO THE EARTH.

Curious and Amazing Cases in at Stillington, Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, July 16.—Several curious cave-ins of earth have recently occurred at Stillington, greatly alarming the residents near where they have happened, causing them to leave their dwellings for others in another locality. The latest occurred the other morning, when a miner residing near the old Halifax Company pit went into his garden to get some lettuce for his breakfast. Immediately after he returned to the house his lettuce bed disappeared, and in its stead there was a hole ten or fifteen feet in diameter, and in depth to the bottom of the pit. The spot was about twenty feet from the house and eight or ten feet from the road. The various strata from the mineral rock to the hay or vegetable-covered surface could be seen, giving an opportunity to learn the formation of the earth's crust for many feet below the surface. From the hole hot air impregnated with fire-damp or gas was escaping, which made it somewhat unpleasant to stand near. Forty or fifty feet from this is another pitfall, considerably larger, but perhaps not quite so deep, a part of which extended under a barn, threatening to swallow it up. Further back, nearly in a direct line from these, is another, in size much larger. Near this the highway is shut off, and people are forbidden to travel upon it. The fissures ran within a foot of some dwellings.

DANGER IN THE AIR.

The mosquito is an insect with which most people have had some acquaintance during their life time, and there are few cases on record where a renewal of the intimacy was desired. But while there has been a wide-spread dislike for the mosquito on account of its presumptuous and undue familiarity, there have been people who were ever ready to defend this insect as one of utility and benefit to mankind. The "North-western nightingale" has been declared to be a blessing in disguise. The majority of people have entertained the opinion that the mosquito is most perfect. "Kill not the mosquitoes," we have been told, "they purify malarial breeding swamps."

Therefore we have suffered the mosquito to live, especially when it proved too nimble and skillfully evaded the descending blow which was to wipe it out of existence. But our feelings of tolerance towards the pestiferous, aggressive insect have undergone a change. Science sustains us in the change of attitude on this question. A leading scientist asserts that the mosquito is responsible for many diseases humanity is heir to. With his sharp probe he punctures the skin and draws out the blood of his victim. When his gorge is satisfied he withdraws the lancet and leaves behind the seeds of malarial and fever, that have been picked up in his swampy home. In many points in the States these animals are reported unusually troublesome this season. The mosquito must go.

Our old friend the common house fly, has also been condemned by the scientists. It is true the fly has proven a troublesome customer, with an ugly habit of getting into places where his presence is not desirable, but we have been accustomed to regard him as apparently harmless. It is therefore with surprise that we learn that the members of the Spanish medical commission have come to the conclusion that the ordinary house fly has a great deal to do with disease. It is said that the fly is the continual bearer of the pestilence from house to house and from one individual to another. The members of the commission base their conclusions on these facts: first the cholera develops its greatest virulence in hot weather when flies are abundant. In the next place it has been demonstrated that flies are the carriers of disease in hot countries. The danger from flies feeding on putrid bodies on battlefields and then settling on new-made wounds is well known to all surgeons. In Egypt when the people are subject to a vicious form of ophthalmia it is known that the disease is conveyed from one individual to another by the pestiferous insect. It is the history of cholera that it leaps from place to place in most mysterious fashion and enters houses whose inhabitants have had no intercourse with the outside world. The members of the Spanish medical commission reason that after a banquet with the cholera the buzzing pests go forth with their tiny feet clogged with microbes, and settling on the delicate food there deposit the fatal seeds of the pestilence. Last year, during the prevalence of cholera at Marseilles, the birds suddenly disappeared, and it is suspected that they had found out the danger of longer dining on flies.

After these disclosures the war which house wives wage against flies will be prosecuted with redoubled energy. Certainly it is decidedly uncomfortable to feel that the myriads of these insects are nothing less than the messengers of death carrying fatal diseases in their household, office, stores and factories.—Winnipeg Times.

Eighty Miles an Hour.

One of the fastest runs ever made in this country was accomplished yesterday by a special train of three cars on the West Shore, drawn by engine 45, Engineer Smith. The train left Fort Buffalo about 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning and covered the distance to Cassess Junction, 91 miles in 57 minutes. The run to Frankfurt, 302 miles, was made in exactly four hours which indicates the speed of the train makes the actual running time between the two points 200 minutes, which is claimed to be the best run of the distance ever made. The distance from Fort Buffalo to Newark, 43 miles was made in 40 minutes. The speed of the train at that time was over 80 miles an hour. One of the officials on the train stated that several of them with stop-watches noted runs of from five to eight miles, in which the train made each mile in forty three seconds. The train arrived at Weehawken at 7.30 o'clock having made the entire distance of 426 miles in ten hours, an average of forty-two and three-fifths miles an hour, including stops.—Buffalo Express.

A Sad Case of Poisoning is that of any man or woman afflicted with diarrhoea or derangement of the liver, resulting in poisonous accumulations in the blood, producing affections, sick headaches, and diseases of the kidneys, lungs or heart. These troubles can be cured only by going to the primary cause, and putting the liver in a healthy condition. Nothing has proven itself so efficacious as Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," which has never failed to do the work claimed for it, and never will.

SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1885.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Business Booming.

"Billy's" booth at the Landdowne rink has been doing such a rushing business during the last few fever hot days that the proprietor has decided to depart from the present place and take up new and larger quarters. A large room off the lower spectators, gallery is being now fitted up.

The Presentation to Mr. Smith.

The Toronto Mail of Friday says:— "We publish this morning with great satisfaction the proceedings at a meeting in Peterborough on Tuesday last, to do honour to Mr. H. H. Smith, the new Dominion Commissioner of Lands in the North-West. The fact that men of all shades and politics took prominent part in the gathering shows that Mr. Smith's life in Peterborough was lived for good ends, and sustained by praiseworthy ambitions."

Col. Williams' Funeral.

In order to accommodate those going down to Port Hope on Tuesday to attend the funeral of the late Col. A. H. T. Williams the Grand Trunk railway will issue tickets at single fare, available by the 7.05 a.m. and 11.55 a.m. trains, and good to return on a special train leaving Port Hope the same evening at about 5 o'clock or on the regular next day.

The 57th Battalion Band.

The following paragraph is taken from the Ottawa Free Press:— "The band of the 57th Battalion of Peterborough will accompany the Hon. A. P. Carson, Minister of Militia, at his residence on Tuesday evening."

The Late Capt. Brown.

The Lindsay Warder, after quoting a paragraph from the Peterborough papers regarding the late Capt. Brown, says:— "Poor Ted! Many a time we have played lacrosse together on the old Toronto grounds. The Warder will be glad to assist the volunteers and citizens of Peterborough in any way in our power to do honor to an open-hearted and brave comrade. We feel sure the volunteers of Lindsay will honor the hero of our sister town by turning out to attend his funeral."

If you are in want of anything in the Gent's Furnishing Line, try A. McNEIL.

Lindsay's Plan.

Lindsay intends to give to her returning volunteers a reception. As matters now stand the returning volunteers will be received on the night of their arrival with a torchlight procession and general illumination. Then about a week after will follow the grand banquet to which the whole 45th Battalion will be invited, and a general holiday. In all, counting subscriptions and grants made up to date, the committee have funds at their disposal amounting to about $386.

A False Report.

A rumor has been started in town that the Foresters excursion to Ottawa on Tuesday, July 21st, had been postponed. The report is utterly false and without foundation. At seven o'clock, on Tuesday morning, a fast excursion train of ten first-class new coaches will leave the C.P.R. station for Ottawa, and at 12 o'clock noon, the party will be in the city. Who the originator of the story is, is not known, but this is to notify the public to take no notice of the silly report whatever.

The Team.

The following are the names of the team representatives of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, that will contest with the "Mets" in Ottawa on July 21st:—

Big Excursion.

A private telegram to the President of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, Mr. H. LeBrun, states that arrangements are on foot for running a big excursion from Brampton to Peterborough on August 13th. The correspondent thinks that there will be at least one thousand people down on that day.

F. A. A. A.

The Bicycle Club intend taking a run to Lakefield and return on Tuesday evening, July 21st, weather permitting. The start will take place from the drill shed grounds at 6.45 sharp. Every member of the club is requested to turn out as business of importance, in regard to the coming races on Friday, 24th inst., has to be attended to.

Call at Turnbull's and ask to see his new Dress Goods at 12; cents worth 20.

A Challenge.

Mr. George S. Galloway, Secretary of the Atlantic Baseball club, of Toronto, communicates to the Peterboroughs, and on behalf of the Atlantic asks for a match on August 17th, Toronto's civic holiday. It is altogether likely that this challenge will be accepted, and that arrangements will be made for the formal opening of the Riverdale Park on that day. The Atlantic are a strong team and Manager Reeves needs to get his men down to fine work if he intends to go in and win on the 17th.

We keep the largest stock of Gent's White and Colored Shirts in Peterborough at prices that defy competition. A. McNEIL.

The Market.

The market was well attended this morning. The grain receipts, however, were rather light. A few loads of hay brought $11 and $12. New potatoes sold at 30 cents per peck; shelled peas at two quarts for 25 cents; and new beans at ten cents per quart. Lamb sold from 8 to 10 cents per pound. There was an unusually large supply of small fruit. Cherries sold at 8 cents per quart; raspberries at 10 cents to $1.00 a peck; black currants at 10 cents per quart; and red currants at 12 cents per quart. Fowl was scarce, a few chickens bringing 50 cents per pair. Butter sold at 16 and 17 cents a pound, and eggs at 11 and 12 cents per dozen.

Local Patronage.

There is more truth than poetry in the following paragraph clipped from the columns of the Norwich Telegraph:—"A printer stood at the desk of a business man the other day and noticed him using letter and note heads which he had bought of a New York or Buffalo house. Said a printer, who was a customer: 'what would you think of me if I were to go to New York and buy your line of goods for myself and family?' The merchant replied: 'I would think you a fool when I know you can get the same goods just as cheap and aid a fellow citizen.' When the printer called his attention to the imported letter and bill heads, the merchant coughed and gazed up behind the counter to wait on a customer. Warm bills from the paper mill and type foundry came in, the printer thought of those things. Local bankers, dry goods merchants, grocers, druggists and other business men should think of the above facts sometimes." There are only a few in Peterborough who would rather send their orders out of town than give it to their local printer.

For a Nobby Summer Suit, try ANDREW McNEIL.

Races on Sellers.

The fortnightly races for the medal, presented by the Manager of the Rink, took place at the Landdowne Roller Rink on Friday evening. The races were good and the spectators and skaters were both numerous. When the going was rung for the first race, the judges took their positions in the centre of the floor. Mr. Frank Adams acted as starter. There were three entries for the race for all two mile race, Messrs. J. Shevlin, H. Lech and E. B. Sweetser, of Port Hope. On the word "go" Lech got a slight advantage, taking first place, which he held for about three laps, when he was passed by Shevlin, who kept the lead until the finish. The race was won by Shevlin, beating Sweetser by about a lap and a quarter, and Lech by about three quarters of a lap; Lech second, and Sweetser third. Time eight and a half minutes. After this race the boys' mile race took place. There were four entries, McFarlane, Rubidge, Johnston and Coursey. McFarlane took the lead at the first and won the race easily, with Rubidge a good second, and Johnston third. Time, four and a half minutes. At the conclusion of the race McFarlane was presented by Mr. A. D. Browne with the prize, a beautiful silver cup, he having won it three times.

Just to hand at Turnbull's one case of new Dress Goods, in all the prevailing shades for the coming season, ask to be shown them.

The Probabilities.

The weather probabilities for this district for the twenty four hours counting from one o'clock this morning, as reported from the Toronto Observatory, as follows:—Light winds, fine weather, lower temperatures.

Military Meeting.

A meeting of the members of the three companies of the 57th Battalion was held in the Drill Shed on Friday evening to consider as to the arrangements for attending the funeral of the late Col. Williams. The Lieut.-Col. was delegated to make arrangements.

From the Bridge.

An excursion under the auspices of the Methodist Church Sunday School, Uxbridge, will be run to Peterborough on July 23rd. The second twelve of the Uxbridge Lacrosse Club will accompany the excursionists and will cross sticks with the Peterborough juniors.

THE cheapest boot-store in town is at the Bon Marche. A very choice selection to choose from.

Dominion Civil Service.

The result of the Civil Service examinations held in Ottawa in May last, shows that Mr. Wm. Belcher, of this town, has passed in the preliminary class. Mr. T. Q. Dench (preliminary class) and T. W. P. English, (qualified class) also of this neighborhood, have passed successful examinations.

The Midland Battalion.

We learn through the telephone this afternoon that the steamer Alberta, having on board the Midland Battalion and the Quebec regiment, is expected to arrive at Owen Sound to-morrow morning, and that those regiments are expected to reach Toronto at 3 o'clock. A telephonic message from Port Hope says that the Midland Battalion is expected there to-morrow night or Monday morning.

White and colored Prints, all prices, now being shown at Turnbull's.

The Bold Burglar.

An attempt to burglarize the residence of Dr. Burritt was made at an early hour this morning. Between one and two o'clock Mr. Daniel Burritt heard a suspicious noise, and he raised his bedroom window and looked out, when he discovered a man trying to effect an entrance through a window of the cook house, beneath the window from which he was looking. Mr. Burritt requested the man to wait a minute and he would go down and admit him, without the trouble of forcing an entrance, but without accepting the invitation the prowler hastily made off.

Fell from a Scaffold.

This forenoon, while Messrs. Archie Moore and Robt. McGregor were at work putting on the cornice on a house which is being built by Mr. John Carlisle, on Donegal street, the scaffold gave way and the two men fell to the ground. Mr. Moore was severely bruised in several places, and his wrist was badly abraded. His companion, however, fared much worse. He fell to the ground and before he could get up the boards of the scaffold fell on him. He was taken to his home on Water street and Dr. Kincaid was summoned. It was found that the body over the abdomen was badly bruised, but there were no internal injuries. This afternoon Mr. McGregor seems to be doing nicely and will probably be around again in a few days.

Mr. Manning's Reception.

The Ottawa Vindicator contains the following account of a reception tendered to the Rev. T. Manning, formerly pastor of the Charlotte Street Church, by the congregation of the Church of which he now has charge:—"The Simcoe St. Methodist congregation gave a reception to their incoming pastor, Rev. T. Manning, on Friday evening last, in the lecture room. There was a large turn out and a real time was spent. The affair was got up by the Ladies Aid Society. In addition to the strawberries, ice cream was served at 5 o'clock to those desiring it. Mr. J. A. Luke opened the proceedings by very heartily and cordially welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Manning on behalf of the people and wishing them every success and praying the assistance and co-operation of the church members. Rev. Mr. Manning then took charge of the meeting when a short but choice programme of music and reading was given."

Next Tuesday Morning.

July 21st, at 7 o'clock sharp, the Foresters' excursion will leave the C.P.R. station for the capital of the Dominion, the famous and beautiful city of Ottawa. The train will be composed of ten first class comfortable coaches, and the trip will be made in five hours. Ottawa will be reached by noon, and after spending six full hours in viewing the beautiful sights of (which a programme will be delivered on the train) they can, if they so desire, take the evening train at six o'clock for home, or remain until eleven o'clock the same night, and if they do not wish to come home the same day, the tickets are good to return on any regular train for three days. Those wishing to remain over night will find that ample arrangements have been made for their accommodation at the Grand Union Hotel at greatly reduced fares. Don't miss this grand excursion. It will be by far the best and most enjoyable that ever left Peterborough.

Turnbull is now showing 3,100 yards of new print in 100 different patterns, good value at 12 cents, but selling at 10.

DISLOYAL AND FALSE.

THE London Advertiser certainly does not display much loyalty or truthfulness by endorsing the calumnious assertions of a correspondent. The Advertiser says:—

"A Reformer writing to the Winnipeg Free Press, says that he and other Reformers have lost their sons in fighting for the country, but not for the Government. The first man who fell in the battle at Fish Creek was a Grit, and the son of a Grit. 'My son fell,' says the writer, 'and he was a Grit, and the son of a Grit.' He says that the Tory officers were lying in the hold of the Northwesterly barricaded with bay, while their companies were fighting on the land, and that the Tories in the Northwest, as in most other cases, sought office and safety. The Advertiser and the Tories are reformers of disloyalty when it suits their fancy. They are disloyal to a rotten and corrupt Government, but they are loyal to Her Majesty. He leaves the death of his son at the door of the present Administration. This slandering charge against the 'Tory' officers, if believed anywhere, will certainly not gain any credence in this district, where we have to lament the death of Col. Williams, of the Midland Battalion, and Capt. Brown, of Bolton's Horse. In Colonel Bolton, also, we have an instance from among ourselves of a 'Tory' officer who is no coward, and who has given ample proof of his loyalty.

We are convinced, also, that in its disloyal remarks the Advertiser is at the same time slandering the Reformers who have been serving in the Northwest. We are quite certain, for instance, that Col. Deacon, of the Midland Battalion, though politically opposed to the Macdonald Administration, would resent the insulting imputation that he is 'disloyal' to the Government of Canada, that is 'to the authorities whom the people of this Dominion have thought fit to entrust with the management of their affairs. The volunteers who served their country in the Northwest are not disloyal, whatever may be their political views, though the Advertiser in its desire to lower others to its own level may choose to misrepresent them.
Even its pretended loyalty to the Queen is open to grave doubt.

A Senator Dead.

The Hon. Jean Charles Chapelle died in the Hospital General at Ottawa on Friday. Some four days ago he was seized with a dangerous form of inflammation of the bowels. The symptoms were of such a nature that recovery from the first was very doubtful, owing to his advanced age. The deceased hon. gentleman was born at River Ouelle on the 21st December, 1812. He married a daughter of the late Amable Dionne, many years a member of the Legislative Council of Canada. He became a member of the Executive Council and Commissioner of Public Works from March 1864 until Confederation. Sworn into the Privy Council, July 1, 1867, and was Minister of Agriculture from that date to Nov. 1868, when he was appointed Receiver General. This office he resigned in 1873. He sat in the Quebec Conference of 1860; was government director of the Grand Trunk Railway for many years; sat for Kamouraska in the Canadian Assembly from 1853 until the Union. He contested the same seat for the House of Commons at the general election of 1867. A special return and no election declared. He sat for Champlain in the Legislative Assembly of Quebec from 1867 to 1871. He was called to the Senate, January 13, 1874, and was a Conservative in politics.

A Quartette Drowned.

QUEBEC, July 15.—A letter has just been received, giving an account of a terrible drowning accident at St. Alx, Desmont county, Maine. On Saturday last a number of young men went to visit a friend at the above place. During the evening three of them, named Fourley, Allard and Ducloux, accompanied by a young lady named Giguere, got into a boat with the purpose of crossing the river at this point, when a strong current carried them off, and the boat striking some object in the middle of the river, upset, throwing all four occupants into the river, who were drowned in view of a number of persons on the shore, who were unable to render any assistance. The body of young Ducloux has since been found.

Hanged at Moosejaw.

WINNIPEG, July 17.—Gunnors was hanged at Moosejaw this morning for the murder of Henry Mulaski, a Jew pedlar, on April 6. Rev. Mr.
Urquhart stated on Commers and attempted to draw him out on religious topics, but he flew into a rage and refused to listen to any spiritual advice. He made no confession, and showed no emotion. The murderer's neck was broken.
His heart ceased to beat in nine minutes.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

THE THIRD SESSION OF THE FIFTH PARLIAMENT OF CANADA.

THANKS TO THE VOLUNTEERS.
FRIDAY, July 17.—Mr. CARON moved a vote of thanks to the troops serving in the recent operations in the Northwest. He spoke in high terms of the services of Gen. Middleton, the officers and men of the force, giving a sketch of their successes, and especially including the medical and supply organizations. He gave their due meed of praise to the C. E. R. and the Hudson Bay Company for their efficient assistance, and to the officials of the Militia Department. While thanking the survivors he deplored the loss of the gallant men who had fallen. The Princess Louise, the ladies of Canada and others who had sent supplies to the troops received appropriate acknowledgment. Their troops had gained a record that might make them the pride of any nation, and in Gen. Middleton they had an admirable leader. He moved:—

(1) That the thanks of this House be given to Major General Frederick D. Middleton, C. B., for the distinguished skill and ability with which he conducted the military operations in the North-West Territory, which resulted in the suppression of the rebellion against the authority of Her Majesty.
(2) That this House do acknowledge and highly approve of the gallantry, discipline, and good conduct displayed by the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the militia force of Canada and the North-West Mounted Police in the suppression of the rebellion.
(3) That this House doth acknowledge with admiration the distinguished valour and conduct of those who perished during the operations in the North-West in the service of their country, and desire to express its deep sympathy with their relations and friends.

(1) That Mr. Speaker do communicate the said resolutions to Major-General Middleton, and that he be requested by Mr. Speaker to signify the same to the several officers and men surviving.

Sir R. CARTWRIGHT seconded the motion in the absence, through indisposition, of Mr.
Blake. He gave similar high praise to the troops, speaking in a very feeling manner.
Mr. LAZAR, in French, supported the motion warmly, and added his tribute to the missionaries for the assistance they had rendered.

Mr. WATSON also praised our volunteers, making special reference to the late Col.
Williams.

Mr. WOODWORTH spoke of the volunteers from Nova Scotia fighting side by side with those from the other Provinces, and assured that the ties uniting the Dominion would be drawn closer.

Mr. McMILLAN, who was serving with the 7th, entered more into detail as to the various conflicts. He described Col. Williams as leading the decisive charge at Balaboe with two companies of the Midland. Like Gen. Middleton he denied from his own personal observation that there had been any ill treatment of the wounded half breeds. As to Col. Irvine, it would have been most unwise for him to leave the women and children at Prince Albert unprotected.

The motion was carried unanimously.
GEN. MIDDLETON.

Mr. BOWELL presented a message from the Governor-General recommending a recognition of the services of Gen. Middleton, and the sum of $20,000 was voted.

RAILWAY AID.

A bill embodying the resolutions granting aid to railways was passed, Sir R. Cartwright objecting to its being introduced so late.

THE LATE COL. WILLIAMS.

Sir J. MACDONALD suggested that the Speaker on behalf of the House should order a wreath to be laid on the coffin of Col. Williams, M.P.

PROBATION.
